MISS MAUDE STEWART DREWRY,
Returned from South Africa,
After a Successful Season of 10 Months with Leonard Rayne, Esq.

A FEW PRESS OPINIONS.

THORA, in "THE PRODIGAL SON."

South African News.—Another feature of the production was the début, in this country, of Miss Maude Stewart Drewry, who played the part of Thora with power and passion, her scene with Helga, when the latter's machinations were exposed, being magnificent. Miss Drewry, at what was her first performance in our midst, showed that she was more than equal to the onerous part allotted to her, and she rapidly became a favourite with those in front.

Cape Times.—The part of the true and tender Thora was played by Miss Maude Stewart Drewry. She invested her reading of the character with infinite charm. Thora's winsome manner and slight girlish figure made the tragedy of her early death the more pitiful. It was in the scene where this death occurred that Miss Drewry reached a very high level of fine acting. Indeed, it is as fine as anything seen in the Opera House for many a long day.

Owl.—Miss Maude Stewart Drewry is new to South Africa, but she quickly showed herself to be an actress of considerable power. She made of Thora a very charming and attractive personality, and altogether Mr. Rayne is to be congratulated on his latest recruit.

Review.—Miss Drewry, who appeared for the first time in South Africa, invested the part of Thora with impressive delicacy and sweetness. It is a part which, in proper hands, cannot fail to be effective, and Miss Drewry missed none of her opportunities.

East London Daily Despatch.—Miss M. S. Drewry, as the gentle Thora, was admirable. She was able to rise to that degree of passion which the gentlest characters are capable under great strain. As the betrayed wife in the scene with her sister, Helga. Miss Drewry touched the true note of tragedy.

Mosquito.—The character of Thora, the much-suffering wife of Oscar, was played with great sympathy by Miss M. S. Drewry. Miss Drewry is a very attractive addition to Mr. Rayne's company, and her first appearance here was an unqualified success.

Transvaal Critic.—Miss M. S. Drewry is a stranger to Johannesburg, but I am glad to welcome her as an actress of exceptional power, particularly in the high, strong, emotional line. She presents the living Thora with splendid success—the impressionable girl captured by Oscar's volatile ability, the heart-broken wife, enduring the anguish of seeing her inconsistent husband fallen under the witcheries of a more fascinating sister. Miss Drewry ought to go a long way in her profession.

MISS MAUDE STEWART DREWRY.

KATE, in "THE MANXMAN."

Transvaal Critic.—Miss M. S. Drewry presents Kate Creegan for the first time. She may be proud of the achievement. From the thrilling scene of Pete's return, and her mad appeal to Philip to right the wrong, her audience fell down and worshipped the emotional actress, the woman whose flesh creeps at her husband's touch, who clings fondly to hope until she is thrust aside by Philip's mingled ambition and cowardice. In the climax of the play, where Pete is told that he is neither father nor beloved, Miss Drewry's grim story was beautifully told—voice, gesture, manner all contributing. Altogether a splendid character.

Transvaal Leader.—Kate Creegan was acted by Miss Maude Stewart Drewry, who gave a charming representation of the tavern-keeper's daughter. The development of the careless Kate of the first act into the beautiful, loving, and erring woman of the second, and lastly, into the distracted wife and mother of the latter half of the play, was exceedingly well represented.

Transvaal Advertiser.—Miss M. S. Drewry played the difficult part of the, at first, bright and witty Kitty and the misguided lover and wife in a manner that could not fail to be admired.

Star, Johannesburg.— A fine companion picture was presented in the shape of the portrayal of the part of Katharine, by Miss Drewry, who at one bound advanced considerably the reputation she has already earned. In the first act, especially, she played with a full realisation of the significance of the character—half merry, half tragic—which won ready applause.

ESTHER, in "CASTE."

Transvaal Advertiser.—Miss M. S. Drewry as Esther again sustained her reputation. Her performance was charming, natural, and more than pleasing. Miss Drewry is to be congratulated on a charming performance, marked by good elocution and excellent acting.

Cape Times.—Very charming, indeed, was Miss Drewry in the part of Esther, and in the acute scene, when D'Alroy is leaving for the war, she reached a very high altitude of dramatic fervour.

DICK, in "TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

East London Daily Despatch.—But the success of the evening was undoubtedly Miss Drewry; she was the vagabond as one sees him in London, and in the wayside gipsy caravans.

Natal Mercury.—The little vagabond, Dick, was given by Miss M. S. Drewry, and she was eminently successful, and the best Dick ever seen in Durban.

Pretoria News.—Miss Maude Stewart Drewry as Dick was very natural and boyish, full of fun and good spirits, never overdoing her part, even in her most trying scene, where she recognises her old home.

LADY VENETIA, in "UNDER TWO FLAGS."

Cape Times.—Miss Maude Stewart Drewry as Lady Venetia added yet another to her many successes.

East London Daily Despatch.—Lady Venetia was charmingly impersonated by Miss Maude Stewart Drewry, whose personality was quite in keeping with her rôle.

East London Daily News.—Miss M. S. Drewry made a charming Lady Venetia, and repeatedly brought down the house with her sympathetic interpretation of a difficult part. Her charm as an actress is undeniable, and she shone to her best advantage on the stage last night.

The "Eastern Morning News," in noticing the production of
"PUSS IN BOOTS,"
Wrote as follows:—
A TREMENDOUS OUTBURST OF APPLAUSE
at the finish of the Pantomime.
WHAT BETTER VERDICT than that could those responsible for the GRAND THEATRE PANTOMIME DESIRE?
MUCH DEPENDS
upon the expressed judgment of the first night's audience.
THERE WAS NO QUESTIONING
it at the Grand Theatre, when the curtain fell amidst a BLAZE OF COLOUR AND BEAUTY, and the crowded audience were COMPELLED
ENTHUSIASM
which surged up within them.
IT IS THOROUGHLY DESERVING the hearty reception which the audience accorded it, and it is EQUAL TO THE BEST
that has ever been seen in Hull.

"PUSS IN BOOTS,"
Company of Eighty,
Full Chorus and Ballet,
Cinématograph Effects,
Electric Flying Ballet.

The "Yorkshire Post" says:—
"The Village of Golden Grain,"
"The World of Boots,"
"The Royal Barracks," and
"The Palace of Sunshine" would MAKE THE FORTUNE
of any Pantomime.

The "Hull News" says:—
"PUSS IN BOOTS"
Met with an Enthusiastic Reception.
It is the best Pantomime seen for some years. It is MAGNIFICENTLY STAGED,
PRINCIPALS CHARMING,
COMEDIANS EXCRUCIATINGLY FUNNY.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN. — HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The D'Oyly Carte company opened a fortnight's engagement on Monday with Iolanthe. The house was crowded. Mr. George Sinclair took the part of Private Willis in place of Mr. Fred Billington, who is ill, and played it exceedingly well; Mr. Charles R. Walenn imparts a decided individualistic touch to the Lord Chancellor; and Miss Hope Hastings shows an easy command of the part of Phyllis. Mr. Albert Kavanagh gives a finished interpretation of Strephon; Mr. Leicester Tunks makes a capital Mountararat; and Mr. Strafford Moss, the principal tenor, sings very finely. Miss Theresa Kassam plays the Fairy Queen with all her customary dignity and grace. The chorus work is excellent. The repertory for the week includes The Mikado, The Gondoliers, H.M.S. Pinafore, and The Yeoman of the Guard.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. Harry Grey is enthusiastically applauded; the Wedburns are equally popular; and Mr. Jack Crawley appears with much success in a novel act, "The Regimental Smoking Concert." Among the other clever artists in the programme are: Miss Arabella Allen, in a series of vivid Dickens impersonations; Miss Olive Armadale, a dainty comedienne; Mr. Cecil Lidden and Miss Elsie Hayward, whose four piano selections are effectively blended with comedy; the Cliffs, daring and graceful equilibrists; and Adelina, who gives some remarkably clever sketches of celebrities. In place of Mr. Jock Whiteford and Miss Hettie Lee, who were unable to appear, the management had engaged Mr. A. McGill, an accomplished tenor vocalist; Mr. Will Bell, a popular Irish comedian; and Mr. A. E. Watson, an adept in ventriloquism. The Bioscope show, "The Doctor's Boy," proved highly amusing.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Denton; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—Mr. James Hare's company is here in A Destroyer of Men. The piece is generally well played, particularly by Miss Irene Clifford as Olga Mischia, Mr. James Hare as Karl Mischia, and Mr. Harold B. Lewis as Count Starevitch; whilst the humorous element is well sustained by Mr. Ross Warren as Coco Tachoski and Miss Alice Buckland as Nina Pattakake.

ALDERSHOT. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo E. Williams. — A highly-appreciated change here is the production of The Girl Behind the Counter on a first visit, Mr. Mouillot's talented company giving a praiseworthy rendering of this popular musical comedy. Besides the capable acting there are many well-rendered musical contributions, and the spectacular effect is good. Mr. H. D. Clarke is a decided hit as the gay old General; whilst Mr. Howard Cridland's Viscount is invested with sufficient ludicrous action and mannerism to make it successful. Mr. Arthur Cartwright gives a fine swinging impersonation of Charlie; Mr. Fred Park is capital as Dudd, and he and Miss Dorris Langdon (Susie) are heartily received for their clever business. Miss Nora Brocklebank as Winnie is good; and Mr. Jules Charmettes is excellent as Duval. Misses Winifred Knightley (Lady Willoughby), Olivia Eltone (Millie), Edith McIntosh (Ninette), and Messrs. Geoffrey Allsopp (who is also stage-manager), A. M. Moore, and Wm. Amery do well in smaller yet important parts.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—The pantomime Dick Whittington is running with great smoothness. The artists have settled down to work, and the comedians, in particular, have had time to see where improvements can be effected and new "wheezes" introduced with advantage. Judicious cutting has brought the entertainment within reasonable limits, and a good three hours' fun is provided by Dick (Miss Daisy Morrell), Alice (Miss Millie Doris), Miss Clairette Florence as the Fairy Queen, and the comedians, Messrs. Frank Dalleno, Will Dennis, Fred Acton, Jack Simpson, Juan and McQue, Messrs. Correze and Keith, the Schallers, Sisters Chornley, Raynor Troupe, the Estos, the Belle Trio, and a host of auxiliaries.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The artists engaged here include the Simpsons, who give a refined musical act; Russell Carr, a decidedly clever ventriloquial expert; Little Ruth, a young songstress who can be heard with much pleasure; Mons. Slippere (assisted by Miss Ramsay), a blind novelty pianist and baritone singer; and the Three Bros. Curran, in a farcical boxing act, Taking the Census. Fred Karno's production, The Smoking Concert, causes much merriment; the Bioscope depicts "The Midnight Sun"; and the programme concludes with the equestrian spectacle, Dick Turpin's Ride to York, by Claude Ginnett and company.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—Mr. Fred S. Peake and company are presenting here a costume sketch, entitled The Hypocrite, in which a thrilling sword-fight, partly sustained by a lady, is introduced; the Kurios are responsible for a pantomimic absurdity, winding up with some cleverly executed smoke-pictures; Mr. U. C. Ugo, under the title of "Mirthful Mysteries," performs some clever conjuring tricks; Miss Winnie Scott, comedienne and dancer, is an acceptable turn; Drum and Major give a boisterous comedy item; Max Millian is a smart equilibrist; Mr. Clayton's "Attergraph" pictures are well received; and Mr. Fred Hallam is an acceptable comedian.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—For the New Year week Mr. Chas. Macdona's company in A Chinese Honeymoon is the attraction. Mr. Harold Cotter as Hang Chow, the Emperor, acts the part exceedingly well; Mr. Louis Ashmede and Mr. Frank Sutton appear to advantage as the Lord Chancellor and Lord High Admiral respectively; Mr. J. Maxwell Edwards as Tom Hatherton makes an excellent impression; the Mr. Pineapple of Mr. Ernest Sefton is good; Mrs. Pineapple is admirably played by Miss May Davis; Miss Alma Bolton makes a capital Mrs. Brown; Miss Kitty Clayton is irresistible as Fi-Fi; and Miss May Stevenson in the character of Princess Soo-Soo is very fascinating.

BACUP. — NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—M. C. Watson Mill's No. 1 company is appearing here this week in A Warning to Women. Mr. C. Watson Mill is the author, and representative of the leading male part, Dr. Marcus Dread, which he plays with considerable power. The central figure is the dipsomaniac, Moira Kennion, portrayed by Miss Rosalind Tate with a firmness and finesse beyond all praise; Mr. George Harvey is a picturesque Shaun; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter an amusing Lord Eversleigh; Mr. W. Palliser Acock scores a success as Ferdinand de Joules; Mr. G. M. Davidson is a duly impressive Rev. Emanuel Wallace; and Mr. Norman B. Cannon as the blind Fergus McNaughton scores well. Miss Emmie Barton is bright as Sheila Kennion; Mr. Gerald Nolan droll as Mike McQuack; and Mr. Henry Rutland acts with much pathos as the old Squire Kennion. Miss Edith Rutland does well as the crippled Myles O'More; and Miss Ellen Beverley makes the most of her part as Molly O'More.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The favourable opinion formed at the commencement of the run of Sinbad is confirmed upon a second visit. The principals having thoroughly settled down into their parts work in harmony together, giving the utmost pleasure and amusement to the audience. Miss May Hart is full of vivacity as Sinbad, singing and dancing with the happiest results. The success Miss Mollie Wynne has scored as Zanem must be most gratifying to the clever little actress. The leading trio of comedians, Mr. E. W. Coleman (FitzGubbins), Mr. Percy Baverstock (Grinbad), and Mr. Arthur Royce (Mrs. Sinbad), each contributes his share of fun ungrudgingly, to the satisfaction of old and young alike. Miss Clodagh Brown has introduced an extra pas seul, which she executes in excellent style.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—In every respect the current bill is typical of the best talent available. The Ford and Barris Trio are winning high favour in their song and dance interlude. In connection with this act a local competition is nightly taking place for substantial money prizes. The manager of these smart lads has also introduced Corporal Gray, a Scotch piper, and his two sons, whom he saw performing in the Bath streets. The Rohda Bros. present a new gymnastic speciality that secures them rounds of applause; physical endurance in another form is given by those smart athletes The Athlones, who are unsurpassed in their line. Miss Florence's mimicry of a Dutch girl is full of jollity, and her reception is most cordial; Cavalli and his dummy companion Tommy give a ventriloquial act that causes great amusement; Will Musgrave, with his "goey" songs, gets in higher favour upon each succeeding visit, as does Lillie Soutter with her low comedy ditties; Rose Pink, a juvenile comedienne, dances in capital style; Raymond's Bio-Tableaux include "An Artist's Dream," a coloured film of great excellence.

BATLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty. — Mr. H. A. Jordison's pantomime Cinderella is a bright, brisk, and breezy show. It goes with an uninterrupted swing from start to finish, is admirably staged and costumed, and is very well stage-managed. Miss Iris Banfield makes a splendid Prince, and is always active and alert; the Dandini of Miss Mabel Ashton is a great success; Miss Helen Raye as Cinderella plays with naïveté and charm, and renders her numbers very sweetly; Miss Louie Davies has a small part as Princess Pearl, which she handles with care and intelligence. Mr. Charles Martell is an admirable Baron; he sings and dances and jokes with success. Messrs. Edwin Garth and Howard Ward as the Ugly Sisters cause endless merriment; Mr. John Bennet is very funny as Pimple; and some smaller parts are well acted. The specialities include Bennet and Martell, a droll pair; Earle and Melville, and the Starlight quartette of dancers. Altogether the pantomime is a great success.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Birket Winning's version of Sapho, presented by Miss Annie Bell and company. In the title-rôle Miss Bell was wonderfully successful, playing the part with much power and passion; the difficult rôle of Jean Gausin was capitally sustained by Mr. Otto Minster, an able actor, and he shared some of the honours of the performance with Miss Bell. Mr. George Antley must be commended for his admirable impersonation of Uncle Cesaire; and praise is also due to Little Miss Doris E. Graham for her clever interpretation of Joseph, a child; Miss Clara Greenhalgh was all that could be desired as La Sombreuse; and it would, indeed, be difficult to excel Messrs. H. Langford and Laurence Kingsley in their respective rôles of Eugene Flamant and Paul Deshelette; Miss Florence Graham acquitted herself well as Machaume. Other parts were admirably sustained by Miss Grace Chester, Miss Dorothy Crowther, Miss Gladys Oliver, Miss Lucy Desmond, and Messrs. Oliver Rogers, Pringle Roberts, and Mrs. T. Stead.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Harris. — Unquestionably the Christmas pantomime, Mother Goose, has proved a great success, and is now running merrily. Mr. Fred Warden is reaping the reward of his energetic efforts in the liberal patronage bestowed. Who, indeed, could desire a more beautiful stage-picture than the concluding scene, "Heartsease"? Many of the songs have become popular favourites, viz., "Borneo," "There's a Man in Manitoba," "Jennie Lee," &c. Miss Carlotta Levey is nightly accorded quite an ovation for her rendering of "Cheyenne," "Sympathy," &c.; Miss May Moore Duprez continues to display unflagging vivacity; her songs, "Louisa Schmidt" and "On the Rhine with Stem," are well received; Miss Elsie Roby, a lively Lady Biddy, obtains well-merited approval for her rendering of the ear-haunting "Borneo"; Mr. Martin Adeson in the title-rôle works indefatigably, and renders the most valuable assistance; Miss Molly Macintyre as Jill is dainty and charming, singing "Au revoir, my little Hyacinth," in delightful style.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker. — Mr. Charles Fisher's operatic burlesque company heads the bill, and presents, with success, the speciality, entitled The Music Master; Techow's Cats exhibit the very perfection of training; much amusement has been created by the Arthur Lloyd Trio, in their sketch, Little Charlie; or, The Twin Sisters; Miss Lilieth Leyton, supported by Mr. John Spurling, produce with every element of success their comedy sketch, The Order of the Bath; Mr. Charles Pastor is an exceedingly droll comedian; and a hit has been made by Edwards and Espinosa, the smart instrumentalists and dancers; Hall and Earle, clever eccentric acrobats, and Mr. Geo. Adams, a splendid baritone, complete the fine bill.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company is appearing this week in Uncle Tom's Cabin. Miss Nina Blake-Adams, as Eliza Harris, distinguishes herself by the excellence of her emotional acting; much praise is due Mr. Horace Denton for his finished impersonation of Uncle Tom; while the villainies of Simon Legree are depicted in a lurid manner by Mr. Percy M. Stevenson; Mr. Cyril Grier is seen to advantage as Mr. St. Clair; and an impersonation of no little merit is that of Phineas Fletcher, by Mr. H. Hesselgrave; Mr. Tom H. Solly (who is also responsible for the admirable stage management) creates much amusement as Marks, the lawyer; and Little Violet must be commended for her realistic interpretation of Little Eva; Miss Roma Tremayne furnishes a good interpretation of Cassie; and Miss Mattie Crawford is a vivacious Topsy; Miss Belle Luscombe appears to great advantage as Aunt Chloe; and Mr. Elmore Frith impersonates Mr. Haley with no little skill; Miss Alice Clarke deserves praise for her capital impersonation of Aunt Ophelia.

ULSTER HALL.—Proprietors, Belfast Corporation.—Poole's Myriorama commenced, on Monday, the last week of their stay here, which has been so successful. In addition to the series of moving pictures, which have given general satisfaction, the fine variety programme has proved a great source of attraction.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—The new drama Robin Hood is here. Mr. F. B. Woulfe capitally enacts the King of Sherwood Forest; a regal King Richard is found in Mr. Clifford Rean; and Mr. Bob Anderson makes a distinctive Friar Tuck. Will Scarlett is ably played by Mr. Alfred Wade; Mr. Wm. Macready figures prominently as the supposed Lord Hutningdon; and Miss Ethel Griffies's Marian is an excellent portrayal. Both Elwynne and Maude have good representatives in Misses Winifred Symonds and Edith Lorraine. Mr. H. Ernestine is a capital Prince John.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime Little Bo Peep is in the second week of a highly successful visit, crowded houses having been the rule during the engagement.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Dr. Walford Bodie, in his clever electrical entertainment, is the centre of attraction. Other prominent turns are supplied by the Bogannys the Lunatic Bakers; Walter Emerson, comedian; Bertha Duckett, male impersonator; the Brothers Ashley, in their amusing boxing act; Larola, comic juggler; Rose Cabani, comedienne; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Few dramas have received better appreciation than The Village Blacksmith, which is being played here this week by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company. Mr. Sam Livesey deserves commendation for his manly rendering of John Strong. Mr. Joseph Carter gives a capital impersonation of the villainous Captain Leo; he is ably supported by Mr. Edwin Maydew as Lucas Marlow. As Jeremiah Parkins, Mr. Thos. E. Marshall is well placed. Miss Louie Adair's interpretation of the character of Kate Strong could scarcely be improved upon; Mrs. T. C. Livesey is seen to advantage in the rôle of Sal Parkins; Miss Cassie Le Grande is successful as Ruth Parkins; and Bertha Hanbury is all that can be desired as Harry Strong. The wrestling scene in the last act elicits loud applause.

BLACKBURN. — THEATRE ROYAL.— Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Miss Emilie Polini and company are here in the popular play, Sunday, which has proved a powerful attraction for New Year's week. Miss Polini compares very favourably with any of her predecessors in the title-rôle, and that is saying a good deal. Mr. Leonard Pogden is hardly less successful as Colonel Brinthorpe, his work being dignified and restrained. The four "boys" are played by Messrs. William Lockhart, Sidney Rennet, Cecil Yapp, and Arthur Vezin, and each of these gentlemen does well; while Mr. Ernest A. Douglas, as Tom Oxby is also good.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company in the favourite play, Driven from Home, is drawing big houses here.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—A good entertainment is contributed to by the Duood Trio, vocal and instrumental musicians; Francis and Alfred, comic jugglers; the Chee-yon-soy family of Chinese conjurors; Wallace Whitney, character comedian; the Three Merrills, comedy and trick cyclists; Beattie Foster, low comedy artist; and George Hall, comedian and sifflеur.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Claudian, ably presented by Mr. William Maclaren and company, is proving most attractive here this week. The title-rôle is played by Mr. Maclaren in a manner that proves his fitness for so arduous a task, and even those who saw his famous predecessors in the part willingly bestow on him their approval and admiration. Almida finds a painstaking exponent in Miss Lily C. Bandmann, who merits sincere approbation for a charming performance; Mr. F. Owen Chambers does well as Thariogalus; whilst Mr. C. T. Chaloner as Belos, Mr. Douglas Earle as Agazil, and Mr. Weeton Hubbard as Alcares, also contribute convincing impersonations. Miss Lena Oswald scores a success as Galena; and Miss Rosa Webster is quite satisfactory as Serena.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Edward Marris's pantomime company is here this week with Robinson Crusoe, which has caught on in the most satisfactory way. Miss Verna Reed well befits the principal boy's part; and Miss Elfie Vincent's Polly is sweet and lovable. Three excellent comedians are Mr. James Graydon (Mrs. Crusoe), Mr. Joe Waldron (John Willie Crusoe), and Mr. Harry Russell (Will Atkins), who are ably assisted as fun providers by Miss Etty Waldron as Matilda Crusoe and Mr. Alec Kashma as Captain Mainbrace. Specialities are introduced by the Waldrons, Thalian Glee Singers, Russell and Reed, and Chandler and Payne.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred. Waller.—The place of honour in this week's bill is occupied by Lulo Hodgon and Harry Lowther, who prove themselves very diverting in a little sketch, entitled Barmaids. Captain Lamar's Tennessee Guards, in their lightning drill and wall-scaling act, is another popular turn. Other artists are Mlle. Yetta, in a wire act; Arthur Aldridge, vocalist; Lill Elfreda, vocalist and mimic; Mlle. Eldee, pose plastique; Silent Taif, the eccentric wizard; Bros. Corcoran, musicians; the Elgars, vocal entertainers; and Guy Ryder, sifflеur.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. C. Moody.—Mr. J. R. Cassidy's company has appeared here, and, as on a former visit, has scored a decided success with the thrilling drama, entitled, Holy (!) Russia. The company has, on this occasion, been piloted by Mr. Albert H. Moody, son of the respected lessee of the "Royal," and who has just made his début as an advance business-manager. To Mr. J. Rice Cassidy every credit is due for a powerful rendering of the part of Colonel Richard Forrest; to Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy every praise is due for a fine embodiment of Renée Rubinoff. The remaining members of an exceptionally strong company did full justice to their respective parts.

GAIETY.—Proprietor, Councillor John Grantham; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur James.—The management have provided a strong attraction by the engagement of the Lovelaces in a series of illustrated songs; J. R. Barrie, baritone vocalist, has also paid a successful return visit; the Gaiety Bioscope, in special pictures, continues to draw.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Tudor.—The Edison Electric Pictures and variety attractions are still in possession here, and are meeting with generous support.

BOSCOMBE. — HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—A clever turn is provided here this week by the Mackweys, in a bustling knockabout act; Miss Maud Courtney is a pleasing singer, who also tells some funny stories; Burnetti shows his versatility by imitating well-known musicians of the day; Marriott Edgar, the man in red, is a popular comedian; the Mysterious Mr. C. is a good raconteur and vocalist; Harry Cotton, comedian, renders his songs in capital style; Onda and Artell give a daring performance on the trapeze; the Hippodrome pictures conclude the programme.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Jack and the Beanstalk, written by Mr. F. Leslie Moreton, with music by Francis Knowles, is certainly the best pantomime seen here for some years. Much of the success achieved is due to Mr. Rowland Stewart, the popular manager, who, having obtained the confidence of the patrons of the theatre, is trusted by them to see there is an absence of anything vulgar or suggestive in the production, with a result that full houses have been the rule twice daily. Miss Adele Barry as Jack, and Miss Daisy Kersey as Marjory, are both well up to their parts; and a success is scored by Miss Katie Yates as Stella, whose candle song is rapturously received. Miss Lydia Bland has a charming voice and does well as Luna, while Miss Lucy Kipling in the part of Colin has small opportunity to display her undoubted talent. Dame Trot is the bright particular star of the piece as played by Mr. Edwin Kipling, who in the schoolroom scene makes the house simply ripple with laughter. Mr. Alick Macmillan, a clever comedian, is another great success in the part of Donald McHaggis; while as Asparagras and Marrowfat, Mr. James R. La Fane and Mr. Lionel Gadsden respectively are deservedly popular. Among the specialities are the Miltons, in their comic skating act, introducing their dog Tiger; and Les Americaines, a distinctly clever troupe of singers and dancers; while some local children in Dutch song-scena and Gollywogs have been cleverly trained by Mr. J. R. La Fane, who is also responsible for the whole production, and deserves great credit for his work.

SHAFTESBURY HALL.—West's Pictures are drawing large and appreciative audiences twice daily. The programme is varied from time to time, and is always instructive and amusing. Miss Ethel Walker, a talented and refined humorist, appears at each performance in her remarkably clever musical sketches; and Mr. Harold Kingston, who has a fine baritone voice, sings several songs.

BRADFORD.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Laidler's enterprise is noticeable in the improvement in Cinderella since the first representation, and the pantomime is now at its best. Much applause greets the beautiful scenery and pretty dresses. Miss Florrie Forde, the Prince, scores with some good songs, notably "The Zuyder Zee," "Susannah's long stocking," "Matrimony," and "Colombo." Miss Alice Williams, in the title-rôle, sings with success. "The maid and the man in the moon" and "Fairies have gone to bed." "Au revoir, my little hyacinth," is capitally sung by Miss Edith Coolville, the Princess; Miss Nellie Sheffield is bright as Dandini; Mr. Tom Moore is genuinely funny as Peter the Page. The other comedians combine well in introducing funny business, and there is some smart dancing by the Toreador Girls.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empire, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Those delightful entertainers, Bella and Bijou, who are favourites here, are on a return visit with their very amusing up-to-date sketches, The Motor Car and The Suffragettes; there is novelty in the clever bar performance by Mason and Bart, as "Comrades on a Deserted Isle"; J. W. Hall, the comedian, in his original style, is diverting; the quaint musical knife-grinders, Zanfretta and Napio, are clever and amusing; Horace Jones, the Welsh comedian, is distinctly humorous; in a spectacular naval act Carlos Cæsaro displays remarkable skill, strength, and smartness; Walter Bellonini, on a return visit, again elicits applause for his remarkable skill in juggling; excellent turns by the Solario Duo, operatic vocalists and musicians, and by Marie Empress, comedienne, find favour; and there are some capital pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. H. Foster.—Raku, the clever Japanese exponent of Ju-jitsu, is defeating all comers here this week, and causing quite a sensation with his assistants in an exposition of the art. Ida Kathrena, as a mechanical doll, is very amusing; those eccentric French musicians, the Four Maisanos, on a return visit, are clever and diverting; a smart entertainment in conjuring is submitted by Satsuma, a Japanese; in a pot-pourri by Gravetia and Parr skill is displayed in clay-modelling, sand-painting, and character impersonating of a versatile order; Ethel Loftus, comedienne, is an amusing exponent of broad comedy; a diverting musical turn is submitted by Learto and his clever dog, "Babs"; the Donnas Trio, on the trapeze, do some clever work as equilibrists; and excellent pictures are shown by Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—On Monday Mr. George Edwardes's company entered upon the second and closing week of their engagement here, and continued their performances of Two Naughty Boys. Mr. Nelson Keys and Mr. William were very entertaining as the two mischievous boys, Max and Moritz; Mr. Reginald Crompton as the village schoolmaster, Mr. George Franklin as Hans, the miller, and Mr. Richard Kavanagh as Widow Bolt added to the fun of the play. Miss Kate Bishop's Granny Bauer was well played; Miss Daisy Stratton as Grizel and Miss Lydia Flopp as Gretchen sang and danced themselves into high favour; and the remaining characters were ably sustained.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Cinderella is attracting crowded houses here, and bids fair to have a long and prosperous career. Miss Gracie Moore as the Prince wins enthusiastic applause for her admirably-rendered songs; Miss Evelyn O'Connor is a dainty Cinderella, and, with Mr. Jack O'Connor, as the Page, contributes some very amusing specialities. Miss Kittie Clinton makes a lively Dandini; and Miss Winnie Chapman is a graceful Fairy Godmother. Messrs. Syd Walker and Cliff Lake as the Ugly Sisters are an entertaining pair; and Mr. F. Hulme Sharp is humorous as the Baron. Miss Maud Percy, the principal dancer, achieves much success; and the Florodora Girls contribute some acrobatic dances.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—The bright and merry pantomime closes its fortnight's run here this week. Mr. Dan Thomas's droll and clever impersonation of Widow Twankey merits unstinted praise; Mr. Fred Hutchings makes an amusing Vizier; Miss Daisy Yates is a vivacious Aladdin; Miss Amy Bellwood acts gracefully as the Princess; while Mr. Arthur Jenner as the Emperor and Mr. Arthur Mordant as Abanazar are highly successful. Pleasing variety turns precede the pantomime. Rita and Roma, versatile vaudeville entertainers, are well received; the Maitland Comedy Trio are amusing in their laughable absurdity, The Picture; Martine and Son, American song illustrators, maintain their popularity; Charles Denton, comedian, makes a decided hit; Jennie Reeve is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; Rene Ring, comedienne, is also successful, and the Alhambrascope pictures are amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—There is a capital company here this week. Bob Hutt and company appear in Welcome Home, and provide an abundance of mirth; Jennie Hartley is a charming singer and graceful dancer; the London Vaudevilles are very entertaining in their speciality, Monks at Play; the Three Sisters Onetti are accomplished gymnasts, and are especially effective on a revolving trapeze; Bert Williams, ventriloquist, submits an excellent turn; Espinosa and Neilson, international dancers, win hearty applause; Rita Bell, "the Little Hollander," gives a pleasing performance of singing and dancing; Terry and Bentley are refined comedy artists; Adams and Ward, comedy comedians, are well received; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—The fairy play, Little Hans Andersen, is running well here, and attracting large audiences. Miss Mabel Lavelle is a great favourite as the Princess; Miss Evelyn Hughes as Karen dances delightfully; Mr. R. Foster Knox is very funny as the Lord Chamberlain; Mr. J. Edward Pearce as the Emperor and Mr. L. Pryce Hamer as the Prince give capital impersonations; and the dances of the Misses Elsie and Mabelle May are warmly appreciated.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The pantomime Humpty Dumpty bids fair to be one of the most successful produced here. Since the opening night it has, with advantage, been somewhat curtailed, it now playing close and smoothly. The principals are decidedly popular in their respective parts, and the magnificent scenery and costly dress are duly admired.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Cinderella is proving successful here, the pantomime going with an agreeable degree of smartness not always expected so soon after production. The principals all score, and the dresses and scenery are all that can be desired.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. V. Welchman.—Boswell's stage circus tops the bill here; the show is attractive, all the animals evincing excellence of training. Alice Hollander is the happy possessor of a pleasing and cultured contralto voice, her songs are all selected with taste, and she obtains well-deserved applause. Nelson and Thomas amuse with their sketch A Fight for a Fiver; the Three Consul Girls are smart vocalists and acrobatic dancers; Denby and Dent score with their "up-to-date" comedy act; Jimson's novelty sketch The Burglar's Surprise is amusing, and serves well to introduce three excellently trained dogs; Rogers and Weston have a good Hebrew comedy scena In Answer to an Advertisement; Mark Leslie, dusky comedian and eccentric dancer, obtains considerable applause; and the entertainment concludes with a good display of Vernon's Imperial animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Marie Dainton, mimic, heads the programme, she obtaining considerable applause for her clever mimicry of popular lady artists. Charles Whittle, comedian, is always popular here, his quiet style and genuine humour being quite irresistible; the Two Kays have a pretty vocal scena in which they impersonate several characters in excellent style, both ladies singing well and with considerable taste; Harwood's Juveniles successfully present a novelty scena, A Children's Christmas Eve—they all sing and dance well, the entertainment being in every way attractive; King and Hoffman have a smart comedy absurdity, The Sleeping Car; Clifton and Gibson amuse as knockabout and patter comedians; Nicker and Evans excel as ball-punchers, boxers, &c.; and Walter Wallace, comedian, obtains applause. The performance concludes with animated pictures projected by the Empire Bioscope.

COLSTON HALL.—Poole's Myriorama is here for a short season, attracting a large attendance at each entertainment.

BROMLEY.—LYRIC THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Purcell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. David Watson.—A second visit is well worth being paid to Jack and the Beanstalk at Bromley. The performance now runs more smoothly, and plays more closely, a result due to the tireless energy displayed by the stage-manager, Mr. Harry Willots, who also successfully plays the Demon Discord; Miss Nellie Montague is excellent as the Baroness, singing with ability. "Stoway," which rouses the enthusiasm of the audience; the comedians have all improved their parts, especially in the case of Mr. Harry Burton as the Dame; the Two Dewars as Fanfare and Blowhard have introduced some new patter and jokes; Mr. Chris Baker as the Baron introduces an excellent song, "Maria," and later in the evening a good policeman ditty, which causes endless amusement; Fairy Rosebud is artistically played by Miss Marie Badouin, who, although suffering from a severe cold, charmingly renders "Alice, where art thou?"; Miss Grace Rosaire is a graceful Princess Lovebird, and during the evening sweetly renders "My Little Hyacinth" and "Dreamland"; a delightfully pretty Phyllis is that of Miss Dot Irving, who introduces some excellent dancing; the pantomime is brought to a conclusion by a good old-fashioned harlequinade by Mr. Tom Dewar as Clown, Mr. Harry Dewar as Pantaloon, Miss Maud Annesley as Harlequina, Miss Dot Rivers as Columbine, and Mr. Chas. Rawlings as Policeman.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—The Prince of Pilsen, which has proved a grand holiday attraction, commenced its second week here on Monday to an overflowing house. Mr. Harry Kilburn (Hans Wagner), Miss Sophie Harriss (Mrs. Maddison Crocker), Mr. Frank Crimp (Carl Otto), Mr. Roy Sydney (Lieut. Tom Wagner), Mr. Bernard Russell (Earl of Shrimpton), Mr. Ernest Gifford (Francois), Mr. Maddison Rich (Cook's Courier), Miss Connie Leon (Sidonie), Miss Maude Scott (Jimmie), Miss Alice Nixon (Nellie Wagner), Miss Ada Watson (Edith Adams), and Mr. G. W. Hulme (Sergeant Bric), and the other members continue to give much pleasure.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A capital entertainment is given here this week by Weisker's Theatroscope and variety company. The pictures are exceedingly fine, and are thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Billy Richardson, with his stump orations, causes continuous laughter; Hess and Lister are smart on roller skates; Mary Bruce sings several songs in an artistic manner; Arthur Woodville, comedian, is encored for his clever dancing; and T. Arthur, descriptive vocalist, is good.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The programme here this week is one of general excellence. Joe Reichen's dogs are wonderfully well trained, and their performance calls forth applause; the Seven Wulfrunas, in Fun in a Café, are highly appreciated; and Viviana is a clever dancer. Les Montaldos, in a Parisian speciality performance, are well received; and Jack Truman, vocalist, is encored. Eric, in a ventriloquial entertainment, is very good; the Grosvenors are acceptable singers; and "The Wonders of Niagara," shown by the New Empire Theatroscope, is an interesting picture.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Some capital turns are given here this week. The Three Romas, in their wonderful feats of strength, are enthusiastically applauded; the funny business of Rezene and Robini causes much hearty laughter; Pueblo and Cropp are responsible for some clever dancing; Miss Gracie Lawn sings and dances well; Letine is extremely good as a female impersonator; George and Leila give a pleasing turn; and J. C. Heffon does well as a comedian. Raymond's bio-tableaux is up to its usual standard of excellence.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Lester Collingwood's comic pantomime is now in its second, and last, week's run. Good business is being done, and there is every reason to reiterate the favourable opinion expressed last week.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A good programme is provided here, and includes Han Var and Anna Lee in an act, entitled, The Golfer and the Maid; "Beautiful Lillian," trick cyclist; Spry and Monti, in a humorous sketch, entitled The Dandy Guardsman; Craig, Roze, and Craig, gymnasts; Ray and Miles, comedians; the Three Transfields, lady instrumentalists; J. O. James, banjoist; Daley Denner, clog dancer; J. Alston, comic singer; and the Lynchs, with American picture songs.

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The novelty of a racing act, "Horse v. Cyclist," is introduced by Kraemar and Brann; Wragg and Wragg are expert military athletes; the Marvellous Days give an exhibition of thought-reading; the Leotard Bros., clowns; Chas. Valvo, ventriloquist; Nellie Navette, burlesque actress; and Oscar Luck's company, in Kismet, make a fine show.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—This week Mr. Clifton Alderson's company is appearing here in A Soldier and a Man. The piece is admirably staged, and as Harold Sinclair Mr. John D. Saunders is all that could be wished; and is well supported by Miss Ruby Loncrame, who plays charmingly. Miss Ethyle Murray is an excellent Sergeant Jim; Mr. Leonard Lawrence earns the applause of the gallery as the villain, Hubert Walgrave; Mr. Ernest G. Batley makes the most of the part of Jim Farrow. Mr. Robert B. Drysdale (Colonel Sinclair), Mr. A. W. Norman (David Milbury), Mr. Wilfred Graham (Jake Harding), Mr. C. W. Spencer (Sergeant Wicks), Mr. Lionel Money (Colonel Westlake), Mr. A. Leslie (Sergeant Tomkins), Mr. G. Tomlinson (Major Bassett), Miss Winifred Love, Miss Emily Levettez, and Miss Page Ford all materially contribute to the success of the piece.

CARDIFF. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—No Wedding Bells for Her returns this week to the city of its birth. Miss Lizzie Montague again gives a striking delineation of Lola. As Dick Delver, Mr. Percy Shaw is exceptionally good; Miss Grace Battersby makes a charming heroine; Mr. Stuart Lomath is conspicuous by his rendering of the Rev. Frank Hatherleigh; Mr. Arthur Linay in the part of Harold Trevelyn could scarcely be improved upon; and special mention should be made of Mr. George Herbert, whose interpretation of the old actor, Horatio Fane, leaves nothing to be desired. The piece is livened by the comedy of Simkins and Peggy (Mr. Fred Skelton and Miss Bessie Franks respectively), who are responsible for many a laugh.

KING'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Holles.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's powerful company is presenting here The Female Swindler. Miss Grace E. Leslie as Lu Valroy gives a fine delineation; no less striking is Mr. Joseph Millane as Jack Coulson; Mr. John Belton is a good Abraham Mikestein, Mr. Guy Ellis a fine Harold Travers, and Mr. Clarence Ibbotson a funny Billy Binks. Miss Florrie Kelsey (Mary Andrews), Miss Mary Dawson (Mary Mee), and Miss Edith Gray (Mrs. Poppem) complete a good all-round company.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Another capital comedy sketch is given here this week by Mr. Sidney Bacon and his talented company, entitled The Duchess of Tooting. The success of this original farce is forcibly shown by the laughter and applause from the audience. Mr. Tom Costello's up-to-date song, "The Lady Suffragettes," is well received; Percy Honri is popular; and James Brady, eccentric comedian; Frobel and Ruge, aerial comedians; Kitty Marion, comedienne; Jeannie Mackay, soprano; the Three Ramoniers, in a clever balancing act; and Frank C. Young and Kathleen De Voie, in their speciality dances, are also among the attractions.

NEW THEATRE.—Sole proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—On Boxing Day Mr. Robert Redford produced, in conjunction with Mr. Milton Bode, the pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood. The whole production is lavishly staged, and the dresses are one blaze of brilliancy; and the scenery, painted by Messrs. T. E. Ryan, Stanley Schuter, and T. F. Dunn, is also a prominent feature. The Butterflies' Ball is a feast of rich colour, the costumes being magnificent, and the gigantic crystal butterfly, lit with hundreds of electric lights, is a pretty spectacle. The final scene, the King's Pageant, is symbolic of the four countries of the British Isles, and the curtain rises on a pretty design of the Prince of Wales's feathers. A network of purple thistles, a delicate screen of shamrock, and a huge crystal globe set in a bower of roses, on which stands Britannia with an illuminated shield, form a pretty series of allegorical stage pictures. The principal boy, Miss Annie Purcell, comes with a deservedly great reputation. She has a couple of tuneful songs which cannot fail to become the rage here, and these are rendered in a style which is most bewitching. "The little glow-worm" and "Zuyder Zee" are the most popular of this charming artist's numbers. Miss Norah Guy, in the title-rôle, makes a very successful début, and no doubt will become an immense favourite. A particularly pleasing pair are Ted and May Hopkins, the well-known Welsh artists. It is safe to say that these clever comedians will be largely responsible for the great success the pantomime is sure to obtain. Their inimitable Welsh patter is irresistible, and their jokes keep the house in a state of uproarious merriment. Ted's rendering of Lewis Bach and May's portrayal of Bo-Peep are clever and entertaining impersonations. Mr. Ainsley Burton plays funnily as the Squire, and Mr. Jay Laurier as Johnny Stout helps the merry-making considerably; Messrs. Keith and Merson, as Johnny Green and Simple Simon, also being responsible for much of the laughter. As Tom, the Piper's Son, Miss Agnes Tandy does well; Miss Sybil Viney as Mary is well placed; and Miss Nellie Duval should be mentioned for her capable work as the Fairy Queen. The Collins-Stella Troupe of lady dancers appear successfully; the Royal Welsh Singers render "The Soldiers' Chorus" in excellent style. The pantomime has been produced by Mr. George Rowlands, under the direction of Mr. Milton Bode, and the orchestra is under the bâton of Mr. Frank Seddon, who, with Mr. George Burnley, has arranged the music.

CARLISLE.—THE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The Larnthaler Troupe of Tyrolean vocalists and dancers are topping the bill here this week with their beautiful Swiss Mountain scena, and meet with a rousing reception; Roma and Romani, speciality instrumentalists, score an unprecedented success; the famous duettists and dancers are an amusing and popular turn; Mamie Cannon, trick pianist and vocalist, meets with unmistakeable marks of approval, as also do Hoppit, Tony, and Terry, in their circus comedy act; Herr Addison's troupe of performing terriers are much appeciated; and Joe Humphreys, vocal comedian, does well; the Pepiscope completes a most attractive programme with some capital films.

H. M. THEATRE. — Lessees, Mr. Thomas Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company in The Three Little Maids is the attraction here this week. There was a packed house on Monday night. Miss Mabel Kerridge made a vivacious and pleasing Ada Branscombe; Miss Daisy Sylverton was an admirable and charming Hilda Branscombe; Miss Eva Weigh was delightful as Edna Branscombe; Lady St. Mallory was in the excellent hands of Miss Kate Graham-Beck; and Miss Laura Wright, Gretchen, and Mr. Bert Barton, Cupid, caused endless amusement with their clever dancing and funny business; Mr. Frank Henderson simply revelled in the part of Lord Cheyne, and soon became an immense favourite; Mr. Eric Barrington made a typical Frenchman as M. de L'Orme, and proved himself the possessor of a fine tenor voice; the part of Bryan Molyneaux lost nothing in the hands of Mr. Frank Wilson; Mr. Burgess Barratt was effective as the Rev. Mr. Branscombe and Lady Rosemary Venetia Grafton and Lady Marjory were well played by Misses Hilda Stericker, Bertha French, and Nellie Clapton respectively. Other parts were in excellent hands.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—Mr. Hilliard Vox and company are here with Alaska. Mr. Vox is a capable Skookum Jim; Mr. H. Naylor Grimson, the villain of the piece, Ned Larson, contributes a telling piece of work; Baptiste is capably interpreted by Mr. G. W. Millington; Miss E. Turner Elliott in the part of Jesse Dalton is to be commended; Miss E. Hastings Walton ingratiates herself with the audience as Alaska. Mr. J. Howarth creditably depicts Lieut. Harding; Mr. Albert Rogers proves amusing as Pompey Cæsar; and Miss Leslie Wynne plays up to him cleverly as Widow Casey. The "Widow's Mite" finds an intelligent exponent in Winnie Webster.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Peter Davey's pantomime, Goody Two Shoes, produced on Boxing night, continues its successful career this week. Miss Ernestine Desborough as Crispin is a delightful young gallant, and her singing is an acceptable feature; Mr. Wyn Weaver as the Earl of Godiva, and Mr. Tom E. Sinclair as Dame Durden, have elaborated their fun, and cause much merriment, aided by Mr. Ernest Noble as Peeping Tom; Miss Ethel Beech as the Chevalier Hurley, Miss Phyllis Back as Margot, and Miss Rona Edwards as Goody, all work hard, and contribute to the success; and the musical turns of the Sisters Thurban, and the acrobatics of Levano, have established themselves in popular favour. The stage-management is in the capable hands of Mr. Tom Taylor, whose handiwork is seen in the briskness and smartness with which the business is carried through. The augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Leonard Gautier.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Now in its second week, Mr. George Brydon-Phillips' pantomime company in Little Red Riding Hood is winning good opinions all round. A very funny Squire is presented by Mr. Fred Maple; Mr. Maitland Marler is still well to the fore as Granny; Mr. Henry De Solla's Lawyer Slyfox would be hard to improve upon, his song "Too lazy to live" securing a good reception; Mr. Dennis Curzon has at present very little opportunity as Johnny Stout; Mr. Bilbee Taylor is as funny as ever as Simon; Miss Kitty Malone, the principal boy, has introduced "A different girl again," which promises to become popular, and also has a very pretty number entitled "Snowflakes"; Miss Lily Palmer has little to do as Jack, but does that little well; Miss Amy Maple as Jill, the village belle, is undoubtedly the pantomime belle. The principals are ably assisted by a large chorus. The whole is under the direction of the proprietor, Mr. Geo. Brydon-Phillips. Mr. Frank Corrie is the musical director, and Mr. Sydney Grahame is the courteous business-manager for Mr. Brydon-Phillips.

MUSIC HALL.—Agents, Messrs. Philipson and Golder.—Dr. Seaton's Animated Picture and Variety company commenced a five-nights' visit on Tuesday. Mr. Cyril Clarke's Bioscope throws some good pictures on the screen. Illustrated songs are given by Miss M. Lisle. Dr. Seaton in his Japanese plate and dish spinning is good; and Mr. Wm. Kingsley's hand-bell solos are well rendered.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Mr. A. E. Smith's Aladdin opened here on New Year's Eve to a bumping house, and was capitally received. Miss Florrie Curette as Aladdin has a fine physique and a good style; as the Princess, Miss Emay Leycester is capable, her dancing being particularly smart; Pekoe is well rendered by Miss Bessie Carlton, and Miss Connie Irwin smartly undertakes the Genii of the Lamp. Mr. Fred Ramsdale makes a hit as Widow Twankey. The Bros. Padley are funny as Nab'em and Catch'em; and the specialities include the Padley Bros., acrobats and hand balancers; Mr. Oliver Chew, whistler, and the Silverdale Troupe of lady dancers.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, was presented by his own company on Monday before a large audience. Mr. Henry Lonsdale as George Madison was a typical hero, his clear, incisive tones carrying his audience with him throughout; whilst Miss Gertrude Bonser made a young but extremely clever and charming Lucy. Miss N. Hunt, though obviously labouring under the disadvantages of a severe cold, looked and acted well as the aptly-named Lady Lucretia, and she received every assistance from Mr. Louis Hector and Mr. Leonard Maxwell as the villainous Charles Devereux and Geoffrey Broughton respectively. The vacillating Sir George Lancaster was capitally depicted by Mr. Rolande York, and Miss Nellie Fletcher ably sustained the part of the Mother Superior; whilst the lighter touches were deftly added by Mr. Arthur Hickman as John William and Miss Madge Yates as Patty. At the close of the performance the company and the audience, led by the orchestra, sang Auld Lang Synne and the National Anthem.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—Peter Gotz, the light-weight wrestler, tops the bill, and his challenges have caused immense excitement and several acceptances. Dale and Vale contribute a series of clever dances, and are much applauded; Maudie Vera is a charming comedienne, and, moreover, dances in a very taking style; the Sisters Selwyn, a dainty pair of duettists, are loudly applauded for their smart dancing; whilst Robbie Roy, the limelight reflector, is quaint in his Scotch airs, and Bessie Lind scores with her popular songs.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company produced here on Monday night, for the first time in Cork, The Lion and the Mouse, by Charles Klein. The play is a powerful and well-constructed one, and its reception was most enthusiastic. As John Burkett Ryder (the Lion) Mr. Leslie Carter scored a great success, and was warmly applauded throughout; Miss Christine Silver as Shirley Rossmore (the Mouse) proved herself a clever emotional actress, and came in for a large share of the applause. As Mrs. Ryder Miss Elspeth Dudgeon was most satisfactory; and Mr. Rupert Lister as Alfred Scott was excellent in this small part.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—There is a good all-round entertainment here this week. The Four Spanish Goldins are capital jugglers, spinners, and dancers; Anita Wayman possesses a well-trained soprano voice; Kiaro is a wonderful hand jumper; the Caris, in Fun in a Café, display some fine double somersaulting; Florence Carlow is a capital comedienne; Zasman a clever gymnast; and the Three Panamas are smart acrobats.

COVENTRY. — THE EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. A. Rand.—Mr. T. E. Dunville, the well-known comedian (by the way, a native of Coventry), heads the bill here, and contributes some humorous songs, for which he is accorded a hearty reception. Tripello, the well-known saxophonist, causes great delight with some of his musical selections; Mr. James Stewart, the tramp at the piano, gives an exceptionally smart performance, and is well received; the St. Julian Sisters, duettists and dancers, are very pleasing; Mona Macdonald is a dainty comedienne; Harold Hughman gives some clever mimicry; Frank Bernard and Co. present a funny sketch, entitled Hello. The Bioscope pictures conclude.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Wm. Bennett.—Mr. Milton Bode's No. 1 Company is paying a visit here with The Belle of Mayfair. Exceptionally meritorious is the rendering of the funny character of Sir John Chaldicott by Mr. Harry Parker. Mr. Gwynn Alwyn is seen to advantage as Hugh Meredith; Mr. Edward Hugonnet is good as the Hon. Raymond Finchley; Mr. Haddon Cave is the Earl of Mount Highgate; Miss May Yates gives a charming rendering of Julia Chaldicott; and Miss Mabel Dent submits a clever impersonation of her maid, Pincott. Miss Daisy Irving as the Princess gains favour for her dainty singing; Miss Leslie St. John ably fills the part of the Gibson Girl (Miss Diana P. Cholmondeley); Miss Emily Stevens and Miss Aurelie de Loviere are Lady Chaldicott and the Countess of Mount Highgate respectively.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's No. 1 company is this week appearing here in Proof. Mr. Gerald Kennedy gives a powerful rendering of Pierre Lorance, and the truest spirit of farce, goes with a roar of laughter from beginning to end. Another mirth-provoking sketch, entitled Practical Joking, presented by Lee and Kingston, is well appreciated; and Rosie Archer, in her imitations of music hall artists, scores most successfully. The Lyons Trio in a funny absurdity entitled The Parson, The Lady, and The Butler, elicit hearty applause; and as an actor-vocalist Frank Harwood makes a most favourable impression; Charles Russell, in a smart song scena, "It's a wonder what music can do," is accorded a flattering reception; and the Empire pictures are still a potent feature of the programme.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—This week's attractions include Griffin and Dubois, premier acrobatic eccentrics, who head the bill; the Three Moxons amuse in their sketch, Fun with the Tourist; and the comedy juggling act of Wisper is well received. Tom Lloyd, comedian, is as big a favourite as ever, and is recalled nightly; and Miss Sadie Early, comedienne, is talented and sings her songs admirably. The Warsaw Brothers, comedy artists, submit an excellent musical turn; and Dave Cornell, comedian, relates amusing stories with success. Miss Beattie Bloom is a vivacious comedienne; and W. B. Raby is an acceptable comedian. The Bioscope shows some more than usually interesting pictures.

ROUND ROOM, ROTUNDA.—The Irish Animated Photo Company entered on another week's engagement here on Monday. The whole entertainment is going strongly. Amongst the artists engaged special praise is due to Miss Helen Andrews and Mr. Walter Thompson, American comedy duo, who give some charming selections which merit applause; and Mr. Ralph W. Giggins in illustrated songs.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—The Moore-Kennedy company's pantomime Dick Whittington entered the second week of a most successful run on Monday. Mlle. Lucretia as Dick has increased her popularity, and her fine figure is shown to advantage in the numerous and costly costumes she wears. In addition to those noticed last week Mr. Tom Lewis as the Demon Rat, Mr. Percy Victor as Alderman Fitzwarren (and also stage manager), Mr. Fred Fulton as Betsy Mary Ann (the cook), and Mr. Will Tozer as the Emperor, all work well in their respective parts, their efforts doing much for the success of the pantomime. Mr. B. Kennedy is the courteous and businesslike general manager.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—A capital programme is provided here this week, headed by Frank Cumminger, the world's record sand dancer, who displays marvellous skill; the two Madges are clever juvenile artists, whose acting and singing come in for cordial applause; the Sisters Ely are talented duettists; another good turn is that of the Saletos, who go through a difficult balancing act in a neat and artistic manner; E. W. Silman, comedian and dancer; Ivy Gallard, American comedienne; and Stylo, a juggler with hoops, are all good turns, and add lustre to the programme. The Empire Bioscope is as entertaining as ever.

DUNDEE.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams. — The beautifully-staged pantomime, Mother Goose, has made a hit, and crowded houses nightly enjoy to the full the feast of good things provided by the management.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—A capital holiday programme is presented here this week, pride of place being given to Rose Elliot, "the singer of sensible songs," who is now an established favourite with Dundonians; Bugler Carr is a marvellous equilibrist and musician, and Meier and Mora, American speciality artists, score in their original and clever turn; Allan and Hart, a couple of exceedingly clever dancers and duettists, provide delectable fare, as does also a very amusing comedy sketch, entitled Little Wonder, in which the troubles of domestic life are laughingly portrayed; Louis Kerno, Fred Collins, and Jack Charman, comedians of distinctly different types, all score big hits, and a hearty reception is also accorded Marie Wilton, who sings very sweetly; the Bioscope, with a capital supply of new films, completes an attractive bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Kingston Dramatic company had a very hearty welcome back to the scene of many of their former triumphs on Monday evening. The drama presented was A Rogue's Daughter, which was done full justice to. The acting of Miss Emily Peel as Lady Mynard left nothing to be desired; Mr. A. W. B. Kingston gave a spirited rendering of the hero, Frank Tyler; while the despicable Colonel Foster had a talented exponent in Mr. Jack Armitage; Mr. Harry Egan, an able comedian, supplied the comedy business; and Miss Flo Stansfield as Lettie Grey filled a very difficult part with praiseworthy ability; a different play is staged nightly, which says much for the versatility of this talented company.

KINNAIRD HALL.—Wm. Hamilton's Excursions opened here on Monday evening before a delighted house. Mr. Claude Howell makes an ideal guide, and the pictures are as instructive as they are beautiful, the dioramic effects being well managed; a capital variety company, comprising Walton and Lester, the world's worst wizards; Desmonti and Mora, triple bar artists; Eugene and Willie, acrobatic musical artists; Brothers Walters, comedians; Tom Taylor, a singing collier; and a series of animated pictures complete the entertainment.

GILFILLAN HALL.—Calder's Cinematograph and Concert company are located here for the holiday season. The pictures are new, and are mostly humorous in tone. The Concert company is also enjoyable, and includes Mr. John Morrison, in songs and sketches; Miss Jessie Jolly, an entertaining comedienne; and Miss Clare Buchanan, who renders well-known songs in excellent voice.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. R. A. P. Williams's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, was produced for the first time here on Monday night before a packed house. The book, by Mr. Arthur Lee Todd, is very well written; the music, selected and arranged by Mrs. R. A. P. Williams and Mr. Wm. Hartley, is sparkling and catchy; and the dresses are exceptionally fine. The nine scenes into which the pantomime is divided are all painted by Mr. R. W. Miller, and reflect great credit on the artist. There is no lack of comedians, foremost amongst whom is Mr. George Melvin as Helen McMutchin, the babes' nurse, who contributes in no small degree to the success of the pantomime; Jeames, the Baron's man-of-all-work, finds a very able exponent in Mr. Alec. Allison; the villains are most amusing characters, and are delineated by the Stebbings; the Babes, Mr. Jack Chant and Mr. Walter Emery, are very droll, their pranks being full of mischief; Mr. Charles Howarth does ample justice to the part of Sir Rowland Buttre, the wicked Baron; Robin Hood finds a gallant and capable exponent in Miss Mai Duncan, whose singing was highly appreciated; Miss Alice Campbell made a congenial Sweetheart as Maid Marian, her dancing making her a favourite; Miss A. Gellally gives a capital representation of Robina, Queen of the Fairies; the chorus, composed of Robin Hood's Merry Men, is in capable hands. Interspersed throughout the pantomime are specialities by clever artists, including the Three Henriques, comedy acrobats; Sisters Kennedy, speciality dancers; Bros. Allison, sand dancers; Chant and Chant, comedy duo; Mlle. Aladina, with her charming flight of specially-trained cockatoos; and De Henau, the marvellous artist with his toes.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Devonshire Park and Baths Co., Ltd.—Under the management of Murray, King and Clark, Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, in Peter's Mother, forms the current attraction. Mr. Charles Harley fills the small part of Sir Timothy Crewys with conspicuous success; Miss Ruth Mackay could scarcely be excelled in the name-part, which fits her like the proverbial glove; while Mr. Percy Hutchison is seen to the utmost advantage as Peter Crewys. Miss Mary Griffiths (Lady Belstone) and Miss Florence Harwood (Miss G. Crewys) portray the baronet's unlovely sisters with admirable skill and differentiation; Mr. Billie Norwood's John Crewys is an impersonation of especial prominence in a good all-round cast, which further includes Mr. F. G. Thurstans (an amusing Canon Birch), Mr. Townsend Whitling (a thoroughly satisfactory representative of Dr. Blundell), Miss Violet Ley, Miss Hilda Honnis (a fairly acceptable Sarah), and Mr. Bruce Smith. Chalk and Cheese precedes.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. G. Hayes.—Mr. Frank Bertram's principal company is appearing in The Breed of the Treshams. Mr. H. Tripp Edgar's impersonation of Lieut. Beresby is absolutely incapable of improvement, so excellent is it even to the minutest particular; Mr. Oswald Lingard (Viscount Dorsington) repeats his clever portrayal with conspicuous success; as also do Mr. George Traill (Colonel Sir Henry Curwen), Mr. Cecil Klein (Cornet the Hon. Francis Tresham), Mr. Gerald Clarke (Cornet Kit Peyton), and Miss Celestine Bertram (Batty). Mr. Richard A. Green contributes a thoroughly good interpretation of the part of the villainous colonel the Hon. Clement Hungerford; while Mr. Harold Wagner (Colonel Bagshaw) and Mr. Gifford Reynolds (Captain Stanhope) admirably interpret unexacting rôles. Miss Nellie Clyde proves herself a charmingly sympathetic representative of the Hon. Margaret Hungerford; and others meriting mention are Mr. Ellis D. Carlyle, Mr. Wilfred Compton, Miss Violet Agnew, and Miss Miriam Holt.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—The big-line turns this week are those of Macdonald and Hunting, a remarkably successful pair of singers, dancers, and mimics; Marie Jones (assisted by Ernest Munro), in a strikingly clever protean sketch, entitled The Way to Win a Bet; and Lady Quartette, who, attired as bon-bons, prove themselves admirably cultured operatic vocalists. Nellie Cotter is a popular coon and comedy songstress; Fyne and Hurley cause roars of laughter as "The Coster and the Swell"; and the programme is completed by Mabel Le Roy (comedienne), Pollo (lady gymnast), Marlow and Manton (sketch Other People's Babies), and Hippodrome pictures. Yesterday was anniversary night, thirty-six turns being billed to appear.

PAVILION.—Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. E. A. Brown.—Mr. C. Hayden-Coffin gave an afternoon concert recital yesterday, assisted by Herr Von Leer's Bijou Viennese Orchestra. Mr. Frank Mummery was the accompanist.

DEVONSHIRE PARK.—Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. E. A. Brown.—A popular concert by Miss Amy Willis, Mr. Charles Copland, and the Municipal Orchestra, and a grand popular New Year concert by Miss Margaret Cooper, Miss Helen Mar, Mr. Alan Turner, Mr. Philip Lewis, and Mr. Gilbert A. Alcock, have constituted the week's special attractions.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The second week's run of The Merveilleuses has emphasised the favourable verdict which this brilliant production received on its opening night. The music of Mr. Hugo Felix is delightful; and Mr. Harold Vicars is to be complimented on his success in the conductor's chair. Mr. Eric Thorne as St. Amour, happy as ever in his own fantastic style, compels continuous laughter whenever he is on the stage; Mr. Jack Cannot and Mr. Legai Robertson as the two detectives are very diverting, the topical song of the former being greatly enjoyed. Mr. Robert Hale, always a sound and pleasing actor, makes an admirable Lagorille; the more serious part of Dorlis finds a finished exponent in Mr. W. Talleur Andrews; and the two strongly-contrasted feminine rôles, the Illyrine of Miss Deborah Volar and the Lodoiska of Miss Anna Hickish, are characterised both as regards singing and acting by all needful charm and esprit. Of the many pleasing lyrics scattered through the piece Miss Volar's "Cuckoo" song is an outstanding example; another successful number falls to Mr. Willie Warde, jun., and Miss Dora Langham, who play Monsieur and Madame De Gouttères; and the dancing of Miss Vivian Talleur gains most enthusiastic encores.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The most notable item in this week's bill is the novel turn of the Three Olympiers, whose classical tableaux, entitled Beauty in Bronze, deservedly secure the warmest tributes of approbation. George Gilbey, as "the Goalkeeper," gains distinction and applause for his songs and amusing patter; and the comedy element is also well sustained by Charles Kay, Esta Stella, and Charles Mildare, each of whom contributes an entertaining turn. The last-named artist is an accomplished silleur, while the lady excels as a danseuse. The Macarte Sisters appear in a clever and graceful act on the wire; Alexandra Edwin is a delightful vocalist; Conway and Leland make the house merry with their curious one-legged antics; the 100 to 1 Chance sketch submitted by France and Stewart, and the Smash and Dash of Mr. Arnold Bell's company, are both much to the taste of the audience; and the bioscope is quite up to date with a good series of animated pictures.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Aladdin, now in its second week, is drawing large houses. Miss Rose Helene is thoroughly at home in the title-rôle, and her songs, which are invariably well received, give ample scope for her charming voice. Miss Lulu Louden as the Princess is a great favourite; the Dame of Mr. E. W. Avery provides much amusement; and Mr. Fred Fowler increases his reputation as a clever comedian in his clever portrayal of the Magician; Mr. Harry Emeric as Wishee Washee deserves commendation; Mr. J. H. Booth is very funny as the Emperor; and Mlle. Ebba Darcier as a maid of honour is very charming; Baroux and Bion are capital knockabouts, and the Pauline Sextett are graceful dancers; Douplessi is a marvellous contortionist and hand-ring exponent.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company, in The Electric Man, is a great attraction here this week. Mr. Bernard Copping appears as Walter Everest, and the electric man and acquits himself with distinction. Mr. Hastings Lynn is exceptionally good as Jack Strange; Mr. Augustus Wheatman as Mr. Jobbins is excellent; Mr. W. H. Rotherham is thoroughly successful as General Pomeroy; Miss Dorothy Hullah displays marked ability as Mrs. Everest; and the same may be said of Miss Amy Fanchette as Mrs. Anderson. Miss Gertrude Tait makes a charming Stella; Miss Isa Bellington is seen to advantage as Mary; and Mr. James Penryn deserves a word of praise as the constable.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; Licensee, Mr. Edward Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Sinbad the Sailor now runs with delightful smoothness, and large audiences have shown their appreciation in a marked manner. Very refreshing is Miss Fifie Gordon's impersonation of the sailor hero, her singing and dancing meeting with abundant praise. Miss Beatie Kent (Sadie) has a host of admirers; the Misses Tennis and Lawn (Selim and Yosan) make a huge hit with a duet; Salida and Vone (King and Queen) are satisfactory; Mr. Tom Collins (Mrs. Sinbad) is a big favourite; Mr. Herbert Fuller (Vanderdecken) and Mr. Tod Squires (Tinbad) work hard and achieve success; Bishop and Vale supply the knockabout business to the satisfaction of everyone; the Old Man of the Sea receives capable treatment at the hands of Mr. George H. Keith; and Miss Agnes Fancheux, as the Fairy, does well; the other members of the company do their work in a capable manner. The pantomime concludes with a harlequinade, which is relished by the youngsters.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—One of the best dramas seen here for a long time is The Little Breadwinner, as interpreted by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company. The most prominent figure in the play is Mr. Eugene Santley, whose depiction of the Quaker Lord leaves nothing to be desired. An excellent Richard Laurence comes from Mr. Matthew Boulton; and Mr. Alfred Maurice in the part of Joseph Prior proves himself a sterling actor. Very humorous is Mr. Stanley Leedham in the rôle of Charles Prior; a remarkable success is achieved by little Emmie Thomas in the title-part; Miss Mary Fulton is a success as Margaret Daventry; Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam is seen to advantage as Kate Cherry; very creditable is the performance of Miss Jenny Bostock as Bridget O'Flannagan; Miss Kitty Melville's Ruth Cherry is satisfactory; and Miss Lissa Young is well suited to the part of Bobby Trott.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company in The Tyrant has drawn large audiences to this house. The title-rôle is played in a convincing manner by Mr. Roy Forteseque; Mr. Somerfield, as Homodei, has a part which suits him to a nicety; Mr. Lionel Atwill as Rudolph plays admirably; Miss Marie Dagmar as Tisbe supplies a clever rendering of a difficult part; and Miss Lalla Shelton is a capable exponent of Belle.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Dick Whittington continues to draw crowded houses here, and the holiday rush has been phenomenal. The clever impersonations that Mr. Bransby Williams introduces in the part of Fitzwarren are much enjoyed, and the hearty laughter occasioned by the clever comedy of Mr. Will Evans and Messrs. Downes and Langford in their respective parts proves their popularity. Miss Madoline Rees as Dick, Miss Lena Vere as Alice, Miss Mena Brae as Zoe, and Miss Edna Morgan as the Prince of Morocco form an excellent quartette of principals. Mr. W. P. Frame's Scotch cook has a host of admirers, and the smart dancing of the Ziller Girls evokes hearty applause.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The Catch of the Season has enabled the Royalty to secure a big share of the holiday crowds. Mr. Frank Lincoln as Jermyn and Miss Moya Mannering as Angela carry through their parts with lots of verve and go, the result being a decided success for both artists. Mr. E. H. Kelly does well as the Stuttering Dundreary, and clever performances of the "Ugly Sisters" are given by Misses Isobel Dickens and Florence Lee. Master Grata as Bucket is a strong favourite; Miss Ida Mann is suited in the part of Lady Crystal; and Miss Belle Napier makes a most attractive Lady Caterham.

KING'S.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—See-See, the new Chinese comic opera, proves admirably suited to the tastes of holiday audiences, and crowded houses, both at matinée and evening performances, have testified their delight at the attractive impersonation of the title-part by Miss Lily Elsie, the neat dancing of Miss Topsy Sinden as So-Hie, the fine baritone songs of Mr. Leonard Mackay as Yen, the fascination of Miss Amy Augarde as the fortune-teller, Mai-Yai, and the amusing business introduced by Messrs. Frank Danby and W. H. Rawlins as Hang-Kee and Cheoo respectively; Miss Alice Hatton as Lee, and Misses Sybil Grey, Octavia Barry, and Lilian Hewetson as Cheoo's wives, and Miss Daisy Wallace as Humming-Bird all give able support.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—The House that Jack Built is now in full swing and drawing bumper houses. Miss May Mara, as Prince Veritas, nightly receives well-deserved encores for her singing. The part of Jack by Miss Luna Love, and Jill by Miss Frances Kapstowne, are attractively rendered; while the children parts of Tommy Tucker by little Miss Maudie Francis and Marjory Daw by Wee Mona are simply charming. Mr. Fred Kitchen as Dame Trot keeps the fun going perpetually, ably seconded by Mr. Harry Lappo as the henpecked Mr. Trot; Mr. Fred Whittaker as the Cat is very amusing, and tickles the fancy of the juveniles. The Harmony Four provide lots of fun and some finely-blended snatches of harmony. The flying ballet is a triumph of airy grace and daring, performed in a blaze of electric light. The 14th Black Hussars are a welcome novelty; and altogether the Grand has undoubtedly scored a success with this year's pantomime. Matinées daily since Christmas have been required to accommodate the rush of patrons.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch. Nowhere in the city have more lengthy or more patient queues been seen than at the doors of the Princess's, which proves that Mother Goose has caught the public fancy in no uncertain fashion. Miss Ethel Campbell makes a beau-ideal Robin, and Miss Ella Retford, as Marguerite, sings and dances with brightness and animation from the first scene to the last; the comicalities of Mr. Austin Lenton as Mother Goose, Mr. Wal Croft as MacGander, Mr. Harry McClelland as the Baron, and Messrs Foreman and Fannan as two policemen keep the fun going to a running accompaniment of laughter and applause. The Sisters Hall again prove their ability in numerous duets, and the funny business of the 'bus and the moving track, the poultry shop scene, the riding lesson, and circus scenes gives the audience almost a surfeit of good things.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—The Babes in the Wood are "doing well" since their arrival here. Miss Rose Hamilton, as a principal boy, renews the good opinion held of her performance in Glasgow on a former occasion. Miss Lucy Lynch makes a pretty Princess, and the Babes are played in dainty style by Misses Blanche Albert and Ada Merry. Messrs. Albert and Edmunds, as the Broker's Men, introduce lots of fun, and another clever couple of comedians are Messrs. Bernard and Weston; Mr. Mark Tapley as the Dame and Mr. Ernie Sparks as Tommy also prove able providers of fun; and a host of attractive choristers and dancers give brightness and animation to the more important scenes.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, J. H. Oakden.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, is doing holiday business here. The production is excellent in every way, and a very successful run is assured. With a strong band of comedians, there is no lack of fun, and much enjoyment is the result.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—Fred Karno's company, in Mumming Birds, is just the sort of turn holiday crowds want. Then there is Nilsson's Butterflies, in a flying ballet, with lantern effects; Los Granadas give a specially good bar and spring mattress display with a host of clever feats; Baker and Balfe are clever xylophonists, and the gentleman dances neatly; Charles Stevens sings "Ballooning" with good effect; Ernest Torrence's illustrated songs take well; Jess Thorne gives a touch of eccentric comedy; Goggin and Davis are smart coloured artists; while Red Riding Hood, played by wolves, and the bioscope, with all the latest films, complete the bill.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Herbert Darnley's company, in a lively sketch, The Freaks, which has been brightened up considerably since last week, forms the chief turn here; and the efforts of Madge Merry, Georgina Leno, Bertie Wright, Albert Weston, Chas. H. Adeson, &c., are much enjoyed. Chorley and Connor are strong favourites, their patter being smart and up to date. Sam Elton, who made the Shah laugh, is able to repeat the feat with Glasgow amusement-seekers; Tom Woottwell is a clever comedian; and Barrington, eccentric pianist; Kathleen Radford, vocalist; and the elaborate film of Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp make up a well-varied and attractive holiday menu.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—A company truly phenomenal for a provincial theatre appears here this week, and the holiday pleasure-seekers have been hanging around the doors of this popular house from early morn till dewy eve. Miss Vesta Victoria is first favourite, and gives all her latest ditties in her own inimitable style. Then Miss Lottie Collins, as a giddy widow and other clever characters, sings and dances with lots of her former dash and spirit. Another star is Austin Rudd, who has a strong hold on the Glasgow public, and has to work hard accordingly to satisfy their demands for encores. Fred Keeton is a comedian who is going strong here, and his "Blind Boy" parody is highly popular. The Seven Zerbinis give a splendid musical turn, with lots of elaborate scenic and lighting effects. The Brennans are a smart couple of step-dancers, with a most imposing array of belts and trophies. The Dayton Troupe of Risley Artists are about the cleverest turn of the kind seen here for a long time; Arthur Slater, as a whistler, is a big favourite; Lilian Boanas is an Australian vocalist of much ability; the Carina Sisters give an artistic musical turn; Mabelle May is a particularly smart dancer; the Hartfords submit a bicycle display; and Percy Farrimond and the Sisters Lotus contribute vocal items.

COLISEUM. — Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—A big attraction is provided here in a condensed version of Scotland's favourite drama Rob Roy, in which Mr. Leo Stormont acts well as the outlaw and sings "Macgregor's Gathering" with much effect. Mr. Forrest Niven as Dougal, Mr. George Hunter as the Bailie, and Mr. Frederick Harker as Capt. Thornton give able support, and the choruses are rendered by a large body of singers. The Delevines give a lively turn entitled Flipp and Flopp, Harry Rogers and Co. appear in a well-told little sketch, with dramatic incidents. Albert Christian's powerful voice is heard in various stirring songs. The Wheelers give a clever, daring, and most amusing bicycle act. Arthur Lynn, vocalist; Gus Dallon and Harry Sims, comedians, complete a good programme.

PALACE. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Wal Pink's company in the screaming absurdity Repairs is the leading item in the programme here. Diamond and Beatrice give their artistic musical melange; De Vere and Kenwick contribute some amusing burlesques of popular songs; Charlie Dixon scores as an eccentric comedian. Amusing and clever turns are also given by Sisters Melba, Kate Lind, J. W. Ellison, and Alburtus and Altus.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Howard; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—A good holiday bill here includes Barney, Burke, and Bray, in their amusing speciality London to Madrid; Attilla Bros. in their feats of strength; Pimple's Arabs, headed by the clever Pimple himself; and also Greta May, Joe Hennessy, George Bernard, Fred Dice, Victoria Boys, and the Wallonells.

HARMONIC CONCERTS.—Musical-Sec., Mr. Wm. Biggam.—For their New Year attractions, the Harmonic got together three different companies of such exceptional length and variety that it must suffice merely to record the fact that all the best available talent, local and imported, was included in them.

GLOSSOP. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Allan Wilkie and company are here this week, and opened on Monday in The Two Orphans of Paris. Mr. Allan Wilkie presented a good impersonation of the part of Pierre; and Mr. Herbert Morgan was seen to advantage as Jacques; to Mr. G. A. Marsh was due warm recognition as Armand Chevalier de Vaudrax; Mr. A. Mather was effective as Count de Linier; Mr. George Munro scored as Le Frochard; Mr. C. M. Dockwray made a typical doctor; Mr. Wilton Rose as Marquis de Presles, and Mr. T. Coleman as Count Du Mailby were prominent; as the Two Orphans Miss Carrie Baillie (Louise) and Miss Ine Cameron (Henriette) gave clever portrayals; Miss Daisy Horrocks played with much feeling the character of Countess de Linier; prominent also were Mr. Ian Fleming as Pickard, Mr. Ernest Digges as Marius, Mr. Wulf Frazer as Martin, Mr. B. Sullivan as Lafleur, Miss Hunter Watts as Marianne, Miss Elly O. Dempsey as Genevieve, Miss H. Faucit as Florette, Miss D. Easton as Julie, and Miss A. Scotti as Cora. The week's programme includes The School for Scandal, The Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, and The Ticket of Leave Man.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—The Marconis give a show which is a distinct novelty as far as Gloucester is concerned, and meet with a capital reception. Mack Ollive and Miss Daisy Baldry are responsible for a clever whistling performance, and Miss Lily Flexmore wins great applause for her wonderful dancing; the Alberto Troupe of equilibrists are particularly skilful; Tatten Hall (comedian) appears with much success; Carl Howard, in his "cod" conjuring act, causes roars of laughter; and Lee and Arden are smart, especially in the dancing line; Messrs. Fox and Melville are interesting song illustrators; Sill and Silcott, with an acrobatic skit, "Lively Luggage," are amusing; and Miss Lily Foy is a comedienne of ability; the Bioscope shows some good films; and Evan Evans, a Welshman, at the piano, also appears.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. J. E. Tomlinson.—The Theatre Royal opened here on Boxing night to an overflowing house, when Mr. J. E. Tomlinson and his wife, Miss Lizzie Palmer, presented The Secrets. Mr. J. E. Tomlinson gave a careful and dramatic rendering of Ibrahim Al Murad; Mr. W. Summers, in his dual parts, first as the breezy lieutenant, and then as a deaf mute, was a particular favourite. As the Caliph of Balsora, Mr. W. Richards was excellent; Mr. V. T. Raymond with Miss Kate Lever, as Peter and Winnie Wilkins, kept the audience in a particularly good humour. The heroine of the piece was nicely portrayed by Miss Lizzie Palmer (Mrs. J. E. Tomlinson). The Tivoli Quartette Troupe of dancers were applauded. The attraction this week is An Abandoned Woman, presented by Mr. Harry Foxwell and Co. The principal part, that of Ninon Malvoisin, is extremely well depicted by Miss Georgette Thierry; Mr. B. J. Leill is powerfully effective as Phillipe Malvoisin; Mr. Wolston is particularly good as Capt. Herbert Seaton; Mr. Geo. Gormley is a capital Sir Marmaduke Seaton; Mr. Harry Foxwell causes great hilarity as Paddy Boyle. He is ably supported by Miss Elsie Dean as Sally Sloper and Mr. Will Glaze as Sammy Sharpe; Mr. P. Morton Wright is well placed as Robert Saunders; Little Frances Maddocks is a clever Mona Dean; Mrs. Harry Foxwell acts gracefully and effectively as Eleanor Dean.

GRAVESEND. — GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—At the top of a good bill this week is Joe Peterman's musical comedy extravaganza, The Belle of the Orient. As Ike Novinski Joe Peterman is excellent, and as the Belle Florence Vie is admirable; Kib Keen is a highly amusing coloured comedian; Ted Cowan, comedian, is extremely popular; Gracie Bird, a speciality artist and dancer, renders a coon song in good style; and Alice Blandford, who styles herself the New Zealand Nightingale, has a sweet voice; Stacey and Williams, patterers, comedians, and dancers, are an exceptionally good turn.

NEW PUBLIC HALL AND THEATRE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke.—Jury's Imperial Bioscope is here for the week. Some of the animated pictures are marvels of clearness, and the specimens of coloured photography are really beautiful. Songs suitably illustrated by Mr. George Bishop are capitally rendered, and the sketches by Mr. Edward Idlam, society entertainer, are decidedly good.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's pantomime Aladdin continues to draw large audiences. Miss Blanche Marion (Aladdin) and Miss Nina Moore (the Princess) have established themselves first favourites, and all the artists taking part work hard to make the pantomime a success.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—So successful has been the grand spectacle, "A Fête in Tokio," that it is being repeated this week, and much admiration is expressed when the brilliantly lighted arena is filled with picturesque groups of Japanese acrobats, singers, dancers, and onlookers.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's principal company, in the popular comic opera, La Poupée, continues to attract large audiences.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—A delightful and entertaining item is Casey's Circus, a sketch, which deservedly tops the interesting programme billed here this week. The military scena, entitled, The Young Recruit, has been retained for another week; a diverting comedy sketch by Conway and Garland is another popular item. Excellent turns are also provided by R. T. Meikle, baritone; Vosper, mimic; Harry Leybourne, society entertainer; and Martin Henderson, concertina soloist. The Empire pictures complete the show.

PAVILION THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—The bill here includes Athos Troupe of acrobats and ball punchers, who submit an excellent turn; Jack Neil, comedian, soon makes himself acceptable to the audience; Billy Hobbs, coon comedian, is also good; Mount and Corelli are appearing in a smart musical sketch, The Stage-Struck Waifs; Connie Marie, a clever comedienne and dancer; and Myra Love, a charming vocalist, are considerable aids to the success of the programme; and the Paviscope pictures complete the bill.

TOWN HALL.—Mr. G. W. Walker opened here on Monday, with a first-class cinematograph show, and a series of fine pictures are being shown. In addition to the pictures, a smart variety company comprises Fred W. Millis, ventriloquist; J. C. McDairmid, mimic; Madame Patti Hicks, violinist; and Miss Ivy Kildare, vocalist.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The Coal King is presented here this week. Tom Roberts, the young mine manager, is portrayed in manly fashion by Mr. Lauderdale Maitland. Miss Gertrude Valentine fulfils all requirements as Grace Shirley, and other prominent members of the company are Mr. Cole Aspinall, who admirably realises the "Coal King," Sir Reginald Harford, Mr. Escott Robson as Walter Harford, the scheming usurper, Mr. Frank Dalton as the unfortunate Dick Shirley, Mr. John Coghlan as Seth Baker, and Miss Sinna St. Clair as Mad Ann. The comedy element is provided by Mr. Alfred Terriss as Jim Williams, and Miss Enid Ross as Araminta.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Number 99, as presented by Mr. Fred Kitchen and Mr. Frank Lister's company, is an interesting sketch of considerable dramatic merit. The eccentricities of Little Ganty have caused much merriment, whilst the veteran, Sam Redfern, has also scored as a humourist. The Llewellyn sketch company presented Two Wicked Maids, which combines refined comedy with high-class vocal work. The Three Seabornes proved smart acrobats and equilibrists, and others appearing are Woodward and Walton, rag-time dancers, and Madge May, comedienne.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. T. A. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—The Jackley Trio's sketch, in which are introduced some sensational somersaulting and table-leaping feats, is a popular turn, whilst George, who appears in conjunction with the Trio, caused roars of laughter with his whistling conversation. A capitally trained troupe of animals is seen in Henry Abdy's dogs. Mlle. Marvelle's cockatoos and macaws also provided an interesting performance. Charles Silburn is successful as a comedian, C. H. Gould and company are responsible for an amusing sketch, and Steeley and Downton, with a medley of singing, dancing, and patter, Dan Robins, balladist, and Minnie Fenton, a pleasing Scottish comedienne, also appear.

GUERNSEY.—ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robt. Perkins.—On the 28th ult. Messrs. Armitage and A. Leigh's company opened here in Lucky Durham. The house was packed, and the excellent interpretation gave general satisfaction. Mr. Edmund Kennedy played the part of John Durham with earnestness; Mr. Arthur Leigh's delineation of the Hon. Reginald was not only consistently good, but exceedingly clever; Lord Mountfallon was excellently placed in the hands of Mr. Robert Forsyth; Mr. W. F. Simmons Lynn proved very acceptable as Arthur Walcombe; and Mr. A. E. Walken was an ideal Mr. Fallerton. Miss Alice Esther Belmore was charming as Helen; Miss Frances Wolverton mastered the difficulties of Lady Mountfallon with extreme credit; and Miss Florence Dulhunty was admirable as Margaret.

GUILDFORD.—BOROUGH HALL. — Proprietors, The County Halls, Ltd.—A great favourite with Surrey audiences, The Sign of the Cross, was presented here on Monday and Tuesday evenings under the direction of Messrs. Henry Chatteli and G. W.

manner; Corporal Holbig and Corporal Queiss were well portrayed by Mr. Richard Fielding and Mr. Francis Bithell respectively. The play is preceded nightly by the curtain-raiser entitled Nan.

HASTINGS.—PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. J. D. Hunter's 28th annual Christmas pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, which is attracting crowded audiences, may rank with any of the previous Christmas seasons' successes. Mr. John A. Thomson and Mr. J. D. Hunter are responsible for the book, the music being composed and arranged by Mr. Surtees Corne. The story is admirably preserved throughout, intermingled with plenty of drolleries and whimsicalities; as the Baron Sherlock Holmes Mr. Lauri Wylie creates great fun, introducing later his mimicking mannikins; Miss M. Sadie, with a coquettish figure and winsome face, gives a delightful representation of Prince Allfair; in the title-rôle Miss Cissie Wade, with an unaffected grace, meets with a very appreciative reception; Mr. Fowler Thatcher as Tommy Green, and Mr. George Mayer as Johnnie Stout are exceedingly funny; Miss Beattie Lyndon as Rosa, the Baron's daughter, acts with charming brightness and cleverness; in the part of Boy Blue Miss Vera Dudley is altogether attractive; Dame Trot has a capital exponent in Mr. J. D. Hunter, his quiet humour being very telling and quaintly comical; Mr. H. Saguin represents the wolf; the ladies contribute some charming songs, the dresses make a brilliant show, and are in exquisite taste, whilst the scenery is exceedingly pretty.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Under the management of Mr. Charles E. Hamilton the musical comedy, entitled, The Sweet Girl, is here this week. Lola, an operatic singer, is well played by Miss Claudia Lasell in the title-rôle, and she shines equally as actress, singer and dancer. The part of Fritzi Weyringer, played by Miss Alice Lethbridge, is conspicuous for its winsomeness and charm. Mr. Douglas Phillips gives an excellent sketch of Florian Lierlich. Dick Kenyon is well represented by Mr. Lister Morrah. Mr. Geo. De Lara as the Count's secretary, and Mr. Edwin Ramsdale as the Major Domo are both excellent. Mr. Fred Eastman as Count Liebenberg is diverting.

ST. LEONARDS PAVILION THEATRE.—Piermaster and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—One of the most amusing and entertaining nautical comedies is being played here, entitled The Cruise of the Saucy Sally, by Mr. Lawrence Brough and an excellent company. Mr. Brough is capital as Herbert Jocelyn; an ancient mariner, Jack Buncombe is well represented by Mr. Percy Marshall; Mr. Hewson Elliott makes a typical Welsh M.P.; Mr. Tom Mowbray is very good as the shipbuilder; a cleverly drawn sketch is presented by Mr. Hilary Younge as Capt Jocelyn; Miss Kate Milford is a charming representative of Rosie; Miss Bessie Harrison makes a brisk and vivacious mother-in-law; the music mistress, Cecile, receives full justice at the hands of Miss Winnie Redmaine; the two maids quite realise their characters, and admirable sketches are seen of the respective parts by Miss Ethel Stone and Miss Vera Vinall.

HASTINGS HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Miss Katie Hill, a pleasing vocalist, takes the place of honour on the programme; the Australian vocalist, Tom Mills, has a fund of patriotic songs and recitations; Wright, Ismay, and Wright, are versatile and expert dancers; a new series of films are both instructive and amusing; the Bioscope also gives life size portraits of the proprietor and acting-manager; Miss Dolly Robson proves herself an excellent juvenile artist; Bonetti and Corrie are remarkably smart in burlesque juggling; some clever character sketches are given by Mr. Harry Russon, his recitations especially being much appreciated.

HEREFORD.—DRILL HALL.—Manager, Mr. A. Lovesey.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company with My Sweetheart has paid a visit here. Miss Minnie Palmer plays Tina with delicacy and charm, her singing causes unalloyed delight, and her quick changes from humour to pathos are excellent. Mr. Robert H. Howard is the Tony. He is most successful both in his songs and acting. Mr. Leslie Tyler is good as Harold Bartlett, a part which requires careful treatment; the Joe Shotwell of Mr. Fred Leonard is distinctly clever and well sustained throughout; Mr. Alfred May gives an amusing rendering of the part of Dudley Harcourt, which, owing to the illness of Mr. A. Ibberson, he had to take at very short notice. The rôle of Mrs. Fleeter is assumed by Miss Silvester, and this experienced and charming actress presents the character in finished style.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Lewis.—Mr. Phil Herman and company in Fritz provide the holiday attraction here. Mr. Herman still plays and sings with unimpaired vigour; Mr. Hugh Carmichael gives a telling impersonation of Col. Crafton; Mr. E. Roby is responsible for a fine rendering of the New York lawyer, Gregory Graham; Mr. Percy Vale plays Augustus in good style; Mr. H. Buckland is a typical New York tough; Mr. M. Pears gives a good account of himself in his concertina variations; Judge Jelico has a dignified exponent in Mr. Geo. Lloyd; Miss Florrie Hall plays Katrina with feeling; Miss E. Maguire's portrayal of Lena is artistic; and Little Schneider is prettily played by Little Dot Brown.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—The Hour of Her Triumph is the attraction here this week. Mr. Clifton Earle is a manly Jack Vernon, and Mr. F. J. Webb is an excellent Eugene Harberry; Messrs. Chas. E. Sutton and James Stuart as Harold Clavering and Rosenis Montmorency respectively are very good. The humorous element is well supplied by Mr. Louis Nanton as Ben Brodie, ably assisted by Messrs. Lallah Price and Nancy Doris as Martha and Jennie Jinks respectively; Miss Mamie Stanton is an admirable Linda Denton; and as Nellie Clavering Mrs. M. Danvers Smith wins approval; Miss Maude Yorke as Rose Denton is all that can be desired.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—A visit from Mr. Edward Compton and company is always a pleasure, particularly to the playgoer surfeited with musical comedy. Mr. Compton's revival of Edmund Kean brought together a large and enthusiastic audience on Monday. Mr. Compton's ripe experience and cultured methods are artistically applied in the part of the great tragedian. His support was, as usual, of the highest quality. Miss Mackenzie, who is rapidly progressing in her art, played Amy Bellair with much sympathy; Mr. Henry Crocker gave a clever and reliable interpretation of the part of Tabberer; Mr. Dennis Cleugh as Murcot and Mr. G. Wallace Johnston as Lidcombe were excellent; Miss Marie Hassell made a delightfully vigorous Mrs. Troup; and Miss Adeline Ancaster played with care as Lady Lidcombe. The other plays down for performance during the week are Davy Garrick, The Desperate Lover, The School for Scandal, and She Stoops to Conquer.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The bill this week is filled by Miss Florence Baines and company in the musical travesty, Miss Lancashire, Limited, in which Miss Baines's special gifts are afforded full scope for display.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The prediction attempted in the last notice has been fully realised, and the various elements which contribute to make a pantomime have been so happily welded together that success is the result. The Cinderella of Miss Mora Hersee has become quite the hit of Hull, and this little lady can be congratulated on so soon making a mark. The Prince Florizel of Miss Barbara Babbington is a very pleasing piece of work. The comedians are well to the fore, and Miss Gregson and Mr. Wade as the Two Ugly Sisters are prominent features of this capital show.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr Wynn Miller.—The Grand pantomime this year has revived all the memories of some of the great successes achieved at this house in past times. From the first it was seen what the result was likely to be. The stage pictures are notable for their fine colouring and artistic grouping. Miss Rita Everard is a refined principal boy who relies on sheer merit to secure a front place. The Fairy Queen, Miss Ivy Moore, has a very sweet voice, which she knows how to effectively use. Miss Winnie La Barte is full of resource, and is extremely popular with the large audiences. Mr. Rowland Hill is a clever comedian who can take a female rôle without vulgarity. Mr. Lynn, as the King, has a fat part, which he fills with credit. The ballet is a fine show. Puss in Boots is a pantomime worth seeing.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. George Morton.—Man and Wife, a drama with a Napoleonic theme, is quite up to the standard of work seen at this house, with the result that big houses have been the rule during the current week. As the hero, Trevere, Mr. John F. Traynor exhibits all the attributes associated with such a rôle. Marcelle as interpreted by Miss Ward is a fine piece of character delineation. Miss Polly Denville is a very pleasing Rosette. Mr. Val Gully and Mr. Sydney Bryant add an acceptable comedy touch to the play.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Appearing here are the Ten Loonies, Litan, the Two Dixons, Bosco, Fred Villiers, and Telka.

THE PALACE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Jno. S. Barnett.—Mrs. John Lawson, assisted by some capable artists, presents The Devil's Sunday, which provides a most thrilling entertainment. Other clever artists include Nina Gordon (a clever mimic), Princess Pauline, the Coloured Meisters, Petram's Marionettes, Frazer and Mac, Parker and Parr, and the Paxton Trio.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—A good all-round list of artists is appearing here.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Crowded houses assemble here to see the pictures, which are having a record run.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Variety is the order here this week, and crowded audiences have been the result. The Great Lavails go through a sensational gymnastic and breakaway bar act, and are vociferously applauded for their exceedingly clever turn.; Auto contributes a funny musical act; Master Joe Dewhurst, the "boy nightingale," delights with exquisite renderings of several songs, and the vocal items by the Lancashire Mill Lads are greatly appreciated; Codgh is a silleur of more than ordinary ability; Adey Faban is very successful as a vocalist; Emil Alfonso's foot-balancing performance is well received, and Cleland is responsible for roars of laughter. The Stanleys, in their musical absurdity, A Broken Promise, create diversion; and Mlle. Yolande scores as a singer.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Bumper houses have this week rewarded the proprietor's efforts to please. Claude Ohmy continues to hold the attention of his audience with his horsemanship; the Sisters Ohmy (three) perform some graceful acts on horseback, and the double act on two horses by Ironi and Miss Pinder is very clever. Mlle. Yvetta's performing horses, dogs, &c., are well trained; the Man Frog gives a marvellous performance; and the Wire King creates a sensation in his slide down the wire; Alvantee is very clever on the trapeze; August and September still continue to create roars of laughter.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Sinbad the Sailor is being presented here by Miss Lena Stanton and Harry Josephs' company, in which Miss Lena Stanton works very hard and with good results as Sinbad. The Princess finds a suitable representative in Miss Marie Santley, and equally praiseworthy is Miss Ethyl Errol as Capt. Selim. Miss Norah Neville sings and dances in a charming manner; Miss Dolly Richardson is admirable as Fairy Good Fortune; Mr. Bruce Green as Mrs. Sinbad, makes the most of the part; Little Keeno is a lively Tinbad; and Messrs. Adrian Romer and Chas. Leamington are successful, respectively, as the Caliph of Bagdad and Grand Vizier. As the Old Man of the Sea Mr. B. N. George is good. The following specialities are introduced:—The Alhambra Girl, excellent dancers; Little Keeno, boy comedian; Wyman, trick skater; P. J. Durney, globe walker; and the Deroneys, wire walkers, spade dancers, &c.; "J.," in "The Don and the Dunce"; and Farrell and Gorman, musical eccentrics.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—Bond and Ivo at the head of the bill here are clever handcuff manipulators; Demi and Semi present a musical show of much merit; Yettmah gives a good exhibition of Japanese magic; J. H. Kavanagh, comedian, remains another week; Fred Austin is to the front as a baritone vocalist and pianist; and Nellie Jetts, serio and dancer, Arthur Bond, comedian and dancer, and Miss Beaumont, songstress, are capable entertainers.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Miss Grace Warner and company opened their second week here on Monday with The Little Widow. Miss Warner acted and sang well as Mrs. Constance Rattlebrain; Mr. George Gordon was distinctly good as McWilkins Potter; Mr. J. Leighton Leigh as Dr. Arthur Potter was excellent; while the part of the Butler was ably played by Mr. R. Brown; Miss M. Stamer as Mr. Wilkins Potter, and Miss Hilda Herne as Emily Randal, and Miss Kathleen Cranston as Sophinispa, were well placed for the three last nights of the week. Lady Audley's Secret is billed.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company is paying a return visit with the successful drama, entitled The Midnight Wedding. Mr. Alfred Paumier gives an excellent rendering of Paul Valmar; Mr. Clinton Baddeley plays with force the part of Capt. Rudolph von Scarsbruck; Mr. Ernest E. Imerson is well placed as Lieut. Eugene von Strelsburg; Mr. F. W. Freeman is admirable as the Crown Prince Leopold. Messrs. James E. Page, Edward Fletcher, and Algie Spalding cause endless amusement as Sergeant Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo respectively. Miss Annie Saker gives a charming rendering of the Princess Astrea von Stretsburg; Miss Marion Fawcett does full justice to the part of Rozel; and Miss Ada Champion is very good as Kathie.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Under Two Flags was played here on Boxing Night, and the two following evenings. Miss Mary Thorne's representation of Cigarette was capital; Mr. Wellesley Draper made an excellent Louis Victor; and Mr. Harry Benson an excellent Rake; Mr. Robert Faulkner impersonated Lord Rockingham; and Colonel Chanteroy was well played by Mr. Arthur Elwyn; Mr. Joseph Cowell appeared successfully as Captain Claude; and Miss Mabel Ormonde made a charming Princess Venetia Corona; Mr. Fred Beck being good as Ezra Baroni. Lucky Durham was presented here by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's principal company as the New Year attraction. Mr. Edmund Kennedy made a hit as John Durham; Miss Frances Wolviston gave a finished performance of Lady Mountfallon; Miss Alice Esther Belmore figured to advantage as Helen Vallerton; and Mr. Robert Forsyth made a capable Lord Mountfallon.

KETTERING.—AVENUS THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Miss Rose Moncrieff's pantomime of Little Red Riding Hood is continuing its successful career here. Miss Ethel Marile is very popular as Red Riding Hood; Miss Blanche St. Marie is an admirable Robin Hood; and Miss Jennie Lattour is an excellent Fairy Bluebell. The comic element is well to the front, and is highly appreciated. Mr. Jack Heath is very funny as Granny, and is ably supported by Mr. Harry McGorman as Baron Badlot and Mr. Fred McGorman as Lawyer Fox. The eccentricities and clever dancing of Messrs. Burns and Bentley are the cause of hearty applause; Mr. Montague Moulton is good as the Wolf. The musical arrangements are in the capable hands of Mr. Will Blewitt, and the costumes and scenery leave nothing to be desired.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—We have a return visit this week from the American-Indian actress-authoress, Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, in the sensational drama, entitled Wep-Ton-No-Mah, the Indian Mail Carrier. Mr. C. W. Charles ably portrays the character of Colonel Stockton; Mr. Edward Leroy is a capital Manuel Lopes; Captain Franklin is in the capable hands of Mr. Henry P. Kennedy; and Miss Mamie Goepel is a pleasing Nellie Stockton; Go-Won-Go-Mohawk in the title-rôle is realistic. The play is well staged.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Major Ward.—The attraction for the New Year holidays is Mr. Fred Karno's company in His Majesty's Guests; Mr. Dick Kitchen as Sergeant Lightning provokes mirth; Mr. Frank Morton as Lord Essem does much to sustain the interest; Mr. Charles Usher as Mr. Miffin acts cleverly; Mr. Thomas Moss as Harry is realistic; Mr. Harry Howe as Bunker is responsible for many laughs; and the same is true of Mr. Sid Kearns as Mr. Minks; Miss Edie Ager as Dolly Miffin is vivacious; Miss Kittie Brunton makes an effective Miss Manley; Miss Leonora Castelle as Lady Maud Essem is interesting; and Mr. Tom Manardo as Selina is capable.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee, J. Bannister Howard; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—A well-staged production has been attracting large audiences here this week in the shape of The Fatal Wedding, presented by Mr. Bert Coote's company. The whole performance is a most creditable one, the outstanding feature being the acting of Miss Marie Wilson, the clever youngster who plays the part of Jessie. Howard Wilson is sustained in a dignified and capable manner by Mr. Ernest Owtrim; the villain's part of Robert Curtis is ably taken by Mr. Guy Hastings; Mr. C. H. Hughes makes a vivacious and amusing Frenchman; Mr. Cyril Melton is droll as Peter Schwartz; as the heroine, Miss Katherine Clarke gives a pathetic rendering of the part of Mabel Wilson; whilst Miss Leah Marlborough is imposing and decidedly sinister as the adventuress, Cora Williams. Miss Julie Temple, as Bridget, causes much fun. The specialities presented in Act III. deserve special notice. The performers are all youngsters, and worthy of the applause that their successful efforts call forth. Miss Dolly McCalla's two songs, with choruses, "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "Cariban," are warmly applauded. Miss Ivy Westaby sings sweetly; and Master Walter Aubrey step-dances very well; whilst little Miss Marie Wilson adds to her laurels by her singing and dancing.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager Mr. John Burton.—This week we are favoured with a visit of Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, in The White Chrysanthemum. In the rôle of Sin Chung, we find Mr. Richard Telford, a comedian of undoubted abilities, who causes no end of laughter. He is ably assisted by Mr. H. E. Garden as Lieut. Belmont, and Mr. Jamie Dallas as Private Perks—both intensely amusing. Mr. H. Langdon Bruce is excellently suited as Lieut. Armitage; Mr. Shirley Lea makes a capital Admiral; Miss Muriel George gives a delightful rendering of the title-rôle; Miss Wilmot makes a great hit as Cornelia, introducing a fine American accent, and singing and dancing beautifully; Miss Dorothy Sephton is charming and refreshing as Betty. The scenery and dresses are lovely, and the chorus is powerful.

ADAM SMITH HALL.—Lessees, Kirkcaldy Entertainment Committee.—The annual New Year entertainments are being provided this week. The Nonpareil Trio, Ara, Nora, and Zebra, top the bill, and give a smart turn, entitled Indian Pastimes. Others who take part are the Five Abadaroffs; Les Uniques, on the ladders; Miss Rene Best, comedian; Maros, triple bar comedians; Archie Cameron, comedy vocalist; the Ettenas, the Royal troupe, dancers; Morimura, Japanese illusionist, assisted by Miako; and J. B. Preston, Scotch comedian. The music is by Carl's Bijou Orchestra.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Lessees, Kirkcaldy Carnival Committee.—The Royal Tokio Troupe of Japanese performers head the bill here this week, and give a marvellous display. Next in order of merit comes J. D. Hayworth, a clever Scotch comedian. Mr. Alf. Ripon is the smartest ventriloquist we have seen here for some time. Others who are successful are Miss Jenny Weir, contralto; Mr. J. C. Middleton, baritone; the McCarrons, dancers; Billy Hannah, negro comedian; and Ardrie Letta, conjurer. Mr. Murdoch Gilmour ably assists at the piano.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is occupying the boards here in Cripple Creek, and the drama has been followed throughout with keen interest. Mr. Stanley Bedwell, who plays Joe Mayfield, is the beau ideal of a gallant hero. Mr. Eric Hudson gives a fine study of Martin Mason; and Manuel Alverez, played by Mr. Oscar Power, is equally successful. An excellent make-up and fine elocutionary powers render Mr. Arthur D. Layland's impersonation of Wahketah a fine one. Reggie Harwood is energetically rendered by Mr. Will Hook, whose presence on the stage is ever an excuse for laughter. Miss Agnes Verity's melodious voice and handsome presence fit her well for the part of "Dynamite" Ann, and Miss Lily Beagle is charmingly natural as Belle Gordon. Miss Daisy Carlton adds brightness to the piece as Maggie Mason, her singing being a special feature; and Little Rosie Hopkins plays with intelligence as Tatto.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Martin.—Messrs. Holland and Wood's pantomime Aladdin is the attraction this week, and the management may be heartily congratulated on the efficient manner in which the story has been staged anew so as to fit in with the two houses nightly system. The pantomime is produced under Mr. Holland's personal supervision, and the various scenes (nine in number) also reflect high credit on the artists. As Aladdin Frances Haskoll does exceedingly well; Florence Wood is a winsome Princess Balroubadour; she has a pleasing voice and her singing of a Dutch song merited a well-deserved encore. Mr. George Reeves causes roars of laughter with his whimsical sayings and doings in the rôle of Widow Twankey. Abanazar is effectively embodied by Mr. Percy Curry, and a couple of clever knockabout artists are found in Nash and Noel, who, as Bo-Bi and Bo-Ko, are prominent in the numerous comic interludes. Miss Dolly Tree, who appears as Pekoe, acquits herself in admirable style, and the same remark applies to Bibby Tree and Portia Tree as Souchong and Congou respectively. Mr. Louis Bishop makes the most of Mi-Ti-Hi, Emperor of Japan, and Mr. Walter Watson as Wishee-Washee is commendable. The dances by the Sisters Tree are graceful and particularly pleasing. Kendrick and Laura, vocalists and dancers, and Nash and Noel, comedians, all have specialities which are well received.

PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. and C. Fell; Manager, Mr. John Fell.—Harriett Vernon is the star this week, and she has a good reception; her dresses are superb, and she sings in a pleasing manner. Leslie Race sings well, as also does Mr. Harry Wright. Miss Nellie Cannon, comedienne; Miss Peggy Fame, vocalist; Frank Aylmer and Daisy Turner, in a comedy act; and Edison-Swan animated pictures complete the bill.

LEAMINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—A Chinese Honeymoon is being played here with conspicuous success by Mr. Milton Bode's company. As Fi Fi Miss Gwennie Harcourt is very clever; Mr. Harry Jennings gives an excellent portrayal of Tom Hatherton; as Soo Soo, Miss Nancy Rossitter is charming; Hang Chow finds an able exponent in Mr. Rudolph Kloss; and as Chippie Chop, Mr. Allerton Turner is exceedingly capable; as Mr. Pineapple, Mr. George Rydon is extremely clever; and Mrs. Pineapple, as played by Miss Gladys Ward, as also worthy of praise.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The Sleeping Beauty is more than fulfilling expectations. Mr. T. W. Volt as King, Mr. Albert Le Fre as Valet, and Mr. W. H. Powell as Nurse, are a trio of comedians of proved ability, and each has elaborated his part skilfully. Miss Julia James has gained confidence, and acts her part of Beauty with rare charm and grace; whilst that clever and vivacious lady, Miss Katie Vesey, has sung and danced herself into high favour as principal boy. As second boy and girl Miss Rosie Wren and Miss Edith Adeson are more than capable; and all concerned work together with such verve and briskness as permits of no dull moment.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—The Forty Thieves has settled down and is working briskly, the principals are playing well together, and a three-and-a-half hours' feast of clean fun and frolic is the result. The principal comedians, Mr. Bob Selvidge and Mr. Harry Dent, are nightly introducing new drolleries and side play, which add to the general merriment; and the leading ladies, Miss Bessie Cohen, Miss Elsie Cooke, and Miss Maisie Ellinger, have thus early established themselves in popular favour. There are a number of attractive specialities, notably the Imperial Sextette of male voices, whose glee-singing is a much-admired feature; the Eight Merry Mascots, vocalists and dancers, are of a high order of merit; and the Manchester Mites, a troupe of well-trained juveniles, who dance with rare ability.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson's picturesque revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream continues to attract extensive and distinguished patronage to the popular Queen's, full houses being the rule. The popular front-of-the-house manager, Mr. Charles Bush, has happily fully recovered from the effects of his injuries in the recent East Riding railway accident. A matinée performance of The Taming of the Shrew on Wednesday was eminently successful.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Limited; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—J. W. Rowley is a leading light here this week, and a big reception continues to be accorded the veteran comedian. That clever raconteur, G. W. Hunter, is again in the bill, and his turn is amongst the most popular; Syd May finds a ready acceptance for his excellent mimicry; Boyd and Gilfain make a big success of a fine vaudeville speciality; an enjoyable vocal turn is that given by the Welsh Wanderers; Griff and Alpha combine in jugglery and comedy, mostly the latter; a novel and amusing ventriloquial turn by Vernando is well received; as also are the wonderful acrobatic feats executed by Paulinetti and Piquo; La Danseuse justifies her title in a neat exhibition; and some excellent Bioscope pictures complete.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Charles Weldon.—The visit of Victoria Monks is a star attraction this week, and the clever lady pleases all with excellent new songs, rendered with irresistible vivacity. That accomplished Risley acrobatic troupe, Ergotti and King Luis, ably fill the bottom of the bill; whilst another clever and amusing acrobatic show is that submitted by Wild, Willie, and West. T. W. Royal upholds his reputation as a champion dancer; there is a sensational cycling act by Arthur Kenny, which arouses interest; eccentric gymnastics are the feature of Jack Rae's turn; Gus Barra presents his burlesque musical speciality; and, amongst others, Ada Parker, coon songstress and dancer, is very popular. The Barrascope pictures are interesting.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam. Jones.—Chas. E. Colby and Lily May, the ventriloquist and dancing doll speciality, form a novel top-of-the-bill turn here; Frank Lynne is vastly amusing; the Lorrisons contribute a comedy episode, which is very entertaining; Ada and Lucien Grey prove themselves vocalists of merit; Carl Lynn is a clever animal mimic; a knockabout cycling act by the Walter Arleys is a feature; the Bros. Zampa, one-legged acrobats; and the Norman and Leonard Trio, with musical speciality, are also appearing with success.

ALBERT HALL.—Catlin's Royal Pierrots successfully opened their season here on Monday, and a bright and enjoyable performance has been witnessed throughout the week.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—A splendid impression has been created here by Mr. Chas. Macdona's principal company in the funny musical play Mr. Popple (of Ippleton), which we noticed last week. We should not omit, however, to mention the liberal manner in which Mr. Macdona has both staged and dressed the play, no expense having been spared to make the production in every particular a perfect one.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The delights of pantomime have caught on at this theatre, and a veritable reign of merriment is started nightly from the rising of the curtain till the finale of Mr. Milton Bode's fairy pantomime of Aladdin, reminding old playgoers of many happy bygone Christmas annuals. Mr. E. R. Beaumont, the business-manager here, who has a great experience in producing, is to be highly complimented on the exceptional clever style in which he has done his work. The members of the company, without exception, have become warm favourites with the patrons of the theatre, and our predictions of last week are being fulfilled.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The chief attraction here this week is Fred Eustace and company, who are presenting the sketch Our Curate in good style. It proves of a most entertaining nature and is capitally staged. Mr. Fred Eustace is good as Jack Russell, and Miss Mary Eustace also plays well as Mary Neville. Other parts are played by Mr. Charles Gordon, Mr. Herbert Lloyd, Mr. Walter Graham, and Mr. John Miller. Plenty of merriment is created by Sydney James's Strolling Players in a burlesque of Macbeth, in which some clever dancing, comedy, and singing are introduced with the best results by Mr. Sydney James, Mr. Gilbert Fernie, Miss Seymour James, and Mr. Ernest Devereux. Herr Fritz is an illusionist of ability, his various tricks being done with commendable neatness and dexterity. Albertus and Millar, in a scene at the fair, create hearty laughter, their juggling with clubs being really smart. Other artists entertaining are the Lavender Sisters, capital duettists; Jimmy Shields, the popular one-legged comedian and dancer; Harry Coates, the singing navvy; and Harry Lawson, comedian. A feature of the programme is the American Bioscope, the pantomime of Aladdin being thrown on the screen.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Miss Josephine Colona and company, under the management of Mr. Arthur St. John, are again the principal attraction here this week, and are presenting the tragedy Faust, the parts of Marguerite and Mephistopheles being played in admirable style by Miss Josephine Colona and Mr. Arthur St. John. Other characters deserving of praise are Mr. Horace Booth (Faust), Mr. E. Aldworth (Valentine), and Miss Ida St. John (Martha Schwarthin). Walter H. Palister's Bioscope is again a special feature with films of the pantomime Aladdin, &c. Mr. E., in a pictorial novelty entertainment, gives a good turn; Rosini is smart as a magician; the Evalos are excellent in their jocular juggling; Harry Vardon is a capital ventriloquist; and Carrie Victoria, comedienne, is also pleasing.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The popularity of The Fair One with the Golden Locks pantomime has been strongly evidenced this week by crowded houses at the daily matinée and evening performances, which have been carried through with unremitting zest and energy on the part of the performers, and with most gratifying success as regards all concerned. The local talent, represented by sixteen little girls carefully trained by Mr. John Darlison, contribute two of the most charming numbers of the piece; the beautiful effects displayed by Alma, Abdullah, and La Superbe in their Electra's Bower scene elicit universal admiration; while Miss Beatrice Bonnie, Miss Gertrude Branscombe, and Miss May Lupino, with Messrs. James Chippendale, Barry Lupino, Will Letters, Hilton Frances, and others, find their efforts cordially appreciated.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Robert Fogerty.—The Royal was occupied on New Year's eve by the F. R. Benson Shakespearian company, with Macbeth. Mr. Arthur Phillips in the title-rôle, was meritorious; Mr. Bernard Merefield made a capital Duncan; and as Malcolm, Mr. Charles Maunsell enacted the part with ability; the rôles of Banquo and Macduff were cleverly enacted by Messrs. Frank Darch and Bernard Limpus; and the rôles of Lennox, Ross, Doctor, and Seyton were capably filled by Messrs. Manning Sproston, Ernest Bodkin, H. Somerset, and Gubbay; Miss Mary Forrester efficiently filled the rôle of Fleance; whilst the rôles of Witch, Gentlewoman, and Hecate were admirably filled by the Misses May de Launay, Kathryn Stocks, and Burchill; the heavy rôle of Lady Macbeth fell to Miss Christie Laws, a very forcible and realistic actress. As You Like It drew an appreciative audience on Tuesday.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The Christmas annual, Aladdin, is going along right merrily, and receiving great public patronage. New business and songs have been added since the opening night.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Mother Goose has caught on, the gorgeousness of the pantomime proving a power of attraction. The popular house in Fraser-street is having its share of playgoers' money.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—As Good as Gold, presented by Mr. Samuel James's good all-round company, is paying a first visit to the north-end house. Mr. H. H. Barrington affords much satisfaction as Mark Williams; Mr. William Heilbronn makes a manly Lieut. Stanton; Mr. Richard Ferris submits a careful study of Sir Richard Wharncliffe; a deal of good humour results from the efforts of Mr. Ernest Carter as Horatio Spanker; Miss May Hastings plays with discretion and sweetness the rôle of Nora Williams; Miss Irene Tracey affords the utmost satisfaction as the Kipper; Miss Kate Froude is a stately Kate D'Arville; and Miss Edith Carr acts neatly as Madge Merry.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—This week's programme includes Chas. Magilton's pantomime absurdity, The Trippers, which is very funny, and is fully deserving of the hearty applause accorded; Mdlle. Lumiere's fairy grotto is a seasonable turn; another clever turn is that of the Lowenwirth Brothers; Joe Conway is as good as ever; and Ruth Molloy certainly pleases her audience.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—A return visit of The Traitor has been the big attraction here this week, presented by Messrs. Harris Fineberg and E. Hill-Mitchelson's company. All the strong points of this well-written play have been effectively brought out. Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan, an actor of much ability, held his old-time part of No. 1, and played with distinction; Mr. Bensley Evans, exercising every discretion, made a fine Prince Rudolph; Mr. T. W. Hurst provided an acceptable Captain Ross; Miss Isabel Hunt's Lieut. Nicholas was one of the best drawn characters in the cast, it being given with a sympathetic touch and much restraint; Miss Effie Bartlett exhibited high qualifications as Zulu, a countess; Zicka, with some excellent points, came from Miss Gwynne Warren; Miss Olive Lanty was a lively Japanese; the rôle of Elsie Dupres found in Miss Katharine Vere a commendable exponent; Mr. Fred Haming was a humorous Jack Boult.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Mr. Carson's company is here for a second week, playing the drama Master and Man. Mr. Charles Draycott, an able actor, held the rôle of Humpy Logan, playing with much dramatic strength; Mr. Sydney C. Cranston threw plenty of spirit into the part of Jack Walton; Mr. Ernest J. Fare made an excellent Robert Carlton; Miss Muriel Thompson proved a charming Hester Thornbury, and played with a deal of sympathetic feeling; Miss Mona Summers had a sweet child's part; Miss Louise Willward afforded every satisfaction as Ke

NEW EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. W. A. Totten.—Little Hackenschmidt, the boy wrestler, is here, drawing huge crowds. The rest of the company includes: Miss Eva Lynn, the clever Australian speciality dancer; Miss Florence Bell, a dainty comedienne; the Two Dots, in A Motor Muddle; Miss Marie Rosebury, a charming burlesque artist; Will Merit and Dot Moore, The Reporter and the Actress; the Three Cheers, with Dick Whittington; Leedo, eccentric comedian; and Ferma and Hitchings, in a sketch, Pity the Blind.

LONDONDERRY. — OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne-Seddon.—Mr. F. Garman's company is here this week in Under the Czar, Mr. G. Smyth as Captain Johnson is capital, and Zeroslaff is well played by Mr. W. Howard. Miss Lillian Herries scores as Soula Gregorovitch; Mr. R. Merring plays Granovski in good style; and as Kovesky Mr. Geo. H. Doyle is excellent.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Convict life is depicted this week by Mr. Bulmer's company in Sentenced for Life. Mr. Ernest Vaughan is Captain Derrick, the villain, who murders his uncle, and falsely throws the blame on the son, nicely represented by Mr. Edward E. Louis. The horrors of convict life are set forth in detail, Mr. Morris Maude scoring as the pastor. Miss Madge Douglas is Adele Grey, Miss May Neilson sings acceptably, and Miss Mary Dalby figures as Lady Stillwell, while plenty of merriment is provoked by Mr. James F. Firth. Mr. Reg. Oldroyd and Mr. Archie Scar are brimful of eccentricity.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—The Blue Moon, presented by Mr. Mouillot's company, is a great draw this week. As Chandra Nil Mlle. Marguerite Maudin sings sweetly and acts in a charming manner; Miss Dorma Morgan as Evelyn Ormsby is amusing in her artless treatment of the part; Miss May Audrey shows marked ability as Millicent Leroy; the Lady Brabasham of Miss Mary Glanbrane is also good; Mr. F. J. Rooney as Captain Jack Ormsby is manly and dignified; Mr. F. W. Bowes in the comical part of Moolraj causes roars of laughter; and Mr. Chas. Stephenson is irresistibly funny in the part of Private Charles Taylor. Major Vivian Callabar is in the capable hands of Mr. Victor Wallace, and Mr. Basil Mercer in the rôle of Bobbie Scott is well suited.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Louis J. Beard.—On Monday evening and during the week Mr. Graham Falcon introduced his production of The Bluebell in Fairyland at this theatre, where it has been received with full and appreciative audiences. The name-part is ably played by Miss Florence Somers, and, amongst others, her song, "Only a penny," was well rendered; as the reigning Queen Miss Constance St. Bride is perfection itself, and her excellent voice is heard to great advantage in the "Land of Sunset Glow"; Miss Vera Vizard, Bluebell's good fairy, gains hearty applause with her fairy songs; and Messrs. Bishop and Resty, as Blib and Blob, who supply the comedy, sustain their respective parts successfully; Dorothy, a child, portrayed by Miss Haidee Fitch, dances very well, and a better company of dancers than the Verona Troupe has not visited Luton for a very long time; Mr. Lawrence Emery's Dickie, the crossing sweeper, is excellent, as also is Mr. Lennard's Sleepy King. The play is well staged, and the dresses and scenery are quite fresh and new.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—On New Year's Eve Mr. Robert Perriss's company, under the direction of Karl H. Edwards, opened in A Fight for Millions. Mr. John C. Carlyle as Tom Manley portrays the part in realistic fashion; Mr. Alec Grant as Richard Dudley gains much appreciation; Mr. Karl H. Edwards as Willie Neverwork proves himself an able actor, and Mr. F. Ames' exposition of Solomon Moses is admirable. Miss Alwynne Ermon shows great ability as Pearl Rivers. An excellent performance is that of Miss Nora Kingsley as Miss Hudson Rivers; Miss Elma C. Turner both looks and acts well as Helen Dudley; Miss Rosie Kearns cleverly plays May Brady, and Miss Dorothy Wilkinson is charming as Little Madge.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Under the local direction of Mr. G. W. Bowes, we have three performances of Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk. The company is well selected, and plays well together, the scenery is exceptionally good, and the dancing is gracefully executed by a bevy of young and pretty ladies, led by the Three Dandies. Percy Galino is well received in his bone and banjo solos; and R. Lomas shows remarkable agility as the man-monkey; Mr. Harry Harcourt is irresistible as Mother Hubbard; Miss Ella Rose sings well as Britannia; and Miss Edith Wallis and Miss Maggie Allwood gain well-deserved favour as Jack and Jill.

MAIDSTONE.—CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Beslee.—The Girl from Kay's is the attraction here this week, and as played by Mr. Edward Marris's company, under the direction of Mr. Jennings Read, proves very popular. Miss Harriett Fawn as Winnie Harborough makes a great hit, her singing, dancing, and acting being received with loud applause. Miss Marie Greenhouse, as Norah Chalmers, is the possessor of a good soprano voice, and sings her sobbing song with great effect. Miss Lilian Rignold as Ellen is a graceful dancer; as Hoggenheimer, Mr. James Salter keeps the house in one continual roar, his smart "gags" and funny make-up all contributing to the merriment of the evening. Mr. Louis Edmunde as Joseph gives a clever and humorous character-study; Mr. Walter Nugent as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle is amusing.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Stanley Baskerville.—The Marvellous Avolos head the bill here this week, and give a clever and smart show. The Scottish Meisters are always popular in Maidstone, and are re-called again and again; Prince Ishmael is a clever Indian conjuror; the Donatos, one-legged acrobatic clowns, are clever; Bert Weston, comedian, and Miss Dorothy Dundas, vocalist, are popular. Lade Henderson (descriptive vocalist), Cento (acrobatic monkey), and the Bioscope complete the programme.

MANCHESTER.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—In accordance with the custom of the last few years at this theatre, the Christmas attraction steers clear of pantomime in favour of a popular musical piece from London. This time it is The New Aladdin, sent up by Mr. George Edwardes, equipped with a good company and an elaborate setting, and strengthened by a full chorus and an augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. Ernest Vousden. Miss Gertrude Glyn plays the principal boy's part, Lally, and moves vivaciously throughout; while Miss Ida Rene imparts considerable charm to the rôle of the Princess. Miss Trixie Snowden looks well and acts neatly as Millie Farquhar; and equally pleasing and successful is Miss Mary Fraser as Jennie, the Princess's maid. Miss Irene Verona gives a clever performance as the Spirit of the Ring. At the head of the comedians Mr. George Gregory figures as Tippin, and his business is invariably good and entertaining; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., adds a smart and busy impersonation of the Genie of the Lamp. Others who do well are Mr. John Brabourne as the Lost Constable; Mr. Frank Hector as Cadi, a disgraced ambassador; Mr. Ernest Mahar as General Ratz; and Mr. W. J. Manning as Ebenezer, Lally's uncle. All the minor parts are suitably filled, and the entire performance, enlivened by numerous songs and much good dancing, is brilliant and attractive. The piece remains for some time.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwardstone Shirra.—Mr. John Hart's pantomime The Babes in the Wood, produced here last week, is now going with complete smoothness from the first scene to the last. The final ensemble, that of the Carnival in the Palace, is a veritable triumph, and must rank among the most costly and magnificent in the country. Some changes which have taken place since the first night include the deletion of Mr. Wilkie Bard's song about "Playthings" and the addition of "Hello! hello! hello!" by Mr. G. H. Elliott, who adds to his success by this popular vocal item.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Babes in the Wood are introduced here this week by Messrs. Cullen and Carthy. The story (unfolded last week at the Grand Junction Theatre to enormous houses) follows the well-known lines; the scenery is picturesque, the dresses are pretty, and the music throughout is well rendered by the principals, chorus, and orchestra. Miss F. Carlile as the dashing Robin Hood and Miss Nancy Thornton as the winsome Maid Marian both captivate the audience by their charming style. The babes are played with great success by little Elsie Jordison and little Dolly Cullen, a pair of smart juveniles who sing and dance exceptionally well. Miss Gertrude Martini makes a charming Fairy Queen. Messrs. Cullen and Carthy are well to the fore as the robbers, and they keep the house in roars by their clever eccentricities. Mr. Arthur Stratton makes plenty of capital out of his rôle of the bold, bad Baron, whose secretary has a droll exponent in Little Cluley. As Dame Peggy Mr. George Casey is good; and clever variety business is added by the Sisters Volbecque and the Empire quartette of dancers. The pantomime is enlivened by many popular songs, and is proving a big success.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An exceptionally smart turn is provided here this week by Haley's clever juveniles, including Dot and Spot, the smallest duettists before the public; Smith and Johnson, the popular coloured duo, appear with success in an artistic drawing-room scene; Clown Charlton is particularly good in his eccentric musical variety act, and Primavesi is a very clever juggler. Clever items are also provided by Mastow, mimic; Lily Watson, patter artist; Ridgwell, comedian; and Rolo and Florence in a novel speciality act, The Wrong Clue; an interesting film is shown on the Bioscope; J. W. Rickaby, the well-known comedian, was unable to appear on the occasion of our visit owing to indisposition.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The attraction here this week is provided by Messrs. Polini and Melford's company in the ever-popular drama The Silver King. Mr. Fred D. Daviss follows worthily in the footsteps of notable predecessors as Wilfred Denver; Miss Daisy Scudamore enters sympathetically into the character of Nellie Denver, the patient and suffering wife; and Mr. Edward J. George is seen once more in his old-time life-like portrayal of the faithful Jaikes. Among other notable impersonations Mr. L. St. George Lowther gives a sinister and powerful depiction of Captain Skinner, "the Spider." Mr. Byron Pedley makes an excellent detective, Baxter; Mr. George Belmore is very good as Corket, the delinquent clerk; and Miss Viola Holland looks and acts well as Olive Skinner. The play is excellently staged.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—Great pleasure is occasioned here this week by a visit of M. Auguste Van Biene and his company in A Broken Melody. M. Van Biene's performance as Paul Borinski is, of course, admirable; and he is splendidly supported by Miss Kate Hallam as Mabel; while Miss Grace Lester as the Duchess de Verviers, Mr. Edward Van Biene as Dickson, and Mr. Henry Ludlow as General Ivanoff render valuable assistance. The remaining parts are well filled. The week's programme includes a performance on Friday of The First Night, a one-act comedy in which M. Van Biene appears as Dupard, an old French actor.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The programme here is headed by John Warren, whose business with the magic carpet constitutes a wonderful conjuring show. George Kirk and company score decisively in Grip, a condensed and exciting drama. Good turns are added by Godfrey James, a vocalist from the collieries; Russell Brandon, a clever acrobatic dancer; the Amoros-Werner troupe in their pantomimic juggling episode; Jordan and Harvey, the happy Hebrew comedians; Damerael Rutland and company in their comical caper, House Full; the Two Cromwells, clever jugglers; and Johnnie and Charlie, comedy acrobats. The Bioscope shows pictures interesting and up to date.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Fred Karno's Football Match, produced last week for the first time, is attracting record "gates." In addition to this huge allurement, we have here Rita Resdan, an accomplished comedienne; the Xentrix Girls, protean, singing, and dancing artists; and Herbert Clifton, the "thousand pound voiced" mimic, whose vocal achievements are wonderful and pleasing. The Palace pictures portray all the latest events.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The Flood retains its popularity here as a magnificent water spectacle; Strassburger's Lilliputians, half a dozen diminutive variety performers, give an exceedingly smart show; Arif Hemet, magician to Persian Royalty, presents a number of neat and clever illusions; the Aurora troupe of cyclists give a wonderful performance, including that of the "tea-cup" track; and other excellent turns are submitted by the Celtic Comedy Trio of Harmonists, Charles Coverdale, original vocalist, the Anartos, musical comedians, Gaumont's Chronomegaphone, and a couple of pleasing items by the choir.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—The star attraction here this week is Jessie Huddleston, of comic opera fame, who is delighting with several well-rendered songs; as usual F. V. St. Clair, the ever-popular extempore vocalist, makes a big hit; the Mayvilles, in their clever Lilliputian act, are well received; and Florence Schuberth, burlesque artist, is excellent; others who contribute entertaining items are the Three Pirmans, in a novelty act, entitled Dans le Jardin; the Two Jays, comedians; Cliff and Kean, in comedy dancing act; and Harry Winburn, comedian; on the occasion of our visit the Sisters Cardigan, duettists and dancers, did not appear; Raymond's Vivagraph completes.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A very good programme here this week is headed by Henry Herne and company in Blackmail, a sketch including a cleverly-arranged water scene; Hallam and Stanton submit their amusing railway-station episode, A Broken Journey; Silbon's miniature circus is highly entertaining; Francia, mandolinist, plays extremely well; and other capital business is contributed by Little Tichbourne, a clever comedian and dancer; Jerry and Leo, the comedian and the ventriloquist; the Vekeys, wonderful banjoists; the Five Casino Girls, accomplished instrumentalists; Ce Me Marie, contortionist; and a series of amusing pictures on the Bioscope.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The chief attraction here this week is Messrs. Clarence C. Corri and Edgar Dereve's musical mixture, Office Hours, presented by a first-rate company, including Messrs. Frank A. Wood, Geo. Danvers, jun., Arthur White, Edgar Dereve, and the Misses Jessie Wilton and Florence Leigard, with Miss Dora Kennedy as principal dancer; Fred and Maud Vypond are smart in a sketch, The Mechanical Doll; Shawlene gives a really marvellous whistling entertainment; and Clown Zertho introduces his wonderful troupe of performing dogs with success. Diana Hope and company are good in an episode, Her Good Name; Arthur Holland is a refined vocal comedian; and George Rae a Scotch comedian of the eccentric order. On the night of our visit a lively comedian (unnamed) appeared as deputy for Alice Stayne, comedienne. The Bioscope Pictures are enjoyable.

HIPPODROME, HULME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Harry Daniels and company head the bill here this week in a musical absurdity, entitled Rents, which causes no end of laughter; Florence Smithers is particularly good as Dolly, the Slavey, in a smart comedy sketch, Hard Lines, and is ably supported by Owen Dacroy and company; Janette Hall, lady baritone, has a good voice, and renders two songs in fine style; exceptionally amusing are Brull and Hemsley as the Dainty Damsel and the Dancing Dude; and Hilda and Leigh, in a sketch of comical situations, entitled Another Man's Wife, are highly diverting; the Naval Quintette, including Edgar Harper, provide a very enjoyable turn in singing and dancing; and others who appear with success are Edward Ind, comedian; Herbert Bates, tenor; and Johnson and D'Evere, in a really clever bicycle act; the Bioscope Pictures are good.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield Theatre Company; General-Manager, Captain Cecil Clayton.—Good houses continue to patronise Mr. Herbert Barr's pantomime, Aladdin. Miss Maudie Vincent as Aladdin has many admirers, her singing being very successful; Miss Lora Lyndon as Princess dances daintily and sings prettily; Mr. W. Sherlock as Abanazar and Mr. W. Dane as the Vizier cause great amusement. Duncan and Morton as the policemen are still very popular, every entrance being greeted with laughter. Mr. Dan Phillips as the Widow is extremely funny; Miss D. Wilson makes the most of the part of the Vizier's son. Among the specialities are turns by Ya Fan Keto, Jap magicians; Duncan and Morton, the Sisters Lyndon, Mme. Coredlia, the Empire Troupe of dancers, Ohio Male Quartette, Mlle. Tankerville, and others.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Tom Jennings.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here this week in the amusing play, Are You a Mason? Mr. H. L. Tracy in the rôle of Frank Perry was excellent, and received great applause. Amos Bloodgood was admirably interpreted by Mr. E. H. Paterson; Miss M. Fareleigh made a charming Mrs. Perry; Miss A. Grace proved herself an accomplished artist in the rôle of Mrs. Bloodgood; Miss D. Gregory played the part of Lott to the life; Mr. Cossart as George Fisher was very successful; Mr. G. R. J. Austin shone in the part of Hamilton Travers. The one-act play, The Ruby Heart, precedes, and during the interval the bioscope presents a series of pictures.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—Mr. Alexander Loftus's company opened here on Monday with the musical comedy, The New Barmaid. Largely responsible for the fun, which is kept up with unflagging vigour throughout, is Mr. Alexander Loftus, in the rôle of Bertie White. As William White, Mr. James Grant is also excellent. Miss Amy Preston as Ethel Joy is charming, and makes a striking impression in the song, "I'm a merry barmaid." She is also an expert dancer. In the part of Dora Heather, Miss Violet Osmund is also conspicuously successful as a pleasing singer, dainty dancer, and vivacious actress.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Business-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—In Mr. Frederick Mouillot's pantomime, Aladdin, now in its second week, all the artists have thoroughly settled down to their respective parts, new features have been introduced, and the whole production runs with the smoothness of clockwork. Miss Minnie Love continues to retain the good impression she created from the first as Aladdin. Her singing is good and her acting pleasing. Mr. Mat Melrose is particularly successful as the Widow Twankey; Miss Lala Melrose is a charming Princess; and Miss Violet Kenyon does well as Pekoe, the Emperor being efficiently sustained by Mr. A. J. Nicholls. Mr. W. P. Owen as Abanazar and Mr. Cecil Fowler as the Grand Vizier are satisfactory, and plenty of fun is introduced by Welda and Wynne as the Chinese policemen, and in their speciality juggling and dancing act. Mr. F. A. Arthur is as fantastic as needs be as the Slave of the Ring, and Miss Zoe Gilfillan plays and sings well as the Genie of the Lamp. The Berlin Quartette give some delightful dances.

MERTHYR TYDFIL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—A dramatic treat is provided here this week in The Walls of Jericho, played by Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, under the direction of Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux. Mr. A. E. Anson is an excellent Jack Frobisher; a capital representation of Hankey Bannister is presented by Mr. G. A. Brandram; Mr. Cyril Baleine is in every way successful as the Marquis of Steventon; Mr. A. W. Tyrer invests the part of Harry Dallas with the necessary subtlety; and Mr. George Percy plays with skill as Bertram Hannaford. As Lady Frobisher Miss Gladys Mason gives an excellent reading of the part; a delightful impersonation of Lady Lucy Derenham is presented by Miss Nora Wynne; Miss Marguerite Cellier is sympathetic as Lady Westerby; Miss Edith Cuthbert is good as Miss Mornington; and the remaining characters are well represented.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—An excellent and diversified entertainment here is contributed to by Effie White, dancer; the Nettas, vocalists; La Belle Lily and Albert, gymnasts; Ada Gatley, wire artist and juggler; the Wambas, hand-bell ringers; and Hyde and Beeman, comedians.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Jas. Stillwell and company are this week playing here in The King's Secret. Mr. Paul E. Teulon scores a success in the rôle of Captain Fairburn; the Egyptian, Hassan Alfar, is cleverly played by Mr. Jas. Stillwell; Mr. Atherton Edwards is well placed as Count Bernstein; Mr. Laud Richard Brooklyn is interesting as Lieut. Dorincourt. Miss Zana St. George gives a powerful and skilful embodiment of the Egyptian adventuress, Zenopa; Miss Cissie Clemmett is a graceful and pleasing Zeila Fairburn; Miss Lena Lattridge is successful as Birdie.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—The visit of Mr. Frank Curzon's company in the Japanese play, The White Chrysanthemum, has been attended with marked success, and although it has now entered upon the second week of its stay here it continues to draw large audiences.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. R. Chatto.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, Cinderella, continues to draw large houses here, and now that the stiffness natural to the early stages has worn off, everything is going with an easy swing. The music is bright, tuneful, and catchy, and the scenery and dresses are beautiful. Mdlle. de Rose, as the Prince, is a dashing principal boy; and Miss Edith Harmer is a charming and impassive Cinderella; Miss Zena Pana gives a representation of Dandini; and the rôle of Pimples, the page, could scarcely be better placed than in the hands of Mr. Tom Payne, who is both clever and funny; the rôles of Cinderella's sisters are played by Messrs. Sydney Benson and W. G. Wesley, and are successful in causing much laughter; Mr. Dick Thomas is amusing as the Baron; and Mr. J. H. Hawtry is good as Malico; Miss Ada Tyrrell is conspicuous as a pleasing Lord Stiff; and Miss Rose Pareezer and Miss Nellie Barrett are highly competent as the Fairy Godmother and the Marquis de Cadie. The speciality act by Houpla and Hecla is exceedingly good, and the chorus and augmented orchestra render valuable assistance.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Rembyes.—An excellent bill of fare this week includes McDonald's melody makers, in a clever phantom scena, The Burglar's Dream; very well received is the song contributed by Daniel Llewellyn, the Welsh baritone; the Society Quartet render some fine part songs, and give a clever display of dancing; Mollie Maverne is a clever character vocalist; and Marba and Verity give a clever acrobatic turn; Marcus Boyle, comedian, causes much laughter; and Lillian Neville provides some excellent singing. Other turns are Gladys Whitton, and Dick Kendal, comedian.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf. Graham.—An exceedingly good programme is provided here this week. The Virginians, a troupe of coloured artists pay a return visit, and, as usual, score a big success; the Ringling Trio, American eccentrics, cause much laughter in their absurdity, The Manager's Lunch; and the refined speciality and musical comedy scena, provided by Gold and Sterling, is very entertaining; Vera Mayne provides some catchy songs; and Zara and Arno score in their comedy bar act; Harry Morris, comedian, does well, and other turns are provided by Flo D'Orville and the Palascope.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Julian.—Mr. Chas. Harrington's No. 1 combination has been well received in Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. Carr is the Uncle Tom, and he gives an admirable performance; and Mr. Leslie Beaufort is a capital George Harris; Mr. Chas. Harrington himself plays St. Clair; Mr. J. H. Rogers makes the most of Legree; and Mr. W. Langford is an amusing Marks; Miss H. Hathaway gives a refined rendering of Eliza Harris; and Miss Hettie Johnson is good as the Creole, Cassie; Little Minnie is a clever Eva; Miss S. Stella, as Topsy, creates much fun. There is a full chorus and some excellent varieties are introduced in the plantation festival in the fourth act.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Ernest Stevens are this week presenting the fairy pantomime, Cinderella. Miss Lilly Eylvan is a dainty and demure exponent of the title-rôle; and Miss Madge Daly is a dashing Prince. The Ugly Sisters are aptly impersonated by the Misses Edith Baswell and Grace Desmond; Miss Phyllis Melville sings charmingly as the Fairy Godmother, and Miss Elsie Cooper looks well as the Snow Queen; Mr. Freddy French is extremely funny as the Baron; Mr. Ted Young works hard as Tiny, his wife; Mr. Harry Ray is diverting as Capers, and Mr. Frank Barclay does well as Dandini. There is an excellent chorus, and the Waverley Girls appear in a series of dances.

NEATH.—CASTLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Hagger, jun.—The pantomime Robinson Crusoe is having another successful week here. Mrs. Will Hagger is a charming Robinson Crusoe; Miss Kate Sylvester is a capital Polly Perkins; Miss Templeton as Britannia is a success; Miss F. Giddings is smart as Belle Taylor; Miss Kento as Princess Koko Nibs is good; Mr. Will Hagger is funny as Captain Will Atkins; Mr. James Hagger scores in his representation of Dame Crusoe, as does Mr. Geo. Stanley as Friday. Mr. Jack Desmond as the Cannibal King in the palace scene introduced some smart conjuring tricks. The transformation scene is excellent, showing the breaking dawn and Cupid's bower.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Testimony of the attractiveness of the twenty-fourth annual pantomime produced in Newcastle under the management of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham is forthcoming in the unbroken succession of crowded houses Aladdin is drawing to the Tyne Theatre. One can safely predict a long and very successful run for this entertainment, with so great a centrepiece in Mr. Harry Lauder. No more lavish and pretty spectacle has Mr. Wyndham given his Newcastle patrons than this present pantomime, and this is saying a very great deal; and with regard to music and the comedy element, the production has also perhaps never been excelled in the "coaly" city. The ample scope given Mr. Lauder is being taken the utmost advantage of by that famous comedian, and his The McSwankey and the Widow Twankey of Mr. Dan Crawley are two impersonations presented in a finished and mirth-provoking manner, and fairly bring down the house. Messrs. Lauder and Crawley work together indeed admirably, and quite a famous scene is their tea-garden gossip act and burglary. Mr. Imro Fox's clever feats of conjuring and mystery in the part of Abanazar continue to be a great source of attraction and wonder, especially to the juvenile members of the audience; and Mr. George F. Ide, Mr. Arthur Dandoe, and Mr. Harker Nicholls all ably contribute to the general effectiveness of the pantomime. As principal girl the management must be deemed most fortunate in having secured Miss José Collins, an artistic vocalist; while the part of Aladdin is ably assumed by Miss R. Ravenberg in the place of the late Miss Featherstone.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Langham.—Aladdin continues to draw crowded houses to the Theatre Royal, and a long and successful run of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's really beautiful production seems assured. A tremendous favourite is Mr. Neil Kenyon proving, his whimsical and quaint reading of the part of the Widow Twankey nightly meeting with many marks of appreciation. Mr. Charles Harvey, Mr. Fred Allandale, and Mr. Alfred Clark have all settled well down to their respective parts, though it would not perhaps be without advantage if the management were to provide greater scope for the last mentioned artist in the part of the Emperor. From the point of view of music, this, the tenth of Mr. Arthur's pantomimes in Newcastle, is distinctly pleasing, the many fine songs so beautifully rendered by Miss Florence Smithson meeting with most enthusiastic receptions, as do the efforts of Miss Lily Morris, really one of the most sparkling of principal boys of recent years engaged at a Newcastle pantomime. Miss Kitty Cavendish and Miss Rosie Begarnie are other members of the company whose efforts meet with well deserved appreciation, and all the minor parts still continue to be most ably filled.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—Another of Mr. Walter Melville's successful dramas is reaping its most deserving reward by filling this popular house during the holidays. A Girl's Cross Roads is a play full of interest throughout, thrilling and pathetic incidents being relieved by some capital fun at intervals. Mr. Charles Franmore as Farmer Meadows gave an excellent interpretation of that character, showing his dramatic power with much skill; Miss Hilda Beverley, in the chief part of Barbara Wade, was in great demand, and earned for herself golden opinions from her audiences; Miss Florrie Zillwoode, as Nellie Meadows, the wayward girl, was good; Miss Jessica Black as Constance Cornell, and Mr. Wilson Ginning as Jack Livingstone, were all that could be wished.

GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Bacon and Bolam; Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—There is abundance of excitement provided here this week in the military drama, Death or Glory Boys. Mr. Hill Michelson has secured a good company, and all work well with each other and gain well-deserved success. The principal parts are filled by Mr. George Drapier, Mr. Hill Michelson, and Miss Violet.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—A more entertaining bill for the holidays than provided here this week could not possibly be desired. Miss Madge Lessing takes premier honours and meets with a hearty reception. The Kellinos, ten in number, are a smart set of acrobats; Cliff Ryland has an inexhaustible fund of humour, and keeps his audience in continuous roars of laughter; Crystal Gazing is a delightful entertaining sketch, produced by Wm. H. Day and Miss Laura Dyson; May Orchard makes a hit with her song; and the Chester Sisters are banjoists, vocalists, and dancers of exceptional merit. Cairns and Lynch are expert American buck dancers; whilst Master Clifford (son of Cliff Ryland) is a promising comedian and dancer. The Sisters Brenton, comediennes and dancers, and the Bioscope, complete the programme.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—For the New Year the management are to be congratulated on the excellent programme provided. Heading the bill are the Six Brothers Luck, in their wildly hilarious pantomime, The Hotel Grande. Another turn which finds much favour is the Richards Trio, who perform some startling acrobatic feats; Satan Subdued is a scena wonderfully conceived and produced by Dr. Ernst and company; Ted Saunders gives some wonderfully life-like impersonations of well-known stars; E. Mountefore and company's sketch, The Little Colonel, gives great satisfaction; and Allsop and Beckwith create roars of laughter in their comic sketch, I'm Coming Downstairs. The Cartos Brothers' hand-balancing feats are most artistically performed; Anthony, Charles Sloman, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, and Barrascope pictures are the remaining features of a most successful entertainment.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Dick Whittington, now in its second week, is becoming more and more popular, and Messrs. J. D. Hunter and Mr. Sidney Cooper are to be congratulated. A charming Dick is seen in the person of Miss Emily Taylor, and a winsome Alice in Miss Rosalie Jacobi. Dick sings the "Zuyder Zee" in Dutch costume and sabots, which gives excellent effect to the song, and in the "Hyacinth" song, Miss Jacobi looks a real picture in her frock, lavishly decorated with hyacinths, and her singing of the number is one of the features of the performance. Miss Renée Ashley (Sir Rowland) this week substitutes "Cheyenne," a cowboy ballad, for last week's song, "Nona," and is highly successful. For dash and go Miss Florrie Bray (Captain) is certainly one of the best in the cast, and her popular song, "It's a different girl again," is always met with a catchy chorus from sweet little cherubs. As the Demon Rat, Mr. W. Williams (who, by the by, should be heard more often) sings a capital song in the first scene. Miss Marjorie Seymour as the Fairy of the Bells has also a voice of excellent quality, and in her song, "My sweet wild rose," she shows considerable taste. Mr. H. Rose as Idle Jack is a humorist of a high order; and Mr. Chas. Wood is not only responsible for lots of laughter as the Cook, but is also an extremely clever impersonator. Mr. W. Ellerslie (Alderman Fitzwarren) is responsible for a good deal of genuine fun; and Mr. Frank Carson, who plays the Emperor, gives in addition a smart song and dance turn with Corelli Livesay (Mrs. Carson), and an excellent imitation of roller-skating.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—An amusing farce, The Houseboat, by John Leopold's company, is a source of much amusement here. Another extremely popular sketch is Aunt Matilda, by Frank Elliston and company. Speedwell, lightning painter, is most entertaining; Fred Elton is responsible for a classical musical turn; and the Saphos give a comedy bar act that is applauded. The Matweef-Hugoston Troupe of Russian Singers and Dancers are smart in daring tricks; and Sybil St. Elmo, with a charming soprano voice, sings delightfully. Fine pictures on the American Bioscope complete the bill.

TREDEGAR HALL.—The World's Animated Picture Company, under the direction of Mr. J. Atroy, are accorded good houses here this week. Variety is given by Mlle. Violi, a musician of a high order; Jessie W. Frazer, a smart songstress; and Atroy, who performs some difficult juggling tricks. A special feature of the pictures is the coloured views in Aladdin.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—Mr. George Dance's company is here on a return visit with Veronique. The title-rôle is admirably played by Miss Ethel Negretti, who is well supported by Mr. Roland Bottomley as Florestan, Miss Doris Greville as Agatha, Miss E. Devonshire as Ermerence, Miss Maud Leonard as Aunt Benoit, Miss Isobel Vivian as Denise, Mr. Percival Knight as Monsieur Loustot, Mr. Scott-Cullen as Seraphin, and Mr. Tom Seymour as Monsieur Coquenard, a very comical performance. Mr. Clement Locknane ably directs the full chorus and orchestra.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—The Three Sisters Grovini give a clever acrobatic display; Williams and Warden are amusing cross-talk comedians; Clara Victor is a character vocalist with a good voice; Walter Stanley's comic songs are appreciated; Francis O'Flynn ranks as the best of banjo players; C. Vincent displays seasonable pictures; Wal Phillips, comedian; and Edgar Forrest's comedy company also contribute to the programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The holiday attraction here has been Messrs. Dan Thomas and Fred Clement's company with the pantomime Dick Whittington, which has drawn large audiences. In the title-rôle Miss Trixie Cotterell scores a well-deserved success; Miss Madge Goodall makes a charming Princess, and Miss Mabel Hind as Alice is a favourite; as Old Fitzwarren Mr. Fred Clements is responsible for much hearty laughter; Mr. Sam Michello is funny as Betsy; Mr. Syd Crossley makes the most of Idle Jack; Mr. Charles Dare is good as Billy Sim; and Mr. Pete Almonte is an amusing Cat; specialities are introduced successfully by Mlle. Estelle's quartette of acrobatic dancers, Maddow (ventriloquist), &c.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—A strong bill of fare is put forward here, headed by the Zaddos, clever comedy gymnasts, in The New Recruit; Messrs. Oakley and James, speciality artists; the Sisters Russell

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Robinson Crusoe is running very smoothly in the second week. New songs and business have been introduced by Miss M. Ruby, Miss Venie Clements, and the Sisters Cora, who have established themselves as prime favourites. The comedians include Tom Fancourt, Arnold Richardson, Harry Ray, and Flockton Foster, and the merriment is kept up to the end.

COLOSSEUM.—Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Messrs. Levy and Cardwell's pantomime The Sleeping Beauty is being played to large audiences in the second week of its visit. Wee George Wood still occupies first place as a laughter-maker, and Miss Dolly Dodds goes strong, along with Miss May Gibson and Miss Kitty Trewhitt.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—At the top of the bill here are the Willie Hale Duo, who give a capital all-round act; J. G. Grahame and Zerlina Harrington, assisted by H. Naverny, play very well in a dramatic episode, entitled A Daughter of Pleasure. Arley's Combination appears in a gymnastic pot-pourri, introducing some well-trained dogs; Chas. Dare's Minstrels are excellent vocalists, and have caught on; Lottie de Abbey, character impersonator, is another excellent turn, and the Bros. Webb are capital musical clowns. Horace White, ventriloquist, is good at the piano; and Harry Bancroft, actor-vocalist, meets with success. A humorous picture is depicted by the Royal Dottoscope.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—The capital programme here is headed by Cole and Rags, who cause much merriment with their funny juggling. The Clarkes, banjo duo, manipulate their instruments in a clever manner; Natalia and Diana are smart in their turn on the revolving trapeze; and the Pasquali Bros. are a pair of marvellous acrobats. Oakdene is loudly applauded for his ventriloquial entertainment; Frank Hope is a sensational trick cyclist; and T. C. Edwards, baritone vocalist, does well. The Dottoscope, with some new pictures, concludes.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Bentz.—Goody Two-Shoes has now entered into its third week, and during the holidays the pantomime has been attracting phenomenal business. The scenery is charming. Worthy of special mention is the last scene, Goody's Ancestral Hall, which reflects much credit on the artist, Mr. W. McCulloch; it is a triumph of lofty and ornate stage architecture. The grand procession of lords and ladies, pages and grooms-in-waiting, that takes place, with its brilliant massing of colour and gorgeousness of grouping, cannot be too highly praised. A more striking result is attained, and the charm of the colour scheme is apparent, when the wedding cortège has filled the stage. The costumes are a particular feature of the production; and Miss Nellie Walters, costumier to the theatre, who is responsible for nearly all the dresses, is to be complimented; Mr. Bert W. Stephens conducts the increased orchestra with marked ability and success; Mr. Frank Bentz has rendered signal service by writing additional lyrics; the electric light that has just been installed on the stage gives opportunity for some admirable effects, and is under the artistic care of Mr. W. Morton; while the limelight and gas arrangements are undertaken successfully by Mr. W. Cosgrove; the mechanical effects and stage machinery by Mr. Jack Murday, and the properties by Mr. Wilfred Murday, are in all respects adequate and complete. Altogether the pantomime is a huge success, which may perhaps be attributed to the directing intelligence of Mr. Savile, under whose personal control and direction the pantomime is produced, with the services of Mr. Frank Sutherland in the responsible part of stage-manager.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Wilson.—A fine holiday programme is being submitted here this week. The Brothers Luck, in the pantomime absurdity, The Demon of the Cellar, cause continuous laughter from start to finish; Frances Letty excels as an American coon comedy artist; Barton and Ashley, in a comedy duologue, entitled Canal Boat Sal, are highly diverting; Harry Briggs obtains applause as a triple-voiced vocalist; Gillin, a unique ventriloquial humorist, is decidedly clever; the Alekarno Trio are very fine exponents of comedy Risley and tumbling acts; George Westland, Scotch comedian, provides capital fare; Collins and Rice are successful as comedy speciality artists; and the Hippodrome Bioscope is interesting in its series of pictures.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Tom Toy.—For the holiday week the following artists have been engaged: The Great Sartis, in a comedy musical act; Parkie Roberts, eccentric comedian; Nellie Duval, American comedienne and dancer; the Smalleys (Nellie and Seth), vocalists, dancers, and performers on the triple horizontal bars; Lily Pinder, comedienne; Crosby and Walker, comedians; H. M. Somers, comedian and dancer; and Bob Pearson, vocal comedy humorist.

PENZANCE.—ST. JOHN'S HALL.—Mr. John A. Thomson's Aladdin, the pantomime of this year, was under the local direction of Mr. S. J. Liddicoat. The scenery, dresses, lighting, and speciality turns were all above the average. Kurie, the Royal Minstrel; Sing Ling Chin, in his juggling act; Mr. Ernest Douri, as a talented sifleur and banjo soloist; Mr. Bert Goldin, a really clever speciality dancer; and the Three Sisters Alltree, as acrobatic and ballet dancers, all won hearty appreciation. The transformation scene, entitled "All the Year Round," was a particularly artistic picture.

PERTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Messrs. William Mollison and Durward Lely's company has been specially engaged here for the New Year holidays in Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush, and the success of the venture is evident from the crowded houses nightly. Mr. William Mollison excels in his powerful portrayal of Lachlan Campbell, and is accorded unstinted approbation; Mr. Archie W. Chappell is responsible for a spirited delineation of Lord Hay; and Mr. D. Lyall is happily placed as his father Earl Kilspindie; Mr. Kendall Chalmers creates considerable amusement as Tammas Mitchell; Mr. Maclaren makes a desirable piper as Sandy McPherson; a better exponent of the old school doctor than Mr. W. A. Mackersy's William MacClure could hardly be imagined; and Mr. Eric Mayne's Rev. John Carmichael is an ideal portrayal; Mr. Alec. F. Thompson proves a host of entertainment in his capable and amusing portrayal of the Wee Postie, Archibald McKittrick; Miss Alice Francis shows exceptional talent as Kate Carnegie; Miss Edith Blair Staples is responsible for a good share of the evening's success as Annie, the Dairymaid; Miss Martha Stewart as Geordie (a laddie) and Miss Jeannie Fitzgerald as Jeannie (a lassie) are successful; and Miss Evelyn McNay's talent is shown to the fullest advantage in her delightful rendering of Flora Campbell.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—The domestic drama, The Little Drummer Boys, is being presented here this week. Mr. F. Fuller makes a good impression as General Kingsley; Mr. Fred Emery as Captain Frank Carsdale gives an excellent performance; Mr. Archie Helsby is well placed as Captain George Darrell; Mr. Charles Gallier does well as Lieut. Allen Kingsley; Quinery O'Quirke and Timothy Trimmer are in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Tyndon and Mr. Frank Hoyd; Mrs. Kathleen Magee makes an excellent Margaret Rivers; Mrs. Mildred Eversleigh acquits herself admirably as Alma Kingsley; and special mention should be made of Miss Maggie English as Eric Carsdale, and Miss Lily Beverley as Jack Smith, who add considerably to the success.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The pantomime Blue Beard is rapidly getting into smooth working order, and is proving a great draw to young and old alike. Mr. George Brooks as Sister Ann is making a bold bid for first place amongst the comedians; Miss Muriel Langley as Selim sings the attractive numbers falling to her lot in such fashion as to demand persistent encores; Miss Peggy Primrose, a lady of particularly fascinating manner, is a dainty little Fatima; and Miss Josephine Gordon's "Song of Andalusia" is one of the tit-bits of the performance.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams.—Mr. Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding has been re-engaged for another week, and the popular support bestowed quite justifies the management in the course adopted.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Top line on the bill is this week given to the Tom Davis Trio of Cyclists, the turn being one of exceptional daring; Miss Cordite's lasso-throwing is very interesting, and is warmly appreciated; the Zelovas are accomplished acrobatic equilibriste; Cissie Curlette does some clever mimicry of farmyard voices; Grant and Grant have some good coon songs, and the three Sisters Jonghmans are accomplished operatic artists. Other interesting items are Fred Herbert (topical vocalist), May Boss (vocalist), and Vernon's Pictures.

PORTH. — THE PALACE (LATE OPERA HOUSE).—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—A good programme here includes Marie Collins, who is enthusiastically received; Bandoni, the one-man band; Fredrica's toy terriers, a turn which gives entire satisfaction; Dot, the cake-walking pony; the Four Sisters Sligo, a quartette of charming ladies; Dene and Dawson, in a mirth-provoking sketch, entitled Stage Aspirants; Mike Cray, eccentric comedy juggler, and his dog Dooley; Harry Bent, society humorist; Carlotta Lunn, American comedienne; Belford and Mars, vocal comedy entertainers; and Phinas and Aida, revolving novelty equilibrists; the Palace Electric Bioscope depicts the new film, "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp."

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The Blue Moon is running very smoothly and well here for the second week.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Joseph L. Barry has again written the book for the pantomime at this house, the title chosen being Little Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp, which was presented by Mr. James Kiddie to packed and delighted audiences on Boxing Day. The story is on the old familiar lines, and winds up with an excellent transformation scene, entitled "Japanese Boy's Dreams," designed and painted by Mr. James Greenhalgh, after which a capital mirth-provoking harlequinade is provided, and Messrs. Tom Rayne (Clown), George Hough (Pantaloon), Will Anderson (Policeman), and Misses Ida Thompson (Harlequin), and Nellie Baillie (Columbine) acquit themselves most creditably. Miss Marie Beresford is bright in the title-rôle, and fills the part with great credit, singing her numbers most successfully. She is ably supported by Miss Ruby Aiston as the Princess, who plays very sweetly, and makes a dainty appearance, her duets with Aladdin being quite a pleasing feature. Miss Zena Page also does very well, and makes a charming Prince Pekoe; Miss Kitty Kildare as Radia, the Lady of the Magic Lamp, is most effective, singing her songs with much expression, and being well backed by her attendant Lumino, a part taken by Miss Minnie Grey. Mr. Arthur Aiston as Abanazar is very droll; and the Widow Twankey of Mr. Jack Cromo is funny, and takes well. Nanti Oof, the Emperor of China, is well placed in the hands of Mr. Harold Batt; Mr. Tom Kelso plays Wishee Washee for all it is worth, and scores; Bossi and Wrong 'Un, two members of the Pekin police force, are most divertingly depicted by Bliss and Bliss. Miss May St. Pierre as Fan Tit proves successful. The augmented orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. Ernest Bernhardt.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A bright and attractive bill of fare is being submitted here for the holiday folk. Charles Baldwin and company in The Bank Clerks, in two scenes, give an interesting and decidedly good turn; Frank Leslie, vocal comedian, made a good impression, and receives an encore for his well-rendered song, "The kerb millionaire"; Ethel Dunford, vaudeville artist, with good stage appearance, sings well; Marco Boy is a successful magician and illusionist; the Sisters May, duettists and dancers, are a smart pair; Virto and Irene, with their refined musical act, receive a double encore for their exceedingly tuneful playing; the Vetter Bros., acrobats, do some surprising feats on the bar and rings; Sinclair and Whiteford, in the favourite comedy sketch, Getting Even, hit the popular taste; Selby and Myers, intricate dancers, are good; and Payne's Bio-photoscope, with up-to-date pictures, completes a capital programme.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Executors of the late Mr. Wm. Johnson; Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—This week a first-class company is here in The Night of the Party, which has met with a hearty reception. Miss Beatrice Mervyn is seen to great advantage in the rôle of Lady Hampshire; Miss Stanley Ronalds gives a thoroughly effective impersonation of Gipsy Vandalier; and Miss Lillian Williams makes a most attractive Paulina. Mr. Frank Frayne has an excellent representative in Mr. Frank H. Denton; Mr. Sebastian Smith causes unlimited merriment as Mr. Crosbie; Mr. Douglas Munro submits a clever rendering of Mr. Flamber; and others who contribute appreciably to the success of the performance are Mr. Ernest Rivarz (Alderman Hargen), Mr. Stanley Arthur (Mr. Bogle), and Mr. Chas. J. Bruce (Mr. Roundle).

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Fred Granville's company is appearing here this week in an excellent pantomime based on the story of The Babes in the Wood. Miss Bertha Cousins has been happily chosen as principal boy in the part of Robin Hood. Miss Hettie Lind as Maid Marian sings some tuneful songs which gain many encores; Mr. Norman Hall as Sir Broker de Pawn keeps the house in continuous laughter; Merry Mavis has a dainty exponent in Miss Queenie West, who contributes some graceful dances. Burgling Bill and Gentle Georgie are two humorous characters in which the Kimberley Boys display genuine comic ability; Mr. Joe English creates much wholesome fun as Araminta Koffkake; Mr. Eric Strange is endowed with a fine voice, and sings some capital songs in the part of Razzle Dazzle: Friar Tuck is excellently embodied by Mr. Dan Mining. Master Harry Boden and Miss Edie Bell in the title-rôles well deserve the applause called forth by their exceptionally clever acting and dancing. Miss May Cornish is a bright and vivacious Little John; and Cissie Bodina comes in for a good share of the plaudits for her singing as Sylvania, the Fairy Queen. A speciality, introducing the Three Graces in their classical poses, is greatly appreciated. The excellent and well-chosen chorus merit praise. The pantomime is handsomely staged, and altogether an undoubted success.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—The chief attraction here this week is a pantomimic production, entitled The Brewery, in which Bert Bernard's company evoke great hilarity. Lady Julia is a wonderfully intelligent ape; Ragulus combines great skill with comic ability in his manipulation of tennis balls; Alf Gibson and Will Walton are popular comedians; Willie Haig's funny falls create much laughter. Others who appear with success are the Paolos, in an admirable exhibition of physical strength and classical poses; the Egertons, in a first-rate trapeze act; and the Bendons, in an enjoyable comedy song-scena. Bioscope pictures complete.

RAMSGATE. — AMPHITHEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—To audiences who have not been slow to express their appreciation Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company has been presenting the cleverly-constructed domestic drama Her One Great Sin. Mr. C. Quinton Fulford makes a successful appearance as Arnold Thornhill; Miss Lydia Donovan is an admirable leading lady as Grace Warhurst; and as Reuben Warhurst, the hero, Mr. J. Cecil is extremely popular. A clever child actress sustains the part of Gracie Warhurst; and Charlie, the flower-seller, is impersonated in excellent fashion by Miss Phyllis Damain.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—A packed house witnessed the opening performance of Mr. Edward C. Jazon's company in Aladdin here on Monday. Miss Edna Latonne is a charming and accomplished Pekin hero; Miss Florrie White makes a fascinating Princess; Mr. J. C. Morris is a capital Widow Twankey; and as Abanazer Mr. Harry Vernon creates plenty of fun; Mr. Cyril Carle is an excellent Emperor; Mr. A. Kavardos an excellent Snowball, and Mr. B. Best as Gin Sling is admirable; Messrs. George and Edwards as Ping and Pong keep the house in roars of laughter.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Cowley.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy produced their pantomime of Little Red Riding Hood at this theatre, with complete success, on Boxing Night. The scenery is highly effective, the costumes tasteful and elegant, the staging excellent, and the production throughout deserves unstinted commendation. Miss Verona Philis acts very charmingly in the title-rôle; Miss Ada Twibell makes a dashing Boy Blue, her singing also being greatly applauded; Miss Emma Don is a most attractive Prince Charming, and makes a decided hit in her "Ballooning" song; the Fairy Glowworm is well impersonated by Mlle. Tessie D'Alberti; Mr. E. Ridgwell is successful as Lupus the Wolf; the comic element is well to the front, with Mr. J. Templar Ellis as Baron Badlot, the Bros. Lavelle as Johnny Green and Jimmy Stout, Mr. G. H. Penn as Simple Simon the Baron's Page, and Mr. Harry Home as Dame Trot, all of whom are highly diverting; the specialities include the Acme Quartette, who dance with much grace and agility; the Don Black and White Comedy Team, the Bros. Lavelle (speciality artists), and the Four Hearnes (comedy acrobats). Mr. Frank Ayston is general-manager, Mr. E. Ridgwell stage-manager, and Mr. Aug. T. MacInnes musical-director, all three being very efficient in their respective positions.

LARGE TOWN HALL.—Messrs. H. and F. Poole's Myriorama, which has paid an annual Christmas visit to Reading for many years past, is again proving a great source of attraction during the holidays. The entertainment quite sustains its high reputation. The Myrioramic views have been brought up to date by the introduction of many new and realistic scenes, and the Bioscopic pictures include subjects of a very diverting character. The variety programme, which is such a popular feature of these entertainments, includes the original Geo. French Troupe of acrobatic cyclists; Mr. Harry Dowsett, an excellent eccentric comedian; the Acmes, in an original comedy musical act; Miss Florence Hamilton, a charming soprano vocalist; the Snow Family, eccentric knockabouts and expert skaters; Houston, the Chinese illusionist; Mr. Fred Poole makes an excellent cicerone.

BAKER'S HIPPODROME is still located here, and has been doing excellent business during the Christmas holidays.

REDHILL.—MARKET HALL.—Market Hall Company, Proprietors; Mr. A. Simmonds, Secretary.—Mr. John A. Thompson's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, the current attraction here, opened to good business on Boxing Night, under the local management of that successful veteran, Mr. G. W. Bowes. The scenery is very attractive, and the cast most capable; Miss Millicent Davis is charming in the title-rôle, which is well suited to her piquant style; Miss Marie Curtis makes a dainty Alice; the Billie Taylor and Dollie Dimple of the Misses Hilda and Molly Hypatia respectively leave nothing to be desired, their singing and dancing being heartily applauded; Mr. Tom Gilbert is decidedly funny as Mrs. Crusoe, whilst Messrs. Alf. Bert as Will Atkins, Robbie Graham as Capt. Mainbrace, Billie Bracey as Tommy Tickle, James Newry as King Ping Pong Poo, and Carl Moneta as the Man Friday, ably sustain their several characters; a feature of the production is the delightful singing of Miss Carman Cecil, a handsome and shapely Fairy Coral; the Kennedy Sisters, in their dancing, evoke applause; in the palace scene the clever antics of Mr. George Huntley's donkey, Hezekiah, and his goat Ike, cause much amusement; the Allan Brothers, boy jugglers, do some really clever work; the "Conjurer Unmasked," a laughable skit by the Codinas, fairly capture the house; the transformation scene, "The Birth of the Rose," is very pretty and greatly appreciated; the performance is under the musical direction of Mr. William Draper; Mr. Pau E. Draco is acting-manager for Mr. Thompson.

RHYL.—QUEEN'S PALACE.—On Monday evening Mr. Chas. Chaplin presented the popular pantomime Robinson Crusoe. In the title-rôle is Miss Florrie Poole, whose spirited acting and clever dancing render her a most attractive principal boy; Miss Ivy Dene as Polly Perkins is dainty and artistic, her song, "Fire Fly," being very popular; Mr. Bob Stevenson gives an amusing impersonation of Mrs. Crusoe; Mr. Tom Poole makes a clever and humorous Will Atkins; Mr. Harry Collins as the Cannibal King sings a laughing song very cleverly; Messrs. Arnett and Beavers work well together as Yo-ho and Heavo-ho. This pantomime is in eight scenes, which effectively illustrate the story. The whole is produced by Mr. Harry Collins, under the supervision of Mr. Alfred Selwyn.

CENTRAL HALL.—Mr. A. Cheetham still continues his Silvograph entertainments. Some excellent and up to date films are shown twice nightly.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Spider and the Fly is the title of the play in possession of the boards here this week. Miss Amy Venimore as the Spider, Stella Grey, cleverly enacts her part; Miss Nina Vaughton infuses much pathos in the rôle of Edith McAllister; and Cyril and Welby Girdlestone have excellent representatives in Mr. Stanley Gordon and Mr. Ellis Preston.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Smith and Co.—John H. Tomkinson's No. 1 Royal Gipsy Company is here this week. Songs, dances, and jokes are submitted, and the second part of the programme includes turns by the Rizarelis, lady gymnasts; the Regars, eccentric acrobats; Little Vio Lette, juvenile comedienne, and Mlle. Vanda, lady juggler on the revolving globe.

EMPIRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Mr. C. Parker's Six Æolians, in a vocal and dancing act, submit a capital turn; the Sisters Walton are pleasing vocalists; Mlle. Renée in a musical act quite captivates the house; and Dick Bradley (tramp trick cyclist), Charles Danton (comedian), Serpentello (contortionist), Mint and Mart, comedy sketch artists, and the Empire Bioscope complete the programme.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Local playgoers are being highly favoured in having for the New Year week Mr. Edwin C. Jazon and company with the pantomime Cinderella. Mr. Stan Aubrey is very funny as Baron Crooked; and Miss Flo Melville gives a charming portrayal of the title-rôle, singing with telling effect. Mr. Charles Preston as Arabella and Mr. Alfred Brooks as Isabella are responsible for much fun and amusement. Miss Louie Herman is smart as Prince Brilliant; and Miss Madge Bryce is a sprightly Dandini. Miss Florrie Burnette is charming as Queen Bountiful. Specialities are introduced by Messrs. Pearce and Ward, burlesque boxers and knockabouts; Onda and Leon, triple-bar performers; Stan Aubrey, legmania artist, and Harding and Preston, expert dancers; and special mention must be made of McCann's performing Irish terriers and leaping hound, who give a remarkable turn. The musical portion of the performance is effective; the mounting and scenery are excellent, the ballets also being very pleasingly presented.

RUGBY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—This week Mr. Henry Leigh is presenting The 'Varsity Belle. Miss Josephine Ellis as Gaye Sparkleton is successful; Mr. Paton is excellent in every way; Miss Kathleen O'Brien as the Professor's wife is very good; and Miss Emma Rainbow as the mother-in-law displays ability; Mr. James Danvers as Professor Septimus Stoney contributes materially to the success, and in his musical sketch in Act 3, where he is supported by Miss O'Brien, he scores a hit; Mr. Edward Chester as Mr. Sparkleton gives a humorous rendering; Mr. Harley West and Mr. Roy Barraclough as the two undergraduates make the most of their opportunities; Mr. Frank Lilliput works hard as Runyard, the college scout.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here with The Love that Women Desire, and full houses are the result. Mr. J. O. Stewart makes a fine Squire Abington; Richard Abington is successfully presented by Mr. Alfred Brandon; Mr. J. Heather gives a good portrayal of Philip Carnaby; a satisfactory Sybil Thorburn is presented by Miss Lalla Stanhope; the outcast, Frank Hardy, is a piece of good work, by Mr. Leonard Montgomery; Mr. John Hignett is well placed as Dennis O'Rourke; P.C. Sowerberry (a comic policeman) has an excellent exponent in Mr. J. W. Wilkinson; Miss Cicely Desmond makes a charming Madge Abington; and Miss Nita Imeson an amusing Pattie.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Sable Fern heads a most enjoyable programme here with her catchy songs. A novel gymnastic act shows the cleverness of the Marlo Dunham Trio; and Richard Corbin's Dogs are very amusing. The other turns include Frank Zaro, comedian; Leo Douglas and Co., in The Funny Office Boy; Ida Evilo, in a daring and graceful trapeze act; Three Dusky Princes, coloured comedians and dancers; Cyrus Dare, mimic; Leslie and Player, comedy duettists and patterers; and Marie Gibson, vocalist.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—The popular comedienne, Ada Fawn, catches on with her songs; a marvellous contortionist and instrumentalist is Max Duffek; Gorman's Youngsters (10 girls) give a clever scena, The Wait; The Window Cleaner is a most laughable sketch by Henry Carlton and his company; good turns are also given by Fred and Lillie Monckton, in Are Wives Dummies?; Ellis and Watts, comedians and expert dancers; Standing, the singing mill lad; and Chas. Lestree, juggler.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan. — Mr. Ronald Grahame's pantomime, Aladdin, is now in full swing, and runs briskly. The catchy musical items sung by the members of the company are greatly enjoyed.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Sidney Beltram.—Mr. Edward Marris's company in The Orchid formed an excellent holiday attraction here, the attendance on Monday night taxing the accommodation of the house. Mr. Charles Seymour as Mr. Chesterton is distinctly good. As the Hon. Guy, Mr. Sinclair Holden does well; and Mr. Geoffrey Berwick is successful as Dr. Fausett; Mr. Harry Walsh stands out prominently as Meakin; as the irascible French Comte, Mr. W. B. Chewd is exceedingly droll; Miss Dorothy Vernon as Lady Violet is charming in appearance, and sings well. Thisbe is ably played by Miss May Hawthorne. An excellent Caroline is found in Miss Florence Allen; Miss Maud Vena is a clever Countess, and Miss Sissie Brand a delightful Zelie.

SHEERNESS.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—A capital company occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Rex Carvell is a clever ventriloquist and mimic; Miss Alma Dora is a smart comedienne and dancer; Eustace and Eyre are loudly applauded for their laughable comedy act, Tompkins, Jun"; Mr. Phil Reymond, the popular comedian, still continues a big favourite, his well-rendered comedy songs going better than ever. The Langhams cause much fun with their comedy sketch, My Stage-Struck Aunt; and May Mansell's Mannikins conclude a first-rate evening's entertainment.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont—The Dairymaids, the splendidly staged musical play from the Apollo Theatre, has proved a great success here. Miss Violet Lloyd has charmed the Sheffield public as Peggy, and her dainty acting, tuneful vocalism, and graceful manner have delighted her many local admirers. That old favourite, Miss Edith Blanche, gives a finished impersonation of the rôle of Lady Brudenell, and other accomplished ladies in the strong cast are Miss Madge Avery, Miss Cissie Sephton, and Miss Rhoda Gordon. Mr. Lionel Victor causes great merriment as the comical sailor, Joe Mivens; Mr. E. Statham Staples is a first-rate representative of Sam Brudenell, and other well-known artists who do clever work are Mr. Forbes Dawson, Mr. Alec Fraser, and Mr. George Desmond. The "Sandow Girls" scene is a loudly-applauded feature of Mr. Courtneidge's elaborately mounted production.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John art; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—As anticipated last week Mr. John Hart's fine pantomime, Mother Goose, has proved a great triumph, and large audiences by day and night have revelled in the beauty of the scenery, the poetic charm of the ballets, the exhilarating quality of the music, and the fun of the low comedians, to say nothing of the fascinating ladies who adorn the artistic dresses that always form a special feature of Mr. Hart's notable annuals. Miss Daisy Jerome has made a great hit as Gretchen, and other prominent favourites are Miss Maisie Gay, a graceful Colin; Miss Sylvia May, the pretty Jill; Mr. J. E. Nightingale, a mirth-provoking Mother Goose; Mr. Harry Roxbury, the quaint Jack; Mr. G. P. Polson, the characteristic Laird of Borderland; Mr. Jack Pleasants, the lugubriously funny Alexander; and the agile Valdo Brothers, who cause roars of laughter as the intelligent "mokes," and do some smart tumbling.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—For the 39th consecutive season the old home of spectacle and jollity has "struck oil," and Dick Whittington is nightly winning gold galore for himself and the management. Miss Alma Obrey's imposing appearance, dashing style, and distinct articulation all combine to make her a successful principal boy for a large theatre like the Alexandra. As Dick she is a prime favourite, and her principal songs and "scenas" are enthusiastically encored. Probably "The Zuyder Zee" is her most popular number. Miss Ethel Bryant is a deserved favourite as Alice, and her songs and dances are warmly applauded. The Sisters Brookland delight the audience with the catchy "Bamboo Bungalow," and dance cleverly. Mr. Alf Clegg is good as the Cat, and the fun-makers, Messrs. Gilbert Rodgers, J. W. Gallagher, Mr. Kennedy Allen, Pete and Juno, Frank Bentham, and Jack McKenzie, are on good terms with Mr. Forsdike's patrons. The Fairy Queen is gracefully represented by Miss Blanche De Verne; Mr. Leo King is the time-honoured Demon King, and Mr. Jack Bangs looks well as the Sultan of Morocco.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The bill of the Empire is headed by Mr. Paul Martinetti, who appears this week in the celebrated pantomimic episode, A Terrible Night, supported by the talented artists who have given the "King of Mimes" their loyal support for many years. Kelly and Ashby are great favourites here, and other smart and original performers are the Two Motramos, in a novel act; Browning and Wally, Edie Veno, Mr. Dan Conroy, eccentric comedian; Mr. Walter King, vocalist; Mr. George Newburn, vocal entertainer; Beattie and Blanche; and Mme. Marie Duma, operatic vocalist.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Pallister's Bioscope, with variety turns, are pleasing large audiences nightly.

ALBERT HALL.—The Joseph Poole Myriorama is doing big business. Good turns are introduced by the Four Rosaires, acrobats; the Boleros, comic bar performers; the Tissots, living marionettes; Eilleen and Mayne, two pretty and clever young instrumentalists; the Franko Midgets, juvenile conjurors; Mr. Jack O'Rourke, character comedian; Mr. Harry Meir, tramp juggler; and Mr. Bert Berry, cicerone and mimic.

MONTGOMERY HALL.—Hulbert, ventriloquist; Prof. De Lil, conjurer; and the Imperial Picture Co. are engaged here.

SHREWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. William Greet's bright and highly talented company was here on the first three nights of the present week with The Earl and the Girl. Mr. Alfred Donohoe was a droll Jim Cheese; Mr. Thos. Kennard as Dick Wargrave acted with ability and sang effectively; Mr. Leslie Owen performed creditably the part of the Hon. Crewe Boodle, and numerous other male parts were in very good hands. Miss Gertrude Simpson made a charming and vivacious Elphin Haye; Miss Lena Hicks as Liza Shoddam was bright and smart; Miss Ida Stratham acted capitally as Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Kathleen Gerard was an amusing and capable Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss Winnie Plumpton was successful as Miss Virginia Bliss.

SOUTHAMPTON. — PALACE. — Sole Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—The Milton Ray's company of comedians is very popular this week in the musical farcical comedy The Cruise of the Calabar, which creates incessant laughter; Galetti's monkey comedians submit an interesting and clever turn; W. H. Downs is a fine vocalist; Marion Scott is a chic comedienne; the Jansons excel as gymnasts; and Mignonette Kokin is a dashing comedienne and dancer.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is this week again appearing in Moses and Son with triumphant success. Kisbey is a delightfully droll patterer, and his performance is extremely mirth-provoking; Adey Spencer—who, by the way, is a Southampton lady—creates quite a furore as "The Girl from the Hat Shop"; V. L. Granville is a splendid character impersonator; and the Kielings Trio excel as comedy acrobats.

PHILHARMONIC HALL.—Mr. Walter Jeffs' New Century Pictures are proving a great draw. The pictures are excellent, and the entertainment from start to finish is one of the best that has visited Southampton.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—A striking testimony of the popularity of roller skating was given on Wednesday evening, on the occasion of the New Year's Grand Carnival and Sports, when a large number entered for valuable gold and silver prizes. The chief event was the Challenge Cup Race Championship of 50 laps between Mr. R. H. S. Coleman and the courteous acting-manager, and this proved an exciting encounter. Another notable feature was the hockey match between Southend and Westcliff Clubs, who competed for a silver challenge cup, presented by Mr. H. J. Rose. Other events included races for gentlemen, with sack and obstacle races, and a tug of war. The splendid selections of music by the Red Band were heartily appreciated.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Bluebeard, which is produced by Mr. Louis Ducane, under the personal supervision of Mr. Charles Constant, is here again this week, and the pantomime certainly merits commendation for the excellent manner in which it is played by a good all round company. The reception accorded is even more hearty than last week, and the new songs, with really clever dances, win rapturous applause. Mr. Louis Ducane sustains the title-rôle with success; and in Miss Ina Bowman a talented artist is found in her interpretation of Selim, whose singing wins many recalls; Messrs. Gus Danby, Alec Godfrey, and Mac Stuart provide hearty merriments in their respective characters, and the latter, assisted by Miss Theresa Stuart, gives remarkable speciality dancing acrobatic feats; Miss Florence Hersee renders "The Starlight Queen" in pleasing style, whilst Miss Clara Sefton and Little Felicia sing delightfully; the Arabian Troupe of Lady Dancers are very attractive; as are also the Sisters Warner in their singing and dancing.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS. —Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens, Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. James Welch, supported by his capable company, furnishes a seasonable and diverting entertainment here this week in the new farcical comedy, When Knights were Bold. In the rôle of Sir Guy de Vere, Mr. J. Welch has ample scope for his versatility, and creates roars of merriment. Miss Audrey Ford submits an admirable impersonation of Rowena; Mr. Ed

STALYBRIDGE.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Frone; Acting-Managers, Messrs. W. A. Jackson and E. E. Hardie.—An excellent programme is presented here, the principal features being Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian; the Three Bros. Huxter, champion leapers; the Gregson comedy trio, in a farcical speciality, The Dummy; Sam Dalton, eccentric comedian; Mlle. Magna, in statuary poses; Rodin, comedy cyclist; Harry May, comedian; Hector and Sultan, comedy grotesques; Lilian Travelli, vocalist, and others.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Mr. Junius Booth and an excellent company are here in a new version of Monte Cristo. In the character of Edmond Dantes, Mr. Junius Booth displays his powers as an actor to the fullest extent, and he is admirably supported by Messrs. E. H. Templeton (Nortier), C. W. Crowe (Mondego), Leonard Marshall (De Morcei), J. W. Braithwaite (Caderousse), Augustin Bowerman (Dandlers), Miss Emma Robberds (La Carcoute), Miss Clare Elstob (Mercedes), and Miss Alice West (Sophie).

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. T. Barrasford, Will Sley, and Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Heading the bill here are the Martelloni Troupe of lady acrobats, who give a neat and clever performance, for which they are loudly applauded. At the other end are Will Vay's Juveniles, who are again well received in Life in the Slums. Appearing also are Leon and Leon, banjoists; George Prince, Miss Helen Martin, Will Goodwin, Selby and Myers, all of whom are good in their respective lines of business, and the Barrascope.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—Mr. Charles Chard's pantomime Cinderella continues here this week, and is attracting crowded audiences at every performance. The comicalities of Mr. Harry Pleon as Pimples are heartily enjoyed; and Miss Cecilia Kent contributes her full share of the fun as Ethel, one of the ugly sisters; Miss Kitty Phelps as Prince Perfect has gained in popularity; and Miss Mary Newell as Cinderella acts and sings with pleasing grace and charm; whilst the Sisters Terry as Dandini and Eglantine are now great favourites.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—Capital business is being done here this week with Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, which combines an abundance of fun and many items of a pleasing and delightful character. Smart comedians are Messrs. Barrett and Knowles, who, as the Squire's flunkeys, Dip and Dap, provide most of the mirth, and certainly are the hit of the pantomime; Mr. Hal Forde makes a clever and amusing Dame; and Mr. Alfred Maynall causes plenty of laughter as Silly Billy; whilst Mr. Jack Haddon acts the part of the Squire very amusingly; Miss Kitty Upton as Jack is a graceful and refined principal boy; and Miss Nellie Burdette, who appears as Dora, achieves success in her songs, "Zuyder Zee" and "Snowflakes."

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—HIPPODROME THEATRE. Proprietors, Messrs. Geo. and Robt. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. Ainsworth.—The Clement Trio head the bill here this week, their marvellous acts on the trapeze astounding all. The Steinway Quartette of male voices are excellent in their scena, Songs of the Sea, and are highly appreciated; the Villions, in their comedy act, are good, their feats on cycles being of a high order; Emily Oliver gives an artistic song and dance, which is well received; Silly Billy Elliott, an old favourite here, scores greatly with his humorous songs and patter; Miss Pleydell does excellently in her speciality act, her songs and dancing being capital. The popular Peggy Pryde is enthusiastically received; the Norman Sketch Co. cause great amusement, and the Pictoscope completes the bill.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—John Terry and Mabel Lambert head the bill this week with American character-sketches, and are enthusiastically received; Jock Walker sings funny Scotch songs; Bros. Zenary's marvellous feats on the trapeze are highly appreciated; Phil Mouat possesses a good baritone voice, and sings his songs in dramatic style; the Bounding Dillons, in their comedy gymnastic performance, cause great amusement; Ike Scott and Son, old favourites here, are well received; the Sivronis, in burlesque comedy, score greatly, and the Bioscope shows interesting pictures.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Managerees, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. Edward Marris and company appeared here in The Cingalee the first three nights of the week. Mr. Frank Manger as the Right Hon. Harry Vereker did very well; while Miss Ethel May as Nanoya in the title-rôle acquitted herself admirably. Mr. Hugh Webb was a characteristic Boobhamba; Mr. Coope Edmunds as Sir Peter Loftus was very good; Mr. W. J. Austin as Bobby Warren sang admirably, and Mr. Arthur Ferris as Chambbuddy Ram fairly brought down the house. Miss Kathleen Kennedy as Peggy Sabine played excellently, and Miss Millie Gordon was a winsome Aingy Loftus.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Edward Gray.—Messrs. Hill and Ayrton's company is here playing A Gambler's Daughter. Mr. Robert Ayrton quickly wins favour as Desmond O'Dare; Dick, the Weasel, is capitally played by Mr. Harry Barham; Mr. Alfred Saunders is good in the Hebrew character, Solomon Solomons; Miss Adria Hill as Mildred and Miriam Grant acts throughout with marked ability. Cartia, a Spanish girl, is cleverly portrayed by Miss Lottie Sanders; and Auntie Zeb, a negress, as played by Miss Harriett Lloydall, is most amusing.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alf Manners.—Swindon's first pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor, has undoubtedly settled down into a distinct success, and now goes with a capital swing. This production, by Messrs. Alfred Manners and Samuel James, with its lavish outlay in the way of excellent scenery, charming dresses, and capable artists, will long be remembered in and around this town. The staging, under the supervision of Mr. J. W. Hemming, is very successful, while the augmented orchestra and chorus (70 in number) do good work under the bâton of Mr. Herbert Summerville. Of Miss Fanny Robina's fine performance as Sinbad it would be difficult to speak too highly. She puts all the necessary dash and vivacity into her work, and uses her pleasing voice to excellent effect, being encored for each song. Miss Evelyn Geldard is particularly successful as Selim; Miss Norah Haywood is pleasing as Sadie, and has become popular with her delightful dancing abilities, while Miss Nellie Beacon is deservedly applauded for her well-rendered songs. As the Dame, Mr. Will Crackles is a genuine success, causing roars of laughter throughout. But perhaps the feature of the whole pantomime is the admirable star turn contributed by Mr. Harry and Miss Ivy Ongar in the Palace of Gold scene, their expert displays of national dancing are remarkably clever and graceful. Messrs. Hans and Lux appear as Diggles and Daggles respectively; Mr. Harry Ongar is bright and amusing as Tinbad, and Miss Ivy is pleasing as Yosan.

TAMWORTH.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. F. Hughes.—On Monday Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson's company, by arrangement with Mr. Brandon Thomas, appeared here in Charley's Aunt. Mr. Tom McFarlane, in the title-rôle, kept the large audience in a continual ripple of laughter; Mr. Percy Tyler as Stephen Spettigue was mirth-provoking; Mr. T. S. McCausland Stewart as Sir Francis Chesney looked every inch an aristocrat; Mr. Basil Lynn as Jack Chesney and Mr. Arthur Claremont as Chas. Wykeham, the Oxford undergrads, were exceptionally good; Mr. W. A. Stoltuck as Brasset was a most amusing scout, Miss Grace Baring a decided success as Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez; and Miss Sybil Grieg as Amy Spettigue and Miss Ernestine Holker as Kitty Verden won golden opinions. Miss Norah Johns as Ela Delahay was also good. The piece was well mounted.

TON-Y-PANDY.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth's company in the pantomime Aladdin has been received with enthusiasm by large audiences here. The well-trained chorus and the augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Omar Dean. Most of the scenery is by Moss and Stoll, but part has been executed in a praiseworthy manner by Mr. J. Nella (of the Royal Theatre). Mrs. Sam Duckworth is to be congratulated on the way she has arranged the ballets and processions. Mr. W. Harvard acts as stage-manager. Miss Edith Royal is a delightful exponent of the title-rôle, her singing making her a great favourite; Miss Lily Stuart is a charming Princess, and introduces some smart dances; Mr. Michel Madden as Widow Twankey is extremely funny, and his songs are encored. Abanazar is in the safe hands of Mr. Walter T. Hybart, who undertakes the part with marked success; Mr. Percy Vere as Wishy-Washee is very amusing; Messrs. Cliff and Astley as the Chinese Sheerblocks cause much laughter whenever they appear; Mr. Harry Verdon makes an excellent Emperor; the Sisters Cameron as Pekoe and Nicee are valuable additions to the cast; and Miss Lilly Palmer makes a graceful Fairy.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. John A. Thomson is responsible for the pantomime this season, and is to be congratulated on the great success with which he has produced Little Red Riding Hood. A clean, dainty, wholesome pantomime, it is very prettily staged with plenty of character and go, the principal scenes being the crowning of the Queen of the May at the end of the first act, and the waif's dream of Fairyland at the conclusion of the performance. In the name-part Miss Ella Willmer is a charming brunette, and dances daintily; Miss Beatrice Varley makes a dashing principal boy, with plenty of vivacity; and these are well supported by Miss Ivy Boulton as Boy Blue, and Miss Kate Pennington as the Baron's daughter; the Baron is taken by Mr. George Newham, who, with Mr. Fred Latimer as the Dame, are the principal comedians, and they work well together in every scene; some excellent fooling is also contributed by Mr. Fred Anderson as Tommy Green, and Mr. Lovell Rowland as Simple Simon, whilst a special word of praise should be given to Miss Fay Desmond, who not only makes a delightful Fairy Queen, but sings with great acceptance.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Charles Carey; Manager, L. J. Gunnell.—Messrs. Lockwood, Crossman, and Foster's company, in Sergeant Brue, has been well received this week. Mr. E. Russell gives a humorous interpretation of the title-rôle; Mr. T. Shelford and Miss Ella Daincourt are very successful as the son and daughter respectively of the Sergeant; Mr. C. McLagan is responsible for much merriment as Crookie Scrubbs; and Miss Edith Housley as Lady Bickenhall, Miss Constance Berkeley as Daisy, and Miss Allen Macdonald as Mabel all give excellent impersonations. Mr. Henry Chichester is admirable as the Police Magistrate; and Mr. A. Stroud as Gerald Treherne, Mr. W. Jordan as the Solicitor, and Mr. Clive McKee as the Inspector put in some good work. This remark equally applies to Miss Balfour, Miss O. Ward, Miss M. Herne, Miss L. Potter, Mr. A. Chichester, and Mr. H. Loyde in their respective rôles.

TYNEMOUTH.—PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—This week the bills are headed by Fred Frampton, burlesque entertainer. Another excellent turn is Mr. C. F. Best, who scores as McBunker the Mountebank; Dorothy Payn, soubrette, has a flattering reception; Signor Silvo, with his musical mélange; and Alice Braunstein, vocal entertainer, also contribute acceptable turns.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company in the play Leah Kleschna is paying a first visit here this week. Mr. Paul Belmore gives a fine performance as Monsieur Garnier; Mr. William F. Grant is exceedingly good as Paul Sylvaine; Mr. Hamilton Deane's portrayal of Raoul Berton is admirable; and Mr. Campbell Goldsmid is good as Schram, Mr. Roland Daniel being well placed as General Berton. Miss Bessie Rignold gives a talented and artistic portrayal of the title-rôle, her rendition being full of merit. She is ably supported by Miss Ethel Russell as Madame Berton and Miss Helene Belgrave as Claire Berton. Miss Violet Thorold makes a winning Sophie; Miss May Hamond as Frieda is pleasing; and Miss Edith Summers is effective as Charlotte. The piece is well staged.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Mme. Albertine Melich's troupe of highly-trained cockatoos give an interesting and wonderful performance. Mlles. Lucia and Viata are clever on the trapeze; the Two Daniels, comedy artists, prove amusing. Other turns comprised R. C. Note, vocalist; Miss Daisy Davenport, comedienne; and Mr. Harry Seaton, vocalist, proves popular.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The week's programme here is headed by John Le Hay and Co. in the comedy-operetta, Poor Beggar, which proves most attractive. Alice Maydue, character comedienne; the Wolpert Trio of Springboard Acrobats; the Imperial Russian Troupe of expert singers and dancers; Nellie Coleman, the versatile and funny little woman; Dome, comedy clay modeller; the Two Butterflies, gymnasts; and the American Bioscope complete the bill of fare.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Ethel Van Praagh and J. Edward Whitley's company in An Unwedded Wife, are here this week. Miss Ethel Van Praagh in the title-rôle gives a delightful rendering; Mr. J. A. Grove is well placed as David Drummond; Mr. Kingsley Royden makes an excellent Frank Armstrong; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes submits a capital portrayal of Philip Blackstone; and Mr. J. Edward Whitby does exceedingly well in the part of P.C. Russyin.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmott.—Excellent holiday fare has been provided for the patrons of this house. The Three Ferganas are an exceptionally smart troupe of equilibrists; Amy Anderson and her company serve well in the sketch The Banana Queen; and Mlle. Zant's Juveniles provide a good turn. The Wiltons are capable vaudeville artists, and Tony Iveson is a capital pianist; Ruby Dhal is a dainty comedienne, and Leo Trainer an up-to-date character vocalist. The Bioscope depicts some fine pictures.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Mr. Fred Benton's company, in The French Spy is paying a return visit here this week. Mr. Beresford Lovett admirably portrays the part of Captain Sommers, and the rôle of Lieut. Maxwell is in the able hands of Mr. L. Chaseby; Mr. Max Coutts does excellent work as Count Romanoff and as Petross Romanoff Mr. G. Sherraton wins the appreciation of the audience; Mr. Fred Benton scores a decided success in the part of Fritz, the strong man; Knipps, the waiter, is humorously presented by Mr. Seymour Perry; as the Countess Ande, the French spy, Miss Madge Devereux gives an interesting rendering; Miss A. Harrison Tate makes the most of her opportunities in her interpretation of Olga; and Julie, as played by Miss Ella Seton, is all that could be desired.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. Beaudyn's company with The Beautiful Fiend has made a successful visit here this week. Mr. Montague Beaudyn, in the rôle of Ivan Paulovitch, gave a finished interpretation; Wanda Lubinoff was powerfully portrayed by Miss Crowe; Miss Irene Munro was remarkably good in the part of Nadine Karateff; Mr. J. P. McBride gave a clever impersonation of the character of Count Fedor Karateff; the comedy element was smartly submitted by Mr. Harry Oates as Christopher Crackles, and as Patty Woodlands Miss Annie Clunn was all that could be desired; Mr. Albert Wray did very well in the part of Sergius Strogoff, as did Mr. W. Robertson Foulis in the portrayal of Malachi.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. H.W. Player.—Pat Rafferty appeared here on Monday night and with his funny patter and songs kept the audience in excellent humour; Miss Lilly Hales was well received; a clever sketch was introduced by H. C. Lovell and Co., entitled Mam'selle Pom Pom, in which H. C. Lovell, R. Sutherd, and Miss Annie Stevenson caused roars of genuine laughter; Miss Elsie Earle submitted some good songs; praise must be given to Mr. C. Wordley Hulse and his company for the powerful dramatic effect obtained in The Fight in the Forge; a smart turn was presented by Mr. Matt Hardy; the Borghetti troupe achieved some marvellous head balancing; and the Hippodrome pictures are a great attraction.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Sindon.—Miss Lillian Beszant's company is here this week in An Actor's Romance. Mr. E. Eardley Howard gives a fine portrayal of Harold Davenport; Mr. C. E. Clive handled the rôle of Robert Livingstone in an able manner; Mr. Harry Agar Lyons submits a manly and pleasing impersonation of Jack Woodford; Mr. Edgar E. Stephenson scores as Charlie Cummings; Mr. Percy Warlow is good as Ikey Isaacs; Miss Lillian Beszant is a vivacious and winning Dotty Dillingham; Miss Beatrice Hone displays pathos in the rôle of Louise Davenport; Miss Flo Nelson cleverly sustains the part of Florence Hastings; Miss Marion Ryder plays the rôle of Phyllis Davenport in fine style; and Miss Alice Leon is effective in her embodiment of Mary.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Responsible-Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—Mr. Harry Starr is paying another visit to Stanley and Otto the Outcast. Carl the Clockmaker was with his successful plays, Carl the Clockmaker performed on Monday night. Mr. Harry Starr admirably sustained his many rôles, his singing and dancing being heartily appreciated; Mr. Will Hee lent able assistance as Arthur Attwood; Mr. Edwin Firth was creditable as Maurice Helmore; the role of Hans Conrad was cleverly handled by Mr. Chas. Gabe; Mr. Bernard Beattie gave a powerful portrayal of Count Ivan Neiklevitch; Mr. Wm. Miller, ably assisted by Miss Ella Crossley, were responsible for the humour, as Narkey Nabbs and Jerusha J. Picklefinch; Miss Madge Blundell charmingly played the rôle of Madge Ryder; Miss Kate Norris was a pretty and winsome Lena Harrigan.

WEXFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer is here for the first time with some of her most successful productions. Mary, Queen of Scots was performed on Monday night, the part of that ill-fated Queen being played with power and pathos by Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer. Miss Katherine Herbert's impersonation of Queen Elizabeth was excellent, and through all the scenes of the tragedy she maintained this high level. Miss More Dunphie was very sympathetic as Queen Mary's nurse Hannah; and Miss Adelaide Cecil as Margaret Curl did well. The Earl of Leicester was admirably represented by Mr. F. Skein, and the part of the Earl of Shrewsbury was quite safe in the capable hands of Mr. A. J. Vincent. Mr. Leonard Cheetham as Lord Burleigh and Mr. Robert Pittard as Sir Amias Paulet were efficient in their respective rôles, and a special word of praise is due to Mr. Sydney Bland for his portrayal of the part of Sir Edward Mortimer.

WEYMOUTH.—ROYAL JUBILEE HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Nobbs.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, is running here, and is an enormous success. Miss Beatrice Varley as Prince Alfair won a triumph from the first, her acting and singing being loudly applauded. Miss Ella Wilmer as Red Riding Hood was most successful, and soon became a favourite; Miss Ive Bolton as Boy Blue and Miss Kate Fennington as the Baron's daughter Rosa were excellent in their respective parts. Mr. Fred Anderson as Tommy Green and Mr. Lovell Rowland as Simple Simon were amusing; but most of the fun of the piece is in the hands of Mr. Geo. Newham as Baron Sherlock Holmes and Mr. Fred Latimer as Dame Trot, who kept the house in roars of laughter at each performance. Miss Fay Desmond was very successful as the Fairy Queen, and has a remarkably fine voice. Mr. Bert Hammond was good as King Winter, as also was Mr. Albert Victor as the Demon Wolf. The first act was a pretty setting, concluding with a rustic ballet and the crowning of the Queen of the May. The second act shows the forest, introducing a most effective hunting ballet, and the concluding scene was a splendid production representing the palace, and amidst dazzling dresses and scenery, rejoicings and revelries there was a grand procession of jewelled amazons. "The Waif's Dream of Fairyland" forms the transformation scene. Mr. Arthur Sheldrake, who composed the musical numbers, is deserving of the highest praise, as also is Miss Ella Wilmer, who arranged the dances and ballets.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—The New Year attraction here is Mr. Dickie Clare's company with Lucky 'Liza. The farce goes very well indeed and creates roars of laughter. Mr. Dickie Clare is most energetic and his work in the triple rôles of Silas Slim, the Judge, and the French waiter, is very funny. Mr. P. W. Benson handles the part of Peter Pettitoe cleverly, and Mr. Syd Hind as Paul Pettitoe is not one whit behind. The Biffins of Mr. J. W. Forrest is an excellent performance. The Barnaby Blatherwick of Mr. A. W. Thompson teems with humour; and Mr. Bert Collins makes the most of the part of Tompkins, the Court usher. Mr. George Minto is extremely funny as P.C. McGurke, Miss Bella Russell hits off the peculiarities of Maria Pettitoe with ability, and Miss Hesta Brownie is amusingly sentimental as the romantic Virginia Blatherwick. In the title-rôle Miss Madge Brownie is charming, and quite wins the hearts of her audience. Mention should not be omitted of the dances by the Sisters Mascott and Miss Queenie Bell.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—An exceedingly well-appointed pantomime, Aladdin, is presented by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company in the presence of large audiences. Mr. Daley Cooper, as Abanazar, the "modern Maskelyne," leads a capital cast of "immortals," and Aladdin is charmingly represented by Miss Fanny Wright. Miss Kitty Brewster is charming as Princess Badroulbadour, and Mr. Julian Mack is a most entertaining Widow Twankey. Mr. Victor Roxborough, Mr. Geo. Robins, the Bros. Brooks, Miss Jannie Hallsworth, and Miss Louie Collier are also very successful in their respective characters. As specialities the Brewster troupe and Robins and Collier lend attraction to the production.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Admirable comedy is furnished by James Toner, imitator of popular vocalists; Vasey and Ramsay, in a dancing act; Morny Cash, the Lancashire Lad; Eily Adair, comedienne and dancer; the Bros. St. Clair, who play football on cycles; the Peaccmaker comedy sketch; and the McConnell Trio, vocalists. The Pichel troupe are excellent in a risley act; and George Young, a blind collier, is a marvellous performer on the concertina. Isa Hilton, Scots contralto, has a remarkably fine voice, which she uses with good effect. Miss Hilton proves a great favourite and meets with a capital reception nightly. Tock and Tord are also exceedingly well received in a bar performing and wrestling act.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Buhl and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. The pantomime of Dick Whittington continues to attract large audiences, and is giving great satisfaction. Mr. Bob Hutt, Mr. Rolando Martin, Mr. Fred Danvers, and the Fimans, are all responsible for much of the fun; and Wallan, the juggler, and the Six Lancashire Lasses, are also very popular. All the other artists continue to give satisfaction.

EMPIRE PALACE.—This week's bill is headed by Theo Boumeester, the Dutch protean character-actor, who, with his own company, appears in Who is Guilty? The Wartenburg Bros. give a good exhibition of foot juggling; Picitt and Lizette appear in The Crazy Cook, and are well received; the programme also includes the De Breans, seiographists; Hillman and Russell, vocalists and comedians; Alice Maple, comedienne; Bert Lytton, comedian; and C. V. Adams, comedian.

HIPPODROME.—This week's entertainment consists of The Grip of Iron, which is being played by Messrs. Knight and Denman's company; the principal characters are well acted by Mr. Fred Powell, Mr. George Denham, Miss Rosabel Dodd, and Miss Muriel Inglis; while Mr. Wallace Curnock, Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner, Mr. T. R. Lockwood, Mr. John Brittain, and Mr. Norman Tracey do justice to their respective parts.

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—There was a large and appreciative house on Monday night to witness The Taming of the Shrew by Mr. Benson's Shakespearean company. As Petruchio Mr. Henry Herbert was debonair and clever; Miss Dorothy Green as Katharina was equally spirited, and the scenes between them afforded great pleasure; Mr. R. Davis was excellent as Baptista; and Mr. P. Merivale scored as Vincentio, Mr. G. Ames as Lucentio, and Mr. H. Morrell as Hortensio. Miss Louise Graeme was a charming Bianca

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week France and Francis do a clever acrobatic turn; the Brothers Tarrant cause roars of laughter with their smart patter; Miss Lily Gaston, male impersonator, scores with her dancing; Mr. Dan Ashton, the original Lancashire collier, gives his character sketch, "The Collier Lad"; Miss Vinnie Loftus sings with success; and the gorgeous pantomime, "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," is presented by the electric tableaux machine.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Goody Two Shoes was produced on Boxing night by Mr. Charles Card's company. In the title-rôle Miss Annie Casey is a decided attraction, and has gained a host of admirers. Miss Florence Black is a handsome Roland, her singing and acting being of a high order to merit. Mr. James Kurry as Sammy is a host in himself; he causes much merriment throughout the piece. The Sisters Bronson get through a lot of hard work, and their efforts are highly appreciated; James Topping is a very clever Simple Simon; whilst Mr. Sydney Dean gives a thoroughly humorous rendition of the Dame. Cyrus and Maud with their donkey do well, and the performance of Sword and Robb calls for special mention.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—The New Year attraction here is Mr. John Tiller's grand Christmas pantomime Dick Whittington. Miss Jessie Templeton as Dick Whittington is a clever actress, with a sweet voice and good figure, and all her songs are well received; Miss Dorothy Gould is a demure and winning Alice; Miss Lizzie Hay as Princess Zuleikah is a dainty actress, and brings down the house with her Dutch song and dancing; Helda Vining makes the Emperor a pleasing personality; Will Lytton as Jack Idle causes much laughter, his local hits being much appreciated; George Ellis-ton is one of the principal fun purveyors as Eliza, and is untiring in his efforts, and his immediate success must be very gratifying to him; as the Captain and Mate Teddy Gibbs and Barny Dixon are distinctly amusing; Mr. Gaston Morel as the Cat is deserving of a special word of praise for his smart performance; and Mr. Herbert Garside makes the most of his part as Fitzwarren. The dancing and singing of the group of eight children are well received.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

AT a meeting of the Committee of the Heads of Departments' Association on Tuesday two applications for membership were granted and two stage-managers elected as honorary members. It was decided to hold the annual general meeting on Friday, the 25th, when the election of officers, the annual dinner, amendments to rules, and the celebration of "Federation Day" will be dealt with. One of the proposed amendments to rules is intended to provide for the admission of stage-managers, who, alone, among those connected with the stage have no society to which they may belong.

THE Variety Artists' Federation have invited the Theatrical Sports Committee to combine the theatrical sports with those which the Federation will provide at the Crystal Palace on Thursday, June 27, on which day the celebration in London of "Federation Day" will take place. The scheme is a large one, and of such a nature as to be most attractive to the public. Similar arrangements will be made in Manchester and other cities at home and abroad.

AT a meeting of the Committee of the "Daymen's" branch at 29, Wellington-street, Strand, on Friday, a number of applications for membership were considered. A report was presented as to the work of the joint committee acting for the alliance, and great satisfaction was expressed at the result attained so far.

THE Savoy Theatre stage staff received a Christmas box of 10s. each. At the Lyric Theatre Mr. Lewis Waller sent direct to the homes of the staff a joint of meat with his compliments and good wishes.

THE fund raised for the benefit of the staff, musicians, and others employed at the Hippodrome, Brixton, is being distributed in weekly sums in proportion to the wages which they would have received had the theatre remained open.

AT the interview which took place last week between Mr. Frank Macnaghten, Mr. F. Baugh, Mr. Frank Gerald, of the V.A.F., Mr J. B William and Mr. Jesson, of the Musicians' Union, and Mr. William Johnson, of the Stage Employees' Society, an amicable agreement was arrived at. The aim of the Musicians' and Stage Employees' Societies is to secure rates of pay recognised by their respective societies and the employment of members, in order that a definite agreement may be established between the management and the societies covering both the duties and the rights of the men employed. As was pointed out, the societies cannot control non-members, and to avoid the probability of friction in the future, all employees, whether in the band or on the stage, should be members of their society, and the society held responsible for the due and proper performance of the duties entrusted to each man. This arrangement is as much to the advantage of the management as it is to the societies.

THE National Association of Theatrical Employees has received applications from many provincial cities in the United Kingdom for assistance to form a local branch of the Society, and there is every indication that the stage employees generally are waking up to a sense of responsibility for their own welfare. The societies included in the Alliance are helping in this work.

AT the Alhambra Theatre the "pros' money" has recently become a bone of contention. For several years past the "tips" and payments for services received from artists, amounting to a considerable sum, have been shared among the entire stage staff twice annually. An attempt has been made by two heads of departments to exclude, as and from Jan. 1, the night hands from participating in this fund, but the proposal was resented, and it has finally been decided by the management that the taking of "tips" should be prohibited in future, and anyone guilty of asking for or accepting "tips" would be discharged. The action of the V.A.F. in calling upon their members to refrain from giving tips has, no doubt, much to do with this decision.

AFTER the performance of The Amateur Socialist on Saturday last Mr. W. G. Farrell presented, on behalf of the stage staff, a silver-mounted walking stick to Mr. E. Dagnall, the stage-manager. Mr. Farrell, in making the presentation, expressed the appreciation of the stage staff for the kindness and courtesy shown them by Mr. Dagnall, and trusted that he had not had occasion to feel that he at any time needed to use a stick on them. Mr. Dagnall, in replying, said he was much pleased with the present they had made him, and he was more than satisfied with the staff, and hoped they would all be together again.

THE first fancy dress skating carnival in connection with the great asphalt rink at the Crystal Palace will take place on Wednesday evening, Jan. 9. The programme includes a grand march, an exhibition of fancy and trick skating by Mr. A. T. C. Bridge, a comical fancy dress hockey match by members of Sanger's Circus (including Pimpo) and Crystal Palace team, concluding with the judging and prize distribution. The classes comprise ladies' and gentlemen's most handsome costumes, ladies' and gentlemen's most original costumes, advertisement class (ladies and gentlemen), comical class, and a children's class. Numerous prizes will be given.

AMUSEMENTS IN BIRMINGHAM.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Queen of Hearts is meeting with the success it so truly deserves, the house being crowded at every performance, night and morning. Mr. George Robey and his brother and sister artists work in admirable style and accord, and the pantomime is already assured of a long and prosperous run.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Crusoe's Adventures is attended by full houses at the matinées as well as in the evenings, and the production promises to become one of the most successful ever known here.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Cymbeline is visited by large audiences, who applaud with much enthusiasm the beauties of this grand revival, in which a truly sumptuous production receives its proper complement in the perfection arrived at in the acting. Miss Edith Turner's impersonation of Imogen is delightfully good throughout; she is powerful in her scorn and exquisitely tender in her pathos, and the audience frequently rises to her. Mr. Vincent Clive as Leonatus Posthumus gives a finished performance, in which faultless elocution and virile force stand prominent. Mr. C. F. Collings as the lying Iachimo acts most artistically; Mr. Stanley Lathbury as Cloten is worthy of much praise; Mr. Walter Raynham makes a steady Belarius; Mr. Arthur Soames is admirable as Pisanio; and Mr. William Dexter as Cymbeline, Miss Barbara Fenn as the Queen, Mr. Arthur Monroe as Philario, and others are deserving of the utmost commendation. The woodland and floral sets, the Battle scene, and the Cave of Belarius are wonderfully well contrived, and for this Messrs. Hugh Freemantle and William Palmer are to be credited.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Cinderella is running with extraordinary smoothness and success, and crowded houses may be expected here for many weeks to come.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—An Englishwoman met with full appreciation on its revival here last Monday by the Metropole company. A full house was present, and the applause was frequent and well deserved. Mr. Percy Dawsone in particular gave a highly meritorious performance as Capt. Frank Earlsworthy; Mr. Austen Milroy acted in a firm and convincing manner as Major Gurdon; Mr. Francis Everard did well as Fred Chatsworth; Mr. Fred A. Mackensie met with his usual success as Silas Mayne; and Mr. J. Hindle Taylor as Pipkins and Mr. Chas. Linley as Ruggles were conspicuous. Miss Rose Ralph was acclaimed for her splendid acting as Sylvia; and Miss Florence Mayhew as Grace Warner, Miss Amy Corelli as May Wildmere, and others were cordially approved of. Mr. Andrew Emm as the Rev. Robert Everard infuses much vitality into the play.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Babes in the Wood, which has won for Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's company the most favourable comment, concludes here to-night (Saturday).

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character is playing finely and to crowded audiences, Mr. Douglas Bruce's company being responsible this visit. Miss Ethel Bracewell portrays the titular rôle, Molly Vernon, with irreproachable taste, and obtains the full sympathy of the house; Miss Oda M. Ryder acts with fascinating charm as Rose Seymour; Mr. John B. Shinton invests the rôle of the Rev. Robert Everton with many pleasant virtues; Mr. George Steel acts in a stirring manner as Jack England; Mr. Frank Adair proves a capable exponent of villainy as Capt. Geoffrey Caversham; Miss Lydia Mannington deserves credit for her fine acting as Marian Franklyn; Mr. Geo. Mitchell is good as James Sutton, and Mr. Harold Macartney is successful as Weatherby. Mr. George H. Asquin shines in the humorous rôle of Dick Punch, Miss Daisy Meynard scores as Isabella Jones, and Mr. John Wilson as Purvis is well to the fore.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Mme. Alice Estv who makes her first appearance at the Empire this week, in an operatic scena entitled Betta the Gipsy, displays a voice of considerable culture and flexibility. Two powerful scenes from Dickens, the one from "Oliver Twist," the other from "The Old Curiosity Shop," are given with much dramatic power by Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lucas. Phil and Nettie Peters are a couple of comedy artists from the States; the Stavordale Quintette are remarkably fine banjo players and harpists; Ginnett's Rejected Remounts is not new, but the sketch loses none of its attraction by repetition; the Dandies, Mascotte Trio, lady gymnasts, Henry A. Moore

PROVINCIAL PANTOMIMES.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT BRADFORD.

Mr. Hart's brilliant pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, which was successfully produced on Boxing Day at the Theatre Royal, will certainly rank amongst the best of his many charming effects in the way of a Christmas feast, containing, as it does, all the elements of success. Mr. Doyle is, as usual, the author of the "book," which is smartly written, and brim full of witticisms and local allusions, and the twelve scenes by Messrs. Hall and Tritschler are a succession of harmonious stage pictures beautiful and delicate in colouring. The costumes are lovely in design and colour; Miss Kate Brandon has the control and direction of the charming Corps de Ballet, and delightful and entrancing music by Mr. Harry Rushworth adds greatly to the charm of the production. Mr. Doyle has furnished a coherent story in the orthodox way. In the Port of Hull (which is the first scene) it begins with the hero's wedding, and his subsequent detention by the Press Gang. The Suffragettes are an amusing incident, Dame Crusoe entertaining with a speech, and then we are taken to her cottage, where there is a smart midshipmen's chorus. On the Way to the Docks is an uproariously funny scene, with a moving track, and The Deck and subsequent Wreck of the Saucy Sue are fine bits of stagecraft, the tableaux ending with "Robinson on the Raft." Mention should be made of the chorus of juvenile sailors, who do smart cutlass drill on deck. The Home of Neptune is a most effective scene, with a beautiful ballet of charming water nymphs, and a remarkable transformation is made to The Beautiful Isle of the Sea, where everybody appears again, and Crusoe, after some amusing business, rescues Friday from the savages. In King Cariboo's Kraal there is more fun, Billy Williams, the Burnells, and May Henderson eliciting roars of laughter. Crusoe's Hut is a lovely picture, and here again the fun is rampant. Crusoe is rescued by British Bluejackets, and the finale is The Masque, a charming combination of movement, dazzling brilliancy, and colour, eliciting great applause.

The company is well balanced and clever. Mlle. Du Roche, who takes the part of Crusoe, has a sweet voice and a charm and grace of manner which at once win admiration. Mr. Oliver J. Round is quaint and particularly dry and humorous as Mrs. Crusoe, with her funny Suffragette speech. As Billy Crusoe Mr. Frank Calvert's humour is very amusing. Miss Mabel Sealby daintily and brightly fills the part of Polly Hopkins, betrothed to Crusoe. There is a strong element of burlesque in Witty Wattie Walton's assumption of the Privateer Will Atkins. Anything more diverting than the quaint humour of Mr. Fred W. Graham as Captain Hokum would be difficult to imagine. Miss Ivey Roze plays Harry Helm brightly. As King Koko Cariboo Mr. Billy Williams is genuinely original and funny. Miss Marjorie Langdon is charmingly picturesque as the dusky Princess. The Four Burnells, Messrs. Bert, Joe, Andy, and Alf, in their respective parts of Friday, Saturday, Hokey-Pokey, and Wankey Fum, elicit roars of laughter; and Miss May Henderson's success as Topsy is at once genuine and complete. Mr. T. C. Maxwell's fine voice is heard to advantage as the Demon, Davy Jones, and Miss Mab Paul's fine stage presence fits her well for the part of Fairy Seapearl. There is, without doubt, a long and prosperous voyage in store for Robinson Crusoe.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT DEVONPORT.

Mr. Geo. S. King has signalled his accession to the management of the Metropole Theatre, Devonport, by placing before the public a pantomime which has seldom before been excelled in Devonport. The chosen theme is Dick Whittington and His Cat, and in the book written by Mr. Fred Watson, the old, old story is strictly adhered to. Room is made for any amount of local hits, and, in addition, several popular songs are introduced. The musical conductor, Mr. E. Graham-Dunstan, is responsible for the main portion of the music, and it is tuneful to a degree. There are eleven scenes, and these are all accompanied by appropriate effects. The wreck of the "Washing Tub" is perhaps the most effective, but the gorgeous transformation, The Bower of Love, also deserves special mention. In the Palace scene, various specialities are introduced by the company, Lieut. Chard's performing dogs being an additional attraction. The company throughout is a very powerful one. To Miss Emily Custance falls the part of Dick, and she fills the rôle in a capable manner. As Alice Miss Hetty Gale is superb, and she quite captivated the audience with her winsome acting. Mr. William P. Sheen, in addition to being the producer of the pantomime, enacts the part of Caroline, the cook, in a mirth-provoking manner. The Idle Jack of Mr. Walter Dale is a real character-study, and he is to the fore throughout, as also are Carr and Carr, the Captain and Boatswain of the "Washing Tub." Miss Eileen Sheila Desmond is an ideal Good Fairy; while Mr. F. Durning-Fraser is equally good in the opposite direction as Malevolentio. Thomas, the Cat, is in the capable hands of Mr. Harry Gilmore; and the other parts are also well enacted. Altogether it is a really good show, and the crowded houses to date testify to the public's appreciation.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT DOVER.

The pantomime Robinson Crusoe, which was produced at the Theatre Royal on Boxing Day, has been running this week with great success. The book, by Messrs. Brian Daly and M. East, is most amusingly written, and the music, by Mr. J. Nurnberger, is both appropriate and melodious. Great admiration has been excited by the excellent scenery and charming dresses, which are a valuable assistance in forming the pretty stage pictures. Miss Agnes Paulton at once established herself a firm favourite with her captivating impersonation of the title-rôle. Her admirably-rendered vocal contributions are received with enthusiasm, the most popular being perhaps "London town" and "Joe, Joe, Joe!" "Run, run, you little ones," followed by a graceful dance, is only one of the pretty numbers allotted to Miss Maud Denny, who plays Polly Perkins in a most delightful manner. Miss Eileen Cuthbert as the Fairy sings with much expression, and renders her lines with commendable clearness of enunciation; Miss Ada Davidson, a dashing Jack, looks exceedingly well, her song of "Roses, roses everywhere" being made particularly effective by the distribution of rosebuds among the audience; and Miss Lily Breme, a graceful Nellie, has a most tuneful voice and a charming manner. The fun-making owes much of its success to the untiring zeal of the clever comedian Mr. Will Smith. As Mrs. Crusoe he works hard and well, and fully deserves the plaudits that greet the conclusion of the scenes in which he takes part. Mr. Henry W. Hatchman plays Will Atkins with the skill of an experienced actor; and Messrs. Chas. H. and William Phydora also add to the fun with two highly-amusing and hilarious portrayals. Mr. W. Venner as Davy Jones and Mr. Brian Daly as King Hokey play with a fine appreciation of their part in the story; Mr. H. E. High acts Friday in a truly whimsical fashion, and also contributes a clever turn on the roller skates; several pretty and neatly-executed dances are given by the Four Diamonds; and the Phydoras contribute a novel and exceedingly smart musical act.

"SINDBAD" AT DUBLIN.

On Boxing Day Mrs. Michael Gunn produced the pantomime of Sindbad the Sailor at the Gaiety Theatre, and it was witnessed by a thronged audience. The production was under the direction of Mrs. Michael Gunn, with the assistance of Mr. Clarence Hunt, to whom great credit must be given for their excellent and merited energies. The book of words has been written by Mr. Edwin Hamilton and Mr. I. M. Lowry, who have done their work well. Mr. I. M. Lowry, associated with Mr. Clarence Hunt, is responsible for the lyrics, and the musical portion was arranged by Mr. W. S. Navarro, who is to be congratulated for his successful and pleasing composition.

There are eleven scenes, the first being the Port of Balsora—a beautiful picture—where we meet sailors, slave-dealers, gipsies, water-dealers, &c., in some well-chosen choruses, together with a pretty umbrella dance. Miss May Beatty was a charming Sindbad, with a pleasing and effective manner, and with an excellent voice which was heard to great advantage, particularly in "I was dreaming" and "Moon, moon." Miss Blanche Astley acted and sang very nicely as Zorilda; and the Princess was excellently portrayed by Miss Nina Osborne; and Miss Agnes Gunn made an admirable Spirit of Adventure. Mr. Gus Walker as Mrs. Eliza Sindbad was humorous, and his songs, "Jilted" and "I am the girl for him," were capitally sung. Mr. T. E. Finglas as Pompey in his coon songs and dances was particularly good, and received numerous encores; Mr. G. H. Snazelle was amusing as Captain Smackanhit, and his fine voice was heard in several numbers with excellent effect; another clever character was that of Tinbad, by Mr. Edward Lauri, who made the most of his part; and Mr. Fred Arthur was a distinguished Sultan and sang his topical song, "Budget," with great ability. Mr. Cecil Kingsley acted well as the Grand Vizier, and his rendering of "My Japanesy Girl" received a hearty encore. All the other parts were capably filled, and Mme. Malvina Cavaallezzie's Quartette of Dancers are deserving of special praise for their graceful and clever dancing. The scenery was painted by Mr. James A. Hicks and the ballets arranged by Mme. Noir and the Misses Crawford.

"THE SLEEPING BEAUTY" AT HANLEY.

There is not a dull moment in Mr. Elliston's pantomime of The Sleeping Beauty and the Mystic Yellow Dwarf. It is compact, and runs with a smoothness rarely seen. The story is capitally presented, and amusing items follow each other in rapid succession, making an entertainment of which Mr. Elliston should feel proud.

In Part I. there are some fine stage settings, including the Palace of King Half-a-Crown, where we are introduced to Mr. Alf. Bishop as the King. He is exceedingly funny, his song, "Wearing the breeches," being a capital item. Mr. Dave O'Toole is the Queen, and his acting, business, and songs are, without doubt, exceptionally clever, a taking item being "Anything that's wearing trousers." Miss Lillie Vane makes a dainty principal girl; she has a nice appearance and a pleasing manner, and possesses a voice of good quality. Miss Agnes Molteno as the Fairy Queen contributes a clever and artistic performance, her rich voice being heard to great advantage in "Sleep, gentle beauty, sleep," at the conclusion of which is a beautiful tableau. Miss Erme Gordon's first song is "The Man from Manitoba," which is cleverly rendered, and will become most popular. She has a fine stage presence, and acts her part of the Prince in a thoroughly capable and artistic manner. "Zuyder Zee" is also a highly successful song of Miss Gordon's, in which she receives much assistance from Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers. Miss Ada Tilley as the Grand Chief of Court, does some good work, her Japanese song (during which she is assisted by the Morton Trio) being capital. Mr. J. W. Churchill as Count Incognito is well suited, his singing of "Hello, a different girl again," being most rousing; he contributes largely towards the success of the production. In The Queen's Garden scene Miss Tilley and Mr. Churchill give an imitation of amateur melodrama which is admirable. The Morton Trio are beautiful singers, and their various numbers are received with great enthusiasm. The Howards, in their musical turns, are much appreciated, their cornet playing being admirable; Miss Lottie Stone's dancers are most accomplished, their ballets being quite a feature. Part I. finishes with Ganty's Electra's Bower, which is a truly wonderful conception; three fountains are in full play, behind which Electra is seen flying.

Part II. opens with a capital song by the Princess, Miss Vane, viz., "Wouldn't you like to learn to love me," which is much admired. Miss Molteno has another song, in which she scores her usual success. Mr. Dave O'Toole is amusing in a stump speech on the Suffragettes. Mr. Lonnen Meadows is seen as the Yellow Dwarf, and his acting is really clever. As stage-manager he also is deserving of the highest congratulations. Mr. Carlile Vernon handles his orchestra well. The scenery is admirable, The Castle of the Yellow Dwarf being an exceptionally fine set. There are crowded houses nightly, and judging from the appreciation shown by the audiences, Mr. Charles Elphinstone and Mr. Elliston will have a most successful season.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT SOUTHAMPTON.

To devise a pantomime which will delight children while keeping their elders amused is no light task, but Mr. Fred Mouillot's Dick Whittington, which is running merrily along at the Grand Theatre, Southampton, well and worthily fulfils its mission as a clean, wholesome entertainment. It is essentially a children's pantomime, but there is much that will please the "grown-ups" as well. It is refined, witty, picturesque, is supplied with delightful music, and abounds in fun of the boisterous order. The scenery—particularly "Highgate Hill" and the "Palace of Morocco"—is splendid, the dresses are handsome, and the ballets (arranged by Miss Pauline Rivers) are admirably executed. Mr. Guyton Heath, on whose shoulders the onus of the production has fallen, is to be heartily congratulated on the success he has achieved; whilst a word of praise must also be given to Mr. Bruce Lindley, the energetic stage-manager, who has worked hard and successfully to second the efforts of his chief.

The cast has been most judiciously chosen, one and all working well together for the all-round success of the show. For the name-part, Dick, no better choice could have been made than that of Miss Millie Engler, who is no stranger to Southampton. Miss Engler has a fine presence, is the possessor of a pleasing voice, and plays the part in an engaging manner. She successfully features the most popular song of the season, "By the side of the Zuyder Zee," with a dainty chorus of Dutch damsels, which wins golden opinions. It is a sweetly-pretty ballad, tastefully sung by Miss Engler. Miss Florrie Sainders, another artist well known to the habitués of the theatre, makes a decidedly vivacious and spirited Alice, dancing smartly and singing with considerable fervour, one of her best efforts being "The bamboo bungalow." Miss Joan Deering as the good fairy Campanolia proves herself a capable and fascinating vocalist. The Misses Queenie Le Brunn (Lord Slightall) and Ivy Proudfoot (Princess) also score heavily. First and foremost amongst the comedians we must mention Mr. Percy Cahill, who thoroughly grasps the humour of the part of Idle Jack. He gives a very droll reading of the idle apprentice, and is rewarded with continuous outbursts of applause. Mr. J. W. Hooper's amusing episodes as the Cook never fail to create laughter, and during the time Messrs. Cahill and Hooper occupy the stage the fun waxes fast and furious. The catch-phrase "You are like our Georgie" is already all over the town. Mr. Robert Rivers adds to the fun as Fitzwarren; Mr. Bruce Lindley is effective as the Emperor, whose attendant is well played by Mr. Ivan Ewart. The Bowery Boys as the Captain and Lieutenant introduce some clever knockabout business; and Mr. Anthy is an agile Cat. The work of the chorus deserves recognition, as does the conscientious work of the conductor, Mr. Warwick Moore, who, with the assistance of Mr. Sullivan Brooke, was responsible for the bright and tuneful music of the production.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT SUNDERLAND.

Mr. Chas. E. Machin's annual pantomime was produced on Boxing Night at the Avenue Theatre, and had a most successful and hearty "send off." There was a crowded holiday audience, who appeared to thoroughly enjoy the performance from start to finish. Mr. Machin has again left the production entirely in the hands of Mr. J. F. Elliston, with the most excellent results. The rehearsals were under the personal direction of the producer, who has been ably seconded in his arduous labours by his chief, Mr. Lewis Leslie. The well-known story is fairly well adhered to throughout, but the author has allowed considerable latitude with his book, so as to enable him to introduce the necessary opportunity for much fun and lively frolic. It is divided into two parts, with eleven scenes, the first of which is a capital set, representing On the Road to Cheapside; and Scene 3 shows Fitzwarren's Stores, likewise of admirable quality; whilst Old London Bridge affords ample opportunity for a grand processional display, depicting the Old London Guilds and Dick's Dream. Scene 7 brings us to London Docks, with the good old ship the Saucy Sarah ready to start on her voyage. Then we are quickly transferred to the Empress's Palace at Morocco, and by a later transmission to the Gardens of the Guildhall. The book is by Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and has been brought quite up to date. The spectacular effects, if not on extravagant lines, are sufficiently pleasing to the eye.

The title-rôle is entrusted to Miss Madie Scott, a young lady of graceful presence, that secures her the public favour on her first appearance. Her work is full of vivacity and energy, whilst the rendition of her various numbers is distinctly pleasing. Possessing a sweet voice, she shows evidence of having received a good musical training, whilst her acting is all that can be desired. In "Everybody works but father," with a refrain that is immediately caught up by the audience, and also in the now popular "Zuyder Zee," with juvenile chorus and dance, a distinct success is scored. Miss Veronica Brady makes an attractive Alice Fitzwarren, and her clever step-dancing proves most successful. Miss Violet Morgan, who undertakes the part of Mary Ann, is much in evidence. An artist of the Louie Freear type, she keeps the house in rare good humour, and in her impersonations of various variety artists she earns a distinct reputation, and also scores in a quaint rendition of "A Soldier's Life." Miss Flo Chevalier is another artist who is to be commended on her interpretation of "Polly Peach," earning well-deserved applause for her song, "There's a man in Manitoba," sung with plenty of "go" and verve; whilst her bright vivacity is notable throughout. The generally unsympathetic rôle of the Empress of Morocco is entrusted to the stately Miss Gertrude Lytton with the happiest of results, her vocal numbers being received with nothing but praise. Miss Clorinda Thurtell is fully equal to the demands of the Fairy Queen, her tall, graceful appearance standing her in good stead, and her vocal abilities are perhaps best displayed in "The rose of my heart," which is received with every mark of favour. As to the comedians, chief honours easily go to Mr. Tom Foy, the Idle Jack of the pantomime. His quaint, quiet humour evokes much mirth, whilst his "localisms" rarely fail to hit the mark. In "My brother's little farm" he scores instantaneously, and his burlesque of "Sousa's Kelile Band" is very funny. Mr. Bert Harrow proves entertaining as Alderman Fitzwarren. Mr. J. C. Scalter, a comedian who is extremely popular in the North Country, makes an excellent Gertrude, the cook, distinguished by a strong flavour of the local vernacular. Both in patter and dancing he is extremly smart. Messrs. Jack Foy and Tod Lowen, as Captain and First Mate respectively of the Saucy Sarah, add a fair quota of fun, and the former is amusing in a parody on "The old apple tree." Mr. Ted Foy as Mouser, the cat, proves a clever acrobat, and his smart antics amuse the younger spectators especially. As to the specialities, premier position is given to the smart and agile Aquamarinoff Troupe of Russian dancers, whose exhibition of their National dances is invariably well received. The dressing and staging are fully equal to the requirements. The costumes are by M. Alias, from designs by Mr. Howard Russell.

"PETER PAN" AT MANCHESTER.

In place of the usual pantomime, Mr. J. M. Barrie's delightful fantasy, Peter Pan, was staged at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, Dec. 24. The first-night audience saw at once the quality of the novelty, and soon showed unmistakable signs of satisfaction. Miss Zena Dare's interpretation of the title-rôle is a clever, graceful, sympathetic performance from first to last, and the revelation of a charming personality. An unqualified success is attained by Miss Ela Q. May as Wendy. This little lady must continue to win all hearts, as she did on the first night, by her unforced style and delicious "motherly" ways. Supremely good also is the work of Mr. Lionel Mackinder, who, to a smart and amusing delineation of Mr. Darling, adds a truly fearsome impersonation of Captain James Hook, the pirate. Much of Mr. Barrie's wit is lavished on the latter character, and Mr. Mackinder revels in it. In appearance he is as ghastly and terrifying a buccaneer as ever sailed under the black flag; his leer is positively wicked, and he reaches the very lowest depths of malice—an expression excruciatingly funny to the audience—when, impelled to dance by a sudden sprightly outburst of the orchestra, and as suddenly baulked in the middle of his dance by the cessation of the music, he turns upon the conductor the grin of a hyena. Mr. G. W. Anson as Smee and Mr. Stratton Mills as Starkey figure as typical members of the crew of the pirate ship—if Smee at the sewing-machine may be accepted as representing the domestic side of the ship's company. Beside these, Miss Irene Rooke is admirably natural as Mrs. Darling; Masters Walter Cross and Philip Tonge are distinctly clever as John and Michael; Mr. George Lupino gives as intelligent a version of the dog Nana as could be desired; Miss Mabel Lamont is sufficiently pert and inscrutable as Liza, "the author of the play"; Miss Hettie Muret as the singing Mermaid and Miss Minnie Mills as Baby Mermaid add to the effect; and as the two chief Redskins, Great Big Little Panther and Tiger Lily, Mr. Humphrey Warden and Miss Florence Wells appear with the traditional picturesqueness and dignity. Miss Phyllis Monkman contributes the Pillow dance with great success. An opulent production of the piece was promised, and in respect of cast, costumes, and general staging, the promise is certainly fulfilled. Phenomenal bookings and full houses suggest a long and successful run.

PRESENTATION.—At the New Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, after the opening performance of Bo-Peep on Christmas Eve, Mr. J. Callaghan, the musical director, was presented with a silver-mounted biscuit jar, subscribed for by his colleagues in the orchestra. The presentation was made by Mr. J. C. Kelly, and Mr. Callaghan suitably responded.

MR. HENRY DE SOLLA, who is playing Lawyer Sly Fox in the pantomime, Red Riding Hood, at the Royalty Theatre, Chester, is also responsible for the stage-management of the production.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, DEC. 19.—Miss Eleanor Robson, who is evidently determined to let her admirers see her in a variety of rôles during her present engagement at the Liberty Theatre, is appearing in a new four-act comedy, by Clyde Fitch, entitled The Girl Who Has Everything. The story is only mildly interesting, but several of the characters are cleverly drawn, and the piece is admirably acted by Miss Robson and her fellow-players. The girl who has everything in this instance is the girl who has love; that being the sum total of human happiness, according to Mr. Fitch. She is Sylvia Lang, twenty years old, and wealthy. She lives with her brother-in-law, Guy Weems, and her sister, Mrs. Molly Weems. The latter dies, leaving her children to the care of Sylvia, and her fortune to her dissipated husband. A month before her death she had made a will leaving her property to Sylvia, in trust for her children. Believing that undue influence has been brought to bear, Sylvia engages a young lawyer, Philip Waring, to contest the will, and falls in love with him. The widower, Guy Weems, opposes the suit, and presently causes a breach between Sylvia and her sweetheart. This he does by defaming the memory of his dead wife, and persuading Waring to believe that she was implicated in an amorous intrigue, the exposure of which would bring disgrace upon Sylvia. The lawyer thereupon advises the discontinuance of Sylvia's suit, without being able to give his reason for so doing, and Sylvia, believing him to be faithless, repudiates him, and wins her case. Then Weems urges Sylvia to marry him, but is repulsed, this scene being the climax of the play. Finally, Waring's mother explains the circumstances to Sylvia, and her love affair ends happily. As Sylvia Lang, Miss Robson is delightfully girlish and winsome; Mr. H. B. Warner acquits himself well as Philip Waring; and other important characters are ably represented by Miss Isabel Irving, Miss Ada Dwyer, Mr. Reuben Fax, Mr. Earle Brown, and Master Donald Gallaher.

"THE LIGHT ETERNAL," a romantic play of early Rome, by Martin V. Merle, has had a short run at the Majestic Theatre. The scenes are laid in Rome during the reign of the Emperor Diocletian. Artemia, the Emperor's daughter, discovers that Marco Valerius, the man she loves, is a Christian, and, in her blind worship of the Roman gods, herself signs the warrant for his death by wild beasts in the arena. Marco Valerius has won a medal for declamation offered by the Emperor, and has been appointed to a place in the Royal military service. The subject of the oration being the willingness of the real philosopher to die for the truth, the young man in an excess of excitement blunders into substituting the word "Christian" for philosopher and "faith" for truth. When confronted with his former friend, Carvinus, son of the Prefect of Rome, and asked to explain, he openly avows that he is a Christian. It then develops that Carvinus is in love with Artemia, and that she has begun to look with favour upon Valerius, who is made Captain of her bodyguard. An impassioned love-scene between the pair is interrupted by the arrival of Carvinus, who bears a warrant for the arrest of Valerius. The revelation that her lover belongs to the hated faith turns Artemia against him, and she delivers him up to his enemy. The subsequent proceedings involve her repentance, her acceptance of Christianity, and her effort to save the man she loves. The "great scene" of the play takes place in the throne-room of Diocletian, and shows the Emperor's attempt to force Valerius on his knees before the altar of Jupiter. A thunderbolt shatters the altar, and leaves in its place a shining sword suspended in the air. But Diocletian is unmoved, and the final scene shows Valerius on his way to the Coliseum, where he is to be given to the lions.

MR. DAVID BELASCO is to have a new playhouse in West Forty-fourth-street, to be called the Stuyvesant Theatre. Miss Blanche Bates laid the corner-stone last week, the theatre being "christened" with wine by the Misses Reina and Augusta Belasco.

"THE PARISIAN MODEL," a musical comedy, by Harry B. Smith and Max Hoffman, has scored an emphatic success at the Broadway Theatre. Miss Anna Held is the star, and she is as attractive as ever. Her song, "I can't make my eyes behave," has to be repeated again and again. Anna, the Parisian model (Miss Held), comes into a large fortune through the death of an old lady who has taken a great liking to her. Julien, her artist lover, suspects that she has come by so much money in some less commendable manner, and is always declaring his intention of leaving her. The model does her best to shock him, and keeps him in a constant state of perturbation until the time comes for her to explain. The costumes are decidedly "startling," and some of the songs and dances are of the variety known as "spicy"; but Broadway likes that sort of thing, and Miss Held has decidedly renewed her popularity after her long absence. The piece is handsomely mounted, and some novel features are introduced, which are the best of their kind seen on the local stage for some time. In the final scene the stage is transformed into a skating-rink, with Miss Held and the entire company on rollers.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Dec. 31, the Operetta by Goldfaden, entitled

"DOCTOR ALMASADA."

The Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company produced on Monday night Goldfaden's operetta, Doctor Almasada, which met with a very favourable reception, and, although it is not a particularly effective play, it says much for the ability of the Yiddish artists that they were able to endow it with so much vitality, especially in view of the fact that the cast was a very small one. The piece is fairly well mounted, and the overture and many numbers—distinctly reminiscent of modern melodies, despite the place of action being Palermo in the fifteenth century—were excellently sung by a strong chorus assisted by the admirable orchestra, so well controlled by Professor Ferdinand Staub. The stage-management on the whole was good, although it was difficult to understand why, in Act 2, a scene in Italy should have a background of Windsor Castle fronted by Russian shops. Mme. J. Kayzer ingratiated herself into the hearts of the audience by the refined and graceful manner in which she portrayed Isabella; and Miss Mary received well-merited appreciation for her pleasing exposition of Elvira; while Mme. Goldstein acquitted herself well as Miriam. Mr. N. Hamburger was hardly suited as Alonzo, although he presented an intelligent reading of the part. As Don Diego, Mr. J. Fineberg proved himself quite equal to the task, giving an impersonation which was marked by force and vigour; while the commanding presence of Mr. N. Isaacowitch helped to make his performance of Don Pedro stand out with excellent effect. As Dr. Almasada, Mr J. Goldsmith entered thoroughly into the spirit of the character, and gave an earnest and artistic representation that was entirely free from staginess, while his rendering of the vocal numbers allotted to his share was greeted with considerable applause. Praiseworthy and competent support was given by Mr. J. Scherman as Gomez. During the week, The Witch, The Bigamist, The Flag of Judah, and The Robbers have been played.

We regret to learn that Lieut. Julian Malvern, the lessee of the Royalty Theatre, Morecambe, is laid up with an attack of bronchitis.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, JAN. 3. — One day perhaps someone will write the secret history of the Paris theatres, and we then will know why it is that pieces produced at the Chatelet are by M. Victor de Cottens, and that most of the dramas brought out at the Ambigu bear the signature of M. Pierre Decourcelle. And as neither of these gentlemen can claim to rank among our best dramatists, it would be interesting to know why they are more favoured than their more talented colleagues. It does not seem a difficult problem, yet nobody has been able to solve it. La Môme aux Beaux Yeux is a melodrama of the ordinary type. It is on the time-honoured lines, and not a single new idea is introduced into it. But the great reproach we make the author is that he complicated the plot so terribly as to make it extremely difficult to follow the personages through the intricate situations. Those who leave the theatre without a headache can deem themselves lucky. The story is as follows:—Madeleine, the wife of a business man, bears a striking resemblance to "la môme aux beaux yeux" (the girl with the beautiful eyes), a frequenter of the Folies-Bergère and night cafés. And this resemblance will be understood when I inform you that the "môme" is an illegitimate daughter of Madeleine's father. That Madeleine, a society woman, does not know of her sister's existence need hardly be said. Darbelles, a medical practitioner, is in love with Madeleine, who repels his advances. Nerville, Madeleine's husband, is suddenly ruined by some unlucky speculations, and resolves to go to Klondyke, leaving his wife and little boy in charge of his friend, Darbelles. And, having discovered that the "môme" is leading a dissolute life, he resolves to take her with him, to get her away from her bad entourage. Unfortunately, the "môme" has been foolish enough to speak about the affair with some of her friends, and poor Nerville is waylaid by them, robbed of his money, and thrown, half-killed, on the rails of the Mulhouse express; and, in order to carry out their plan, the robbers locked the "môme" in a cellar. She arrives at Darbelles' house, mad with fright, and dies in the doctor's arms, without having been able to say what befell Nerville. And when the doctor sees that girl who resembles the woman he loves, he hits upon a horrible plan. He gives Madeleine Nerville a sleeping draught, tells everybody of Madeleine's death, and the "môme" is buried under the name of Madeleine. This scene—the best of the piece—is very well arranged, for we are shown Madeleine awaking from her sleep, and witnessing her own funeral. Madeleine expresses her surprise at all this, but when the doctor tells her that he resorted to this strange proceeding from love, she simplifies matters by throwing her arms round his neck. We are now half-way through the drama, and an interval of eighteen years ensues. Yes, eighteen years! And when the curtain rises again, curious things have occurred. Nerville, poor devil, did not die from his wounds, nor was he run over by the Mulhouse express. It would have been better for him if he had. The express was late—as it sometimes happens with French expresses—and the railway officials have dragged him off the rails. But on him were found papers of an escaped convict (which one of the robbers had slipped into his pocket), and he is sentenced and sent out to a penal settlement. Why did he not speak? Why, during eighteen years, did he not write a line, either to his wife or to his friend Darbelles? These are questions which M. Decourcelle alone can answer. But he returns at last to see his wife married to Darbelles. He also meets his would-be murderers, and the hour of reckoning arrives. One of the assassins tries to settle the matter by shooting Nerville, but the latter, for once, is in luck, and the bullet kills Dr. Darbelles. But during these eighteen years a new generation has sprung up. We knew in the beginning that Madeleine had a little boy, whom we again meet as a twenty-year-old youth. Moreover, Madeleine has had from her second husband a daughter, whose acquaintance we make when she is seventeen. And the "môme," although dead, helps to complicate matters by contributing a son. All these young people fall in love with one another, marry, and no doubt have children, which, however, M. Decourcelle has been considerate enough not to add to the long list of dramatis personæ. If the play is weak, the cast is strong, and the author has every reason to feel grateful to his exponents, who, one and all, were admirable.

IT is not necessary to touch upon the plot of Madame Butterfly, which had such a successful run on your side of the water. Sufficient to say that it was received with much favour by the public. M. Carré certainly did wonders in the way of mounting, on which he evidently had bestowed endless trouble. The different tableaux were really works of art. As regards the interpretation, M. Clément acquitted himself well; but Mme. Marguerite Carré, in the name-rôle, was somewhat lacking in charm, both in her singing and her acting.

THE THÉÂTRE DES ARTS, under the new management of M. Landay, has inaugurated its season with De l'Amour aux Larmes, a three-act comedy by M. Maurice Lefèvre, of which the least said the better. The second piece was an adaptation of Aristophanes' Clouds, which, as everybody knows, contains a violent attack on Socrates and his teachings. The adaptation is by M. Sacha Guitry, the talented son of the actor-manager of the Renaissance. Although it is not in any way "Greek," but Parisian, in treatment, it proved to the taste of the audience, and met with a hearty reception. It is said that during the rehearsals of the Clouds, the author had in one of the scenes a costermonger on the stage, who called out "Carrots and potatoes for sale!" until someone reminded him that, in the days of Aristophanes, the latter delicacy was unknown.

"THE TYRANT OF PADUA."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I call attention through your valuable paper to the fact that in June, '99, I produced at St. George's Hall an adaptation of Victor Hugo's play, Angelo, Tyrant of Padua? I mention this as I note that the drama The Tyrant, lately produced at the Osborne Theatre, Manchester, by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. F. Somerfield, is taken from the same source, and as my play—christened A Woman's Sacrifice—may shortly be revived, I would like to establish the priority of my claim.—Yours faithfully,

ALICE CHAPIN.

Jan. 1, 1907.

ON Saturday evening last Mr. Oliver J. Round, the Mrs. Crusoe of Mr. John Hart's pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford, was suddenly taken ill, and at a moment's notice the resourceful stage-manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle, was called upon to fill the rôle, which he did with much success.

THEATRICAL LAW IN 1906.

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

The past year has had some very interesting legal features to those concerned in theatrical and musical matters. First and foremost must come the Musical Copyright Act of 1906. It has been a matter of notoriety to all connected with music that the path of the composer and the publisher has been a hard one. No sooner had the former given to the world the benefit of his talents, expecting to receive the just reward for his labours, than the dreaded pirate seized his prey, and the composer had the bitter mortification of seeing his compositions hawked about at every gutter. Not only did he get no profit from the wares sold by the itinerant, grubby vendor, but his property was seriously damaged. The law would protect his watch, which, after all, could be replaced, but it would not prevent the product of his brains, which was a much more important matter, from being stolen. Publishers, too, could not risk their money in purchasing property which could be taken away from them at once. The consequence was that enterprise was checked, and there was a very great danger of popular song-writing becoming a thing of the past. Now, happily, that is all averted, and music composers for the future can compose happily and peacefully. But it is a marvellous thing that (presumably) intelligent men could have taken up the attitude assumed by Mr. Caldwell. One only has to read his speeches in the House of Commons to gasp with wonder that a representative of the people, elected to make laws to further justice, to protect property, and to increase the well-being of the community, could have had such an extraordinary idea of his duties. My own impression is that Mr. Caldwell, M.P. (we must never forget the M.P.), being a Scotsman, and wishing to take away the reproaches against his countrymen of joking "wi' difficulty," determined to perpetrate a huge joke, and this was his effort.

But in the chorus of praise which has been given rightly to those who have at length redressed the grievances of the music hall, I do not think that sufficient mention of the good work done by The Era has been made. For years past The Era has been to the fore in discussing the subject, in opening its columns to the publisher and composer, and in advocating their claims in leading articles, and it is owing very greatly to these efforts that the new Act has been passed, though, of course, the credit for the passing of the Bill is pre-eminently due to Mr. T. P. O'Connor, who so ably engineered it through Parliament.

The Act itself has the great merit of being short, and its provisions seem clear. Its operation will be watched with great interest, and we shall soon see if the lawyers can pick holes large enough to drive the proverbial coach-and-four through it.

Another matter of general interest during the past year has been the conflict between the theatres and music halls over the Sketch Question. There is no doubt that the theatres have scored; but their success is due to an ancient statute, made in the dark ages, when the modern development of both theatres and music halls could not have been foreseen. Lest, however, I be accused of exaggeration, I must say that the expression "dark ages" refers to the year 1843, and the "ancient statue" of the Theatres Act of that year. After all, in these quickly changing times sixty-three years is a long time; and in framing Section 11 of the Theatres Act, 1843, I do not think our grandfathers meant to hit the modern thirty-minutes' sketch at the halls. That section made it an offence to perform any stage play at a place not licensed as a theatre. The reason for this was two-fold. The safety of the audience at such a place was to be considered, and also the morality, or otherwise, of the play. Neither of these would apply to the modern music hall. For there is no place at which the County Councillor looks with such a searching eye. Woe betide the licensee in November, when he comes for his renewal, if an artist has offended the austere morality of the County Council! He will have a bad quarter of an hour indeed. Everyone knows that managers of music halls nowadays will not allow any indecency in songs or sketches. Indeed, plays appear in theatres which would not be allowed for one moment in the halls. And the County Council are just as much down on any imperfection in the exits. It must, therefore, be admitted that the reason for Section 11 of the Theatres Act, 1843, cannot apply to-day. Yet it was on this technicality that the theatres won. It is pleasant to know that after battles at many of the principal police courts in London the two combatants have signed a treaty of peace; and it is to be hoped that this civil war will not break out again.

Another interesting feature of the past year has been the growth of the V.A.F. I remember many years ago proposing such a union to the late Herbert Campbell and Dan Leno. Their answer was that it was impossible, as music hall artists would not stick together. Well, they seem to have done so now, at any rate; and I hope the V.A.F. will continue to look after the interests of its members. I suggest to that body that it should endeavour to get all artists to sign no contracts without first submitting them to the Federation. My experience has been that artists will sign anything, so long as they get the much-wished-for contract. Certainly it is rather hard to expect the fair part of the profession, at any rate, to wade through a document closely printed on both sides; but in no other business would people sign a document on which their bread-and-butter depended without carefully reading through it, and, if necessary, having its provisions altered. I look upon music hall artists as, on the whole, requiring more protection than any other members of the community, though I can readily recall some of them who could hold their own with anyone for astuteness and business care. In these days of Unions there is much good to be accomplished by the V.A.F., and I wish that body every success.

One of the most interesting cases in the Courts last year was that of Mr. Gus Elen against the London Music Hall. The action was brought by Mr. Elen for damages for libel by the London Music Hall in printing his name in small letters on the bills, instead of "starring it." It had been decided in Russell v. Notcutt in 1896 that it might be a libel to print an artist's name third on the list of artists instead of first. In that case the well-known vocalist, Miss Ella Russell, was the plaintiff, and her action was against Mr. Percy Notcutt. Miss Russell won her case, obtaining £100 damages, and the verdict was upheld in the Court of Appeal. The Court of Appeal pointed out that it might be a libel, though it was not done maliciously. In Mr. Elen's case the jury found for him, and gave him damages. The case is undoubtedly important, as it is, as it were, the complement of Miss Russell's case. It may now, therefore, be considered settled law that it may be a libel to bill a star artist inconspicuously, though it must be carefully borne in mind that the question is always one for a jury, and I do not advise every artist who considers he or she is not billed properly to rush into litigation.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The French Hussar, described as a romantic Irish drama, has been dramatised from Charles Lever's well-known novel, "Tom Burke of Ours," by Mr. J. W. Whitbread, who has achieved another brilliant success. The play has many sensational and stirring scenes. It was produced on Christmas Eve before a large and appreciative audience by Mr. J. W. Whitbread's company of Irish players, under the direction of Mr. Dane Clarke. Judging from the applause and enthusiasm with which the drama was received it will have a successful run. The plot may be briefly summarised.

The first act opens at Cromore House, Tom's home, where we make the acquaintance of Bassett, the rascally lawyer of the Burke family, and Captain Croft, alias Ferguson, the fourth heir in present succession to the Burke estates. This individual boasts that in five years he will have the other three heirs removed from his path, and so secure everything to himself. Croft, professing a friendship for Tom, prevails upon him to join the Irish party, then about to strike a blow for the liberation of their country. Croft is really in the service of the English garrison as a spy. He entrusts Tom with some documents for the French Emissary, and directs him to the cottage of Ned Malone—a patriot Irish farmer—and while proceeding there he meets Marie, the Emissary's sister, with whom he falls in love at first sight.

In Act III. the scene is changed from Ireland to France, and in the Garden of Versailles appear Napoleon and Josephine, Ministers of the Court, and De La Touche, a secret agent of Napoleon, though in reality working against him. Tom encounters the Emperor's displeasure by displaying his affection for Marie, whom Napoleon has promised La Touche will be his wife, and meets with numerous exciting adventures, following pretty closely Lever's novel. Eventually he receives the Legion of Honour, and becomes one of Napoleon's most trusted friends. Then comes the startling news from Ireland that Tom is the owner of Cromore owing to the demise of his brothers, and the scene changes back to his native land. Croft believes that Tom is dead, and is about to take possession of the estates when Tom arrives in Dublin. In the end Croft and Bassett are arrested, and, after all the hero's trials and tribulations the curtain rings down on the triumph of virtue, the downfall of vice, and the happiness of Marie and Tom Burke of "Ours."

Mr. Harry Richardson played the rôle of the villainous Attorney of Law, Tony Bassett, capitally, and had a most able accomplice in Mr. Ryland Leigh as Captain Montague Croft. Mr. Frank Lyndon displayed ability as the hero, Tom Burke, and Mr. James O'Brien had ample scope to indulge in quaint Irish humour in the part of Darby McKeown, known as "Darby the Blast." Miss Jennie Glenn was particularly good as Kitty Malone. Mr. Dane Clarke, in his characteristic reading of Napoleon, acted with considerable skill and ability. Mr. James Daly, in the dual rôle of Major Barton and General D'Auvergne, sustained these parts admirably, as did Mr. Ion Ireland those of Captain Geo. Augustus Bubbleton and Mehee De La Touche.

Miss Madeline Hurst submitted an excellent portrayal of Josephine, and Miss Cecilia Dare was pleasing and effective as Marie De Meudon. As Marie Bubbleton Miss Amy Whingate did very well; and Mr. Byrne Dawson made a good French Emissary (Charles De Meudon). Ted Malone was well represented by Mr. Tom Bayley, as was Mary Malone by Mrs. E. B. Brady. Mr. C. Romer as General Berthier, Mr. Lawrence Byrne as De Beauvais, and Mr. C. Rooney as the Chief Secretary were all good in their respective rôles. The staging, scenery, and dresses were all that could be desired, and Mr. P. M. Levenston provided the incidental music.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Dec. 31, Drama, by Walter Melville, "THE GIRL WHO TOOK THE WRONG TURNING."

Instead of pantomime at Messrs. W. and F. Melville's popular London house we have good, full-blooded melodrama for our Christmas fare. Mr. Walter Melville's stirring play, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, is an excellent specimen of its kind, and, well acted, well staged, and beautifully mounted, no doubt it will attract vast audiences for several weeks to come. Mr. Roy Redgrave gives a fine, breezy impersonation of the jolly Jack Tar, Willie Mason, and in the more serious aspect of the part he acts with becoming pathos. Mr. Walter Thornton gives a fine study of gentlemanly villainy as James Harcourt. Mr. Willie Read is a comic Johnny Walker, his eccentricities being the cause of much mirth. Mr. Frank Robertson is seen to advantage as the manly Jack Fenton; Mr. John Nolan is an excellent Bill Slater; Miss Nannie Meade displays much talent in the part of Vesta le Clere, and looks very handsome; Miss Frances Ruttledge has an arduous part in that of the ill-fated heroine, and acts with unaffected pathos; Miss Marie Kildare considerably brightens the play with her brisk and spirited performance as the light-hearted music hall star, Poppy Slater; Miss Fyfe Alexander acts with much feeling as Lucy Coventry; and Mr. Kenneth Black is good as Richard Fenton.

THE Grand Theatre, Forest Gate, has a Christmas attraction in The Babes in the Wood, by Gilbert Hudson, which was given an enthusiastic welcome. There is plenty of fun and not a grain of vulgarity in the book, and the members of the company never miss an opportunity of creating laughter. Miss May Neilson as Robin Hood played in a dashing style, and soon established herself first favourite. As Maid Marion Miss Annie Lerigo was graceful and refined. A charming pair of Babes was found in Miss Lily Hill as Jack and Miss Bertha Evelyn as Jill. Mr. John Hill as Richard III. and Mr. Wal Barker as Catesby kept the audience in laughter the whole time they were on the stage. The Robbers were realistically played by the two MacGregors. Mr. Tom Nelson as the Baroness was extremely funny. The incidental music was done full justice to by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. J. Neiman. The scenery is by Mr. Ernest Hall.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. W. L. Richards, the talented chef d'orchestre of Belfast Empire, was, on the 24th ult., the recipient of a handsome conductor's bâton from the members of his orchestra as a mark of esteem.

DEATH OF MR. HENRY WESTLAND.

Mr. Henry Westland, the actor, who died on the 27th ult., was born in London on Sept. 14, 1838, and his first professional engagement was at the Theatre Royal, Leamington, opening there on Easter Monday, 1861. In the winter of the same year he joined the company of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, and played there during the "starring" engagements of Charles Matthews, G. V. Brooke, Charles Kean, and John Drew, in the various plays in which those actors played the leading rôle. For the season 1862-3 Mr. Westland was re-engaged for the same theatre, but afterwards joined the Theatre Royal, Brighton, under the late H. Nye Chart's management, for two seasons. In the autumn of 1865 he played at the Lyceum Theatre, under Mr. Fechter's management; and in August and September, 1866, at the Haymarket, during an engagement of Miss Amy Sedgwick, he appeared as the Baron, The Stranger; Glavis, The Lady of Lyons; Trueworth, The Love Chase. For the winter season, 1866-7, he was engaged by Mr. Sefton Parry for the New Holborn Theatre, and at the same house in the following season played Mr. Chouser in the famous racing drama, Flying Scud. A little later, at the same house, he played the part of Mowbray Darens in Tom Taylor's unsuccessful piece, The Antipodes, in the cast of which he was associated with Miss Ellen Terry and Miss Charlotte Saunders. In 1869-70 he fulfilled an engagement at the Globe Theatre, under Mr. Sefton Parry. Subsequently he was engaged on various tours, viz., in 1870 with Mr. Boucicault, in 1871 with Mr. Arthur Garner's Royalty company, and during the winter season, 1872-3, for leading business at the Amphitheatre, Liverpool. In 1874 he was engaged by Mr. John Hollingshead for a tour with Mr. Lionel Brough and Miss E. Farren, and in 1875 went to the United States with the late Mr. J. L. Toole, of whose company he was a member for the long period of twenty-seven years.

Henry Westland, or, to give him his proper name, Henry Robert Brame, was laid to rest in the picturesque graveyard of Old Willesden Church on Wednesday afternoon. He is in goodly company. Not very many paces from his little allotment of ground is the vault which contains the remains of Charles Reade. In the same vault, by the way, lies interred the body of Laura Seymour, the artist for whom Reade bore so great an affection that he erected a tomb to her memory, and willed that he should be buried in it beside her.

Previous to the interment of Mr. Westland, a funeral service was held at St. Andrew's, Willesden, at twelve o'clock, the Rev. Ernest Morgan, the vicar, officiating here and at the graveside. The principal mourners were Mr. Wm. Brame (son), Mrs. E. Brame (sister-in-law), Mrs. Harry Brame (daughter-in-law), Mrs. Syde (niece), Mr. W. H. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. David Seaward, and Mr. Charlesley, Mr. George Shelton, and Mr. A. C. Marler, old friends of the deceased, attended the service in the church.

The grave in which Mr. Westland was buried also contains his wife, who died in 1895, and his daughter, Minnie Esther Hancock, who passed away in 1899. Mr. Westland's coffin bore the inscription :—

HENRY ROBERT BRAME,
Died December 27, 1905.
Aged 68 years.

Several beautiful floral tributes, bearing affectionate messages, were sent. "To our beloved father, from Will and Triss," said one; others, "Love and deep sympathy, from Mrs. Brame and Dolly"; "In loving memory, from Conny" (daughter-in-law); "A tribute from an old schoolfellow, W. H. Reed"; "With the deepest sympathy and respect, from the members of the Constitutional Club, Willesden Green"; and from Mr. George Shelton, and Mr. A. C. Marler.

"DOROTHY O' THE HALL."

Dorothy o' the Hall has returned to the New Theatre, where Messrs. Paul Kester and Charles Major's play was originally produced last spring, and ran until July. Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry have, since that date, successfully toured the provinces with the piece, which has everywhere been a source of delight to country playgoers who have had the privilege of witnessing it. Quite an admirable specimen of the romantic drama is Dorothy o' the Hall, the authors having so skilfully used the material at their disposal that scenes of comedy and melodrama follow one another in rapid succession. The characters, too, are ably sketched; and the period of the play lends itself to ornate and picturesque surroundings. There are only two changes in the cast, Mr. Alan Borthwick succeeding Mr. Ernest Imeson as an old retainer, and Miss Lilias Waldegrave appearing as Mary Stuart in the place of Miss Adeline Bourne.

In the part of Dorothy Vernon, Miss Julia Neilson finds abundance of opportunities of displaying her abilities as a versatile actress, with a charm of manner and a fine presence that are responsible in no small degree for her popularity. The fair Dorothy is a young lady of various moods, and subject to sudden changes of temper; but Miss Neilson proves quite equal to the task set her, whether the heroine of the romantic story be engaged in fighting a duel, and thus giving proof of her skill as a swordswoman, or whether she is listening to the ardent wooing of her lover, Sir John Manners. This part is just suited to Mr. Fred Terry, who happily possesses every qualification for the effective representation of a gallant of the period. His graceful bearing and air of distinction are quite in keeping with the character of the Earl of Rutland's son, and the love scenes between Sir John and Dorothy are delightfully natural. Mr. Terry presents an exceedingly handsome appearance in the picturesque costume of the period, and altogether may be congratulated on a performance of striking merit and fascinating interest. Mr. J. Carter-Edwards is an actor of wide experience, and nothing could be better than his portrayal of Sir George Vernon, the lord of Haddon Hall, and a stern father, who insists on the most complete obedience from his children. Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw does all that is possible with the part of Sir Malcolm Vernon; and Mr. D. J. Williams renders valuable service as Lord Burleigh. Mr. Frederick Groves does good work as the Earl of Rutland; and the same remark applies to Mr. Malcolm Cherry's Sir William St. Loe. Mr. Horace Hodges succeeds in impersonating the faithful jester, Perkin, with a judicious and effective blending of humour and pathos. Miss Miriam Lewes assumes the part of Queen Elizabeth with befitting dignity and power; Miss Lilias Waldegrave plays with credit the part of Mary Queen of Scots; Miss Claire Pauncefort scores as Lady Vernon; and Miss Mary Mackenzie makes the best use of her opportunities as Jenny Foxton. Miss Marion Sterling as Bess, Mr. W. A. Haines as Mark, Mr. George Dudley as Gregory, and Mr. Alan Borthwick as an old retainer, all deserve favourable mention. Dorothy o' the Hall, on returning to her old home, had a very favourable reception on Monday evening, the principals being enthusiastically recalled at the close, and can confidently count on being welcomed by many new friends.

PRESENTATION.—On Monday evening the members of Mr. Lingford Carson's répertoire company, who, during the last fortnight, have played A Modern Adventuress and Master and Man at the Queen's Theatre, Liverpool, presented Mr. Fred L. Arthur, the esteemed manager of that place, with a turquoise and pearl breast-pin and an engraved sovereign-purse

DR. W. H. CUMMINGS AT BUXTON.

The second day of the Musicians' Conference at Buxton, which began on Tuesday, was marked by an important address on Voice Culture, delivered in the Grand Hall of the Empire Hotel by Dr. W. H. Cummings, the principal of the Guildhall School of Music. The chairman of the morning was Mr. Charles Hancock, of Leicester, who reminded his audience of the prominent part the North Midland section had played in the history of the Incorporated Society of Musicians and of the peculiar fitness of Dr. Cummings to deal with the subject of vocal culture, on which he was to discourse. He recalled a performance of Bach's St. Matthew Passion music in Westminster Abbey, under the late Sir Joseph Barnby, and paid a high tribute to the artistic way in which Dr. Cummings then sang the recitatives. "I sincerely wish it were possible," he added, "for our vocalists of the present day to receive such a lesson as I then had, for my own experience is that in the delivery of recitatives our singers are, speaking generally, woefully deficient."

Dr. Cummings prefaced his address by saying that the manner in which he came to sing the recitative alluded to by Mr. Hancock was rather curious. Sims Reeves refused to do it, and said no one would undertake it but Cummings, "and he was such a donkey he would undertake anything." He paid £2 for the full score, and with that and the Gospels before him he tried to imbue himself with the subject. He commenced his singing career as a chorister in St. Paul's Cathedral, he said, sixty-eight years ago, before he was seven years of age. During the few years he remained in St. Paul's choir he was taught the music used in the Cathedral service, but his voice was left to grow, no special instructions being given as to its use or abuse. Mistakes in the rendition of the service music were genially corrected by the master, William Hawes, aided by a charming little riding-whip—which he applied to their backs with benevolent impartiality, and which they found a very stimulating tonic. After referring to his early musical connection with the Temple Church, and the valuable lessons he got from James Bennett, one of the principal tenors there, Dr. Cummings continued: "Later on I was articled to John William Hobs, noted for his exquisite taste in singing, and a popular song composer. I learned much from him, and married one of his daughters." Coming to his subject, Dr. Cummings insisted on the necessity of the vocal student having the co-operation of a skilled and expert master to detect and correct the faults which the student could not discover for himself, and strongly condemned the use of the laryngoscope in teaching or learning the art of singing. The late Signor Garcia, the inventor of the laryngoscope, more than once expressed to him his great regret at the unwise and improper use which was frequently made of his invention, which he never intended as an aid to teach singing. In all matters of vocalism, the ear was surely the ultimate judge. Vocal colour and expression, proper breathing, and avoidance of the tremolo habit having been treated, Dr. Cummings said he was frequently asked by a beginner, "How long will it be before I can earn money by singing—three, six, or nine months?" For himself, he conscientiously believed that no singer ought to begrudge three to five years in acquiring the indispensable technique of his art. He regarded as impudent quackery many of the advertisements of the day which unblushingly declared that "Mr. So-and-So guarantees a perfect, permanent, natural voice for singing and speaking; no failures; easily acquired," or which announced a system that guaranteed, "irrespective of age, a perfect singing and speaking voice of full compass without a break," and that "could be acquired by correspondence." An old musician, Galliard, in 1743, said: "There have been singers who valued themselves for shaking a room, breaking windows, and stunning the auditors with their voice." What a pity these singers lived nearly two centuries ago! Some of the newest composers might have been glad of their services now.

In the evening Mr. J. Carlowitz Ames, of London, gave a lecture-recital on "The Tendency of Modern Music."

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

A vast audience assembled at Queen's Hall on New Year's Night, when the Royal Choral Society gave a performance of The Messiah, under the conductorship of Sir Frederick Bridge. The principal soloists were Mme. Clara Butt, Miss Gleeson-White, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Watkin Mills, and good results were secured both from vocalists and chorus. Miss Gleeson-White sang "Come unto Him" with rare artistic expression, and in the contralto music Mme. Clara Butt's fine voice was heard to great advantage. Mr. Lloyd Chandos sang "Comfort ye" with no little dignity, and Mr. Watkin Mills interpreted the bass music with taste and musicianly skill; while the orchestra rendered the overture finely, and throughout the performance admirably supported the singers. Mr. H. L. Balfour skilfully presided at the organ.

HOCKEY.

MISS CECILIA FOWLER'S ELEVEN v. MISS WINIFRED BRADLEY'S ELEVEN.

Played near Clifton Downs on Christmas Day. At the commencement of the game, Miss Gracie Leonard unfortunately fell and broke her arm. Miss Lillie Clayton, who was on the field, went on in her place. The following were the teams:—

MISS FOWLER'S ELEVEN. — Miss Ethel Bowman, goal; Miss Ivy Bowman and Miss Lilla Carter, backs; Miss Cecilia Fowler (captain), Miss Lillie Belding, and Miss May Dadley, half-backs; Miss Gracie Leonard, Miss Minnie Leonard, Miss Alice Bernard, Miss Bertha Godfrey, and Miss Trixie Maynard, forwards.

MISS BRADLEY'S ELEVEN.—Miss May Fisher, goal; Miss Rosie Davies and Miss Alice Gibbs, backs; Miss Edie Lawrence, Miss Gertrude Thomas, and Miss Minnie Stevens, half-backs; Miss Winnie Bradley (captain), Miss Nellie Lawrence, Miss Alice Mitchell, Miss Maude Burgess, and Miss Florrie Hooper, forwards.

Referee, Miss Laura Thompson. Result: Miss Fowler's Eleven, nil; Miss Bradley's Eleven, 1 goal. Miss Minnie Stevens scored the only goal.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

M. HENRI WALENN'S ELEVEN v. BRISTOL X.L.C.R. A.F.C.

Played near Bristol on Dec. 29. A. Mattock, Jules Walenn, and A. E. Bailey scored the goals for their respective sides. In the evening an enjoyable concert was arranged. In the match the following were the teams:—

M. WALENN'S ELEVEN.—W. J. Horton, goal; A. Hamlin and F. Thorne, backs; H. Walenn, F. Harrison, and J. Walenn, half-backs; H. Edwards, E. Huntley, A. Mattock, P. Hewlett, and E. Bowman, forwards.

BRISTOL X.L.C.R. A.F.C.—H. Belding, goal; J. Lewis and A. Cox, backs; A. E. Bailey, H. Slade, and F. White, half-backs; J. Aubrey, E. Palmer, H. Clements, L. Clayton, and E. Belding, forwards.

Referee, L. Hamlin. Linesmen, H. Hare and J. Leonard

Result: M. Walenn's Eleven, 2 goals; Bristol X.L.C.R. A.F.C., 1 goal.

"THE MAN OF THE HOUR."

A Play, in Four Acts, by George Broadhurst; produced at the Savoy Theatre, New York, on Dec. 4, 1906.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Here we have an illuminative exposition of the ways and tricks of the professional politicians, "as practised in any large city in America," which is the indefinite locale of the play. In other words, it is a dramatisation of what the Americans call "graft." Alwyn Bennett, the "Man of the Hour," is a young man of good instincts, whose chief pursuit has been the spending of the fortune bequeathed to him by his father. He is suddenly made to realise his uselessness by the protest of a young woman named Dallas Wainwright, whom he loves. She is the niece of Charles Wainwright, a successful financier, whose fortune has been built on the ruin of a man who trusted him, and who killed himself when he was led to believe that his investments were worthless. Wainwright employs as his private secretary a young man named Henry Thompson, who turns out to be the son of the man he has ruined, and who has taken the post in the hope of finding an opportunity for revenge. Bennett has a rival in Scott Gibbs, a rich man, prominent in business and society, who, though outwardly respectable, is a sneak and a scamp. Gibbs, Wainwright, and a dishonest political "boss" named Harrigan are the principals in a scheme to secure a franchise for a street railway which, apparently granted by the city for a definite period and an equitable consideration, in reality contains a clause making it in effect a contract in perpetuity, and allowing the company complete control of a number of valuable privileges. To secure the passage of the Bill the conspirators must seat a man in the Mayor's chair, who will be subject to their orders. Bennett has had some experience in politics, and the schemers decide to elect him to the office. Then, to their great surprise, he develops a backbone, takes a stand for honesty in the conduct of municipal affairs, and refuses to be either intimidated or bribed. In an angry interview between Harrigan and Bennett, the "boss" charges the Mayor with ingratitude, and attempts to browbeat him, finally urging that Wainwright has invested not only his own money, but his daughter's entire fortune in the stock of the railway company. Bennett is thus placed between the choice of vetoing the Bill, in accordance with his public duty, or of approving it to save the fortune of the woman he loves. Bennett decides to veto the Bill, and the furious Harrigan threatens to pass it "over the veto." This is an effective climax, and it is reached in an uncommonly effective manner. The next move on the part of the corrupt politicians is to accuse Bennett, in the presence of Dallas Wainwright, of using his position as Mayor to enable him to make money in stock speculations. Bennett has, in fact, lent Percy Wainwright the money necessary to save his sister's fortune; but the girl, drawing a false conclusion, indignantly repels him, and accepts Gibbs. Bennett's enemies also undertake to prove that his father, whose character was unimpeachable, was himself a "grafter" on a large scale. But, with the assistance of James Phelan, a ward politician, who hates Harrigan, and the co-operation of Wainwright's secretary, Thompson, who has no end of important information, he is eventually able to defeat the "ring" at every point. There is a capital scene, showing two committee-rooms in the City Hall when the final session of the Board of Aldermen is in progress. The Franchise Bill is to be passed or killed. Harrigan requires fourteen votes to pass the Bill over the Mayor's veto. He has thirteen, but an Alderman on whom he relies for the fourteenth vote weakens at the last moment. Then Harrigan suggests that Gibbs shall offer to relinquish Dallas Wainwright, so that Bennett may win her, if Bennett will allow the Franchise Bill to pass. But the girl overhears Gibbs when he makes the offer, which is refused with contempt, and also learns the truth about the so-called stock speculations; and, having broken with Gibbs, accepts Bennett. Harrigan thinks he still has a trump card in his threat to expose the dishonesty of Bennett's father. But Bennett tells him that the story has been given to the Press by himself, together with a pledge to repay to the city every dollar that may have been lost through any irregularity in his father's transactions.

The play has attracted more than ordinary attention, and provoked considerable discussion in the newspapers, the critics agreeing that it is one of the best plays of the season. An excellent company is employed in its interpretation, the principal characters being represented in a lifelike manner by Messrs. Frederick Perry, James E. Wilson, John Flood, Frank MacVicars, George Fawcett, Douglas Fairbanks, Geoffrey Stein, and Misses Lillian Kemble and Harriet Otis Dellenbaugh.

DEATH OF MISS AMY WYNTER.

Amongst those who can go back a quarter of a century, and who have been directly concerned with the stage, many will doubtless remember the "beautiful Sisters Wynter." Amy—one of these—after varied experiences in town, appearing at the Gaiety and elsewhere, toured with Miss Maude Branscombe in The Millionaire, playing Kate Guyon. Afterwards she was engaged to appear in The Nightingale, when, on the eve of production, the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, was burnt down, the company including Messrs. Austin Melford, E. Dagnell, John Wainwright, and George H. Harker (who subsequently became her husband). Miss Wynter appeared in The Twins, Confusion, and many other comedies, and in The Golden Ladder as the matron. This was her last engagement. Since then her life has been passed "far from the madding crowd." Cultured, refined, and gentle, those who knew her will regret to learn that, in the prime of life, the "call" came, and peacefully she left for the "Light beyond."

PRESENTATIONS.—On Friday evening, at the Grand Pavilion Theatre, Bridlington, Mr. Bruce Green, whose representation of Mrs. Sinbad in the pantomime of Sinbad the Sailor is one of the hits of the piece, was presented by Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph with a beautiful leather dressing-case as a mark of their appreciation of his services. Mr. Green is one of the oldest members of Miss Stanton's company, and was enthusiastically applauded on coming to the front to acknowledge the gift. On Saturday evening Miss Stanton was presented by Mr. Palmer, the manager of the theatre, with an elegant silver-mounted umbrella, as a souvenir of her company being the first to present a pantomime in the new theatre. Miss Norah Neville, who takes the part of Irza, was the recipient of a gold bracelet and a number of other small presents.

THE fame of Sir Walter Scott is perpetuated in Cranston's London hotels (unlicensed), which are named after the great novelist. The Ivanhoe, the latest of these palatial buildings, was erected to meet the increased demand for accommodation in these popular hotels, and to prevent as far as possible a recurrence of the disappointment and inconvenience to visitors who have been unable hitherto to secure rooms. The Ivanhoe, situated in Bloomsbury-street, the Kenilworth, in Great Russell-street, and the Waverley, in Southampton-row, are all high-class establishments, where excellent cuisine and every modern equipment are available.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. T. P. O'CONNOR has been presented by the Music Publishers' Association of America with a handsome scroll inscribed with certain resolutions adopted by the Executive Committee of the Association in expression of their gratitude to Mr. O'Connor for his labours in connection with the Musical Copyright Bill. A facsimile of the scroll appears on another page.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM was among the victims of the recent severe weather, and was obliged to pass Christmas Day in his bedroom. The eminent actor has now, we are glad to hear, sufficiently recovered to undertake a journey to Egypt, where, by doctor's advice, he will spend the remainder of the winter. Easter will in all probability see Sir Charles back again in town in preparation for his contemplated season with Miss Mary Moore at the Criterion.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER has been duly adopted by the Unionist and Conservative Association of South St. Pancras as a candidate for the representation of the ward at the London County Council elections in March. The widespread popularity of Mr. Alexander should be the means of directing public attention to the attitude adopted by London's governing body towards the stage, and, at any rate, ensure the presence of a trusty advocate of the drama at their assemblies.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE will officiate at the City Temple in the capacity of lecturer on the 17th inst., when he will deliver an address on the Drama in the hall devoted to the Young Men's Literary and Debating Society, conducted by the Rev. R. J. Campbell. The lecture is the outcome of a long-standing promise made by the eminent actor to the famous pastor, between whom a warm friendship exists. Mr. Tree will in all probability compare the Drama of the past with that of the present, and will urge the claims of the stage as a moral and educating force.

AMONGST those who have sent wreaths to the lying-in-state of the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts are Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Pinero, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Irving, and Mr. George Grossmith.

MR. AND MRS. TREE, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins, Mr. Lewis Waller, and Miss Evelyn Millard were among the guests at a luncheon which followed the distribution of hampers by the Lord Mayor, in connection with his Cripples' Fund, at the Guildhall on Monday. In a speech at the luncheon, the Lord Mayor said he hoped to start his Cripples' Home and Training School before his year of office expired. Among the later donations to the Fund is the amount of £77 8s. 4d., realised by the recent Lyric Theatre matinée.

MR LEWIS WALLER is rendering himself especially agreeable to his youthful patrons at the Lyric, the children at each performance during the Christmas holidays being presented with a little booklet in which the story of Robin Hood and his merry men is told, illustrated with photographs of some of the characters. Robin Hood, by the way, reaches its 100th night on Thursday next.

MISS EDITH WYNNE MATTHISON is to take up the rôle of Greeba in The Bondman, to be produced at the Adelphi this evening, in place of Miss Lily Hall Caine, who has been compelled by ill-health to surrender the part. The former young actress has decided to shorten her name for professional purposes, and will in future be known simply as Miss Wynne Matthison. Miss Wynne Matthison has several quick studies to her credit. She undertook Violet Oglander in The Lackey's Carnival, by Henry Arthur Jones, at a week's notice. Her memorable performance of Everyman was the result of less than a week's rehearsal, although playing nightly in répertoire; while she sustained the Lady of Lyons at three days' notice, and made her first appearance as Rosalind after only two brief rehearsals, but with the greatest success. And now Sir Henry Irving's last leading-lady is appearing in Mrs. Patrick Campbell's part in The Bondman, at the Adelphi, after only a few days' notice.

MR. T. P. O'CONNOR has received the following telegram:—"T. P. O'Connor, Esq., M.P.,—The commercial travellers of the music publishing trade, at their annual dinner, held at the City of New York, Holborn, drank with great heartiness to your health and continued prosperity, and they tender you their sincere thanks.—TOM GREENLN, Chairman."

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS has decided thus early upon his next Christmas pantomime, which is to be Dick Whittington, written by himself and Mr. Hickory Wood. The civic hero was last seen at Drury Lane in 1894. The late Sir Augustus Harris, Cecil Raleigh, and Henry Hamilton collaborated. Dick was impersonated by Miss Ada Blanche, and the Alice was Miss Marie Montrose. The lamented Dan Leno and Herbert Campbell were the principal comedians; and Miss Lily Harold, who is this year the hero of the pantomime at Terry's, was "second boy."

MISS MARIE STUDHOLME had a "special turn" at Olympia on Thursday afternoon. It was no less than a christening ceremony whereat the lady officiated. The babes were two elephants belonging to the Fun City at Olympia, and previous to the function, at which they were designated Tweedledum and Tweedledee, while on their way to the Prince of Wales's Theatre, managed to free themselves from the trollies to which they were chained, and caused no little excitement in the Hammersmith-road. However, they were soon secured and taken back to Olympia. It was decided to abandon the christening on the stage of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, so Miss Studholme was good enough to take a trip to Shepherd's Bush, where, in Olympia's circus ring, she poured a little champagne on the trunk of each elephant, and named them Tweedledum and Tweedledee respectively.

MR. CHARLES FROHMAN has fixed upon Thursday next for the reopening of the Aldwych with the new musical play, Nelly Neil, the book of which is by C. M. S. McLellan and the music by Ivan Caryll. Miss Edna May will make her welcome reappearance as Nelly Neil, an aristocratic young lady with leanings towards the "simple life." She tries to convert people to that ideal, but in the end herself relinquishes her cherished principles. Variety is secured in the scenes, which are laid at a Fruit and Flower Shop in Regent-street, in the neighbourhood of Hampstead Heath, and in the Courtyard of the Savoy Hotel.

"THE BELLE OF MAYFAIR" has made a decided hit at Daly's Theatre, New York. The piece is played with admirable spirit by a company that includes several popular favourites. The song, "Why do they call me a Gibson Girl?" is repeatedly encored, and so is the number, "And the weeping willow wept." Miss Christie MacDonald, Miss Irene Bentley, Miss Valeska Suratt, Miss Alice Knowlton, and Mr. Van Rensselaer Wheeler carry off the principal honours.

MR. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT has been prevented by illness from appearing at the Lincoln-square Theatre, New York, in Paul Wilstach's play, The Eastman Case, the production of which has been postponed till January.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE has fixed upon Monday, Jan. 28, for the opening of the Playhouse, when he will present, by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman, the successful farcical comedy, Toddles, which will then be played for the 170th time. Since the old Avenue closed the means of access have multiplied, and playgoers from practically every suburb may be taken to its very door. The extension of the tramway system along the Embankment and the recent completion of the Great Northern, Piccadilly, and Brompton Railway have conduced to this desirable result. The Charing Cross stations of the South-Eastern, Chatham, and Dover, and the District Railways are within a few yards of the theatre, and the Charing Cross station of the Baker-street and Waterloo Tube is close by. In June, moreover, the tube from Charing Cross to Hampstead, vid Euston, will be ready for use, and the electric cars which now run from Islington to Aldwych will be linked up with those of the Thames Embankment ere long. It will be readily admitted, therefore, that the new theatre occupies a unique position.

MISS EMMA AND MR. PERCY HUTCHISON produced Peter's Mother last Monday at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne. The play and company made an instantaneous success, the theatre being so crowded at every performance that it was found necessary to arrange for an extra matinée for to-day. The company is an exceptionally strong one, and is headed by Miss Ruth Mackay, a late member of Mr. Tree's company, and Mr. Eille Norwood, who will play Mr. Kerr's part until he is required in London. Mr. Norwood has greatly enhanced his reputation during his recent engagements as leading man with Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Maude, and Miss Emery, and is such an admirable comedian that it is incredible that the Metropolis should spare him even for a short period.

MR. HUTCHISON himself appears as Peter, and, by all reports, realises exactly the author's conception of the selfish and conceited youth. The company also includes Mr. Charles Harley, Mr. Townsend Whitling, Mr. F. G. Thurstans, Miss Mary Griffiths, Miss Florence Harwood, and Miss Hilda Honiss. The local Press declares that Mr. Hutchison has never brought a stronger company to Eastbourne, each member of the cast having been chosen exactly to fit each particular part, and the result is an artistic triumph for the astute young actor-manager, whose name has never yet been associated with a failure. The piece has unmistakably made a great and well-deserved success at its inauguration, the advance booking after Monday's performance going up to over £100 on the week. Another company with the piece will be sent out early in the spring.

MISS TITA BRAND, who has just returned from a tour of Shakespearean recitations in Switzerland and Belgium, has been specially engaged by Mr. Benson to play in A Midsummer Night's Dream at Leeds for five weeks.

MISS ELLALINE TERRISS officiated as the good fairy of Guy's Hospital on the 28th ult., when she organised a concert for the inmates of the institution. Mr. Seymour Hicks contributed to the entertainment, and among other favourite artists who brightened the afternoon were Miss Rosina Filippi, Messrs. Angelo, Sam Walsh, Laurance Caird, Grundy, Armand Kalisz, and Stanley Brett, and Misses Barbara Deane, Louie Pounds, and Aimée Parkerson. Miss Terriss also announced her intention of supporting a bed for ten years, and a cot for a like period, in the Luke and Charity Wards, and Mr. Golding Bird and Sir Alfred Fripp, in accepting the gift on behalf of the hospital, said that the bed should be known as the "Ellaline Terriss" bed and the cot next it as "Betty's Cot"—a graceful compliment to the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hicks.

THE Victoria Club, an institution recently established in Glasgow for the accommodation of lady members of the theatrical profession, gave an "at-home" in the Regent Hall on the 21st ult. The Lord Provost of the city was among the visitors, and in the course of the afternoon said it was a splendid idea to provide a club for the young ladies who came to the city to amuse the community during the festive season. He hoped they would take advantage of the facilities offered in the club-rooms, and said that nothing would give greater pleasure to those who promoted the movement. It was an excellent work, and he trusted the citizens would give it the support it deserved. Mr. Bransby Williams, who also made a valuable contribution to the entertainment, spoke on behalf of the theatrical ladies, who were all agreed, he said, on the good idea of this new club started on their behalf. He wished the club every success.

A COMMUNICATION from the Actors' Association, of London, appreciative of the Victoria Club movement, was read. Among those who helped to provide an enjoyable afternoon's amusement were Mr. Moore, of the Empire, who gave imitations; Mr. Cyril Keightley, who recited "How We Beat the Favourite"; Miss Forsyth, who read "The Inventor's Wife" and a gobelin story; the Harmony Four, from the Grand pantomime, who sang with fine effect; and Miss Madoline Rees, the Royal principal boy

ON Thursday next a performance of Mr. Lingford Carson's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, supplemented by a concert, will be given in the Queen's Theatre, Liverpool, in aid of the funds of the New Children's Infirmary, which will be opened on that day by H.R.H. the Duchess of Albany. Messrs. Carson and Kendall have given the free use of the theatre, and guaranteed the raising of £200, while the Lord Mayor has taken a box, and many other prominent citizens have booked the whole of the extra stalls.

MR. CECIL BROOKING writes:—On Dec. 9 I had the honour to be seen off from the Park Station at Johannesburg by the venerable actor, Mr. Fred Bartlett, formerly of the firm of Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett. I am sure it will interest all Mr. Bartlett's old friends and many of the younger generation who have met this admirable old man in South Africa during the last six years to know that "Daddy" is very well and hearty, and working hard for Mr. Haviland at His Majesty's Theatre. Mr. Bartlett has borne the slings and arrows of a fortune that was indeed "outrageous" with remarkable fortitude and true British pluck. Six years ago he sailed for Africa a broken man with a life's work undone and all his ambitions crumbled into dust. Since 1899 this brave old worker has turned his hand to whatever presented itself in South Africa, and earned the respect and love of the profession and public in that country. Mr. Bartlett cherishes a hope that he may yet see England and an English rose-garden again.

MR. GORDON CRAIG'S artistic inspirations have inspired confidence in Mme. Eleanora Duse, who has engaged him as designer of the scenery and costumes for all her future productions and revivals. Mr. Craig's work for the great Italian actress's revival of Ibsen's drama, Rosmersholme, at Florence, won high praise locally.

MISS MAUDE ADAMS, the famous American actress, has introduced, with complete success, the new act, written by Mr. J. M. Barrie, for Peter Pan, in which Peter carries his friends to the bottom of the sea, where they encounter a very interesting coterie of mermaids and sea monsters.

THE ceremony of cutting the Baddeley cake will be observed at Drury Lane on Monday evening, Twelfth Night falling this year on a Sunday. The operation will be performed in the saloon of the theatre by Mr. Harry Nicholls, the master of the Drury Lane Fund, to whom the duty falls by tradition. The function, it may be recalled, was founded by Richard Baddeley, who appeared in many plays at Drury Lane, and on his death in 1794 bequeathed a sum of money for the annual purchase of cake and wine, to be dispensed to the Drury Lane company on Twelfth Night.

THE business-manager for Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton's tour will be Mr. Alfred Wareing, who has just completed two years' engagement as provincial manager for Mr. Tree. Mr. Wareing, who commenced his theatrical career under the banner of Mr. F. R. Benson, was at one time concerned with literature. He assisted the late William Ernest Henley in the preparation of that beautiful folio edition of Shakespeare on which the poet was working when he died. The management of Mr. Tree's recent visit to the provinces, it may be added, was placed in Mr. Wareing's hands, and was carried through by him with conspicuous success.

MR. CARL HENTSCHEL, who gave birth to the happy idea of the Savoyard gathering on Sunday, designed a handsome souvenir for the occasion. It consisted of a tastefully-printed booklet, containing a myriad portraits of famous Savoyards, beginning with those of Mr. W. S. Gilbert, the guest of the evening, the late Sir Arthur Sullivan, and Mr. and Mrs. D'Oyly Carte. Mr. Rutland Barrington, Miss Leonora Braham, Mr. Richard Temple, and many other popular artists are depicted in character, and portraits of Mr. George Edwardes and Mr. François Cellier also grace the pages of the brochure. Miniatures of scenes from various operas are another agreeable feature of the work, and a tabulated record of the whole of the Gilbert and Sullivan productions serves to complete a valuable memento.

INTERLEAVED in the souvenir was a letter to Mr. Hentschel from Mrs. D'Oyly Carte, in which she said:—"May I be permitted to send you a few lines with my warmest wishes for the success of the banquet on Sunday, and to express my great regret that my health has not allowed me to accept the very kind invitation of the O.P. Club to be present on the occasion? I have, as you know, for two years been in very indifferent health, and the strain and anxiety of the last two months have been a heavy tax upon my strength. While the gathering on Sunday must sadly suggest to our hearts many vacant places, and bring with it memories of happy days now past, I rejoice that Mr. Gilbert is able to attend, and that he will be surrounded by so many dear friends who have, with us all, been servants of the public for so long, and who have so largely contributed to the success of the operas. In all of us Savoyards, young and old, the elevating influence of the operas creates a sentiment, I had almost said of reverence, for them which grows deeper and sweeter as time works its inevitable result."

MUCH of the success which has been achieved by Mr. Mulholland's pantomime at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, is due to the producer, Mr. C. St. John Denton, who has expended the best of his acknowledged experience and skill in the gorgeous production of Cinderella. Mr. Denton's artistic care is evident everywhere—in the harmonious arrangement of the dresses, the effective groupings, the smoothness of the running, and in many other valuable ways.

MR. JACK HAMPTON, who sucessfully played George Giddens' part (Horace Wibsey) in Public Opinion, with Mr. Percy Hutchison, has just returned from a twenty weeks' engagement with Mr. William Haviland's company in South Africa. Mr. Hampton played, among other parts, Launcelot Gobbo, in The Merchant of Venice, Dr. Kaspar (the leading comedy part), in George R. Sims' new play, Nat Harlowe, and the Second Witch in Macbeth.

THE Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne, seems to have entered upon a fresh lease of life under the new management of Murray King and Clark. The very best attractions have ben promised, and Peter's Mother, Miss Annie Hughes in Tommy, Martin Harvey in The Only Way, &c., are already underlined for production this month. The prices have been judiciously arranged to suit all purses, with the result that reserved seats and cheaper parts are alike liberally patronised.

THE Lord Mayor's crippled children spent an enjoyable day at the Crystal Palace last Thursday, when Mr. J. Bannister Howard invited them to witness his pantomime of Aladdin in the theatre. The children, who also visited the circus, were regaled with buns and oranges from the Crystal Palace Company, toys from the Evening News, and chocolates from the Mazawattee Company and Mr. Howard.

NEGOTIATIONS are on foot by which Mr. J. W. Currans will be found once again in management at a London theatre. Mr. Currans has long been laid aside by illness, but renewed health has given stimulus to his latent activity, and he has some surprises in store for London playgoers. A decade ago Mr. Currans' name was widely known in matters theatrical, and he has been connected with a host of notable successes in the past. He exploited the French theatrical campaign at the St. James's with entire Parisian companies and productions, under Raphael Felix and MM. Valnay and Pétron. Amongst his many successes in the English language he can count New Babylon at the Duke's Theatre, and a varied series of productions with Dolaro, D'Oyly Carte, and others at the Royalty and Opera Comique. Mr. Currans was also connected with the Criterion when Sir Charles Wyndham made his first appearance at that house. He has engaged Mr. Wallis Mackay, the original "Captious Critic," as his "literary adviser" in his fresh undertaking.

THE next discussion of the Dramatic Debaters is thus quaintly announced:—"Under an Act passed in the reign of Charles II. for the Preservation of Public Morals, the charge brought by the Spirit of the British Nation against the British Drama for illegally flirting with the Foreign Drama will be heard in the Dramatic Debaters' Court, Frascati's, Oxford-street, W., on Sunday evening, Jan. 13, 1907, at 7.30 p.m. The Court will be open to the public, who are requested, should they desire to be present, to apply for ticket of admission to Mrs. Bevans, hon. sec., Dramatic Debaters, 21, Bedford-place, W.C."

"THE DOCTOR'S DILEMMA" was put into the evening bill at the Court Theatre on Monday, when a full house gave it a hearty greeting. The cast of Mr. Bernard Shaw's "tragedy" is practically the same as on the production of the piece, the talented exponents of the various parts acquitting themselves with their customary skill. Mr. Eric Lewis repeats his fine rendering of Sir Ralph Bloomfield Bonnington; Mr. William Farren, jun., is again the kindly old physician, Sir Patrick Cullen, to the life; Mr. Ben Webster submits once more his intelligent study of Sir Colenso Ridgeon; Blenkinsop and Schutzmacher are cleverly interpreted by Mr. Edmund Gurney and Mr. Michael Sherbrooke; Mr. Cutler Walpole is played by Mr. James Hearn with rare dramatic effect; and Mr. Granville Barker's performance of Dubedat is as artistic as ever. Miss Lilah McCarthy is still a graceful and impressive Jennifer; and Miss Clare Greet, as Sir Colenso's nurse-housekeeper, helps considerably towards the effect of the performance.

IN order to correct certain misrepresentations which have been current in English theatrical circles, we have the best authority for stating that Messrs. Shubert control absolutely the following list of theatres, and, moreover, in most cases are the owners of the houses. The Shubert circuit commences in New York, where they are the exclusive lessees and managers of the New Casino Theatre, the New Lyric, the Princess, the New Lincoln Square, the Majestic, and the Herald Square Theatres. In addition to these six theatres, on May 1 this firm take over the historic Daly's Theatre. It may be added that they are also lessees of the newly-built Hippodrome, one of the largest theatrical buildings in the world.

THE circuit then continues to the Shubert Theatre, Brooklyn; the Lyric, Philadelphia; the Shubert, Newark, N.J.; the Belasco, Pittsburg; the Belasco, Washington; the Majestic, Boston; the Court, Springfield; the Nelson, Worcester; the New Shubert, Utica; the Grand Opera House, Syracuse; the Lyceum, Buffalo; the Garrick, Chicago; the Shubert, Milwaukee; the New Shubert, Kansas City; the New Shubert, Denver; the Mary Anderson, Louisville; the New Colonial, Cincinnati; the Hyperion, New Haven; and also theatres in Toledo, Aakron, Geneva, Northampton, Maddison, Albany, and various other cities and towns throughout the United States, giving them a season of from thirty-eight to forty-two solid weeks for all their attractions.

SPECIAL matinées of Macbeth, in which Mr. Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh will appear, will be given at the Garrick Theatre every Wednesday and Thursday, beginning on the 16th inst. These matinées will in no way interfere with the run of The Morals of Marcus, which will be played every evening and on Saturday afternoons.

MR. FORBES ROBERTSON, owing to a slight affection of the throat, was again unable to play at Brooklyn, New York, on Dec. 13, so Mr. Halliwell Hobbes played his part of Cæsar in Bernard Shaw's play of Cæsar and Cleopatra for four performances Mr. Forbes Robertson is happily by latest advices quite well again.

THE Council of the Actors' Association held their usual meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present—Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, Messrs. Cecil Barth, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, Thalberg Corbett, F. Cremlin, Quinton McPherson, Walter Russell, Spencer Trevor, and Charles Cruikshanks (sec.). Gwendoline Bishop, Ada King, Eleonora Hammond, Kitty Carew, and Alfred Bristowe were nominated for election to the association, nine new members were elected, and four former members were reinstated.

THE secretary reported that the new system of insurance against accident, loss of luggage, &c., was in operation, and coupons, together with copies of the 1907 A.A. Year-book, were being issued to all those members whose subscriptions for the current year were paid. The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members. Questions of alleged insanitation, &c., at provincial theatres were considered. The offer of accommodation in a provincial town for the establishment of a branch or auxiliary office of the Association was gratefully accepted. Questions as to the arrangements of details were discussed, and the secretary received instructions. The collection on behalf of the Actors' Benevolent Fund was announced at £1 10s. The collection in aid of the Actors' Orphanage Fund reached 19s. 6d.

THE Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting last Tuesday, when there were present Mr. Acton Bond (chairman), Messrs. A. E. Drinkwater, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). Several matters in connection with finance were discussed, and the secretary received instructions.

THE Social and Library Committee held a meeting last Monday, when there were present Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (chairman), Mesdames Hylda Franklin, Georgina Hamilton, Margaret Parker, Messrs. Cecil Barth and Arthur Morris, and Miss Lucy Sibley (hon. sec.). The chairman reported upon various matters concerning the holding of the first of the series of social meetings. It was decided that the meeting should be postponed from Jan. 4 to Jan 18, when it was agreed that Mr. A. E. Drinkwater should take the chair. It was decided that the appointment of a librarian or librarians (honorary) be considered at the next meeting of the Library Committee. The next meeting of this committee was fixed for Monday next, at three o'clock.

MR. FRANK CURZON has acquired from Mr. Frederick Lonsdale a comedy, named A Worm and Some Early Birds, which he proposes to produce shortly at one of his West End theatres. Mr. Lonsdale, who is a newcomer in the dramatic arena, is also writing an original comic opera for Mr. Curzon.

MISS ROSINA BRANDRAM, all will regret to hear, is lying dangerously ill from laryngitis and bronchitis. The popular Savoyard has been seeking health for some time past at Southend, but recently caught a chill, which has had lamentable results.

MISS GERTIE MILLAR took the opportunity afforded in the interval between a rehearsal and the evening performance at the Gaiety on Tuesday of entertaining the sixteen little girls who appear with her in The New Aladdin. An enormous Christmas tree, towering towards the ceiling, occupied the green-room, and a huge christmas cake was cut and distributed by Mr. George Edwardes. Big balloons and gifts galore, together with a large box of toys presented by a gentleman unknown, were distributed amongst the little revellers, whose delight was unbounded.

MR. HUNTLEY WRIGHT will be welcomed back to Daly's, where he will shortly take up the part of St. Amour in Les Merveilleuses. The return of Mr. Wright to Mr. Edwardes, from whose management he seceded some eighteen months ago, is made by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman, under whose auspices the inimitable comedian has appeared in the interim.

AN Indian drama, entitled Adulola, the Lily of the Ockotchee, by Mr. Donald MacLaren, the characters of which are entirely composed of redskins, is shortly to be offered to Londoners by Mr. H. Reeves-Smith. The piece comes from America, and the elaborate production, by Mr William A. Brady, will be transferred to this country in its entirety. Before bringing the piece to London Mr. Reeves-Smith will present it in several provincial centres, he himself playing, as in America, the leading part of Lonawonda.

THE dispute between the managers of the Deutsches and Kleines Theatres, Berlin, as to the rights of Bunbury, a German version of The Importance of Being Earnest, has reached white-heat, and the issue is awaited with eager interest by all the theatre-going public. Each theatre produced it on Thursday, the Deutsches under the name of Bunbury, the Kleines under the title, A Trivial Comedy for Serious People. As the matter stands at present, Director Reinhardt, of the former theatre, is forced to pay 5,000 marks (£250) for every performance of Bunbury on his stage.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has arranged to commence a lengthy tour of the provinces on the 21st inst. at the Devonshire Park Theatre, Eastbourne. He afterwards visits the chief towns of Great Britain, the tour, as at present arranged, ending on May 11 at Portsmouth. Mr. Harvey will be supported by the accomplished Miss N. de Silva, and the two leading artists will be accompanied by the company which has now for a long time been identified with their splendid success. Whilst new plays and revivals are being developed, Mr. Harvey will depend upon his famous répertoire, which includes Hamlet, The Corsican Brothers, The Only Way, A Cigarette-Maker's Romance, and The Breed of the Treshams. The stage will be again under the direction of the long-experienced Mr. H. J. Loveday, whilst Mr. Frank B. O'Neill remains Mr. Harvey's business-manager.

AFTER The Reformer and The Campden Wonder, which are to be produced shortly at the Court, eight matinées of The Philanderer, by Bernard Shaw, will be given, with Mr. Ben Webster in the title-rôle. The cast will also include Mr. Eric Lewis, Miss Lillah McCarthy, Miss Wynne Matthison, and Miss Dorothy Minto. Following The Philanderer will be a series of matinées of Ibsen's An Enemy of the People, which will be specially notable for Mr. Louis Calvert's appearance in the part of Dr. Stockmann.

THEO. BOUWMEESTER, the Dutch actor who made so favourable an impression in his protean drama, Who is Guilty? at various London halls a couple of years back, has acquired from the Association of French Authors the English rights of a three-act drama by Louis Legendre, entitled Souls. The piece was originally produced at the Comédie Française, and Mr. Bouwmeester, who will play the principal part of Jean Darlot, is arranging for its early presentation in London.

BARON HARRISS'S Prince of Pilsen company, which has been secured as the Christmas and New Year attraction at the Victoria Theatre, Manchester, has well justified its selection by the astute directors of that handsome playhouse. Since the opening night, when the leading residents of Manchester were numerously represented, crowded houses have been the order of the evening, so much so that a series of special matinées had to be organised. Miss Sophie Harriss, the prima donna of the company, has endeared herself to her audiences by her spirited rendering of the part of Mrs. Crocker, and has had to pay the penalty of popularity by being in constant request to open bazaars and lay foundation-stones in the district.

MR. J. F. ELLISTON'S pantomime of The Sleeping Beauty and the Mystic Yellow Dwarf is now playing to record business at the Theatre Royal, Hanley. Proof of its success may be found in the fact that no less than 1,575 people paid ordinary price for admission to the matinée on Thursday afternoon last to the pit alone, the other parts of the house being equally crowded. The cast is an exceptionally strong and well-selected one. The pantomime is under the experienced stage-managment of Mr. Lonnen Meadows, and goes with admirable smoothness from start to finish. Mr. Albert C. Duncan represents Mr. Elliston in front of the house.

The second "social" evening will be held at the Managers' Club, Savoy Mansions, on Sunday, Jan. 20, when Manager E. Lockwood will provide the artists. A very pleasant time is anticipated. The popularity of the Managers' Club is increasing every day. Its central position and its well-equipped rooms are causing it to become the favourite rendezvous for managers.

DR. W. H. CUMMINGS, the principal of the Guildhall School of Music, who read an interesting paper on "Vocal Cultivation" at the Musicians' Conference on Wednesday, took part in the discussion the following day on Dr. Pierce's paper dealing with composition. Speaking of allowing a young genius to go his own way, Dr. Cummings mentioned that a young boy was sent to him a year or so ago with a great pile of his own music. The music, which had been highly praised by some critics, was absolute rubbish, and yet the father was advised not to let this lad be placed under old dry-as-dusts. Education was as necessary for a young genius as for anyone else, and no one was capable of writing poetry, or music, or anything else unless he had learnt the grammar of his art.

MR. H. B. IRVING'S great success in The Bells in Chicago will doubtless be repeated in Boston, in which city he makes his first appearance next week. That play and Mr. W. L. Courtney's adaptation of Markheim seem to be most popular with American playgoers.

MISS MURIEL GODFREY-TURNER has completely recovered from her late severe indisposition for which she was ordered by her medical advisers to take a long sea voyage, and is back again in England, ready to commence work in a few weeks under the management of Mr. Russell Rosse. The success of last year's Classic Répertory Tour has convinced Mr. Rosse that there is an undoubted market for this class of attraction, and dates have already been booked at Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dublin, and the large provincial towns. A special feature—and an interesting one—will be Miss Godfrey-Turner's appearance as Rosalind at one of the leading suburban theatres in a special production of As You Like It. Camille will also be included in the list of pieces to be produced.

MR. BRYDON-PHILLIPS'S Little Red Riding Hood pantomime has caught on at Chester, the attendance, in spite of the weather, being quite up to the average, and the advance booking is going steadily ahead. Last Saturday the Duke of Westminster's party occupied two boxes.

MR. RUTLAND BARRINGTON and Mr. C. Hayden Coffin had a hearty reception at the morning concert held on Thursday at the Chiswick Town Hall in aid of the funds of St. Alban's Church, Acton Green. The concert was given under the direction of Mr. Henry A. Lytton. Miss Helen Mar told some of her American "stories," and Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. George Ridgwell, Mr. Ashley Weaver, and Mr. Rowan Clancy, violinist, also appeared.

SHAKESPEARE for schools was warmly recommended by Professor Gollancz, Professor in English Literature of King's College, at a conference of teachers convened by the County Council on Thursday. Professor Gollancz thought that the dramatic instinct in children ought to be utilised in educational matters, and that a festival should be held every year at which a part of one of Shakespeare's plays might be recited and acted in all schools.

A CLOSER examination of the ruins of the Royal Court Theatre, Warrington, reveals the fact that the extent of the damage sustained by fire on Christmas morning has been a trifle exaggerated. True, the roof has gone, but the main walls, which are 2ft. thick, are all intact, whilst the front of the theatre has not been even singed. The floor and plaster of the circle have suffered somewhat from falling slates, &c., but that is all. It is satisfactory to record that the whole of the damage, except as regards scenery, &c., is covered by insurance. Plans for the entire reconstruction of the stage and auditorium, the erection of the dressing-rooms, re-arrangement of entrances, &c., are already nearing completion, at the hands of Mr. F. Bennett-Smith, and the theatre is expected to be finished for August Bank Holiday.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

MR. W. S. GILBERT, in his speech at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday, at the O.P. Club's Savoyard dinner, told the following interesting anecdote of Sir Arthur Sullivan:—"I was introduced to him, thirty-seven years ago, by my friend, Fred Clay. Our acquaintance began merrily enough with a jest, to which he often referred in after years. I was at that time engaged in writing a three-act blank verse comedy, called The Palace of Truth. One of the characters is a musical impostor, who had succeeded in establishing a reputation by the use of high-flown technical commonplaces. Curious to know how one of his speeches would impress a skilled composer, I turned it from blank verse to colloquial prose, and said to him, 'My friend, Fred Clay, and I have been discussing a technical point upon which you may be able to throw some light. My contention is that, if a musician who is a master of all instruments has a musical theme to express, he can express it as readily upon the simple tetrachord of Mercury, in which, as we all know, there are no diatonic intervals whatever, as upon the more elaborate dis-diapason with the three tetrachords, and the redundant note which, as I need not remind a composer of your distinction, embraces in its perfect consonance all the simple, double, and inverted chords.' He thought it over for a few seconds, and then said that he was not prepared with an answer off-hand, but that he would think it over and let me know. I believe he left me under the impression that he had been speaking to a master of thorough-bass and counterpoint—an illusion that was quickly dispelled at our first business interview. I may state at once that I took the speech bodily from the article 'Harmony,' in the 'Encyclopædia Britannica.'"

THE Duchess of St. Albans, from whom the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts inherited her vast wealth, used to tell a good story of an amusing but rather embarrassing occurrence in the Liverpool Theatre. Said the Duchess, alluding to her theatrical career as Harriet Mellon, "I was to perform a new piece, something like those pretty little affecting dramas they get up now at the minor theatres; and in my character I represented a poor, friendless orphan girl, reduced to the most wretched poverty. A heartless tradesman persecutes the sad heroine for a heavy debt owing to him by her family, and insists on putting her in prison unless someone will go bail for her. The girl replies, 'Then I have no hope—I have not a friend in the world.' 'What! will no one go bail for you to save you from prison?' asks the stern creditor. 'I have told you that I have not a friend on earth,' was my reply. But just as I was uttering the words, my eyes were attracted by the movements of a sailor in the upper gallery, who, springing over the railing, was letting himself down from one tier to another, until finally reaching the pit he bounded clear over the orchestra and footlights, and placed himself beside me in a moment, before I could believe the evidence of my senses. 'Yes, you shall have one friend, at least, my poor young woman,' said he, with the greatest expression of feeling in his honest, sunburnt countenance. 'I will go bail for you to any amount. And as for you (turning to the frightened actor), if you don't bear a hand and shift your moorings, you lubber, it will be the worse for you when I come athwart your bows.' The house was instantly in an uproar. Some laughed, others screamed, the sailor's comrades cheered him on from the gallery, and there was such general confusion that the curtain had to be dropped, while the orchestra played the National Anthem."

MISS MELLON was once paying a morning visit to the wife of an actor in the company to which she was attached. In the same house, which was let off in tenements, was a poor lodger who had met with an accident. Flannel was urgently needed, and there was none to hand. Miss Mellon retired to a back room, returning in a few moments with a supply torn into strips. She said to the man's wife, "Here, good woman, is what is required: apply it instantly—it is well aired!" She had taken off her own petticoat.

IT was owing to a trip which Irving took on board the Walrus—the fine steamer which the Baroness once chartered for a yachting party—that Irving took the fancy to play Shylock. He said to Mr. Bram Stoker, who records the fact in his "Reminiscences":—"I never contemplated doing the drama, which did not ever appeal very much to me, until when we were down in Morocco and the Levant. You know the Walrus put into all sorts of places. When I saw the Jew in what seemed his own land and his own dress, Shylock became a different creature. I began to understand him; and now I want to play the part—as soon as I can."

MR. STOKER records an interesting instance of the Baroness's delicate consideration for a professional guest: "A gathering of friends had been asked to Stratton-street to meet Liszt. Lady Burdett-Coutts very thoughtfully had the pianos removed from the drawing-rooms, lest their presence might seem as though he were expected to play. After a while, Liszt noticed the absence, and said to his hostess:—

"'I see you have no pianos in these rooms!' She answered frankly that she had had them removed so that he would not be tempted to play unless he wished to do so.

"'But I would like some music,' he said, and then went on: 'I have no doubt but that there is a piano in the house, and that it could be brought here easily.' It was not long before the servants brought into the great drawing-room a grand piano worthy of even his hands. Then Antoinette Sterling sang some ballads in her own delightful way with the contralto whose tones went straight to one's heart.

"'Now I will play,' said Liszt. And he did!"

THE following incident possibly gave rise to the rumour that Irving was, at the commencement of his career, "financed" by the Baroness:—When he was undertaking the provincial tour in the autumn of 1878—the first under his own management—his friend, Mrs. Hannah Brown, the lifelong friend and companion of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, pressed on him a loan of fifteen hundred pounds. She had wished him to accept a larger sum, but he limited the amount to this. Indeed, he took it only to please her; such a sum went but a small way in the vast enterprise on which he had entered. Unhappily she died before he began to play in his own theatre. The sum which she had lent was repaid to her executor in due season.

THERE was a time, long before the introduction of "checking" apparatus and the general improvement in the status of the money-taking staff, when they had a legendary reputation for dishonesty. During the run of the pantomime of The Forty Thieves at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, the said thieves were enacted by comedians, assisted by other male auxiliaries of the establishment. On a certain Saturday night the curtain was late in rising, and John Knowles, the manager, who was always "on time," whistled through his speaking tube to ascertain the cause of the delay. Back came the answer, "We're three thieves short, sir." Knowles, who was fuming in the box office at a "shortage" in the pencilled first returns, said, "All right, I'll send round three of the money-takers!"

MR. GILBERT AND THE "O. P's."

A very successful dinner was given last Sunday evening at the Hotel Cecil by the O.P. Club. The chief guest of the evening was Mr. W. S. Gilbert; and many noted Savoyards, past and present, were also among the guests. The president of the Club, Mr. Sidney Dark, was in the chair. Among those present were Mr. W. S. Gilbert and Mrs. Gilbert, Miss Geraldine Ulmar, Mr. Percie Ripple, Mr. François Cellier, Mr. John Clulow, Miss Jessie Rose, Mr. F. Glenister, Miss Decima Moore, Mr. C. H. Workman, Miss Isabel Jay, Mr. Henry Lytton, Miss Henri, Mr. Frank Thornton, Miss Nancy McIntosh, Miss Ruth Vincent, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hentschel, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. George Grossmith, Miss Jessie Bond, Miss Fortescue, Mr. Richard Temple, Mr. Courtice Pounds, Miss Agnes Fraser, Mr. Walter Passmore, Miss Lilian Coomber, Mr. Robert Evett, Miss Louie Pounds, Mr. Scott Russell, Mr. W. Pett Ridge, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Collins, Mme. Liza Lehmann, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Frank Curzon, Miss Esther Pasture, Mrs. Gatti, Mr. John Gatti, Mr. David Bispham, Mr. McDonald Rendle, and Mr. Adrian Ross.

MR. SIDNEY DARK proposed the toast of "The King," who he said was a regular attendant at the Savoy Theatre, which proved that His Majesty was in sympathy with the object of the gathering.

In proposing the toast of "The Savoy Opera," Mr. Dark expressed his sorrow that Miss Rosina Brandram was prevented from being present that evening, but she was unfortunately too ill to come up from Southend-on-Sea. Mr. Durward Lely had been snowed up in the Highlands, and Miss Leonora Braham had written from Birmingham that as she had to be in Hull on Monday morning, the state of the weather had prevented her from being present. Further, Mr. George Edwardes had succumbed to the prevailing epidemic of influenza.

MR. W. S. GILBERT, on rising to respond, was greeted with prolonged and enthusiastic cheers. In the course of an interesting speech, he said, speaking of the Savoyards:—Death has sadly thinned our ranks. Alfred Cellier, our esteemed conductor; Miss Everard (the original Little Buttercup), George Bentham (the original Alexis in The Sorcerer), Alice Barnett (the stately Lady Jane of Patience and the Fairy Queen in Iolanthe), poor little Emmie Owen, D'Oyly Carte, our enterprising manager; our three stage-managers, Richard Barker, Charles Harris, and William Seymour; and, lastly, my old friend and invaluable coworker, Arthur Sullivan—whose untimely death in the fulness of his powers extinguished the class of opera with which his name is so honourably identified, a composer of the rarest genius, and who, because he was a composer of the rarest genius, was as modest and as unassuming as a neophyte should be, but seldom is. I am not at my merriest when I remember all that he has done for me in allowing his genius to shed some of its lustre upon my humble name, and it is a source of sincere gratification to me to reflect that the rift that parted us for a time had been completely bridged over, and that at the time of his lamented death the most cordial relations existed between us.

Sullivan and I are credited—or discredited—with one conspicuous failure, Ruddigore; or, The Witch's Curse. Well, it ran eight months, and, with the sale of the libretto, put £7,000 into my pocket. In the blackness of my heart the worst I wish to my rival dramatists is that they may each have a dozen such failures, and retire upon the profits. By the way, it is not generally known that, bending before the storm of Press-execration aroused by its awful title, we were within an ace of changing it from Ruddigore; or, The Witch's Curse, to Kensington Gore; or, Robin and Richard were Two Pretty Men.

I have no doubt whatever but that Mr. Rendle is about to do full justice to the excellent Savoy company of the eighties and nineties; but while we accept all he may have to say about the company that is now unhappily dispersed, let us be just to their successors. In Mr. Workman we have a Jack Point of the finest and most delicate finish, and I feel sure that no one will more readily acknowledge the triumph he has achieved in their old parts than his distinguished protagonist, Mr. George Grossmith, and his immediate predecessor, Mr. Walter Passmore. The Phœbe of Miss Jessie Rose (I am glad that the part is still played by a Jessie) will be welcomed by the large-hearted Jessie Bond (I am very sorry, but I can not call her Mrs. Ransom) as a worthy successor to her own brilliant achievement; and Mr. Clulow's Wilfred Shadbolt is a performance which Mr. Denny and Mr. Lytton will not despise.

It is a source of infinite pleasure to me that I see so many old Savoyards here to-night, and it is still more delightful to know that so many of them have prospered, and are now, in the plenitude of their powers, earning salaries varying from that of an Under Secretary of State to that of a Prime Minister. And when the operas revert, as they will, to their original proprietors, we (or our executors) will hold out our hands to George Grossmith, to Rutland Barrington, to Walter Passmore, to Robert Evitt, to Henry Lytton, to Courtice Pounds, to Charles Kenningham, to Durward Lely, to Frank Wyatt, to John Le Hay, to William Denny, to Richard Temple, to Ruth Vincent, to Geraldine Ulmar, to Isabel Jay, to Nancy McIntosh, to Louie Pounds, to Agnes Fraser, to Decima Moore, and to Rosina Brandram—Rosina of the glorious voice that rolled out as full-bodied Burgundy rolls down—Rosina whose dismal doom it was to represent undesirable old ladies of sixty-five, but who, with all the resources of the perruquier and the make-up box, could never succeed in looking more than an attractive eight-and-twenty (it was her only failure)—to all of these will we hold out our hands and implore them to return to the arena in which they achieved so many triumphs for themselves—and for us.

The toast of "The Savoyards" was proposed by Mr. T. McDonald Rendle, and Miss Jessie Bond (in place of Miss Rosina Brandram) and Mr. George Grossmith replied.

MISS JESSIE BOND said:—I have been forced against my will by Mr. Hentschel to return thanks in place of Miss Rosina Brandram, whose absence we very much regret. It is impossible for me to do justice to my theme, therefore I can only say thank you very much for all your kindness, and I shall leave Mr. Grossmith to say what I feel but cannot express.

MR. GEORGE GROSSMITH, in a very interesting speech, recalled the fact that he was introduced to Mr. Gilbert, his first critic, forty years ago. He spoke charmingly of his successors in Savoy opera.

MR. RUTLAND BARRINGTON proposed the toast of the "Savoy Lovers," by whom, he said, he understood all those who had attended the Savoy, and have loved the play, the music, and the players.

MR. CARL HENTSCHEL responded in a neat and appropriate speech.

A delightful programme of music, consisting of excerpts from the Savoy operas, was gone through, the songs being sung by Savoy favourites. Mr. Courtice Pounds, Mr. Henry Lytton, and Mr. Robert Evett were unfortunately unable, on account of bad colds, to take part in the programme as arranged. Miss Isabel Jay, Miss Lilian Coomber, Miss Agnes Fraser, Miss Jessie Rose, Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Richard Temple, Mr. Scott Russell, Mr. C. H. Workman, and Mr. Walter Passmore gave great delight to an enthusiastic audience.

Mr. Gilbert also proposed the healths of the president, Mr. Sidney Dark, and of the hon. treasurer, Mr. Carl Hentschel, complimenting specially Mr. Hentschel upon the charming illustrated menu that he had prepared and designed, which Mr. Gilbert said he would retain for the remainder of his life as a delightful souvenir.

MR. SIDNEY DARK responded; and Mr. Carl Hentschel wished all present a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

DEATH OF MR. JOHN A. ATKIN.

Mr. John A. Atkin, who died at Ramsgate on Wednesday, was born in Nottingham, and was educated at the High School there. His father and grandfather were well-known figures in the Lace Market, and close friends of Sir Robert Clifton, Bart. Mr. Atkin practised as a dentist at Bulwell, Mansfield, and Cavendish-square, London. In 1870 he was a member of the South Notts Yeomanry. Of a roving disposition, he went out to South Africa and took a claim on the Diamond Fields, and was one of the first prospectors on the famous Pilgrims' Rest Mine. He fought with the Boers in their war against the Seccoceni tribe, and against them with the English in 1877 in the first Zulu War. He was made Sheriff of Leydenburg, but was obliged to leave Africa on account of wounds received. He had an assegai through his ankle and one in his back. He had malarial fever and nearly all other fevers known. He visited the States on sixteen occasions, and once went with Buffalo Bill trading out West with the Indians. He bought a farm in South Carolina, which was not successful, and on returning to England he took up his profession of dentist again. His first acquaintance with the theatrical profession was at the Princess's Theatre, London, when he appeared with Wilson Barrett in Claudian. After a short time on the boards, Mr. Barrett advised Mr. Atkin to go in for the business side of the profession. His exact words were:—"You have a slight impediment in your speech which is fatal to your success as an actor. Take up the business side of the profession, and you may bring your own company to this very theatre." His prophecy was fulfilled to the letter. He joined Messrs. Lablache and Coyne with The Galley Slave, The Old Love and the New, and Blind Justice, playing parts in these productions, but shortly after taking the position of business-manager. He went as manager to Terry's in 1887, being engaged by Mr. Chas. Arnold for his Hans, the Boatman production. In February, 1888, he took over the entire management of Edouin and Greet's tour of The Grip of Iron, later on acquiring from that firm the entire provincial rights in the drama, which he controlled for about fifteen years. Having disposed of his interest in The Grip of Iron, he in March, 1899, produced The Bell Ringer, for a special fortnight at the Queen's, Manchester, in the autumn of the same year starting a touring company with the drama at the Grand, Islington. Later, he toured The Span of Life, and became manager for Mr. Fred Melville of Her Forbidden Marriage company, which position he held at the time of his death.

At Christmas the company opened at Ramsgate, and, during the week, having taken a severe chill, Mr. Atkin grew rapidly worse, and pneumonia having developed, he expired in the presence of his wife (Miss Florence Nelson), who had journeyed from her engagement in the North on hearing of his dangerous condition..

He was proud of the record he held with The Grip of Iron, having actually represented this drama upwards of a year (fifty-two weeks of "return dates") in both Liverpool and Manchester, as well as about 5,000 times in other towns, large and small. At various times he played all the male characters in this drama, and was always ready in a case of emergency to take any of them up at a moment's notice. No man in the profession was better known or more popular with those with whom he was associated; and his widow will have the sincere sympathy of his many friends.

DEATH OF MISS MINNIE LESLIE.

We regret to announce the death of the well-known comedienne, Miss Minnie Leslie, who passed away on Wednesday last, at her home on the Lancashire moors. A Londoner by birth, she commenced her professional career with Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett, at the Theatre Royal, Croydon, some twenty-three years ago. Displaying great aptitude for parts now associated with Miss Louie Freear, her renditions of Belinda (Our Boys) Fanny Squeers, the Marchioness, and Little Nell (The Old Curiosity Shop) soon advanced her in the profession of her choice. In fact, her versatility was remarkable, and no part semed to come amiss to her, though her petite appearance naturally prevented her from appearing to great advantage in characters not usually assigned to chambermaids. Her touching portrayal of Louise in The Two Orphans was greatly admired, and Jack-in-the-Box became one of her favourite parts. She was the original exponent of many rôles, amongst others Ben, in Rogues and Vagabonds; Martha, By Sheer Pluck; Bessie Blazer, A False Wife. Although universally recognised as one of our best "boy" actresses, she was equally at home in broad comedy, and her quiet and artistic playing of the "slavey" Fi-Fi in Mr. George Dance's A Chinese Honeymoon company will be pleasantly remembered. In Glasgow she was an enormously popular player, and fulfilled six seasons in pantomime and stock with Mr. Richard Waldon, at the Princess's Theatre, where her Effie Deans, Chuckey (The Stowaway), Nan (Good for Nothing), and Sam Willoughby were regular "hardy annuals." During the past summer she played the juvenile leading part in How Money's Made, and last August took up her part of Bessie Blazer with Mr. F. Marriott-Watson's company, A False Wife, which she continued to play until comparative recent weeks. Deceased suffered from an internal complication, and died whilst awaiting an operation. Much sympathy and kindly feeling will be extended to her husband, Mr. John Cecil. The little village churchyard at Harwood will witness the last sad rites.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

PROGRESSION AND NEW DEVELOPMENTS.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

We cannot too strongly recommend to the notice of the profession at large the many substantial benefits that members of the Actors' Association enjoy. It is pretty generally known that the advantages include free medical advice in every theatrical town in the country, and free legal advice; but actors and actresses do not seem to be so well acquainted with the fact that an accident insurance scheme has been in operation for the past twelve months. The advantages to be derived from this accident insurance cannot be too widely understood, and we here give the five clauses showing the conditions under which compensation will be made:—

1. That the claimant shall be travelling on tour with a theatrical company or going to, or returning from, a professional engagement or rehearsal at the time of the delay, loss, or damage, and shall give notice in writing of his or her claim to the Actors' Association within 48 hours of discovery of the delay, loss, or damage.

2. That proof satisfactory to the Actors' Association be given as to the artist's salary, and also as to the value of the lost property, and that the owner had used reasonable care with a view to the safety of such property. Further, he or she shall, should the Actors' Association so desire, appear before a Commissioner for Oaths for the purpose of verifying his or her claim.

3. (a) That should the lost property be recovered after the Actors' Association shall have made a payment in respect thereof, then such recovered property shall belong to the Actors' Association to sell or otherwise dispose of as the Actors' Association shall think fit. (b) In the event of the recovered property being of greater value than the amount paid by the Actors' Association, then the Actors' Association shall hand over such recovered property to the owner thereof on such owner returning to the Actors' Association the amount of compensation received, less such a sum, if any, as may or shall have been expended by the owner for new property, and such new property shall then belong to the Actors' Association to sell or otherwise dispose of as the Actors' Association shall think fit. In any event, the amount payable by the Actors' Association for property in respect of any one loss shall not exceed £10.

4. That no compensation will be paid until seven days from the receipt of notice of claim by the Actors' Association.

5. The Council of the Actors' Association for the time being undertake to investigate all claims, and no compensation will be paid either in respect of salary or lost property unless sanctioned and approved by such Council, whose decision shall at all times be absolutely final.

It may be remembered that, at a meeting organised by one of the commissioners in the autumn at Newcastle, over which Mr. H. B. Irving presided, the latter gentleman stated that, if the benefits of the insurance policy were fully realised, it could not fail to appeal to every actor and actress in the United Kingdom. The policy, it was pointed out, gave members of the A.A. benefits which, in the ordinary way, would cost them more than their subscription. This was obtained by organisation and combination, and the greater the number who joined the Association, the greater the benefits accruing therefrom.

We would ask our readers to consider for one moment the amount of railway travelling they may be called upon to do during the year. No one can foretell when or how an accident may happen. Fortunately, accidents to theatrical people on our iron roads have been in the past extremely rare—a state of things due to the infinite care exercised by the British railway authorities in the management of their lines—but this does not negative the possibility of a catastrophe occurring in the future. To those who, in the course of their work, travel thousands of miles a year, it must be a great satisfaction to feel that, should an accident happen, and they are members of the A.A., they will receive monetary compensation to tide them over whatever misfortune such accident may occasion them. It should be borne in mind that the Association policy differs from the ordinary newspaper or diary policy in that, apart from death claims, it affords compensation during total or partial disablement. Under the existing arrangements between the railway companies and theatrical managers, it is impossible for an artist to obtain compensation for accidents unless he holds the Association policy, or is the possessor of a personal policy. The Council of the Association have now secured a further insurance policy covering the risks of loss of private luggage whilst on tour, and it also covers compensation for inconvenience caused by the miscarriage of luggage, whether the loss arises from carelessness on the part of railway servants or from fire. This, like the accident policy, has been effected without any increase of the annual subscription, and it must undoubtedly appeal to every travelling member of the profession.

Another very important privilege that has just been arranged in consultation with the Theatrical Managers' Association and the Touring Managers' Association, is that of payment for rehearsals when these rehearsals exceed certain reasonably defined periods. At the first glance this may not appear to be of great significance; but it may be pointed out that an agreement of this kind arrived at by the three representative bodies will establish a custom which will be quoted in future legal actions. The arrangement which has been arrived at is as follows:—That for London productions, artists who are members of the Actors' Association will only be required to do three weeks' rehearsals without payment. For further rehearsals which may be necessary they will be paid one-third of the salary agreed upon, so that if the play should prove a failure, and be withdrawn at the end of a few nights' run, they will have received some solatium for their work. On the other hand, if the piece lasts for more than four weeks, the manager has the right to deduct the amount paid for rehearsals. In regard to provincial tours, a fortnight's rehearsal is to be given when the rehearsals take place in London, and one week's rehearsal only when the rehearsals take place in the country. Beyond these limits of time the same arrangements as to payment and one-third salary are to be carried out.

Before leaving the subject of the Actors' Association, it might be pointed out that a very large amount of routine work is done at the weekly meetings of the Council, the deliberations in connection with which cannot be made public. During the past few months a progressive movement has been set on foot by the improved organisation of the commissioners, who are now presided over by a committee, the chairman of which is Mr. Brandon Thomas. The commissioners hope before long to establish local centres for the benefit of their touring members, and, thanks to the generosity of a lady interested in the Association, the first of these local centres will probably be started at Ramsgate. Other developments which are now being dealt with by the commissioners are a series of social afternoon gatherings, the first of which is to take place at 10, King-street, on Friday, the 18th inst. The proceedings will include addresses by well-known people, to be followed by a short debate. Light refreshments will be obtainable during the afternoon. It is also intended that a comprehensive library of dramatic literature shall be available to the members of the Association within a short space of time, and already promises to present valuable books have been made.

We think sufficient reasons have been advanced in this article to induce every actor and actress to become a member of the Actors' Association; and, in conclusion, we would refer our readers to a letter, signed by Mr. Brandon Thomas, which appears in this week's issue. The little Red Book and Diary for 1907 issued by the Association gives the fullest particulars as to its scope and operations, which can certainly now be described as extremely comprehensive.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you allow me to point out to the members of the Actors' Association, through the medium of your valuable columns, that this is the season for recruiting new members for the New Year starting to-day?

If a steady effort is made now by every individual member of the Association to augment our numbers substantially, they will be doing excellent work for the good of the profession, they will be helping the friends introduced to material benefits which non-members don't appreciate because they don't know of their existence, and they will be helping themselves because increased funds mean increased privileges for the members.

The subscription of 15s. annually works out at the small sum of about 3½d. per week, and, owing to the labours of the Council, the advantages for members are now greater than ever. These may be ascertained in detail from the valuable little "Red Book," a new edition of which is published to-day. To those interested, I would mention a few of these advantages:—

Free medical aid in every theatrical town.
Free legal advice and assistance.
An insurance policy against accidents which would cost members as private individuals more than the entire annual subscription.
A new insurance policy, just introduced by the Council, against loss of private luggage, and consequent loss of salary through such a misfortune.

It is perhaps as well to refer to the routine work that is constantly going on for the benefit of the members. The inner work of the Council is necessarily private, but it would cause some surprise to the profession at large if they knew the good that is being done by innumerable arbitrations, the amicable settlements of disputes, financial and otherwise, and the protection of members' interests generally.

A movement is on foot by which members of the Association are to receive payment for rehearsals both in London and the provinces when these exceed certain prescribed limits of time. Both the Managers' Associations have agreed to this, and surely this advantage to members is sufficient to increase the numbers greatly.

I would, therefore, recommend non-members to join at once, so as to reap these benefits and help us to obtain additional ones during the current year. As the insurances do not become effective until the current subscription is paid up, members are urged to send without delay so as to obtain the benefits in full. Co-operation is strength, and means material and substantial benefits to all.

I am, sir, yours faithfully,

BRANDON THOMAS,
Chairman of Commissioners.

"CARMEN."

A New and Original Play in Four Acts, adapted from the French novel of the same name by Prosper Merimée, with the Music from Bizet's Opera. Produced at the Theatre Royal, Bury St. Edmunds, on Dec. 31.

Captain Zuniga, ...MR. DUNCAN YARROW
Lieut. Mina .....MR. EDWARD LANDOR
Corporal Don José ..MR. FRANK CELLIER, JUN.
Corporal Morales .....MR. COTTON HOLMES
Sergeant Valqueres ....MR. A. WILSON-WYNNE
Sergeant Lopez .....MR. STANLEY ROBERTS
Il Dancairo .....MR. PERCY H. VERNON
Il Remendado .....MR. BASIL DEAN
Pedro .....MR. WALTER CARR
Escamillo .....MR. EDWIN BEVERLEY
Lillas Pastia .....MR. HERBERT HALFORD
Boy .....MASTER SYDNEY SKIPP
Carmen .....MISS FLORENCE GLOSSOP-HARRIS
Frasquita .....MISS NORA GOULDEN
Mercedes .....MISS NITA ASHBY
Michaela .....MISS KATE TURNER
Manuelita .....MISS MAY SAKER
Dolores .....MISS IRENE WOODFORD
Juanita .....MISS MARION BIRD
Old Peasant Woman .....MRS. EDWARD SAKER

The production of Carmen may be fitly described as an auspicious opening to the Glossop-Harris tour. The plot of the play being practically the same as that of Bizet's opera, there is no need to give a résumé of it; it suffices to say that the dramatisation gives the principal characters admirable scope for the display of their histrionic powers. Mr. Frank Cellier plays Don José with considerable ability; the conflict between love and duty, which is the chief characteristic of the part, is forcibly emphasised, particularly in the tavern scene, where honour bids him obey the bugle-call, and Carmen pleads with her lover to remain. Again, at the conclusion of the play, when José, maddened at the mocking indifference of his false love, stabs her to the heart, Mr. Cellier's acting rises to a fine pitch of dramatic intensity. Mr. Edwin Beverley's portrayal of Escamillo, the toreador, is marked by dash and vigour, and he looks the part to perfection. A pleasing touch of comedy is supplied by Mr. Percy Vernon and Mr. Basil Dean as the smugglers, Il Dancairo and Il Remendado; and Mr. Edwin Landor also excites mirth as the dissolute Lieut. Mina. As Captain Zuniga and Corporal Morales, Mr. Duncan Yarrow and Mr. Cotton-Holmes make the most of their opportunities. Miss Glossop-Harris's performance as Carmen will considerably add to her theatrical reputation. The varying moods of the gipsy, now the bewitching syren who wins men's hearts only to break them, then the light-hearted peasant, and anon the revengeful woman, swayed by stormy passions, all are depicted with exquisite delicacy of touch. The night scene in the mountain pass, where Carmen, by the flickering lantern light, reads her fate in the cards, and sees in them the black shadow of her impending doom, is particularly fine. A very creditable performance is that of Miss May Saker as Manuelita, brooding over the hopes Carmen has blighted, and thirsting for revenge; Mrs. Edward Saker, as a fruit-seller, has little to do, but does it exceedingly well; Michaela is in the hands of Miss Kate Turner; and as Frasquita and Mercedes Miss Nora Goulden and Miss Nita Ashby acquit themselves exceedingly well. Minor rôles are creditably filled by Misses Irene Woodford and Marion Bird, and Messrs. Wilson-Wynne, Stanley Roberts, Walter Carr, Herbert Halford, and Sydney Skipp. The mounting of the play is excellently carried out, the mountain pass in Act 3, with its realistic storm, being a marvel of scenic beauty. The music, which is arranged by Mr. Henry Creak, adds considerably to the success of the drama. The production is under the general supervision of Mr. Frank Cellier, with Mr. Percy H. Vernon as stage director, and the acting management is in the capable hands of Mr. Max Jerome. Despite the inevitable small drawbacks of a "first night," the play went smoothly from start to finish, and was received with hearty favour by the patrons of Mr. Bade Monteñore's admirably-appointed theatre. The company's répertoire includes Much Ado About Nothing, A Winter's Tale, Romeo and Juliet, The Taming of the Shrew, As You Like It, Camille, King René's Daughter, &

COVENTRY HIPPODROME OPENING.

New Year's Eve witnessed the opening, after many months of hard work on the part of all concerned, of the new Hippodrome, Coventry, and a large audience gave every evidence of admiration at the new building, in the erection of which the greatest taste has been displayed. From the vestibule, with its mosaic floor, a short flight of marble steps leads to the box-office hall, and two fireproof staircases on either side give access to the circle and orchestra stalls. Two other fireproof staircases lead, from either side of the main entrance, to the gallery. The auditorium is divided into orchestra stalls, pit stalls, pit, circle, and gallery, affording seating accommodation for over 1,700 people. In addition, there are two large boxes at either end of the circle, tastefully and luxuriously furnished. The large panelled ceiling and cove have been artistically decorated, while the glittering sun-burners in the centre ensure perfect ventilation. The decorations of the front of the circle and gallery are neatly executed, with predominant tints of cream and old gold. The decorations surmounting the boxes are of an Oriental type, and the proscenium opening, with full emblature above the centre, is treated with a background of eggshell green embellished with gold, and flanked on either side by stately Corinthian columns. Above the proscenium opening and over the boxes are a number of artistically-painted picture-panels, while the Coventry arms appear in a prominent position over the front of each of the boxes. The walls are done in crimson and gold, while crimson predominates in the upholstery work. The tableaux curtains are of Rose du Barry crimson plush, and the same material is employed in covering the tops of the partitions at the back of the circle, and also along the edge of the balcony. The seats in the circle and pit stalls are covered with crimson velvet plush, while the orchestra stalls are upholstered in bright gold, affording a pleasing contrast of colour. The flooring is covered with a Wilton pile carpet, having an effective pattern in gold. The orchestra is enclosed by a massive brass rail, from which crimson curtains are suspended. The chief illuminant is electricity, the three-clustered frosted bulbs throwing a soft yet powerful light over all parts of the house, and the indicators at either side of the proscenium opening are illuminated by the same agency. A duplicate installation of gas is provided for use in case of emergency. The exits are numerous, a fireproof curtain is provided, and there are numerous fire appliances conveniently arranged about the building. An efficient system of hot-water heating has been installed, and there are three cosy refreshment rooms, one on each tier. The scenery and stage fittings have been done by Fred Wilkins and Brothers, of Liverpool.

On Monday, a torchlight procession, headed by the Coventry Military Band, proceeded from Grey Friars' Green to the New Hippodrome, where a huge crowd speedily filled the house in every part, the City Council and the principal Corporation officials, and many other prominent citizens, being present. A round of applause greeted the rising of the curtains, disclosing the Coventry Co-operative Choir and the band, who joined in rendering the National Anthem under the baton of Mr. John Potter. During an interval in the programme, Mr. T. M. Sylvester (the manager) stepped before the curtain and announced that Mr. R. Halpin (one of the directors) would say a few words.

Mr. Halpin, after thanking the public of Coventry for their support, said:—"The two-house-a-night movement in Coventry is not a very old one. In the year 1903 Mr. Sylvester, our most excellent and energetic manager, discovered Coventry, among other places, as being suitable for the introduction of this form of entertainment, and I venture to assert that his judgment has proved to be quite sound; it was a thing which was wanted. Twelve months after the opening of the old Hippodrome the present company was formed to take it over. Since then we can honestly say that we have had no right to complain of the support and patronage of the citizens of Coventry. With regard to the programmes, I think everyone who has attended the performances in the old house will agree with me that they have been of a very high order. Looking to the future, I cannot give you any better guarantee of the programmes that will be submitted to you from time to time than to say that Mr. Sylvester will still occupy his position as manager. Ladies and gentlemen, we are on the eve of a New Year, and the directors of this company desire to wish everyone in Coventry a happy and prosperous year. (A Voice: "Same to you sir," and applause.) My friend is good enough to say, 'same to you'; it is in your hands, it rests with you whether the year 1907 shall prove a happy and prosperous year for the Hippodrome. We are content, and have perfect confidence in leaving it in your hands. I can only express the hope that this house in which we are assembled to-night will be one in which everyone will feel comfortable; we think they will and hope they will; and if they feel comfortable we have no fear and no doubt as to the success of the undertaking. This is a Coventry undertaking, and we appeal to Coventry citizens to support us."

The programme for the opening week has a seasonable item in the pantomime, Captain Kidd; or, The Pirates of Wapping, which was followed with interest on Monday night. The Gordon Highlanders go through a series of evolutions and exercises with marvellous rapidity, and in the second part of their entertainment they give a clever display of high-wall scaling. The Smythsons arouse much merriment with their comedy sketch, The Lie Alarm. Woodhouse and Ward are a pair of clever and daring cyclists, who also introduce much comic business into their performance; and other good turns are contributed by Miss Georgina Leonard, ballad and descriptive vocalist; McCann, speciality comedy skater; H. Clifford, comedian; and Frank Cass, character and descriptive vocalist. The Hippodrome pictures include a film depicting "A Trip to Niagara."

"Lady Huntworth's Experiment" is to be revived at the Haymarket on Saturday next, with Miss Compton and Miss Polly Emery in their original characters of Lady Huntworth and Keziah respectively. Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mrs. Calvert, Miss Wiehe, and Mr. Weedon Grossmith will also be in the cast. Lady Huntworth's Experiment will be preceded by a new comedy in one act, by Mrs. de la Pasture, called Her Grace the Reformer. Mr. Frederick Harrison contemplates the production at the Haymarket later in the season of an entirely new comedy by Mr. Carton.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Van Biene have just concluded a ten months' engagement with Mr. Lingford Carson's Drama of Life company, as general-manager and leading lady, and return to him again on August Bank Holiday. Meanwhile, they are playing a special engagement as Dickson and Mabel in The Broken Melody, and on March 4 commence their third engagement with Mr. T. E. Ward, as business-manager and leading lady, in his Man and Wife company. It may be added that both his father and Mr. Carson have again entrusted Mr. Van Biene with the bookings of their respective tours of The Broken Melody and The Drama of Life.

Messrs. Johnson and Potter, the proprietors of the ill-fated Court Theatre, Warrington, desire to express their grateful thanks to the large number of resident and touring managers throughout the country who have sent sympathetic messages respecting the disaster of Christmas Day. Such kindly feeling is deeply appreciated by them.

ANTIPODEAN GOSSIP.

By Frederic Melville.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 26, 1906.—Theatrical business all round is having a good time in the land of the "Southern Cross," Rickards, the vaudeville King, especially being the one that does not seem to get a losing week. His business has been phenomenal, and I have had a good chance to observe it, as I remained at the Tivoli Theatre, Sydney, two months, and at the Melbourne Opera House, where I am at present completing another two months, the houses have been so large that, despite the size of the theatre, on many occasions quite a number of people have had to be provided with improvised accommodation — for instance, extra chairs within the rails of the orchestra amongst the musicians.

For the past two months the big novelty attraction has been "La Motogirl," which is acknowledged to be the most remarkable novelty ever imported by Mr. Rickards, and is the means of attracting to the theatre people who have never before entered a vaudeville house. The Australian Press with one accord unite in saying the act is a brilliant success. The Alaskas, a Continental act, although the male end of it is an Englishman, have made a decided hit, and seven curtain calls are their usual allotment. The act consists of very skilful tumbling, combined with some very graceful work done by the lady assistant, who wears very pretty and expensive costumes.

The steamers are continually bringing some of your well-known London performers over to stand their trial before the critical Australian audience. It does not matter what he or she has done in England or the world, no matter how big the reputation or name, it must be made over again in Australia, as the people have their own ideas here of what they think is good; the result is, a London or provincial sketch team can come over and have just as much chance of bringing the house down as one of London status, who might wind up with a solitary curtain. I have noticed acts absolutely unknown in the big West-end halls of London described here as being great, and go with acclamation, so you see Australia is a great place for many of the English performers who cannot get the big opportunities in London to come and try their luck.

An Australian engagement with Harry Rickards is one of the most pleasant events that can happen. Compared with the hustle and worry of American, Continental, and English provincial work, this is one long dream. No worry with your baggage—there are men appointed to do the worrying—one show nightly, two matinées weekly. The week starts on a Saturday night and ends on a Friday. This change of beginnings and endings seems to make the time slip away very quickly.

The long dream I just alluded to is, however, only possible to be indulged in in the event of your act being successful, otherwise the time will not be so diverting, as the gallery, particularly the Sydney, will brook no interference with what they consider the goods, and will let you know it nightly all the time. The plan of taking not the slightest notice of them, but just going straight ahead with your work, is the best recommended method to adopt. A good rousing chorus, in which they join, is a thing that goes well with the gallery boys, and most of the English comic singers generally have such a song for them. Harry Bedford, for instance, catches on finely with them with his songs and dances, and is a big favourite. Duncan and Godfrey, of Me and 'Er fame, are here, both the above sketch and A Sceneshifter's Lament going splendidly. Casselli and James, banjo players from London town, receive quite an ovation nightly for their "Poet and Peasant" and imitations of "The parson will now pray," on the banjos, the last-named having caught on strong.

Selbo, the juggler, another new arrival, is considered here to be among the greatest ever seen. He is certainly very clever, and does some very adroit things with one hand.

Nellie Kilburn arrives here to-day, en route for Manilla, where she is engaged with Levy, of a circuit there. Her choruses go well with the gallery boys on the Rickard theatres.

Brinn, the "Cannon King," as he is billed here, has made a success, and his stay is extended by the management. He returns to-day from New Zealand, as does the entire company Mr. Rickards sent on a tour of the four cities there, viz., Christchurch, Dunedin, Auckland, and Wellington, finishing up with Hobart, in Tasmania.

One of the Tate Motoring companies and his Fishing are making the New South Wales people exercise their risible faculties.

Larry Lewis and Violette Stockwell have also made a good impression; the former gentleman's quaint method of delivering his songs made him an instant favourite. He remained here seven weeks, and is now in Sydney.

"Dreamland," an outdoor attraction that was started this summer at St. Kilda, the only summer resort of Melbourne, is got up on a miniature Coney Island scale. About £10,000 sterling is supposed to be behind the venture. The weather has been dead against it from its commencement. A free circus is given afternoon and evening, in return for sixpence admission charged, and a band discourses sweet music. Looping the death-trap is given free on the grounds. On the first performance of the "death ride," the trap that the bicycle and rider strike refused to open, and "Chevalo, the Fearless" was dashed to the ground. It was reported his skull was fractured, but he was again in the saddle yesterday, so the injury must have been a little exaggerated.

Mr. Salambo, of fire-eating reputation, well known in England, is the managing-director of "Dreamland," and promoter of the scheme.

This is the month of November (the last part of it), supposed to be Australian summer, and yet overcoats are worn; the weather is so changeable.

I cannot conclude this letter without saying that Mr. Fred Aydon, manager of Rickards' Opera House, Melbourne, is a most courteous gentleman, a good business man, and one with whom all newcomers will be delighted to make an acquaintance.

Mr. Otho Stuart has found a fresh aspirant for dramatic honours, of whom he has obtained a new comedy for use at the Apollo when the success of Peter's Mother shall be exhausted. The new author is Mr. John Valentine, an Englishman who for some years has been resident in America, and his play is called The Stronger Sex, a title which at once recalls Mr Pinero's The Weaker Sex. In the new piece will appear Miss Nina Boucicault, Mr. Leonard Boyne, Miss Lillian Braithwaite, Miss Marie Illington, Mr. Paul Arthur, Mr. Philip Knox, and Miss Gertrude Scott.

At Barrow-in-Furness Royalty What the Butler Saw is proving an excellent attraction. Mr. Lionel Rignold is very happy in the part of the Butler; Miss Ada Blanche plays the part of Mrs. Barrington admirably; Mr. Charles Fawcett scores as Jack Barrington; Mr. Reddick Atchison as Sir Chas. Foden handles the part in a very able way; Miss Marie Daltra as Miss Foden is pleasing; and Miss Jennie Wignez is capital as the maid.

Sherlock Holmes is paying a welcome visit to His Majesty's Theatre, Barrow-in-Furness. Mr. A. Hamilton Stewart appears in the character of the detective, and his performance is really excellent; Miss Georgina Wynett gives a clever delineation of Madge Larabee; Mr. James Slea is good as Profesor Moriarty; Mr. Stephen Ewart as James Larabee, Mr. Stanley Logan as Dr. Watson, and Miss Constance Lee as Alice Faulkner play their respective parts with successful results.

The following sums for the Milton Wellings Fund have been received:—Mrs. John Maxwell, £2 2s.; W. Paxton, £1; E. M. C., 2s. 6d.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(From our own correspondent.)

SYDNEY, Nov. 20.—Messrs. Meynell, Gunn, and Varna have secured the Palace Theatre, and on the 17th they produced The Little Stranger, for the juvenile rôle in which they had imported Master Willie Parke. His acting of Tom Pennyman was clever, and he became instantaneously popular, and the other parts in the production were sustained by Mr. Harry Hill, Mr. James Lindsay, Miss Violet Dene, Mr. Pulteney Murray, Mr. Frank Hawthorn, Miss E. Guilford-Quin, Mr. John W. Deverell, Mr. H. Halley, Miss Florence Seymour, Miss Florence Leigh, and Miss Helen Russell.

Mr. Bland Holt revived The Lights o' London at the Theatre Royal on the 17th, and the evergreen melodrama, well mounted and capitally acted, was received with manifest delight by a large audience. Mr. and Mrs. Bland Holt were, of course, the showman Jervis and his large-hearted wife. Mr. Walter Baker and Miss Ross were Harold Armytage and Bess Marks, with Mr. Albert Norman as the scoundrel Clifford Armytage, and the gamekeeper's daughter, Hetty Preene, gave Miss Harrie Ireland her favourite opportunities, old Seth being a capital character study by Mr. Arthur Styan. The rest of Mr. Holt's capable company loyally helped in telling the powerful story. The dive into Regent's Canal was achieved amid tumults of acclamation, the scenery was good, and all concerned to make the approval of the playgoers heartily deserved.

The Fatal Wedding was revived at the Criterion by Messrs. Meynell and Gunn on the 17th, with little Maisie Posner in the child rôle. The scene where the kiddies do vocal and terpsichorean riots is as lively as before, and the house is packed every night. On the 24th The Midnight Wedding will be staged here. The Virginian, at Her Majesty's, is still increasing in favour and attendance, its absolutely natural humour, love-making, and lawlessness creating a more profound impression with each succeeding performance.

The Tivoli patrons welcomed Mr. Larry Lewis and Miss Violet Stockello with genuine delight on Saturday night. The "turns" of both are distinctly clever. "The Alaskas" still continue to astonish all and sundry, and Mr. Harry Tate's company provokes as much laughter in its new sketch, Fishing, as it did in Motoring. Mr. Post Mason, Cassie Walmer, and a host of others who swell Mr. Harry Rickards' big bill, give a sparkling and ever-changing programme.

Mr. William Anderson has transformed the Bondi Aquarium and Pleasure Grounds into a vast arena of sport, pastime, amusement, and entertainment. It will be opened shortly in the name of "Wonderland City," and Mr. Anderson will personally manage the concern.

Madame Amy Sherwin had a crowded hall at her second concert, and her fine voice was never heard to better advantage. Mr. J. Edward Sykes, besides sharing the piano accompaniments, gave the organ support to Willesby's "Crossing the Bar" and Sullivan's "Lost Chord." Encores were many and enthusiasm high. Mr. Arnold Gange (baritone) and Mr. Clement Harvey (solo pianist) are great favourites. Herr Hugo Gorlitz announces two more concerts, one at the Y.M.C.A. Hall and one at the Town Hall. Meanwhile Madame Sherwin is "doing" Bathurst and Orange.

Miss Minnie Hooper, who trains dancers and ballets for the various theatres, gave a pupils' exhibition at the Palace Theatre on the 14th, and a surprisingly clever show it was. Little Bessie Sutton and Miss Nellie Lead were especially good, and an abnormally long programme of interesting items were given to a large and delighted audience.

Miss Mabel Lane, who came here with the Ben Hur company some time ago, died in a private hospital on the 13th, and her remains were taken to her birthplace in Victoria for interment.

SYDNEY, Nov 27, 1906.—The Midnight Wedding is the latest Criterion bill of Messrs. Meynell and Gunn. The military and romantic events are picturesquely staged, and Mr. Harcourt Beatty (late of Nellie Stewart's company) was engaged to strengthen the cast. Mr. E. Vaughan supplied some very fine scenery for Mr. Walter Howard's drama, in which the principal parts were acted by Mr. Harcourt Beatty (who had a warm reception), Miss May Congdon, Mr. Charles Vane, Mr. Conway Wingfield, Miss Winifred Gunn, Mr. Tom Cannam, and Miss Dina Cooper. The production was stage-managed by Mr. C. R. Stanford, who also played Father Gerard, and Mr. John Gunn directed.

"The Virginians" still holds Her Majesty's stage, and the truly human and humorous story draws large and delighted audiences. If time permits before the return of Miss Tittell Brune, a version of "Under Two Flags" called Cigarette will be staged. The Christmas productions, Parsifal and Alice in Wonderland, are in active rehearsal.

Mr. Bland Holt has struck oil with his revival of The Lights o' London at the Royal, and no successor is as yet announced.

"The Little Stranger," played at the Palace by Master Willie Parke and Messrs. Meynell, Gunn, and Varna's large company, has suited the humour of playgoers, and the pretty little theatre resounds with laughter and applause.

The Tivoli habitués welcomed Stewart and Lorraine most cordially on the 24th, and the latest of Mr Harry Rickards' importations became favourites in their neat, unique turn of instrumentation and song. Harry Tate's Fishing company, the Alaskas, and Larry Lewis are the principal entertainers of the present week.

Harry Clay's variety company is touring the suburbs. The Lyceum Hall has moving pictures and little Bessie Sutton, the clever child performer. The Haymarket Hippodrome has His Natural Life as its attraction; and the Pavilion at Manly has concerts and bioscope.

Last Monday the Scottish Societies patronised the Sherwin Concert, when the programme, given by Miss Amy Sherwin, Mr. Harold Gange, and Mr. Clement Harvey, chiefly consisted of Scotch song and instrumental themes.

Mrs. Isabel E. Ruthven, who has invented a kindergarten system for teaching music to young children, gave a performance at the St. James's Hall on the 21st, when a drama called The Quarrel of the Notes was acted. In this, sections of children, representing the various notes used in music, disputed the way of King Semibreve, to the great delight of a crowded audience. The drama was written by Mrs. Ruthven, and the music composed by Mr. F. B. Ruthven. Miss Rawson (the Governor's daughter) and the Lady Mayoress were present.

Mr. Eugene Goossens, formerly conductor of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, died on Sunday last at Liverpool, after a brief illness. Mr. Goossens, who was in his sixty-first year, was born in Belgium, and at an early age gave evidence of musical genius. He studied under Mechelaar, the famous choirmaster of Notre Dame, and afterwards went to the Conservatoire Royal, Brussels, where, in 1864, he secured his diploma and medals for violin and composition. On reaching England, Mr. Goossens obtained the goodwill of Carl Rosa, and his first attempt at conducting the orchestra of that great impresario's company established his reputation. The deceased gentleman, who severed his connection with the Carl Rosa combination about fourteen years ago, was warmly esteemed in Liverpool, where he acted as a teacher of music and choirmaster at St. Ann's Church, Edgehill.

THE MUSICAL YEAR.

The great event of the musical year 1906 is, of course, the passing of the Musical Copyright Bill, chiefly by the exertions of Mr. T. P. O'Connor. The year has, musically, been a very eventful one. It opened brilliantly with the grand opera season at Covent Garden, beginning with the Ring, conducted by Dr. Hans Richter. Two cycles were given under this eminent conductor, and fine performances were presented of Die Meistersinger, Tristan, Walküre, and Der Fliegende Holländer. Apart from the Ring, large audiences have been present when such standard works as Faust, Carmen, and Rigoletto, with strong casts, have been presented, and among modern composers Puccini has become more popular than ever, and the numerous performances of La Bohème (with Mme. Melba and Caruso) and Madama Butterfly (with Mme. Giachetti) drew the largest houses of the season. Verdi's Aïda and La Traviata, handsomely mounted, proved very attractive. Don Giovanni and Tschaikowsky's Eugène Onegin were also given, and on July 6 Gluck's opera, Armide, was produced for the first time in England, the beautiful mounting of which work doing the Royal Opera Syndicate the greatest credit. The other new operas produced were André Messager's Les Deux Pigeons, Peter Cornelius's bright and humorous Barber of Bagdad, and Massenet's charming work, Le Jongleur de Notre-Dame. After the close of the grand opera the Moody-Manners Opera Company gave a highly successful season of opera in English at the Lyric Theatre, fine performances being given of Lohengrin, Tannhäuser, Verdi's Trovatore, Tschaikowsky's Eugène Onegin, Mozart's Nozze de Figaro (in which Mme. Moody greatly distinguished herself), Faust, Lucia, and Meyerbeer's Huguenots. Among the artists appearing at the Lyric during the Moody-Manners' season may be mentioned that fine singer, Mr. Joseph O'Mara, Mme. Blanche Marchesi, Mme. Fanny Moody, Mr. Manners, and Mme. de Vere, all of whom rendered yeoman service in the cause of opera in English. In the autumn the San Carlo Company gave a season at Covent Garden, which, with two exceptions, was mainly devoted to Italian opera. The San Carlo Company were fortunately able to secure the services of Mme. Melba, Mme. Giachetti, that clever young artist Signor Zenatello, and a newcomer, Mme. Maria Gay, who achieved a record success in Carmen. Other talented artists were Mme. de Cisneros, Mme. Kirkby Lunn, Signor Sammarco and Mme. Suzanne Adams. In the list of operas Madama Butterfly and Carmen were each given nine times, Bohème seven, and Faust six. Aïda was mounted five times, and Rigoletto and Tosca four each; while Traviata was only given on three nights, and Cilea's Adriana Lecouvreur twice. The only novelty produced was Giordano's Fedora, which only gained a partial success. Although the season was brief, a high level was reached in the performances, and there is every reason to think that the financial results have equalled expectations. It is manifestly impossible to more than refer to the perfect host of concerts given last year, as they averaged something like twenty-seven a week throughout the year; but mention must be made of Mr. Wood's excellent series of promenade concerts given in the autumn at Queen's Hall. At these concerts the programmes included new works by British, German, Belgian, and Finnish composers. Of the new compositions introduced one of the most successful was Mr. R. Vaughan-Williams's "Norfolk Rhapsody," based on folk-tunes from East Anglia. In December the Yeomen of the Guard was revived at the Savoy Theatre, this being the first of a series to be given of the Gilbert-Sullivan operas; and at the Prince of Wales's Theatre a musical version of The Vicar of Wakefield, by Mme. Liza Lehmann, was successfully produced. Excellent results also have been shown by our great music schools during the past year, the Royal College of Music giving a capital performance of Sir Charles Stanford's Shamus O'Brien, at the Scala Theatre, and the Royal Academy two acts from Verdi's Falstaff; while a clever rendering of Barnett's Mountain Sylph was given by the students of the Guildhall School. The chief musical event of the past year was the retirement of the great prima donna, Mme. Adelina Patti, who, before an immense and enthusiastic audience at the Albert Hall, took her farewell of the London musical public. Mr. Joseph Bennett, the musical critic of the Daily Telegraph, also retired last year, and great interest was aroused by the visit to London of the famous Dr. Grieg, who, at Queen's Hall, before a huge audience, gave two concerts, the programme of the first being orchestral, and including the Peer Gynt Suite, and of the other concert consisting of pianoforte solos and vocal items. The Royal Choral Society gave, at the Royal Albert Hall, Mr. Coleridge-Taylor's Hiawatha, Elijah, and the Messiah. From New York the intelligence comes that Madama Butterfly has proved as great a success in that city as in London, the title-rôle being sung by Mme. Elsa Szamosy, a Hungarian vocalist, recommended by the composer. The general advance of music during the past year promises well for the future.

Presentation.—Mr. Archie Howells, the musical director at the Canterbury, was presented on Wednesday last with a silver cigar holder, ash tray, and box of cigars from Mendel, the blind pianist.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your report of the pantomime at the King's Theatre, Gateshead, you state that the mechanical effects were by Mr. A. George, but they were made by yours truly, Charles Watts.—Grand Theatre, Islington, Jan. 1, '07.

Mr. Seymour Hicks and Mr. Walter Slaughter have arranged to produce next Christmas a novel version of Cinderella. At least three hundred children will be engaged in the pantomime, in which beautiful and elaborate scenes of new design are to be revealed.

Mr. Charles Hannan's successful fantastical comedy, The Electric Man, has been purchased for South Africa by Mr. Leonard Rayne, who will produce the piece in that country during the coming spring. Mr. Rayne intends himself to sustain the rôle of the Electric Man.

Mr. A. C. Harrison has engaged Mr. Sidney Beltram, a gentleman well known in theatrical circles, as manager of the New Theatre Royal, Seaham Harbour.

Miss Hanid Alexander, the clever juvenile entertainer, who has made a great success at the Walthamstow Palace this week, can boast of quite an exceptional professional record for so young an artist. For three successive seasons Miss Alexander played the title-rôle in Little Red Riding Hood with Mr. Robert Arthur, and was offered a renewal of the part for the present season. This, however, the young lady was unable to accept, as, after this week, she starts on a fourteen weeks' tour in Germany, visiting most of the principal cities. In addition to this, the young lady has to record a three years' engagement on the Stoll tours, and two years with Mr. Walter Gibbons. It is given to few entertainers in their early "teens" to achieve such a varied experience.

Mr. Charles Edgar Stelling, comedian, was initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers' Association on Sunday. Terrier Tom Burnett was in the chair at the initiation.

At the London Pavilion on Monday the Seldoms will present a new and striking pose, entitled "The Wrestlers," after the work of Lambeau, the famous Belgian sculptor.

MENTAL MAGNETISM.

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—Will you kindly allow us to correct Mr. Howard Crispin regarding the statement in last week's Era re the first production of mental magnetism in 1904-5? The above entertainment was first introduced into this country by Verbeck at the Princes Hall, Piccadilly, 20 years ago, and afterwards introduced at the Royal Aquarium by Guibal and Maria Gréval, who were previously interpreter and assistant to Herr Verbeck. Silent telepathy, or thought transmission, without word, sign, or action, was first introduced by those well-known entertainers, Charles and Lillian Morritt, and in all parts of the world by yours very truly,

THOMAS AND LILLIAN HOWARD.

Tredegar Hall, Newport, Jan. 2.

"The Broken Melody" is to be seen at the Hackney Empire on Monday next. Mr. Van Biene, to whom the success of the play is due, was born in Holland in 1851. A pupil of Servais, at fifteen he was playing the 'cello in the Opera House at Rotterdam. A year later he and the 'cello arrived in London, to do battle with whatever things might be. Says Van Biene:—"I did not speak one word of English; I had just my poor 'cello, my art, and my youth. One day, as I was playing, a stranger stood and listened to one, two, three of my solos. Then he asked me kindly why, since I played so well, I must play in the streets? I told him, and he gave me his card, bidding me call on him next day. That was Sir Michael Costa, and in a few days my 'cello and I were in the orchestra at Covent Garden, and I played in the streets no more."

Mr. Andrew Roy, who has sung with Caruso in Rigoletto, at Covent Garden, will be heard at the Hackney Empire next week in the American march song, "Good-bye, sweet Marie," which has been illustrated exclusively for the Moss-Stoll Empires by Lloyd Langdon.

At the Northampton Palace of Varieties the proprietor, Mr. Fred H. Anderson, has collected the handsome sum of £16 17s. 6d. for the local Poor Children's Christmas Dinner Fund.

Mr. Albert Wyndham, who makes a great speciality of Shakespearean scenes, is by way of putting in an appearance at the Middlesex on Monday as the Duke of Clarence, in Clarence's Dream.

Mr. Charles Dixton, owing to the success he achieved at the Standard and Middlesex last summer, will shortly reappear with his comedy-sketch, Uncle Obadiah, in the variety theatres conducted by Mr. Frederick Baugh.

Roland Oliver's exciting dramatic episode, Her Last Dance, will be presented at the Chelsea Palace next week. There is a great fight for life between a man and a woman, the only two characters in the playlet, originally produced at the New Cross Empire in July last. Mr. H. Naylor Grimson plays his old part of Count Charles Kelmore, and Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner has been specially engaged to support him.

Messrs. Harrington and Tate are now busily engaged in writing and composing an entirely new and original dramatic sketch, in two scenes, for the popular actor-vocalist Mr. George Leyton, who has been making a huge success everywhere with the same firm's The Wreck of the Birkenhead.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.
For Sustaining the Voice.
Invaluable for ACTORS and SINGERS.
Indispensable for PUBLIC SPEAKERS.
GENTLEMEN,—For sudden affections of the Bronchial Organs I use and most cheerfully recommend "Brown's Troches." They are regarded as most eligible, convenient and indispensable by numerous artists of my acquaintance, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. They seem to act specially on the organs of the voice, and produce a clear enunciation.—Yours truly (Signed), MARIE ROZE MAPLESON.
SOLD EVERYWHERE AT 1/1½ PER BOX.

INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St James's Gazette.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

A FRIEND OF THE DRAMA.

The death of the Baroness BURDETT-COUTTS removes from us a lady whose virtues and charities were world-famous, and who was always a warm friend of the stage. The absurd statement that the late Sir HENRY IRVING had been "financed" by the Baroness was denied and disproved immediately after his death; and the publication of Mr. BRAM STOKER'S authoritative "Reminiscences" put an absolute end to the ridiculous tradition. But the fact that it was made showed how strong was the sympathy of the Baroness with the eminent actor and his artistic enterprise. Unlike some who ignore the sources of their wealth, the Baroness BURDETT-COUTTS always acknowledged her debt to the drama, through the noble generosity of her relative the Duchess of ST. ALBANS. The story of the second marriage of Mr. THOMAS COUTTS, the richest private banker of his day, is not only dramatic and interesting; the narrative includes a pretty piece of "poetical justice." Mr. COUTTS, being left a widower by the death of his first wife, naturally thought he had a right to please himself as to the choice of a second. The person who found favour in his eyes was a Miss HARRIET MELLON, a hardworking actress who had made her first appearance on the stage as a child of ten years old. At twelve, little Miss MELLON played Phœbe in As You Like It, at Ulverston, in Lancashire. In 1794, SHERIDAN saw her act in The Romp and The Belle's Stratagem; and, on the strength of his promise of an engagement at Drury Lane, HARRIET and her mother came to London. In the following year she appeared as Lydia Languish in The Rivals; but she was so much overcome by the size of the theatre and the grandeur of her companions—the company at Drury Lane then included Mrs. SIDDONS, Mrs. JORDAN, and Miss FARREN—that she was attacked by stage-fright, and was unable to do herself justice. She was retained, however, in the company, and for some years played secondary parts. She was described as a "countrified girl, blooming in complexion, with a very tall, fine figure, raven locks, ivory teeth, a cheek like a peach, and coral lips." Her good nature made her immensely popular in the theatre; and she soon obtained engagements to sustain principal parts in the provinces. It was while she was fulfilling an engagement at Cheltenham that an elderly gentleman of modest appearance took a box at the Cheltenham Theatre. THOMAS COUTTS was at this time seventy years of age. He was grandly charitable, but very economical—a combination of qualities so unusual as to be pronounced eccentric. He had another peculiarity which placed him in the category of "originals"—he chose his wives to please himself, and not to satisfy his friends. By his first wife, a governess, he had three daughters, who all married well. When the first Mrs. COUTTS, who had been a confirmed invalid, died in 1815, the old banker and Miss MELLON were privately married at St. Pancras Church; and soon after Mrs. COUTTS made her "farewell appearance" on the boards in the part of Audrey in As You Like It. COUTTS'S daughters resented their father's second marriage, and he made a new will, from which their names were omitted. The marriage turned out well. Miss MELLON made the banker completely happy for the remaining seven years of his life; and when he died he left her the whole of his wealth.

Mrs. COUTTS was admittedly one of the most generous and good-natured women in London. She offered to divide the princely fortune, of which she was now the possessor, with the daughters; but they met her proposal with insult and abortive attempts to "upset" the will. In spite of this, however, Mrs. COUTTS gave them £20,000 apiece, which they ungraciously accepted.

The punishment of the trio was, however, incomplete; and the finishing touch to their mortification was put by the marriage of Mrs. COUTTS to the Duke of ST. ALBANS. Before this, she had been annoyed by some ladies of title at Sir WALTER SCOTT'S house at Abbotsford; but the author of "Waverley" took the offenders to task, remarking on the "shabby behaviour" of those who hunted after invitations to Mrs. COUTTS'S grand balls and fêtes in London, and afterwards, if they met her at another house, "tipped the cold shoulder." The lecture had its proper effect.

In 1827, Mrs. COUTTS became the Duchess of ST. ALBANS; and she afterwards took a great fancy to Miss ANGELA BURDETT, the child of the third daughter of Mr. COUTTS and Sir FRANCIS BURDETT, the celebrated politician. The kind old Duchess invited the young girl to come and live with her; and, after the Duchess's death, she left Miss COUTTS the whole of her property, with the exception of legacy and a life pension to her second husband. When she felt her end approaching, the Duchess asked to be laid on the bed where "TOM COUTTS" had breathed his last; and there in August, 1837, she died.

It is not necessary to tack a "moral" on the above story, which has all the qualities usually attributed to romance. If a pendant to the tale were needed it was supplied by the spectacle of the coffin of the late Sir HENRY IRVING, covered with a profusion of flowers, as it lay, in the October of 1905, in the Baroness BURDETT-COUTTS'S house in Stratton-street. In her life-time she was always a warm friend of the drama and music, and many members of those professions were guests at her garden-parties at Holly Lodge, Hampstead.

"RAFFLES" AT THE COMEDY.

Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman, has this week celebrated its 150th performance, a run that affords unquestionable evidence of the sustained popularity of the play, the joint authors of which are Messrs. E. W. Hornung and Eugene W. Presbrey. In this production much depends upon the actor who plays the title-rôle, and happily in Mr. Henry Ainley is found a representative of the character quite capable of overcoming the difficulties which it presents. Mr. Ainley, as the amateur cracksman, can be complimented on a remarkably clever study, in which, it is evident, attention has been given to the minutest detail; so that as the result we have a finished portrayal of the young man of polished manners but with criminal instincts. The easy, gentlemanly demeanour of Raffles, the cracksman and cricketer, is admirably assumed; while a quick change of expression at the hint of danger is like a flashlight in revealing to the audience the impostor who is an honoured guest at Lord Amersteth's mansion. Altogether it is a piece of work which will advance Mr. Ainley's already high reputation as an actor. Mr. J. L. Mackay can also be commended for his clever and convincing embodiment of Curtis Bedford, the American detective, who bears a close resemblance to Sherlock Holmes. The alertness shown by this remarkable thief-catcher is well maintained throughout, while the humour, which is one of the prominent features in the character, is expressed with delightful effect. Mr. Graham Browne plays the part of Harry Manders with genuine feeling, and contrives by many skilful touches to render the character real and lifelike. Mr. Laurence Irving as Crawshay, the common or garden burglar, has little to do, but all the same does not fail to impress the audience by his boldly outlined portrait of the rough, ill-conditioned housebreaker; and scores in the thrilling scene with Raffles in the last act, when his partner in crime disarms him by a vivid description of the Old Bailey on the occasion of a trial for murder. Mr. Frederick Volpe supplies a capital sketch of Lord Amersteth and Mr. Courtney Foote is good as Lord Crowley. Miss Jessie Bateman is able to infuse a large amount of girlish charm into the part of Gwendoline Conran, and achieves well-merited success. Miss Sarah Brooke as Mrs. Vidal makes the best use of her opportunities in a somewhat conventional part, and Miss Florence Sinclair deserves high praise for her neat and natural impersonation of the French maid Marie. Miss Hilda Thorpe is a dignified Lady Melrose, and Miss Elise Clarens a vivacious Lady Ethel. Mr. Horton Cooper as Goldby is well placed and Mr. Arthur Minton's Merton is also worthy of meritorious mention. Raffles is preceded by Robert Marshall's comedietta, A Wire Entanglement, excellently played by Mr. Graham Browne, Mr. Donald Calthrop, Miss Sarah Brooke, and Miss Palmer.

THE time and place of the preliminary examination of the competitors for the best pianoforte performance of Miss Marjorie Slaughter's Intermezzo, "Betty," now being played at matinées of Alice in Wonderland, has been altered to eleven o'clock on Tuesday next at the Hicks Theatre (instead of twelve o'clock at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, as originally announced). The examiners will be Messrs. Percy Fletcher, Maurice Jacobi, and Eugene Ascherberg, and Miss Marie Slaughter. In the final examination Messrs. Edward German and Hamish McCunn will also assist.

THE Broadway Theatre will be given up on Saturday afternoon next to the protégés of the Playgoers' Club, who have arranged for the pantomime Cinderella to be witnessed by the poor children who annually visit pantomimes under their care. Princess Louise has promised to be present.

MR. GEORGE GRAVES sailed from Southampton on Wednesday for America. The popular comedian is to open in due course in the part of General des Ifs in The Little Michus at Daly's Theatre, New York.

"THE LIGHTHOUSE ROBBERY."

An American Drama, in Four Acts, produced at the Lyric Opera House, on Monday evening, Dec. 31, 1906.

Tom Manby,	MR. DAVID G. NOBLE
William Farren	MR. EDWIN WILDE
James Hammond	MR. FRED TERRISS
David Morris	MR. ALEC FORBES
Silas Kidder	MR. A. P. KAY
Rev. George Medhurst	MR. CHAS. ELLISTON
Rose Prescott	MISS HILDA BAYNTON
Mrs. Manby	MISS NELL GILMORE
Ruth Manby	MISS MAY SETON
Little Nellie	MISS DOLY SWIFT

The Lighthouse Robbery—the name of whose author is not mentioned on the programme—is a play of strong human interest, and its production this week at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, has found favour with local playgoers. The failure of so many American dramas in this country has been due to their impossible situations and to the fact that, from a literary point of view, they were of a very low standard. This complaint, however, can scarcely be levelled against The Lighthouse Robbery, which is, at any rate, free from absurd improbabilities. Our hero is Tom Manby, a fisherman, and in the first act we learn that he has rescued from a watery grave an elderly man of the name of David Morris, or Uncle David as he is called throughout the piece. Uncle David tells the story that years before he had been a rich man, but he had been unfortunate enough to lose both his money and his wife, owing to the machinations of some scoundrels. He sails from England along with his pretty daughter, but on the way William Farren, his late clerk, threw him overboard, and, although he was saved, he is unable to discover the whereabouts of his daughter. In the meantime, William Farren, alias Hammond, has the girl, now called Rose Prescott, and described as his maid, in his keeping, and it is a desire of his equally villainous son to make her become his wife. Rose, however, is in love with Manby, and, in order to get the fisherman out of the way, young Hammond secures him a comfortable situation in Boston; and, in order to ensure the success of his suit, Hammond forges Tom's signature to a letter, which says that the latter is dying from fever, and that he (Tom) releases Rose from their engagement. A year ensues, and Rose comes to tell Uncle David of her impending marriage with James Hammond. It is to take place that very day. Uncle David, who is living with the Manbys, is, of course, surprised to hear of Tom's death, but he refrains from immediately denying the false report, as he prefers that Tom shall himself give the refutation in propria persona. Previous to this James Hammond has made an attempt to steal a considerable sum of money won by Tom in a lottery, but he is prevented by the presence of a little girl in Tom's charge, whom Hammond attempts to murder by drowning. The child, who dies as the result of the immersion, was wearing a locket given to her by Rose, and this was handed to Uncle David to return to its former owner. The locket established the identity of the would-be assassin, and in the end Uncle David claims Rose as his long-lost daughter, the careers of villainy of the Hammonds are put an end to, and the lovers eventually join hands at the altar.

The piece is really well acted. A vigorous, sturdy, and affectionate fisherman-hero is found in Mr. David G. Noble, and Mr. Alec Forbes is seen in an altogether admirable character-study of the old man, Uncle David, the latter part of whose life has been a series of unhappy incidents. Mr. Fred Terriss portrays in realistic fashion the villainies of James Hammond; while a capable exponent of that worthy's father and confederate in crime is furnished by Mr. Edwin Wilde. Miss Hilda Baynton is sweet and unaffected, and acts in a charming manner in the rôle of Rose Prescott. A talented little child-actress, Miss Dolly Swift, plays with surprising naturalness the part of a little waif, and her death-scene is particularly affecting. Mr. A. P. Kay supplies most of the comedy. As the stage-struck Silas Kidder, he is a most amusing personage. Miss Nell Gilmore is to be congratulated upon her impersonation of the elderly Mrs. Manby, whose daughter, the winsome Ruth Manby, is represented in excellent style by Miss May Seton. Mr. Charles Elliston is good as the Rev. George Medhurst. A word of praise can be given to the scenery.

COPYRIGHT CONVICTION.

Martin Godfried, alias George Turner, was charged on Tuesday on a warrant, and also on a summons at the Thames Police Court, with selling pirated music. Mr. H. Houston, instructed by Mr. H. Bray Becher, prosecuted. It was decided to take the summons first. Counsel said the accused was one of the largest surviving pirate music-dealers.

Lazarus Cadamartri, an ice-cream dealer, of 5, Paper Hall-street, Bradford, stated that about the middle of November he sent an order to George Turner, 39, Park-street, Limehouse, for copies of "Down the Vale," "Asleep in the Deep," and "Ora pro Nobis." He also enclosed a postal order for 5s., and received in return fifty copies of the above pieces, which he sold for 4d. and 6d. each. Witness had not been dealing in pirated music very long.

Mrs. Margaret Bardle, of 39, Park-street, Limehouse, stated the accused had letters addressed to her house.

Arthur Preston stated the copyrights of the three songs were vested in Messrs. Boosey and Co., Messrs. Sheard, and Messrs. Hopwood and Crew.

Mr. Mead said it had not been proved the copies were pirated, and the summons would be dismissed.

Accused was then charged on a warrant with dealing in pirated music.

Mr. Preston deposed that in November he wrote to prisoner for a list of music, in the name of Cohen, and received a list on Nov. 4. Witness sent an order, and enclosed a postal order for 5s. That letter was addressed to Park-street. He afterwards received a parcel containing pirated copies of music. No publisher's imprint was at the bottom. The copyright was vested in various firms which belonged to the association.

Mrs. Bardle said she had received letters for the prisoner for about six months.

In answer to the charge, prisoner said it was his first offence, and he would give up the business.

Mr. Mead fined him £5, and said if he came before him again he would go to prison for the full term. It was a most disgraceful traffic. In addition to the penalty, prisoner would have to pay 23s. costs.

MR HARRY RANDALL, recovered from his recent indisposition, took up his rôle in Sindbad on Monday afternoon. Mr. Arthur Conquest, who played the part for the first few performances, has been presented with a cheque by the directors of Drury Lane. Mr. Arthur Collins marked his appreciation of Mr. Conquest's splendid service by presenting him with a gold cigarette case upon which are engraved the words: "A friend in need is a friend indeed. He came, he saw, he conquered."

"THE GONDOLIERS," the second of the series of Gilbert and Sullivan revivals, is due at the Savoy on Tuesday, Jan. 22, and will be played for the remainder of the week. Afterwards it will be run alternately with The Yeomen of the Guard until the production of the third revival. The cast of The Gondoliers will comprise Messrs. C. H. Workman, A. Johnstone, John Clulow, Pacie Ripple, Richard Green, and Overton Moyle; Miss Louie René, Miss Marie Wilson, Miss Lilian Coomber, and Miss Jessie Rose.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"RINGELSPIEL,"
Comedy, in Three Acts, by Hermann Bahr, produced at the Deutsches Theatre, Dec. 20.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, DEC. 27.—Herr Bahr is a well-known dramatist and writer of books; he hails from Vienna, where his plays are usually most cordially received, while in Berlin he is also popular. Ringelspiel, however—truth compels me to say—was the reverse of successful, and only the author's standing warrants mention of the piece. The word "Ringelspiel" signifies, in Viennese dialect, a merry-go-round, and it is the merry-go-round of life that is intended as the principal theme. The scene is laid in Venice, and very few words will suffice for the plot, which is neither in good taste nor even entertaining. A young married man named Eggers has a liaison with someone else while his fair wife is enjoying much the same thing with her friend in Vienna. Egger's chère amie is—strange to relate—a very wearisome person, and one is puzzled to discover where the fascination lies, while his legitimate spouse is gay, clever, and charming. Mme. Eggers comes to Venice to beg her husband to set her free, and finds him devoted to Rune Dohn. She is in no wise disturbed, but on the contrary, and everything bids fair to go off smoothly. Then comes an act where the scene is laid on the strand. All the persons of the play, more or less, appear in bathing costume or go paddling. Here the charming little Mme. Eggers loses her heart to an unusually romantic waiter, who sings tenor and quotes Dante, and she deserts both her husband and her lover for him. To use a vulgarism, this action "took the cake," and the majority of the audience either hissed or cried "Pfui!" (shame). Herr Bahr's admirers stood their ground in his defence, and answered with cries of "Bravo!" so that it was no little time before peace was restored. Only respect for Frau Agnes Sorma, who gave a delightful impersonation of Frau Eggers, prevented a still stormier scene. The acting throughout was good, and the piece was very well staged. It was labour lost, for the play will assuredly be removed from the bill within a very short time.

HERR ROBERT MISCH'S new comedy, Kinder, which was produced for the first time on any stage at the Neues Theatre last Friday, was an undisputed success. It is true that plays in which the principal interest is centred in juveniles and their doings are not to everybody's taste, but the children's "milieu" is the latest mode here, and many people bow to it. Kinder is a "grammar-school comedy," the author says, and a few of the scenes, which are laid in the schoolroom and examination-room, are very amusing. The customary love episode between a sixth-form boy and a "Backfisch" is not omitted, nor the inevitable attempted suicide of a "modern" lad—from whom the revolver is wrested just in the nick of time. The cast was capital, the difficulties that beset the path of adult artists when they give the rôles of children being very creditably overcome. Herr von Fielitz, an actor new to Berlin, gave a remarkably good rendering of the part of the "primus," Walter; and Fräulein Alice Hall, in the rôle of the precocious schoolgirl, was excellent. A word of high praise must not be forgotten for the humorous manner in which Herr Schindler—an old Berlin favourite—gave the part of one of the school professors. If the rendering bordered on caricature (as it did) no exception could be made to it, for the audience caught the spirit of the fun, roared with laughter, and applauded the clever artist by open stage. Herr Misch, whose previous plays have never failed of their mark, was called repeatedly and very cordially applauded.

AT the Trianon Theatre the latest French farce, Wo ist der Papa? by M. de Féraudy—German translation by Benno Jacobson—is drawing well. It is a particularly highly-spiced, risky piece, but has just managed to escape the disfavour of the censorship. As the title indicates, the search for a father is the chief theme. The mother—a hot-blooded Spaniard—has so many friends that the search is difficult in the extreme, and success almost impossible. As, however, some benevolently-disposed friend offers a substantial sum of money to the father when he discovers himself, there are at length endless applications. Finally, a disinterested soul is found who adopts both mother and child, so that the very drastic piece comes to a happy, and even moral, termination. The interpretation was extremely vivacious, and the audience laughed till they cried. As a curtain-raiser to the longer farce, a one-act satirical comedy, by M. Mauvey, translated by Herr Max Schoenau, entitled Herr Hups, was given for the first time. It made no particular impression, only serving as an excellent opportunity, in the one grateful rôle of the piece, for the talents of Herr Max Laurence, a rising actor.

"SALOME" is still being performed twice or three times a week at the Royal Opera to a crowded house each night. Dr. Richard Strauss has sent a very flattering letter of thanks to the orchestra expressing his gratitude at the admirable way in which they interpreted his music. The composer says the greatest praise is not great enough; he could not imagine a more faultless interpretation. In this opinion everyone who has heard Salome will certainly concur.

THE Bernhard Rose Theatre—formerly the Carl Weiss—produced an old farce under a new face just in time for the holidays, and with tremendous success. The author, Leopold Ely, has long passed away, and his amusing pieces are known to few of the present generation. Berliner Raubvögel (Berlin birds of prey), the recent production, has been modernised by Herr Bernhard Rose, and its humour is broad and smart. It was admirably acted and mounted, so that a lengthy run is certain to result.

"OLYMPISCHE SPIELE," a new three-act farce by Herren Kraatz and Max Neal, has been received with great favour at the Residenz Theatre at Wiesbaden, and is shortly to be produced here. The piece, which is a parody on Sherlock Holmes, is reported to be exceedingly laughable.

THE Figaro Theatre opens to-night with a couple of new pieces, a one-act drama by Sartène, entitled Die Claue, and a persiflage by MM. Timmory and Manoussi, bearing the title Der Kavalier. Leo Poldi's burlesque, Unterm Bett, and Mark Twain's comedy, Der Chicago Landwirth, are in the bill for the following days.

THE Spanish Play Cycle continues is dreary way at the Neues. Echegaray's play, Zwei Sonnen, translated by Hans Ossip, was the latest effort, and it met with but a poor reception, notwithstanding good acting.

MR. HAYDEN COFFIN will be the hero of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production of Tom Jones at Easter. Miss Carrie Moore and Mr. Dan Rolyat, who won such bright laurels in The Dairymaids, will also be in the cast, the former as Honour and the latter as Partridge.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MISS MARIE LLOYD has returned to the stage this week, and London gladly welcomed her on the last night of the Old Year at the Tivoli and the Metropolitan. At the latter house, where she is the chief attraction of Mr. Jack Edgar's New Year bill, she was most warmly greeted, and though exceedingly nervous did justice to her high reputation by her rendering of "The Custom of the Country," her song of Sunny Spain, and her introspective monologue, which we may call "Lady Jane." Marie is wearing some lovely dresses and a wonderful hat, and never looked better.

MISS CECILIA LOFTUS is now associated with Miss Lilian Blauvelt and Mr Maurice Farkoa in the success of the piece, The Magic Knight, at Weber's, New York. It is a musical burlesque of Lohengrin, and a satire at the expense of Wagner, written by Victor Herbert. Signor Caruso has heard it, and laughed heartily. Miss Loftus, who was the Marguerite in Sir Henry Irving's last revival of Faust at the Lyceum, is an admirable example of the theory of heredity. Originally a mimic at the early age of fifteen she appeared as Haydée in Don Juan Junior at the old Gaiety, and has succeeded since in every form of stage play—comedy, burlesque, and fairy piece.

MR. TOM CRAVEN, who will appear next week at the Metropolitan, will, early in February, give Camberwell variety-lovers the chance of witnessing yet another of his numerous productions, in the form of his long-anticipated musical duologue, The Understudy. Mr. Craven has written for this sketch some quite original lyrics, and it contains many striking novelties.

THE next production at the Alhambra is to be a modern and magnificent Monégasque ballet, entitled The Queen of Spades, which is quite ready for presentation. It has been invented by Signor Alfredo Curti and composed by Signor Mario Costa, whose exquisite "La Vie de Pierrot," "La Frangesa," and other melodies have rung throughout Europe. In every detail it will present the greatest possible contrast to the classical L'Amour, still in the zenith of its popularity. Signorina Alexia, a danseuse of great charm, has been specially engaged; and that intelligent mime, Miss Julia Seale, will make a welcome reappearance after a long absence on the Continent, where she has been undertaking most important rôles.

SIGNORINA MARIA BORDIN, having entered into an Italian engagement prior to her début at the Alhambra in June last, the management had perforce to permit her to return temporarily to Milan, where she is prima ballerina assoluta at La Scala, but she is replaced in L'Amour by Signorina Emma Morino, who will also sustain an important rôle in The Queen of Spades.

MR. CHARLES WARNER has been appearing at the Colonial Theatre, New York, and is to be seen at the other vaudeville houses under the management of Mr. Percy G. Williams in the one-act play Heard at the Telephone. The reception accorded to Mr. Warner was enthusiastic in the extreme, his vivid portrayal of mental agony being calculated to stir the blood of the most blasé of theatregoers. In the same bill at the Colonial last week was Mr. Jack Lorimer, Scotch comedian, who made his American début and an unmistakable success simultaneously.

MR. ALBERT CHEVALIER has been the star attraction at the Alhambra Theatre, in Harlem. He, too, has been under engagement to Mr. Percy G. Williams for a few weeks before returning to England, and his songs have been keenly enjoyed and heartily applauded by large audiences.

MRS. PRESTON, the mother of the world-famous Sisters Preston, the Three Prestons, and Belle Preston, celebrated her birthday on New Year's Day at her home in Clapham, and from an early hour the old lady was almost incessantly receiving congratulations from her throng of music hall and theatrical friends.

As a singer of Gaelic songs many years ago, Flora McDonald gained much fame in Scotland and the North of England. When in open competition at the Rotunda, Dublin, she gained first honours for Jacobite singing, her reputation was further added to. Her father was the Rev. Duncan McIntyre—who, by the way, conducted the funeral service over the Right Rev. Donald McLeod—and Mrs. Preston had many of her parents' accomplishments, speaking, besides her native Gaelic, French, Italian, and German. On her recent birthday the duties of host and hostess fell to those talented members of her family—Misses Joanna and Bell and Messrs. George and Jock—who played attendance on the mater as well as looking after the comforts of the houseful of friends. Miss Jessie Preston (Mrs. Jack Sterling) sent a telegraphic message from Rome.

THE Music Hall Ladies' Guild continues to do good work. The lady secretary has received promises from influential friends to get young Courtenay into an orphanage, and quite a large batch of letters have been received containing heartfelt expressions of thanks for boots, clothing, and food received by necessitous applicants during the Christmastide. In some instances the gratitude has been overwhelming. Messrs Spiers and Pond have given great assistance to the Guild, and thanks to the firm are here recorded.

MR. HARRY RELF (Little Tich) concluded a most successful year of office as "King Rat" on Sunday evening, when, on behalf of the popular and influential fraternity, he was presented with a handsome gold medallion, emblazoned with the symbols of the Order, as a souvenir of his presidentship.

MR. HARRY RANDALL has come into the Old Drury production of Sindbad, which he was unable to do on Boxing Night in consequence of a regrettable indisposition, from which he has now happily recovered. He took up his part—which has been played by Mr. Arthur Conquest—on Monday afternoon.

THE Terriers will have their annual dinner and social on Sunday next at their head-quarters, the Dover Castle Hotel. President Jesse Sparrow will be in the chair.

MISS DAISY JAMES, at the Putney Hippodrome, is hitting the popular fancy with her excellent songs, and more especially with her sketch of the Gibson Girl which has both grace and charm to recommend it.

THE 495th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon, when Mr. Joe O'Gorman occupied the chair. Other members present were Messrs. Harry Mountford, Fred Neiman, Harry Blake, Albert Voyce, Douglas White, and Charles Coborn. Dr. J. Gibbe Bent, M.D., of Vollam House, Southfields, was appointed as hon. medical officer and Mr. Harry Fowell, of the Royal Hotel, George-street, Lancaster, as agent. The report of the sub-committee re the dinner and dance was considered, and after alterations had been made, was accepted.

THE latest quotations of music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅛; Canterbury, ⅜; Empire (15s. pd.), 1⅛; ditto (10s. pd.), 1; London Pavilion Ord., 4⅛; ditto, Pref., 5; London Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅜; Moss Empire, 4⅜; ditto, 5 per cent. Pref., 3⅛; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, 15-32; Tivoli, 6⅜; Var. Cons. Theatres, 12s.

MR. JAMES FIONI, the well-known variety agent of Liverpool, has become sole lessee of the Hippodrome, Stalybridge, and has effected various changes, Mr. James D. Williams, late of the Ardwick Empire, Manchester, being appointed conductor of the orchestra, while Mr. W. A. Jackson and Mr. Eugene E. Hardie (the previous manager) undertake the duties appertaining to the general-management.

EXTREMELY sad are the circumstances of the death of Miss Bessie Featherstone. The poor girl must have been very ill when she played the part of Aladdin on Boxing Day, bravely keeping up her spirits and putting a cheerful manner on while struggling against a fell disorder. And the great audience applauding her in the Tyne Theatre, charmed by her smiles and gestures, would have no thought of her terrific efforts against the powers of destruction—would never dream that this clever and accomplished young creature was about to leave the stage for her death-bed!

MISS GWENNIE HASTO, a favourite at the Palace Theatre, is now in the pantomime at King's Theatre, Edinburgh, where her extraordinary fanciful dancing is being rewarded with loud cheers nightly.

THE second annual supper and dance in connection with the Pavilion Theatre, Glasgow, was made the occasion of a presentation from the staff and a few friends of a beautiful diamond ring to Mr. Samuel Lloyd, the manager, and a silver flower-stand to Mrs. Lloyd. Bailie Connell, a leading magistrate in the city, in making the presentation, spoke in eulogistic terms of Mr. Lloyd's excellent work as manager. "The man you know," Mr. W. F. Frame, from the Royal pantomime, caused much merriment by his remarks. Mr. Lloyd, in his reply, commented on the harmonious feeling which existed between the management and staff. Dancing followed, and an enjoyable gathering broke up in the wee sma' hours.

REGRET and sympathy have been evinced in Paisley at the illness of Miss Carrie Foy, the Peter Piper in Mr. J. H. Savile's pantomime of Goody Two-Shoes. The pantomime had only been running for a week when Miss Foy contracted diphtheria, and was taken to the local hospital for infectious diseases, where she is receiving every attention and most careful treatment. Miss Foy proved herself during the short time she was assuming the character of Peter Piper a charming actress, displaying abilities that went far to ensure for her a pantomime triumph.

MR. DAN CRAWLEY has presented Mr. T. W. Connor, the well-known author-composer, with a tea service of silver. Mr. Connor, whose brilliant successes in the song line have been in foremost evidence for very many years, and whose work is much sought after by the first artists of the time, was responsible for many, if not most, of the songs of the late George Beauchamp and Herbert Campbell.

THE site of the new Barnsley Empire, which is to be erected at a cost of £20,000 is about midway between the Queen's Hotel and the Harvey Institute, and opposite the Devonshire Hotel. It is also close to both stations and the tram termini. The building is designed by Messrs North and Robin, whose plans have already passed the authorities. The opening is arranged for August Bank Holiday. The managing director of the company, Mr. Will Smithson, for many years past has been the proprietor of the Theatre Royal and Opera House, Merthyr Tydfil.

MR. BRANSBY WILLIAMS mourns the loss of an uncle, who passed away last week. The actor's success as Fitzwarren at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, has surpassed his most sanguine anticipations, and he is in receipt of tempting offers both for theatre and hall.

CARLTON, who is playing very successfully in Mr. Chute's production of Humpty Dumpty at Bristol, entertained on Saturday night the principals of the pantomime in celebration of his birthday. He made a genial host, and his health was toasted with a three times three.

THE many friends of the popular Mr. Alfred Edwardes, manager of the Hanley Grand Theatre, will regret to hear that he has met with a serious accident. In hastening to catch a car near his residence on Christmas night the slippery state of the road caused him to fall, and he sustained a compound fracture of the ankle. We hope to hear of a rapid recovery.

BARRINGTON, the musical expert, who plays the piano in the most extraordinary positions, has submitted his new act to Mr. Alfred Butt, who has secured him for the Palace, where he commences an engagement of several weeks on the 21st inst.

A VERY dainty and attractive young lady at the New Tivoli Palace, Liverpool, this week is Miss Dolly Andrews, the latest acquisition to the variety stage. We predict a great future for this rising star, as she is rightly termed.

THE wife of Paulus, the famous singer (from whom he was divorced five years ago), brought an action on Saturday claiming the proceeds of the benefit performance recently given for him. She is entitled to £16 a month alimony, but Paulus is too poor to pay it. It was pointed out that the money would be sufficient to buy Paulus an annuity, which would be his only means of support. On the ground that French law forbids a creditor to touch the sole means of livelihood of the debtor, the Court non-suited Mme. Paulus.

MR. D. W. JAMES, solicitor, Tonypandy, writes calling attention to a statement which was made in Mr. Justice Neville's Court on Dec. 14. It was an application for an injunction to restrain Ted and May Hopkins appearing at the Hippodrome, Tonypandy, in alleged breach of an agreement to appear at Perth. Counsel said that "since the proceedings had commenced the female defendant (he understood) had married the manager of the Hippodrome." Mr. James asks us to say that Mr. Harry Baldry (the manager of the Hippodrome) and Miss May Hopkins were married at the Registry Office, Greenwich, on May 21, 1904, and that they have lived together ever since as frequently as Miss Hopkins's engagements have permitted.

MR. D. A. HOLMES presided over the ordinary meeting of Barnum and Bailey, held on Monday at Winchester House, and moved the adoption of the report. He referred to the great loss the company had sustained by the death of Mr. Bailey and the evil affects of competition in America. Mr. Washington Cole, formerly a partner of Phineas T. Barnum, and later of Mr. J. A. Bailey, had been elected managing-director, and he did not think it advisable to declare a dividend.

LITTLE CLIFF, who has fortunately placed his bookings with Mr. Tom Pacey, is booked up for four years, a testimony the value of the vis comica.

A SOLICITOR applied to Mr. Horace Smith, at Westminster on Monday, for licences to enable four young children of ages ranging from 10½ to 13½ years to perform at the Royal Standard. It was arranged that their last performance should begin at 10.20 and last from twenty to twenty-five minutes. Mr. Horace Smith was sure this was too late for young children, and eventually sanctioned an arrangement for the children to be out until 10.30 for a week only.

THE Variety Artists' Federation will hold a general meeting at the small hall of the Horns, Kennington, to-morrow (Sunday) evening, at 7 o'clock. The meeting has been called to consider the advisability of increasing the entrance fee, and only members will be admitted.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD H. LUCAS, who are giving most successfully at the Empire, Birmingham, scenes from "Oliver Twist" and "The Old Curiosity Shop," have received an invitation from the Dickens Fellowship of Hull, where they open on Monday at the Palace.

MR. HERMAN FINCK'S overture, "Melodious Memories," is being played nightly at the Palace Theatre, under the direction of its arranger, with the greatest success. It includes upwards of sixty airs of European fame, and ought to become a favourite with bandmasters, for the music is woven together with a fine sense of contrast, and is also admirably orchestrated.

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. E. C. Milton, of Stack and Milton, a celebrated pair of gymnasts, whose fame as horizontal bar performers was world-wide. Mr. Milton died on his way home, after a two years' engagement in India and China, at the Egyptian Government Hospital, which he entered for the purpose of undergoing an operation.

THE first Yiddish music-hall in London was opened on Tuesday night in Christian-street, Whitechapel, the very heart of the alien quarter. It is called The Princess, and is run on the two-houses-a-night system, the prices of admission ranging from 3d. back rows to reserved seats at 1s. 6d. each. The opening of this new hall has been largely advertised by huge Yiddish and English posters in the East End, and crowds of Russians, Poles, and Germans waited for the opening of the doors.

ACCORDING to the Paris critics, M. Le Bargy sets the fashion in men's clothes in la Ville Lumiere, and we shall be able to judge of his claims to be a modern Beau Brummel when he arrives in London. So far our arbiter of the latest things in masculine matters sartorical, oddly enough, has been a woman—Miss Vesta Tilley—who, it is presumed, will show us some novelties when she appears at the Palace Theatre in about a fortnight's time. When last in New York Miss Tilley's clothes as a male impersonator were so approved of by the American dudes that she was prevailed upon to give a series of lectures on "How to Dress," to men only.

WHEN Miss Vesta Tilley returns to London and to the Palace Theatre in about a fortnight's time she will include in her repertoire a number quite out of her usual line, nothing less than a domestic scena, delicate in sentiment, which should be a decided novelty.

THE Musical Copyright Act seems already to have extinguished the trade in pirated music. Its penalties of fine and imprisonment are extended to "every person who prints, reproduces, or sells, or exposes, offers, or has in his possession, for sale, any pirated copies of any musical work, or has in his possession any plates for the purpose of printing or reproducing pirated copies of any musical work." The police are empowered to arrest without a warrant offenders against the Act upon "a general written authority" given by the owner of the infringed copyright.

THE Lord Mayor's crippled children, who visited the Crystal Palace on Thursday, were presented with buns and apples at Clapham Junction. Upon arriving at the Palace they were conducted to Sanger's Circus, and presented with toys. When taken to the pantomime of Aladdin each child got a packet of chocolate. At the end of the pantomime they had a meat tea prepared by Messrs. Lyons, and then visited other shows.

LITTLE AGNES TINA, the wonderful prodigy that Mr. Jesse Sparrow has discovered, has been making the most extraordinary success at the Empire, Camberwell. Mr. J. L. Shine was so impressed by her wonderful mimicry of his friend, Harry Lauder, and, finding that she had forgotten the wonderful stick that Harry uses in his celebrated song, "Stop your ticklin', Jock," after searching everywhere, had the good luck to find a magnificent stick, even, if possible, better than Harry's, which he presented her as a New Year's gift. The child is delighted, and rewarded him with a most grateful kiss.

MESSRS. SINCLAIR AND PARR, the well-known actor-vocalists, must be congratulated on their most miraculous escape. On Monday night these gentlemen were returning home, having just finished their turn at the Standard and Euston, when their brougham was dashed into by another from the opposite direction. The accident took place right opposite the Town Hall, Kennington Green, and the force of the collision was so great that the coachman who was driving Messrs. Sinclair and Parr was thrown completely up in the air, and landed on his head in the road on the tram lines. His injuries proved so severe that he was at once conveyed to St. Thomas's Hospital. Both carriages were shockingly wrecked. The wheels of the two vehicles got jammed tightly together, and this fortunate circumstance enabled Messrs. Sinclair and Parr to leap promptly out of their carriage, and not only escape injury, but quieten the horse, which was badly cut, and making frantic efforts to bolt.

MISS ADA TWIBELL was specially engaged by Messrs. Little and Darcy for the part of Boy Blue in Red Riding Hood, and is making a big success at the County Theatre, Reading, her songs, "When there isn't a girl about" and "A different girl again" being loudly encored nightly.

MR. MAURICE HERBERT HOFFMAN, theatrical manager, who has filed his own petition in bankruptcy, has been engaged in the theatrical profession for the past eighteen years, and until about four years ago was making an income of £300 or £400 a year. In September, 1902, he became lessee of the Palace Pier Theatre, Brighton, but it was carried on for only seven months, when the lessors took possession owing to the rent not having been paid. The debtor returned his liabilities at £1549 9s. 5d., of which £1189 9s. 5d. were unsecured, and assets nil. He attributed his insolvency to losses at the Palace Pier Theatre. An order for summary administration has been made.

MR. R. A. ROBERTS, who has returned to the Palace Theatre, where he first exploited his quick-change farce, Lucinda's Elopement, under the Morton régime, hails from Liverpool, where he used to perform en amateur. He then joined a local stock company, and after gaining valuable experience, came into Messrs. Maskelyne and Cooke's entertainment as a chapeaugraphist and an entertainer at the piano. Biondi, it will be remembered, on his first appearance at the Tivoli, was seen in a farce written specially for Fregoli, and in another and more original piece he was a failure. Mr. Roberts is his own author, and, as a character actor, is far in advance of the two Italians mentioned.

WE hear of the wonderful success of La Motogirl in Australia, where she has puzzled and delighted audiences at the Opera House, Melbourne, and the Tivoli, Sydney. Mr. Harry Rickards considers her the biggest draw he has ever imported.

THE usual monthly meeting of the Committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held at the York Hotel on Wednesday next at 2 p.m.

MISS FLO HASTINGS has suffered a severe bereavement in the death of her husband, to whom she had been married but two years. She had left the stage, but is now compelled to return, and is anxiously seeking engagements.

LE ROY, TALMA, AND BOSCO are playing to standing-room only at the Colysée Royal, Lisbon, a place holding over 7000 people. There are ninety-nine private boxes—one short of the hundred—and on Christmas night the place was literally packed. It was, indeed, the largest audience the clever trio have ever played to.

MISS CONSTANCE MOXON'S monologue, A Toff for Ten Minutes, has been rebooked by Mr. Geo. Adney Payne and Mr. Henri Gros for all their halls, and her date-book is fast filling up at other halls.

DAN LENO, JUN., the son of the late famous comedian of the same name, has been secured by Mr. Will Collins, the district-manager for Moss' Empires London circuit, to appear at Hackney, Holloway, Stratford, Shepherd's Bush, and New Cross Empires at an early date. The young comedian bears a striking likeness to his father, and as he will essay the identical business his parent made so popular with the British public, and will, furthermore, be seen as an expert dancer, there can be scarcely any doubt of his success.

MLLE. GHITA CORRI, who was specially engaged by Mr. Frank Macnaghten to produce her new seasonable scena at the Palace, Blackburn, last week, where she achieved an unqualified success, is the principal vocalist at the Birmingham Town Hall to-night (Saturday), where she sings Senta's Ballad (Flying Dutchman) and Verdi's "Ernani, involami," at the New Year's Festival Concert given by the Philharmonic Choral Society.

MR. FRED BOWYER'S new sketch, Crystal Gazing, is realising all the good things that were said about it when launched at the Hackney Empire. At Nottingham this week a local paper refers to it as being "like the scent of new-mown hay." Mr. W. H. Day and Miss Laura Dyson have worked their parts up splendidly.

MR. ALFRED LESTER (of Scene-shifter and Gaiety fame), who will return to the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, in March next, has commissioned Messrs. Harrington and Tate to write him a new scena, and has also "placed" several orders for songs of a novel character with the same author and composer.

THE directors of the Empire have decided to present another series of living pictures and statuary, which it may be remembered were so popular when first introduced at the premier variety theatre in Leicester-square. The new series, which is now in preparation by Mr. Wilhelm, will include in the first instance popular masterpieces by eminent British artists, largely selected from the Tate Gallery and private collections. Among them, to mention only a few, will be representative works of Watts, Millais, Leighton, Alma-Tadema, Marcus Stone, Sargent, and Dicksee. Marble statuary and bronzes will also be well represented. The first production of these life-like reproductions will take place in about three weeks' time.

AFTER the football match between All England and all France at Richmond this afternoon both teams have been invited to visit the Empire, where Mr. Harry Hitchens intends giving the boys a good time.

WHEN speaking of the Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Bedouin Arabs, an alleged "critic" once dismissed them with the commendation that "the steeds did great credit to their trainers!" They open an engagement in Paris at the Cirque Métropole next week, and this prevents them remaining with the pantomime at Derby, in which they have scored a conspicuous success.

THE corporation of the progressive borough of Southend-on-Sea are already making arrangements for their next season's entertainments on the East Parade Bandstand, and invite offers for one or three years, from Easter Saturday, March 30, to Sept. 30 (Sundays excluded). Lessees of the enclosure will be permitted to place chairs round the bandstand and charge for their use, and also to make collections.

AT the Queen's, Poplar, on Monday evening, Mr. Jack Woolf will produce a sketch on the subject of "Lady Audley's Secret." Mrs. Bennett is to appear as Lady Audley, and Mr. Albert Ward will play the principal male rôle. Mr. Woolf informs us that it is to be an elaborate production as to scenery and mounting. Mr. Woolf will also present for the first time on Monday at the Queen's a dramatic playlet, entitled Monte Carlo, in which Mrs George Daventry will take the leading woman's part.

MISS CARRIE LAURIE brought nine of her performing children to the North London Court on Saturday and asked Mr. Fordham to license them for a week's show at the Hackney Empire. She had the necessary certificates of physical fitness. Mr. Fordham thought 10.30 was altogether too late for children eleven years of age. They ought to be in bed at nine o'clock. He would license them until 9.30.

OWING to the great success of Mr. J. L. Shine with Hogmanay at the Empire, Camberwell, this week, he has been re-engaged for next week, when he will produce a new and original one-act sketch, written by himself, entitled An Actor's Art. In this sketch Mr. Shine will play seven characters.

LADY HALDON has secured the rights of Arthur Shirley's very realistic sketch, Two Pictures, and will produce it on Monday at the Chelsea Palace. It is said to be strong in situations and intensely human.

DR. A. AMBROSE, coroner, has been informed of the death, by suffocation, through an escape of gas, of a dwarf lad, named Larkins, who was attached to a company performing at the Walthamstow Palace. The lad appears to have neglected to turn the gas quite off in the bedroom at the house at which he was lodging, and was found dead in bed the next morning.

A CONTRIBUTION of eleven shillings has been sent in by Mr. George Smythson, and clothing, books, and Christmas cards have been received from Mrs. Barnett.

AT the Putney Hippodrome at matinée performance has been instituted every Thursday, and the first of these took place on the 3rd inst.

MISS ELSIE EARLE has again scored another great success this week at West Bromwich, in her song-scena, Holly and Mistletoe, which is blessed with a most picturesque setting. She intends to produce other song-scenas on a more extensive scale. Elsie made her first appearance when three years old in Hans the Boatman, and has played in Two Little Vagabonds, East Lynne, Kitty Grey, The Lady Slavey, The Belle of New York, The Country Girl, and in the pantomimes Dick Whittington, Aladdin, Babes in the Wood, &c.

MISS CONNIE EDISS, who starts for the Cape on Saturday next with the Springboks, has this week purchased no fewer than four more specially-written songs from Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate, wherewith to start her forthcoming campaign in South Africa. These are entitled, "I did it very well," "Painting," "Little girl from Paris," and "Pity," and complete a total of six numbers written and composed for the Gaiety Girl by these popular writers.

THE beautiful Princess Estelle de Broglie, wife of Prince Robert de Broglie, has been engaged to appear at the Tivoli on Monday next, when she will make her first professional appearance at a variety hall in Europe. Prince Robert is the scion of a Royal family dating back to the Holy Roman Empire. His grandfather was the late Duke Albert de Broglie, Minister of Foreign Affairs, Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and holder of many other high offices in France; and Duke Albert's grandfather was one of the principal lieutenants of Lafayette in America, being afterwards guillotined by Robespierre.

THE circumstances attending the marriage of the Prince and Princess were exceedingly romantic. She was the beautiful Estelle Alexander, a Californian girl, singing with the Opéra Comique company in Paris; and a few days after her meeting the Prince, they eloped and went to Milan, where they were married. The Prince's father, on hearing of his son's alliance, became furious, and immediately disinherited him. Forgiveness, however, was promised if he would renounce his bride and have the marriage annulled according to French law; but this offer the bridegroom peremptorily refused, and, in order to earn a subsistence, the young couple determined on the stage, and at the Tivoli the Prince will lead the orchestra, while the Princess, a cultured vocalist, with a voice of exceptional quality, will render a number of songs.

AUSTRALIA, India, and Africa have been the scenes of such songs as "The Miner's Dream," "India's Reply," and "Bravo! Dublin Fusiliers," but Ceylon is chosen for "The Planter's Reverie," which Mr. Leo Dryden will produce on Monday at the Palace, Walthamstow. A young tea-planter has just received letters from home, one of which describes a jolly night in London. In his reverie the planter pictures a night in the West with the boys, when the native servant enters to announce "tiffin" (lunch). He observes a bottle of whisky on the side table, and, under the impression that "sahib" is asleep, helps himself liberally, and commences to beat a gong, arousing the planter from his day-dream and scampering off. The Britisher recounts his reverie in song, when the boy returns bedecked with an old top-hat, and, under the influence of the spirit, sings in comical fashion the chorus of the song. Something similar occurred to Mr. Dryden at Colombo when en route to Australia in 1905.

MANY members of the musical profession will sincerely regret to hear of the death of Mr. Edward Crosse, the originator of the Anglo-Hungarian Band, who died in the dawn of the New Year at his residence in Gloucester-crescent, Regent's Park, after an illness of nine months. The career of the deceased gentleman was one of strenuous work from his early youth. When not more than twenty-three years of age he succeeded Mr. James Weaver as chef d'orchestre at the Alexandra Opera House, Park-street, Camden Town, which afterwards became the Park Theatre, and assisted at the début of Mr. J. W. Turner, the now veteran tenor, at that house, in Marguerite, an operetta by Mr. Thorpe Pede. He composed the ballet music for the first pantomime at the same house, and later became connected with George Sanger, as musical conductor at old Astley's, where he composed and arranged the music of at least two pantomimes.

MR. CROSSE, in 1879, was appointed musical-director of the Philharmonic, then run as a music hall, with Mr. Alfred Young as manager. Mr. Arthur Roberts, then a rapidly-rising comedian, was a star of the programmes at the Islington house, where, as a Christmas novelty, the late Frank Hall wrote a comic version of "Lalla Rookh," for which the music was composed and arranged by the deceased. In the early 'eighties he was musical-director for a time at the Comedy, and for a short season at the Trafalgar-square Theatre, and Toole's.

IN 1884 he started an English band devoted to the interpretation of Hungarian music, and to the acquirement of memory programmes; and before long he had not only acquired a mastery of the national Hungarian instrument, the czimbalo, but could boast of a répertoire of concert and dance music which his orchestra could play without a note in front of them.

AMONG those who played for him were Mr. Karl Kaps, Mr. Herman Finck, Rudersdorff (a clever 'cellist), and many other musicians who have attained to good positions in the profession. It was he who arranged the celebrated minuet which was danced at the Duchess of Devonshire's in the year of the Diamond Jubilee, and when Mr. Beerbohm Tree was producing Trilby Mr. Crosse was consulted respecting the music, which our readers will remember is Hungarian in the celebrated scene just previous to the death of Svengali. The deceased always retained his love for the highest forms of instrumental music, and nothing delighted him more than sharing the pleasures of playing in a quartet of Beethoven or Mozart at his own house. A staunch friend, a genial comrade, and a good fellow, Edward Crosse will be much missed by a large circle and by his sorrowing wife and family. He died at the age of 56.

MISS HILDA JACOBSON, the well-known musical comedy favourite, is the principal attraction on next week's bill at the Glasgow Empire. As patrons of the Empire well know, Miss Jacobson has a most melodious voice, and is a great favourite in the city on the Clyde. Miss Hilda Jacobson first appeared on the stage with her cousin, Miss Julia Neilson, but it was her work in Florodora at the Lyric which brought her into wide public notice. At Edinburgh last year Hilda had a most unpleasant experience. The house at which she was staying caught fire in the middle of the night, and she just escaped from the flames to stand out in the street for three hours with—how shall we put it?—nothing but her "nighty" on, or precious little more.

MR. H. CURLINE BALDRY, general manager of the Hippodrome, Tonypandy, writes as follows:—"On Nov. 19 I had a sketch here, entitled The Collar Stud, and during the week two of the members—Messrs. Elliott and Hall—contracted double pneumonia, resulting in Mr. Hall's death and leaving Mr. Elliott stranded in this town for the last nine weeks. I have much pleasure, however, in stating that I succeeded in collecting £6 1s. 6d., which I have handed to the Rev. Greenaway of this town, and enabled Mr. Elliott to get to London. I desire to thank the artists who so readily came to my assistance."

MISS ADELA CRISPIN, now fulfilling her first pantomime engagement at Paisley, was the last Dolly in the evergreen Will, the Witch, and the Watchman, upon its recent revival at St. George's Hall. During her association with Maskelyne and Cooke for some years past Miss Crispin has taken part in all their recent sketches and illusions, and was the original Mascot Moth, as well as the original lady medium of Mental Magnetism.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MISS CLARICE MAYNE, the charming comedienne and mimic, in addition to her successful mimetic entertainment, is nightly singing at the Oxford and Paragon with the greatest possible success Messrs. Pelham, Butts, and Rule's comedy ditty, "She didn't come from Borneo," which is published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Company, in their "Sixpenny Successes."

"I'VE built a bamboo bungalow for you" is now being extensively sung on the American stage in vaudeville, and latest advices to hand from Mr. Fred Day (representing Messrs. Francis and Day in New York) to the publishers of the song, the Monte Carlo Publishing Company, record its complete success in unequivocal terms. Mr. Day also speaks most hopefully of the American future of three other songs published by the same firm, viz., Mr. Ernest Shand's "Dearly beloved brethren," "I'm thinking always of you," and "Rosie is waiting."

MR. FRED ERICK writes:—"As the paragraph in your issue of Dec. 22, in which you stated that the popularity of the song, 'I can't make it out, can you?' was 'a feather in the cap of Fred Erick' was unsolicited by me, I would be pleased if you would kindly publish the enclosed facts in answer to Mr. Bert Delmar. I have been working the song for the last eighteen months with great success in London and the provinces, and my assignment from Mr. Delmar makes over to me the sole London rights, it being stipulated also that in case of publication my name must be given as the original singer."

"MY SUGAR-PLUM," by Harry Dacre, though only written in November last, has contrived to secure a place in many of the best pantomimes, and the "Successful Song Syndicate," who are running Mr. Dacre for all he is worth (and that is a good deal), inform us that copies are in great demand. The success of the song in Glasgow and elsewhere has induced a number of artists to take it up, and in a few weeks it is anticipated that the "boy in the street" and the ubiquitous piano-organ will be doing their best to cloy us with the sweetness of the "Sugar-Plum."

THE last nights of the old year will not readily be forgotten at the headquarters of the "Sixpenny Pops" in Denmark-street, for the "wise virgins" of the music trade were stocking their shelves with copies of Messrs. Francis and Day's popular numbers in view of the 50 per cent. advance in wholesale price, which took effect on Jan. 1. For some weeks prior every item in the catalogue of over 300 numbers had been stocked in huge quantities, necessitating the employment of struts to hold up the extensive floors, and the pro tem. hiring of a large warehouse close by to act as a "chapel of ease"; the permanent staff was augmented, and the rush was waited for. It came.

MANAGER JOHN SMITH has witnessed many periods of stress and struggle when a great popular song has been in public demand—and Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have published many such—but never before experienced so arduous a time or had so herculean a task to cope with. Demands for trifles of seventy, eighty, and ninety thousand copies had to be put on one side, while bulkier orders were got out of the way, and at four printing establishments weary overseers night and day watched rocking floors of machines vomiting forth gigantic reprints of the entire catalogue, the while frantic papermakers begged per telephone from mill to mill for paper from friendly co-traders.

ALL the vast crowd of personal applicants for copies were at length satisfied, and the myriad orders by wire and letter attended to—(one big provincial buyer is reputed to have taken an empty granary near Manchester in which to stock his order)—and Mr. Smith was at length thankful to be able to end several "all-night sittings" with an extra special "watch night" service of hard work, dismiss his tired staff, and reach home at Willesden in time to wish the milkman a Happy New Year.

MISS KITTY WAGER'S song, "The girls at the Penny Bazaar," by Albert Hall and Fred Poplar, has proved a tremendous hit at the Metropolitan, the habitués of which fine hall dearly love a singable chorus. It has been published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MR. ERNEST SHAND has just accepted from the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., who during the last few weeks have issued thirty songs, a new song, entitled "When the stars are shining bright," the music being by the popular American composer, Jean Schwartz, and the lyrics adapted by Gilbert Wells. This song will be produced next week.

MR. BERT COOTE'S Kiddies are featuring "My Dixieland Daisy," with a special version written by Mr. Coote himself, in their Fatal Wedding troupe, and also on the halls. This number will shortly be published by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

THE fine rendering at Glasgow by Miss May Mars of "I want Molly," by F. W. Leigh and T. W. Thurban, has resulted in very large orders for copies from Messrs. Francis and Day, the publishers of the song.

MISS MADGE LESSING, on the Stoll tour, has been delighting holiday audiences with her delightful singing of that droll Dutch character ditty called "Henry Klein," a successful importation of Messrs. Francis and Day from America.

MISS LILY HAROLD, who has made a big success in the song, "Snowflakes," in pantomime at Terry's, will, after the run, produce the morceau at a leading hall, with special scenery, effects, and assistants. Messrs. Francis and Day have a steady and increasing demand for this pretty number.

MR. WILLIAM FRANCIS, JUN., who so ably acts as lieutenant to Mr. Fred Day in the control of the New York branch of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, landed in England a few days since, in view of his father's serious illness.

THE demand for Messrs. Francis and Day's "Sixpenny Pops" in Australia is a fast-growing one, and the great and well-known house of Allan and Co. Proprietary, Ltd., of Melbourne, are printing large editions daily by arrangement with the London firm. Among the songs in greatest demand are "Hear the Pipers calling, Jenny mine," "Wooden hut," "In the shade of the old apple tree," "Walking home with Angeline," "Starlight," and "Teasing."

THE Plymouth Borough Coroner, on Monday last, held an inquest on Frederick Wallace, aged 69, the part-proprietor of a music hall in Martin-street, Plymouth, who committed suicide by hanging on the preceding Saturday. From the evidence it appeared that the music hall had been by no means a success, and this had unhinged deceased's mind. He had some time previously threatened to take his life, but his threat was not regarded seriously. A verdict of "Suicide whilst temporarily insane" was returned.

MR. GEORGE CASEY made a great success as Dame in Cullen and Carthy's pantomime Babes in the Wood, "Waiting at the church" being one of the hits of the show.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

"Where are the Christmas novelties, where the seasonable attractions?" asks the praiser of times past. "Not all at the theatres, I hope," replies the variety lover, feeling somewhat anxious lest his favourite halls should be left without what is generally known as suitable fare, through the effulgence of so many of the stars irradiating the sphere of pantomime. Mr. Alfred Butt has been able to easily meet the demand for special attractions for the holidays by putting on the immensely popular Mr. R. A. Roberts—whom we last saw in London at the Coliseum—in an entirely new production, entitled Ringing the Changes. This is absolutely the best thing this remarkable performer has accomplished, either in the way of character-acting or quick-changing, and we have no need of Italian or foreign artists to play the part of a modern Proteus while we possess Roberts, whose "story of quaint deception" is told nightly to an accompaniment of laughter and applause. The action takes place in Diddler's Chambers, Bloomsbury. James Diddler, to please his uncle, Major Wagstaffe, has taken to the law, but prefers Ruff's "Turf Guide" and the racecourse to the study of evidence. The Major is quite satisfied if he looks in occasionally and sees his young relative quietly seated at a table reading; and Diddler, knowing this, has an exact counterpart of himself made in wax, and, with the help of an Italian chef, the deception is quite successful. With the figure silence is golden, and a Sphinx-like nod of acquiescence is all the conversation attempted by him when his clients consult him. The Major has been "ensnared" by Miss Flossie de Vere; but he is disentangled by the testimony of a cabman. There are eight characters in all, each of them played with a greater finesse and delicacy than Mr. Roberts has exhibited before. Mrs. Priscilla Wiggins is a rich and unctuous creation—not more so, perhaps, than the clever sketch of the actor of the old school. Mr. Roberts has caught, too, with great exactness, the manner and speech of the "ikey" cab-driver of the present day, between whom and the Jehu of twenty years ago there is as much difference as exists between the conductors of a horsed 'bus and a Vanguard. The dialogue is excellent, and far above anything that Mr. Roberts has yet given us. Ringing the Changes, indeed, is a delightful entertainment, and will greatly increase the reputation of its author, both as writer and actor. The music, by Mr. Herman Finck, adds considerably to the attractions of the novelty.

Christmas Eve is an artless episode by Mr. Harry M. Vernon, who has borrowed his ideas mostly from Editha's Burglar, a playlet that had an excellent run both at the theatres and halls some dozen years ago, the late Mr. Harry D. Burton making an excellent reputation as the cracksman. The burglar in Christmas Eve, strangely enough, is about to "crack a crib" that isn't worth the trouble, as little Barbara Dorchester, the only occupant of the combined room, is the daughter of a man who is doing time, and her mother, a hard-working actress, has been compelled to take all her valuables to the pawnshop. Jim Tubbs, who is not blessed with much variety of phrase in his conversations with the child, recognises an old pal of the gaol-yard in her father, and immediately plays the part of Santa Claus by putting twopence in her stocking. Miss Marie Montague plays Barbara very prettily, and Mr. Irve Hayman appears as the burglar.

Chirgwin, now happily quite recovered from his attack of influenza, is quite in his old form; and Little Tich's special engagement is being fulfilled by that unique little comedian in a way that has already established him a firm favourite at the fine house in Shaftesbury-avenue. Princess Trixie delights the youngsters by her equine amiability and high intelligence. Her spelling feats are quite remarkable—not more so than her feats in matching colours.

The Bioscope is just now projecting a fine series of pictures on the screen—pictures that have been obtained at great expense through the exertions and skill of operators specially sent to South Africa. We now see the hippopotamus in his lair, and the hunt of the enormous river-hog, his pursuit, his capture, and the killing of him supply a thrilling and most interesting succession of films. A sportsman and his native guide are first seen stalking the big game, and the creature is as lively a specimen of pachyderm as one would wish to meet. A fascinating and enthralling subject indeed! Other turns in the programme are Evan Evans, Welsh comedian; Parney and Jenkins, eccentric comedians; Mimi Nevada, vocalist; the Palace Girls; Florence Yaymen, a smart dancer and coon parodist; Alexandre, bird imitator; and Les Molasso, a quartet of extraordinary dancers.

THE TIVOLI.

The "coming of Arthur" to the Tivoli has been synonymous with good business, and large audiences have been laughing heartily at Mr. Herbert Shelley's burlesque, Robbing Hood, in which the oratorically funny Roberts plays the part of Robin Waller, without any apology whatever to Lewis at the Lyric. We have lately seen the gay, insouciant comedian as an Imperial Roman, now we see him as an archer, who draws a bow at a venture and brings down "a spring chicken" already trussed, which is hastily despatched to George Edwardes at the Gaiety. Maid Marian he, of course, rescues many a time and oft, but is unable to prevent her marriage with a peer—a "baron" honour of which she wishes to rid herself by divorce. The case is tried in the last scene with the outlaw of Sherbert Forest as judge and Friar Tuck as advocate. Robin also becomes a suffragette, and "behaves as sich." The scheme of travesty is such that it may be continually added to, and the almost endless resources of Mr. Arthur Roberts in the matter of gag may be trusted to increase the fun at every opportunity. Miss Ruby Celeste plays Maid Marian with a sense of humour; Mr. Charles Goold is an excellent Friar Tuck; the Sheriff of Nottingham is represented with sufficient malapertness by Mr. Chris Van Bern; and Miss Evie Reid is a droll Cupid. The scenery by Bruce Smith includes well-painted pictures of the Heart of Sherbert Forest, the Turret of Not-in-'Em Castle, and Ye Olde Village of Aldwych. Mr. Willie Clarkson has supplied some excellent costumes.

Miss Nellie Wallace, who is now quite an established favourite with the Tivoli patrons, exercises her eccentric style in the song called "In the cottage with the roses at the door"—a dwelling that is not so Arcadian in its simplicity as the title would seem to suggest. "I can't go to sleep" is another of Miss Wallace's humorous numbers. Datas, the memory man, is quite at home at the Tivoli, where he seems to be, if we may say so, more in touch with his audiences than is the case in a larger area. He is quite happy in his replies, and those who try to be funny at his expense—and there are always would-be humorists in a music hall gallery—are easily shut up by his retorts. Miss Amber Austa presents a most original turn, and eccentricity is largely and profitably developed by her during her act, in which she wears a very charming dress. Her turn is evidently growing in favour, and deservedly so. Precisely the same praise may be given to Herbert La Martine, a wonderful dancer, whose eccentric acrobatic solo is a thing to be seen. We think Herbert will be making his movements even more eccentric than they are at present. His bâton manipulation is positively bewildering in its smartness.

Miss Alice Raymond, who has before been heard at a Strand music hall—to wit, the Lyceum—is about the cleverest lady instrumentalist at present on the variety stage, and her double and triple-tonguing in the "Columbia Polka" on the cornet is a clever exhibition of the art of playing that difficult instrument. She is joined by Mr. John Kurkamp, who temporarily directs the orchestra, in the famous "Miserere" scene from Il Trovatore, and another selection from the same opera is "The Anvil Chorus," which is exceedingly well given. Mr. Charles Norton and Miss Clarice Mayne are both clever mimics. Clark and Hamilton repeat their pretty scena, Chrysanthemum; Dutch Daly's jokes bear the complexion of old favourites; and Miss Marie Lloyd, who made her reappearance on Monday, was acclaimed with enthusiasm, and was rewarded with a magnificent bouquet. Other turns in Mr. Wilson's scheme of holiday amusement are Tambo and Tambo, and Ryder Slone.

THE CANTERBURY.

"The old firm" has been relied upon by the Canterbury management for the provision of the Christmas novelty, and well has Mr. Joe Elvin sustained his reputation as a fun-maker. The new sketch, which has been written by Frank Couch and Wal Pink, is entitled Trespassers Beware! and introduces Mr. Elvin as a cockney lover of aquatics who has a day on the river, loses the rudder of the boat, and lands on the lawn of one of the riverside residences, the owner of which is for the moment absent. The sculler falls into the water, and is rescued by means of a boathook by a couple of "welshers" who have just fled from a neighbouring racecourse. The bookmakers pick up a sealed letter from the solicitors of the owner of the house, a retired Indian Army officer, warning him that some relations in Calcutta dispute his right to the property, and are going to take forcible possession. The tipsters use the letter as a means of extracting a sovereign from the oarsman, and induce him, on the promise of a reward, to take care of the house during their absence. The only suit of clothes he can find to change for his own dripping garments is an Indian officer's uniform, and thus arrayed receives the real owner, and, at the point of his cutlass, runs him into an adjoining hothouse. The spot has been selected as the scene of the construction of a picture by the Calcutta Cinématograph Company, and when the actors arrive, the name of their firm is sufficient to mark them out as the prey of the vigilant caretaker, who promptly compels them to join the other captive. A "handcuff king" comes along, and he is forced to chain all the prisoners together, and march them off to the station-house, while the caretaker remains triumphantly "on guard." The sketch is effectively written, and possesses a freshness which is very welcome. As the cockney oarsman, Mr. Elvin has a part in which the singularities of his style are thoroughly employed. From the moment he emerges half-drowned from the water to the time he parades his unfortunate victims in chains, laughter is incessant, and the droll incidents multiply so fast as to allow no rest to the risibilities. Mr. Elvin is well supported by the members of his company, and the sketch, which is brightened by Mr. Kenneth Lyle's music, has a pretty riverside set, provided by Mr. Syd Cook.

The holiday bill is one which reflects the skill in selection possessed by Mr. Geo. Adney Payne and his general-manager, Mr. Fred Miller. Among the artists best received is Mendel, the blind pianist, who begins his marvellous entertainment with the First Movement of Mendelssohn's No. 1 Concerto, which was deliciously played. A repetition of a piece played by an entire stranger is then given, and on the night of our visit took a most difficult form, but was successfully accomplished. Improvisations of Liszt on the fine old ballad, "Killarney," were also furnished, and the remarkable performance concluded by the playing of two tunes on the piano at one time, while the performer himself sang a third. Mendel was throughout applauded to the echo. A hit of no uncertain kind is also made by Mr. Harry Marte, a smart comedian, who sings a good song and dances in a way that moves the Canterbury critics to enthusiasm.

A capital chorus song has been secured by Miss Marie Kendall, in "England is good enough for me," while humour is imparted into the song "Go away!" which Miss Kendall also turns to topical purposes, with the result that encore verses have to be added. Mr. Chris Richards revels in eccentricity in his ditties and dances. His antics are many and various, and the comic surprises which he has in store keep the audience constantly in laughter. "Pro's at the Races" are pictured by Mr. Charles Norton, who shines conspicuously as a mimic. His counterfeit presentments of Joe Elvin, Eugene Stratton, R. G. Knowles, Wilkie Bard, Chirgwin, and Gus Elen, who all arrive on a racecourse, approach very nearly to the originals, and the merit of the impersonations is cordially recognised. Mr. Rex Fox is intrepid and versatile, and well deserves the title of "Wire King"; Miss Nellie Wallace gives a couple of songs, to which her quaint personality and droll style lend the utmost piquancy; the Gotham Comedy Quartet are welcome contributors to any variety bill; and the long programme also embraces the Four Aces, acrobats; Mr. Phil Ray, comedian; the Sisters Caselli, speciality dancers; Miss Alice Raymond, cornetist; Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope; Valazzi, "cannon ball king"; and Mr. Wallace Selkirk's juvenile spectacle, In Bonnie Scotland, a remarkable fact about which is that the whole of the children engaged in the spectacle are from the parish of Lambeth, and have been trained by Mr. Selkirk in one week.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

The Holloway Empire management have started the New Year with an excellent programme, in which the leading place is taken by Mrs. Brown Potter and company, in the historical sketch, by Kennedy Cox, entitled Mary Queen of Scots, and the Murder of Rizzio. This is taken from the play which was produced at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, a few months ago, and it forms an admirable sketch, with a thrilling, sensational scene to wind up with. The scene is the Queen's supper room, Holyrood Palace, and, when the curtain rises, Mary's only companion is the Italian, Rizzio, Her Majesty's partiality for whom has aroused the jealousy of her husband, Lord Darnley. Rizzio is a handsome youth, and delights his Royal mistress by singing to her songs which remind her of Italy, the charming land of which she was a resident for some years. From another part of the ancient Palace a sound of revelry proceeds; and this is explained by the fact that my Lord Darnley is engaged in entertaining some of his boon companions. The Queen and her secretary are about to engage in certain business of State, when they are startled by the tramp of armed men, and a loud knock at the door. Lord Rivers demands admission, and, on a refusal from the Queen, threatens to gain an entrance by force. Rizzio blows out the wax candles, and conceals himself in a recess behind a curtain. Lord Rivers is then admitted, and, in spite of the Queen's protests, proceeds to make a search of Her Majesty's private apartments, even her bedroom, when Rizzio springs from his place of concealment, and is seized by the troopers under the command of Lord Rivers. The Queen pleads in vain for her favourite. His Lordship stabs the struggling prisoner to the heart, and with a smothered groan he falls dead. The Queen is left alone with the murdered man, and on this scene the curtain falls. Mrs. Brown Potter gives a vivid portrayal of Mary Queen of Scots, realising with the skill of an accomplished and experienced actress the pathos which underlies the part of the unhappy woman, who was soon herself to meet a violent death. Charm of manner and a dignified bearing in the presence of Lord Darnley's emissaries, are leading features of an impressive performance. The gentleman who represents Rizzio sings a couple of songs in admirable style; and the part of Lord Rivers is also well played.

Another notable item in the current bill is the appearance of Messrs. Verno and Voyce, in their vocal burlesque, entitled Jack Sheppard; or, The Burglary at the Grange. Jack, with the assistance of Blueskin, burgles the old mansion, but discovering his mother's portrait, becomes sentimental, and restores the property to its rightful owner, declaring he will not rob the people who were kind to his maternal parent. Mr. Albert Voyce, the author of the burlesque, gives a capital portrayal of Jack Sheppard, and Mr. A. W. Verno plays and sings the part of Blueskin most effectively. Both meet with a highly favourable reception.

AMES & ROLLINSON, N.Y.

SCROLL PRESENTED TO MR. T. P. O'CONNOR.

The above scroll was handed to Mr. T. P. O'Connor at the ERA Offices on Tuesday by Mr. Charles Warren, the London representative of the firm of Witmarks, on behalf of the Music Publishers' Association of America.

Mr. C. St. John Denton and George Rowlands' company of juveniles is here on a return visit, and is again appearing in The Punch and Judy Girl. The youngsters play their parts with much spirit, singing and dancing in a manner that gives the impression they are enjoying the fun and frolic. Little Marjorie Lawrence again distinguishes herself by her remarkable dancing. The Giretti Sisters are applauded for their graceful and daring gymnastic performance up aloft; and the lady and gentleman known as Les Voces sing "Killarney" and other selections with marked success. Kahn and Kahn have won a high reputation for a clever conjuring act, in which all the tricks are neatly accomplished; and one of the two appearing subsequently as Professor Dunning, affords agreeable evidence of his powers as a ventriloquist. Mr. Jack Camp sings a burlesque ballad, and cracks jokes concerning himself with his usual quaint solemnity of expression and manner, winning abundance of applause. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden appear with decided success in their well-acted duologue, Two to One, in which the former plays two characters. The American Bioscope pictures illustrate a story of deception, the culprit being a married man, and "A Difficult Problem," an amusing episode. The front of the house continues to receive the careful supervision of Mr. Chas. W. Adams; and Mr. Forbes Russell is the capable musical-director.

THE DUCHESS, BALHAM.

The record business that was done at this popular hall during the Christmas holidays does not at present show any sign of falling off, and the capital and interesting programme that Manager Ross is presenting to his patrons this week is proving a huge draw. At the top of the bill are Joe Elvin and company, in a laughable sketch entitled Two for Three-halfpence, which is having a most hearty reception. The inimitable Joe causes roars of laughter for his impersonations of the absent husband, and whilst he is on the stage he fairly makes one's sides ache. Unfortunately, the sketch is only a short one, and the end, which comes all too soon, is the signal for applause of the most hearty description. Gladys Mavius, a regular Balham favourite, is making one of her periodical visits to this hall, and judging by the applause that greets her number she has lost none of her old popularity. She is giving a couple of capital numbers, "The land across the sea" and "Rosie's waiting for me," the choruses of which are taken up in no half-hearted manner. In her second number she has the assistance of a very clever little artist, in whom nerves seem to be an unknown quantity, and who sings and dances as if she were quite an old hand at the game.

Unfortunately, Barney Stuart was unable to put in an appearance on the evening of our visit, but a most efficient substitute was found in Mr. G. H. Elliott, who proved himself to be the possessor of a very fine voice, which he used with considerable effect in the song "Loo, Loo." Howard and Collinson, who may always be sure of a most hearty welcome here, are again delighting Balhamites with their interesting and novel show, entitled The Porter and the Parcel. One of the brightest and best turns of the evening is that of pretty Lucy Weston, a charming comedienne, who is singing a couple of very amusing songs, entitled "Not quite sure" and "As you walk down the Strand." The scoring powers of these are greatly enhanced by the demure way in which Lucy sings them. A perfect storm of applause awaits her at the conclusion of her turn, and she has many times to bow her acknowledgments. Clown Barker, assisted by Miss Rozsika and a number of highly-trained animals, is nightly presenting an entertainment which is always popular. His clever canines are almost human in their sagacity, and his "bucking" donkey also adds considerably to the fun. Gus Garrick proves himself to be a most capable mimic, with a very original manner. He is giving capital impersonations of several of our leading musical artists, including Sam Mayo, Harry Champion, and a Scotch comedian. He brings his turn to a conclusion with a most laughable burlesque of La Belle Otero, giving also the favourite Parisian dance, "La Maxixe." The original manner in which he does this fairly convulses the house, and the applause he obtains is certainly well-earned. Los Rupertos are a couple of acrobats whose style is neat and facile, and whose turn is marked by many original and clever tricks, which they perform with surprising dexterity. The Mozondos, with their amusing barrel tumbling-act, are well received; and a pleasant evening is brought to a conclusion by a series of entertaining pictures on the Bioscope depicting "Fox-hunting." From the first to the last this series is followed with great interest. The orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Charles Longmaid, adds considerably to the enjoyment of the evening. Manager Ross, who has recently been down with a slight attack of pleurisy, has again returned to welcome his many friends.

SOUTH LONDON PALACE.

POOR CHILDREN'S PERFORMANCE.

For several years past the management of the South London Palace have organised a New Year's free treat for the poor children of Southwark. Mr. William Payne, who in the middle of last year was appointed manager on the death of Mr. Frank Weeks, carried out this pleasant custom on Tuesday afternoon, when some four thousand children were entertained at the popular music hall in London-road. The Mayor of Southwark (Ald. R. D. Hilton, J.P.), the deputy-Mayor (Ald. M. R. C. Davis), and the ex-Mayor (Ald. J. O. Devereux), Councillors R. W. Bowers and E. T. Hall, and other aldermen and councillors of the borough were present, in addition to Mr. R. K. Causton, M.P.

During an interval many of these gentlemen appeared on the stage, and were introduced by Mr. William Payne, who made a brief speech, in which he said how delighted he was to see the children enjoying themselves, and that they had to thank the Mayor and the other gentlemen on the committee for assisting in the arrangements connected with the entertainment.

The Mayor stated that he, too, was pleased to be in the theatre that afternoon; and Mr. Causton, M.P., thanked his Worship for his presence and for his kindly help, and asked the children to give a ringing cheer for the management of the South London.

The youngsters were provided with tea and buns, cakes, oranges, and apples both as they entered the building and as they left. The various artists who appeared before them could not have had a more enthusiastic and appreciative audience. The programme was just such an one that the kiddies would be most interested in. There were Professor Rosser, with his capital Punch and Judy Show; Miss Queenie May, with her pretty rendering of "Snowflakes" and a song about a motor; Mlle. Rene, the talented girl juggler; Mr. Fred Neiman, the mystifying ventriloquist; the entertaining Raymond Trio; Mr. Joe Archer, the clever comedian and singer; and Miss Jessie Preston; not to mention the delightful stories pictorially told in amusing fashion by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. Mr. Charles E. Howells, the musical conductor, ably directed the efforts of the orchestra, one of the items being his own march, "A Happy New Year to All."

DEATH OF LADY CLANCARTY.

Though she was unknown to the present generation of music hall patrons, the announcement of the death on Monday of the Countess of Clancarty, the celebrated and beautiful Belle Bilton, will be received with sincere regret by many who knew her in 1889, when she and her sister, Flo Bilton, used to sing "Fresh, fresh as the morning" at the Royal. It was during one Saturday afternoon at the Holborn house that she was introduced to Viscount Dunlo, the son and heir of the fourth Earl of Clancarty in the peerage of Ireland, and one fine morning—July 10, 1889, to be exact—the young couple walked into the Registry Office, Hampstead, and went through the civil form of marriage before Mr. Herbert Bridger, the registrar, signing the book as, respectively, Isabel Maude Penrice Bilton and William Frederick Le Poer Trench—by courtesy Viscount Dunlo, the witnesses being Flo Bilton and Mr. Minshull Ford.

There is no doubt that the bridegroom's father bitterly resented the marriage, and the viscount, who was barely twenty-one, was packed off to Australia. The beautiful Belle, therefore, still appeared with her sister, and fulfilled her engagements as usual. She was engaged by Sir Augustus Harris in the Drury Lane production of Beauty and the Beast, sustaining the rôle of Beauty; and also took the title-rôle in the comedy-opera, Venus. An action for divorce was brought at the instigation of the Earl in 1890, when Sir Charles Russell, afterwards Lord Russell of Killowen, was counsel for the petitioner. This then eminent barrister allowed his zeal for his client to lead him astray, and, in order to influence the jury against Lady Dunlo he sweepingly attacked the whole of the profession to which she belonged. The summing up of Sir James Hannen was in favour of the respondent, and the jury pronounced her guiltless of the charge brought against her.

Such an inauspicious beginning of married life would have brought disaster into most ménages; but on the death of the fourth Earl in 1891, when the young couple took up their residence at the ancestral seat, Garbally Court, Ballinasloe, County Galway, the young countess, blessed with a sweet disposition and infinite tact, at once ingratiated herself with the neighbouring gentry by her charm of manner and love of sport, and became the idol of the tenantry, who christened her the Lady Bountiful of the village, and unaffectedly mourn her loss. Twin boys were born to the young couple in 1891, and the survivor is Lord Kilconnel. Another son and daughter blessed the union. Lady Clancarty succumbed to cancer, for which two years since she underwent the serum treatment in Paris. She was thirty-eight years of age.

The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon, the cortège leaving Garbally Court for the Protestant Church of St. John's, where is situated the family vault. From an early hour the tenantry began to assemble, and shared the duty of carrying the coffin to the church, two miles distant. All business was suspended in the little town of Ballinasloe as a mark of respect. Lord Clancarty walked immediately after the casket, accompanied by his cousin, Lord Ashtown, and behind them were Lord Kilconnel and Lord Clonbrock. The bereaved husband's magnificent wreath consisted of lilies, forget-me-nots, and asters, and bore the inscription: "To my darling Belle, from her sorrowing husband, Freddie," followed by a verse from the lamented lady's favourite hymn. There were also tributes "from her sorrowing children," and from Adeliza Countess of Clancarty (widow of the fourth earl), and from Lady Kathleen Le Poer Trench.

THE BRITANNIA.

One of the principal attractions at the Britannia this week is an original Eastern sketch, entitled The Kingdom of Hate, written by C. Douglas Carlile. The scene is The Hall of Silence at Lasha, but the Governor, Latsan Kahn, has a good deal to say, and he says it in a loud voice and with commanding action. He is a tyrant of the worst description; and does not hesitate to set at defiance the power of Britannia. He avows that he is governed by no laws; and in this spirit he meets Captain Jack Rayne, an English officer, who comes to demand the release of his wife, Ethel, a Red Cross nurse, who has been captured by the Governor's followers. Instead of releasing his captive, the Eastern despot has the young officer arrested and bound to a post. Then Ethel is brought into the hall, and the Khan determines to torture Rayne by branding with a red-hot iron the arm of his wife. This dastardly deed is accomplished in the presence of the unhappy woman's husband, and the tyrant also indulges in his diabolical temper by striking his prisoner, who can only retaliate by bitter, scornful words. However, Rayne finds an unexpected friend in May Thornton, known as the Gushi, who, left alone with the Captain, quickly liberates him. She has, it appears, lived in the Eastern land for nine years, but fosters a deadly hatred for the despotic Governor. She makes the discovery that Jack Rayne's wife is her own sister. Latsan Kahn returns, is infuriated by finding that the English officer has escaped, and is about to wreak his vengeance on Ethel when he is confronted by May Thornton and a drawn sword. At this crisis a company of English soldiers, led by Captain Rayne, break into the place and the Governor is shot dead. Miss Carlotta de Yonson ably doubles the parts of the sisters Ethel and May. Mr. C. Douglas Carlile is a bold and manly Captain Rayne, and Mr. Charles A. Carlile gives a vigorous embodiment of Latsan Khan. Galdan, the Kahn's attendant, is well played by Mr. Langdale.

Mr. Wal Pink and Mr. Jeff Vendome's company is appearing here in the sketch entitled The Daybreakers, a mixture of comedy and serious business, in which a gang of coiners are concerned. The piece abounds in comic knockabout business and concludes with a sensational raid on the coiners' den and capture of the criminals. Mr. Jeff Vendome is highly amusing in his original character of a railway guard; and he is ably supported by the company.

Mr. Hyram Travers, the coster comedian, is here, and scores with his ditties, "Bank Holiday" and "Yes, yes, yes." The Brothers Henres do well in a juggling and club manipulating act, and other turns include Ashby and Moore, Dutch delineators and expert dancers; Bessie Spear, juvenile comedienne; George Leonard, light comedian; Gracie Kebble, coon comedienne and dancer; and R. Abrahams and company, in Fun in a Pawnshop, in which is introduced a comic boxing exhibition. "The Gay Deceiver" is well illustrated by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux. Mr. James McCarthy is the acting-manager here, and Mr. Carl Hamlin is the conductor of the orchestra.

SADLER'S WELLS.

A seasonable flavour is imparted to the entertainment at Sadler's Wells by the inclusion in the programme of a pantomime. The production is presented from a street urchin's point of view by the far-famed "Casey-court Boys," who thus find a fresh field for their eccentricities. The extravaganza is called Mick Whittington, and involves the appearance of Mr. and Mrs. Casey in the parts of the Emperor of Morocco and the Fairy Queen respectively. The story is presented on pantomime lines, and includes primitive representations of Fitzwarren's shop, Highgate-hill, the ship at sea, the coast of Morocco, and the Emperor's palace—all produced in the grotesque fashion with which Mr. Harry Cadle's clever troupe is associated. "Specialities" are done in the Palace scene, during which a clever little man, who has appeared as an animated scarecrow, does a skilful dance; a mock conjuring entertainment is given, a "ballet" of all nations takes place, and a dusky Princess does a clog dance. Songs and choruses are given in fine style, and Mr. Bob King, the leading comedian, distinguishes himself as Mrs. Casey.

The mirthful nature of the bill is further sustained by The Battle of the Belles, presented by Mr. Fred Moule's company, which is chiefly notable for a fight between two women, and for the drolleries of a most original waiter furnished by Mr. E. D. Nicholls, who has elaborated the part since the first production of the sketch. The pugilistic ladies are interpreted by Miss Stella Carmichael and Miss Ada Frank; Mr. Fred Moule gives a realistic representation of the laughing publican; Mr. Courtney Robinson makes a gallant soldier, and Miss Ada Lucelle is a refined and graceful Laurie Lindon. The sketch is as exciting as ever, and produces the customary ebullitions of laughter on the part of the audience. Still another sketch is found in Nicodemus, which is played in dumb show by Mr. Chas. Vandyke and company. A ghost and a demon figure in the little piece, and trick furniture is effectively employed, with the result that the house is continuously hilarious during its progress.

Novelties in the display of strength are furnished by Pauldow, a young man of muscular physique, who begins his show with a remarkable test of endurance—bearing a man held aloft on one hand up a high staircase and down the other side, only occasionally using his hand to steady himself on his precarious way. The skilful performer is able to do a handspring while clutching a weighty barbell, and after holding up a couple of 56lb. weights suddenly lets them drop to the full extent of a chain to which they are attached. The performer concludes his feats by doing the "splits" on a couple of low stools fitted with wheels, while bearing a 100lb. barbell, and returning to an upright position. The tricks are done with praiseworthy finish, and the artist wins loud recalls. Mr. Will Bacchus, a jovial coster comedian, sings of a precocious youngster who is "going to be a coster like his father," and afterwards touches a note of wholesome sentiment in his ballad of a coster, of whom it can truly be said "He's the hottest bit of stuff you ever tasted." Mr. Bacchus has a resounding voice and pleasing expression, and his songs go right home, while his dancing gains great admiration. "A Venetian Tragedy," in which some interesting and exciting views of the City of Canals are presented, is portrayed on Raymond's Bio-tableaux; the promise of a peep into the future is held out by Mahatma, and the Singing Mill Lads, who come straight from the loom to the stage, are an attractive feature of the programme; which also includes Blanche and Diacoff, in their "great cycle whizz," and J. Hegarty, comedian and sifleur. Mr. Frederic Baugh is general manager for Frank Macnaghten, who controls the old-established hall, and Mr. Pete Murray fills with his customary ability the post of acting-manager.

THE PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

Pantomime in town and country depletes the ranks of the variety artists, but this notwithstanding, the programme provided by Mr. Clifford King for the numerous patrons of the Putney Hippodrome is this week lengthy, varied, and of an excellent character. The opening overture, consisting of popular refrains, is crisply played by Mr. Allington's orchestra. The first turn is Miss Amy Marsden, a maiden of the Vesta Victorian era, who gives a quaint version of "Come, birdie, come," and, in a second effort, tells in song of some extraordinary happenings whilst the mocking bird was singing on the tree. Mlle Roza's well-trained canines display great agility on revolving tables and in other tricks, the turn finishing with a diverting football match, during which a small fox-terrier gamely defends his charge by "heading out" a perfect bombardment of well-directed shots at goal.

After Miss Gladys Wilson has rendered a couple of songs, Lieut. Albini presents his illusion, "The Lady in Black," the success of this item being enhanced by the entertaining patter between the Professor and the members of the audience who volunteer to assist. One of the best turns of the evening is that of Miss Daisy James, whose impersonation of the Gibson Girl is very enthusiastically received. The New York Nippers, in a dormitory scene, sing and dance themselves into favour, the most juvenile member of the sextette being precociously amusing. Another exceedingly clever dancing turn is furnished by the Delomes, a lady and gentleman, who first appear in a neat song and dance, and afterwards in their special scena, The Phantom Clogs, an ingenious arrangement rendering everything invisible except the feet of the performers. A comical interlude by Bob and Jenny Leonard evokes much laughter, which is caused by the adventures of the former, a good-looking member of the Force, with a country girl, a lady about town, and a coster girl, the turn ending up with some nimble dancing. The Sisters Pine appear in a slavey duet, one being a smart parlourmaid and the other a slatternly kitchen wench. They wind up a really good turn by an operatic duet. The musical mélange of Mabel Bright and company affords intense satisfaction and introduces a clever dance between Red Indian chiefs and squaws in costume. Mr. Arthur Lennard contributes two items—"If I had been born a girl" and "Mother"—the contrast between the two giving the actor-vocalist ample opportunity for displaying his versatility. In reply to a very vigorous re-demand on the night of our visit he added another song descriptive of experiences with a bad cigar. Stiddar and Dunbar, in a musical comedy speciality, introduce solos on the pianoforte and 'cello, the lady singing and dancing very cleverly. Another smart turn is that of Clive and Clark in American song and dance. The concluding item is Ruffell's Bioscope with new subjects.

DEATH OF BESSIE FEATHERSTONE.

A sad gloom was cast over theatrical circles on Tyneside by the announcement of the death on Tuesday morning of Miss Bessie Featherstone, who was cast for the title-part in the pantomime of Aladdin at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, this season. During the trying period of rehearsals it was evident that Miss Featherstone had not entirely shaken off the effects of a recent attack of influenza. Her indomitable courage, however, kept her at work, and on the first night she played with a vivacity and gracefulness that quickly gained the favour of the audience. Miss Featherstone played again on Christmas Eve and on Boxing Day, but each appearance must have been an exhausting effort, for she was then forced to take to her bed, the illness terminating with her death, at her rooms in St. Mary's-place, Newcastle. The cause of death was typhoid fever. Dr. Matthews attended her in her illness, and had the assistance of Dr. Beattie and trained nurses, whilst the patient's mother and sister were also in continual attendance. Her death was hastened by the news of her husband's decease. She visited Newcastle, it may be added, for her fourth pantomime under the Howard and Wyndham management, having played first at Edinburgh, then at the Tyne Theatre, and last year at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, scoring in every case a personal success that went far to make the pantomimes the favourites they were in every case. During the year Miss Featherstone was chiefly engaged in London, the West End houses, such as the Tivoli, the Oxford, and the Pavilion, being her strongholds.

Miss Featherstone was a pantomime actress both spirited and refined, and to her fine figure and commanding stage presence she added a personal charm that went far to secure her the favour of her audience. Her charm of manner was not altogether a thing of the stage, for in her private life she was a gracious and kindly lady, and one who was ever ready to help forward a good cause. Her share in the Lifeboat Saturday matinée in Newcastle two years ago will be remembered. Miss Featherstone was one of the first to express her willingness to contribute to the programme, and when the day came she did not spare herself in fulfilling her word. Her career on the stage was not a long one. It had been happy, and was full of promise. The news of the fatal termination of her illness has caused genuine regret in Newcastle and to her friends of the profession, prepared as they were for the worst, the sad news was a matter of profound grief, for the lady was held in the warmest esteem by all who had the pleasure of being associated with her.

Immediately on receipt of telegraphic intimation of Miss Featherstone's death, Mr. Fred W. Wyndham travelled from Scotland to Newcastle to extend his deep and practical sympathy with the family, whose friendship he valued. Telegrams of condolence with Miss Featherstone's relatives, and of sympathy with the management of the Tyne Theatre and the members of the pantomime company, have been received from all quarters of the United Kingdom at the Westgate-road house.

QUEEN'S.

Mr. Jack Woolf has a capital programme at the Queen's this week, and, before going on to speak of the programme, we might refer to one or two improvements which have recently been effected in the house. The most up-to-date appliances for heating the establishment, and, in addition, to make the auditorium free from draughts, massive curtains have been fixed at the main entrances and exits. These attentions by Mr. Woolf are not lost upon his patrons, for the Queen's is becoming more popular with every week of its added existence.

Messrs. J. G. Johnson and company offer a capital dramatic sketch in In an Old Country Lane. The story of the love of the village blacksmith for a farmer's daughter, of the latter being unjustly accused of stealing her own father's money, and being renounced by him, of the villainous scheming of a hypocritical churchwarden, of the return from a foreign country of the blacksmith, whither he had gone to seek a fortune, and of the eventual turning out well of all things, is told in realistic fashion by the various members of the cast. Mr. J. G. Johnson is seen in an admirable character-sketch of a wastrel; and Mr. James Storey gives a commendable embodiment of the sturdy blacksmith. Miss Ethel Storey acts with charm and sincerity in the rôle of the heroine; and, as the deceived father of that young lady, Mr. Johnston Merritt treats us to a well-considered portrayal of an old man. Mr. W. S. Hartford is amusingly sanctimonious in the part of the churchwarden. The little piece is ably mounted.

Two musical mimics and comedians, who bestow upon themselves the somewhat original stage-names of Halt and Attention, contrive to keep their hearers amused with funny anecdotes and repartee. One of them sings in quite agreeable style a tale of the stage, called "The Gleaming Footlights," and the other, to his coadjutor's pianoforte accompaniment, submits vocal imitations of a military band. Mr. Ronald Bayne and Miss Evelyn Hope appear in a scene from David Garrick, the gentleman impersonating Garrick and the lady taking the part of Ada Ingot. It is an interesting trifle. Messrs. De Voy, Hurst, and Fredericks present their laughable absurdity, The Darktown Insurance Depôt, which tickles the fancy of the audience immensely. The Davenports offer an attractive show, in which magic and illusions play the principal part. The manner in which they produce a thimble from seemingly nowhere is mystifying to the closest observer. The Sisters Stratton distinguish themselves in the singing of duets and in dancing; and Clark and Gold, the American banjo artists, provide a most entertaining musical, dancing, and gagging turn. Talented character duettists come along in the persons of the Brothers Ralston, their "Coster and Gentleman" scene being much appreciated. Then there is an engaging comedienne in Miss Ruby Holly; while from Mr. Chris Clark we get some smart "character business." The New Bioscope's pictorial representation of a prospector's romance in the goldfields is vivid and realistic.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

Few turns on the variety stage of recent years have attracted so much attention or caused so much discussion as that of La Milo. Since this lady left the London Pavilion, where she made her first appearance in England in the early part of last year, and fulfilled a long engagement, she has been seen in her series of classical poses in many of the leading towns in the country; and in practically all of these towns has her performance—we say performance for lack of a better word—been attacked. Fortunately, however, wherever these attacks have taken place La Milo has found champions who have valiantly defended her, and she has been able, quite rightly, to proceed on her way rejoicing. To our mind, La Milo's act needs no defence, and we are unable to appreciate the attitude of those who profess to consider it an undesirable item in a public entertainment. The several representations of famous statuary are all extremely beautiful, and the white and cold appearance of the various figures, together with the perfect pose, makes it difficult to realise that La Milo is not inanimate. La Milo, however, is not the only attraction at this fine hall at Shepherd's Bush this week, for the programme is of all-round excellence, and when the curtain rises, "standing room only" is the order of the day or rather night. A very clever and amusing quarter of an hour is that provided by Holden's Mannikins. We do not remember ever to have seen a better marionette show; the movements of the figures are fascinatingly life-like. A form of entertainment on the music hall stage which seems to be increasingly popular is that of illustrated songs. Charles Robinson showed himself the possessor of an excellent baritone voice, and the pictures accompanying his singing were really excellent. One of Mr. Robinson's songs was the pretty "Cheyenne." Theo Hardeen gives an exciting exhibition of handcuff manipulating. We understand that Hardeen has been challenged to allow himself to be fastened in a regulation punishment suit by some ex-officials of the Metropolitan Police, and that he has accepted the test, the attempt to release himself being fixed for the second performance on Friday evening. Victor Newman gives admirable and well-conceived imitations, one of Mr. Tree as Svengali and the other of the late Sir Henry Irving as Matthias. Lily Langtry sings and dances in her usual lively style, her songs being "A day at the Zoo" and "A day excursion." Frank and Jen Latona provide a very popular medley item. Both artists are excellent musicians, and whilst Frank is a fine comedian, and has some extremely funny patter, Jen has a very pretty voice and two or three charming songs. Her singing of "Maria" was loudly encored. Mention must also be made of her very delightful playing on the piano. Hurley and Cole, in a song-scena, "Let bygones be bygones," easily find the favour of the audience; and Miss Marie Kendall, a great favourite at Shepherd's Bush, obtains enthusiastic applause for her two typical songs, cleverly rendered, "England" and "Come away." The programme is completed, as usual, by the American Bioscope, which this week illustrates an exciting incident of the Cromwellian War, entitled "The Curfew." A compliment should be paid to the kindly and courteous management, in front, of Mr B. G. Maclachan.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

It must not be supposed for one moment that, because King Pantomime is everywhere in evidence, the management has to any extent relinquished its efforts in providing an attractive New Year's bill for the habitués of this pretty theatre. That his efforts are appreciated goes without saying, and on the night of our visit the items met with the cheeriest of receptions, for, whatever else may be said of Richmond audiences, it would be impossible to deny they are ever enthusiastic. A capitally rendered overture, "Pennon and Plume," is sufficient to put everyone in good humour; it is followed by Mr. Sydney Dolf, who is billed as "doing a little of everything." He imitates the juggler, the lady star, and the languid swell; and this is followed by his impersonation of "a minstrel up to date," a welcome reminiscence of nigger minstrelsy. Truly Mr. Dolf's versatility is remarkable. The Kents (Harry and Cissie) win immediate favour, and they deserve it. Mr. Harry Kent recites with considerable ability, "A Coster's Episode." He also sings "The Town Brigade," while Miss Cissie dances off to volleys of applause. Then dainty Miss Lena Willard sings quite prettily about an almond-eyed Celestial who came all the way from Lhassa town, and fell in love with a charming English maiden. Miss Willard's second contribution is equally happy. Her imitations hugely amuse the audience, and are loudly applauded. We have before commented on more than one occasion on G. P. Newall's droll sketch, The Knight Jester. It is undoubtedly a distinctly funny piece of fooling. Mr. Max Guy, who for the nonce is wielding the bâton of Mr. Norfolk Megone, does admirably, as is demonstrated to the full in a really excellent selection from Mr. Popple, arranged by J. A. Crellman. Ruby Bijou dances quite charmingly, à la Trilby, and wins a premier place in the evening's list of honours. Mr. E. R. Dainez again demonstrates to what extent the sagacity of dumb animals may be cultivated and developed. To watch his pony, Handsome, go through its wonderful feats is a lesson in animal training. Even the innate obstinacy of the much-maligned ass is overcome by Mr. Dainez; indeed, his Smiler is quite a model of submission and obedience. The hounds, too, are wonderful specimens of the canine race. Mueller and Coyne evidently hail from the "other side"; their patter causes much laughter, and they amuse the audience to the full. A great reception awaits Mr. Arthur Lennard, who sings first, "Advice to Girls," and next, "If he had been born a girl." Mr. Lennard's second song deals with domestic topics and foibles of the moment; it is admirably given, for Mr. Lennard has a style of his own, and one that the younger school might do worse than imitate. His phrasing is excellent, and his humour apparent in his "Story of a cigar." Vernon's Bioscope still provides novelty, evinced in several scenes.

HORACE WHEATLEY IN LEEDS.

Mr. Horace Wheatley, who has been appearing at the Leeds Hippodrome this week, has introduced a novelty in the way of patter. On the stage he has a picture of his old friend McIntyre, of whom he tells some racy stories. He is as good a raconteur as ever, and still one of the best dancers of his time.—Yorkshire Evening Post, Saturday, Dec. 29.

IN DUBLIN.

There is, perhaps, not one among the many popular favourites who has so great a hold upon the Dublin public as Mr. Horace Wheatley, and he has on all occasions justified his right to a high place in popular esteem. His songs and his patter are delightfully amusing, and cause roars of laughter, while his clog-dancing is a rare treat. He is certainly a master in this branch of his art, while as a comedian he ranks second to none in his own particular line. His songs appealed greatly to the audience, and he was warmly and deservedly encored.—Dublin Press.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

LORD GEORGE SANGER, the "Father of the Road," and the revered president of the Showmen's Guild, will again preside and deliver a presidential address at the annual meeting of the Society in London.

BY kind permission of the lessee, Mr. T. E. Read, the meeting will take place at the World's Fair, the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Jan. 23, at half-past eleven in the forenoon.

THE annual ball and supper for the showmen of the North of England will be held in the Empress Ballroom, Bolton, in connection with Bolton winter fair. This social function has become a great event, and its chief promoters, Market Superintendent Robert Pike, and his brother, Mr. William Pike, work like Trojans to make each succeeding festival better than the previous record celebrations. Mr. T. Hurst, hon. secretary to the Showmen's Guild, throws himself heartily into the work.

THIS year a new and interesting feature will mark the event—nothing less than a showmen football match, to be played on the Bolton Wanderers' ground. We anticipate that this will prove a big hit, and we understand that the gate money will be given, along with the profits of the supper and ball, to the Guild funds.

THE annual business committee meeting and the public meeting of the Guild will take place for the seventeenth consecutive year in Manchester, on Jan. 16. The committee will meet for business at the Black Lion Hotel, Salford, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, and the public meeting will take place at four o'clock in the afternoon, at the Memorial Hall, Albert-square. For particulars of both Manchester and London meetings see advertisements.

THE Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union will hold their next meeting at Bolton on Jan. 8. For place and time of meeting see advertisement.

OUR Welsh correspondent sends the following items of news:—Henry Scard and Wadbrook's electrograph are at Pontypridd; J. Dooner and Son, with their electric cinématograph, are also at Pontypridd, and Douter, with roundabouts and other novelties.

AT Morriston are H. Studt and Son with their well-known concerns, and with them John North, J. Day and Booth, with varieties, etc.

FOR New Year's holidays at Normanton (Yorkshire) are Vicker's Portable Theatre; Harry Ashington, with cinématograph and marionette theatre, presenting drama and pantomime; Wallett, with shooting-range; and Messrs. Blackburn, Miller, Wallser, Walker, Burton, and Bassett, with varieties, stalls, etc.

A CASE of great importance as to the liability of showmen was decided last week before Judge Sir Wm. Selfe at the Brompton County Court.

George Seaby, a boy of ten, of Walham-avenue, Fulham, was plaintiff with his father, and the defendant was Mr. J. Manders, the owner of the Lillie-road fair grounds at Fulham.

Mr. Wildey Wright represented the plaintiff, and Mr. Wallace, K.C. (with him Mr. Lunge) appeared for the defendant.

Plaintiff's counsel stated that the action was brought to recover damages in respect of severe personal injuries and life-long disfigurement sustained by the boy on Sept. 28 last. On the evening of that day the child accompanied his brother and a friend to the fair grounds, but, not having a halfpenny, could not indulge in the luxuries of a swing as they did. He was allowed to give them the necessary start, however, and had them set going fairly well when his attention was diverted. Turning round again, "the boat" caught him full in the face, breaking his nose and flattening it beyond recognition. In view of the fact that invitation was held out to the public to enter the fair grounds for nothing, and that the public mostly attracted was of the infant class, he (learned counsel) should submit that insufficient precautions were taken by the defendant to guard against such an accident, and that there had been negligence on the part of the defendant's servant in not seeing that the child plaintiff was properly protected from the swings.

Mr. William Robert Pether, consulting engineer, said he had seen the swings, and considered they were not properly protected. When he had seen such contrivances before they had always been protected by a fence, bar, or rope.

Mr. Wallace submitted that no negligence had been proved, and that if defendant was held responsible, the managers of all the schools where swings were in daily use in the playgrounds would be liable for every petty accident that occurred. The swings owned by defendant were exactly similar to those found in fairs and playgrounds all over England.

Mr. Wildey Wright: They have been removed from the schools on account of their danger.

Mr. Wallace: No; that is not so. Counsel, continuing, said the boy was warned of his danger, and submitted that he was guilty of contributory negligence.

The judge pointed out to the jury that although they might not have much doubt as to the contributory negligence of a grown-up person in such circumstances, they would have to consider whether a child of ten could be held similarly liable.

The jury found for the defendant.

THE Rev. T. Horne will conduct Divine service and preach at Olympia to-morrow (Sunday) at 5 p.m. All show-people are invited to attend. He will also hold a service for the children and young people of the fair at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, at half-past eleven in the forenoon. To this service also the parents and friends of the show-children are invited.

MR. F. COOPER, better known in Showland as "Uncle Fred," sends us the following verses, with many good wishes for all show-folk for the New Year:—

A FEW LINES ON JOINING "THE NIGHT IN JAPAN" COMPANY.

'Twas at the time of Christmas cheer
I left my home and wife so dear;
Once again to tread the stage,
As I'd done before, in a former age.
My darling laughed and cried, then shed a tear
As these words she whispered in my ear—
"You'll send for me if you're ill?"
"I'll soon return, if 'tis God's will."
"Oh, I'd love to hear the audience cheer
The little story you've written here,
And see you wave a dainty fan—
Then talk of England and Japan;
I know for 'gags' you're never stuck—
Good-bye, my love, good luck, good luck."

UNCLE FRED.

LARGE cycle works have just been erected at Redditch, and a new industry has been started in the manufacture of motor-cars. Trade is very good, and first-class attractions should do well at the Public Hall. The fairground is in an excellent position, on the Royal Hotel yard, and is situated in the market-place. The annual pleasure fair is held during the August holidays.

AT Holloway's New Empire Theatre, Henley-in-Arden, this week, the following plays have been performed: My Sweetheart, Maria Martin, Life's Cross Roads, Crimes of Paris, Sweeney Todd, and The Factory Girl.

THE EDUCATION OF THE SHOWMAN'S CHILD.

Ever since the days of the late George Smith the executive officers of the Showmen's Guild have kept a most vigilant watch over all proposals to deal with the children of the fair-ground.

This is a most important work, and that it is necessary is seen from the perseverance of would-be educational reformers who from time to time try their 'prentice hands in framing legislative proposals to bring all children who travel from town to town, from fair to fair, within what they are pleased to term "the educational net." Showmen recognise that the intention of these educational zealots is both admirable and honest; but at the same time showmen are bound to object to and vigorously protest against their methods and plans.

We dealt at length a while back with a Bill introduced by a private member, and ostensibly intended to help the children of tramps and criminals. This Bill was so crudely drafted that all children whose parents must travel to earn their living would be penalised just as severely as the casual tramp and criminal. That Bill was blocked in the House of Commons by friends of the travelling-show people. Had it passed into law it would have inflicted a terrible injustice upon the whole body of show-people.

In the House of Lords the other week a question was put on the paper, and appeared in the orders of the day for Dec. 19:—

"The Lord Farrer to ask the Lord President of the Council whether the Government are aware of the great number of van-dwellers and other nomads in the home counties whose children receive no regular education, and whether they would be prepared to afford facilities for legislation, either by extending the provisions of the Canal Boat Acts to such nomads or upon the lines of the Temporary Dwellings Bill of 1887."

Mr. F. Millar drew the attention of the Rev. T. Horne to the question, and Mr. Horne, as chaplain to the Showmen's Guild, was asked to deal with the matter.

The following interesting correspondence took place between the hon. chaplain and the Right Honourable the Earl of Crewe, Lord President of the Council, and Education Minister.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD.
President, Lord George Sanger.
Hon. Chaplain and Organiser, the Rev. T. Horne.
Dec. 18, 1906.

To the Lord President of the Council,—My Lord, the committee of the above society (representing the van-dwellers and showmen of the United Kingdom) have had before them the terms of the question on the orders of the House of Lords in the name of Lord Farrer. We respectfully submit for your lordship's consideration the following information as touching the education of show and circus children:—

(1) The great majority of showpeople have permanent homes, and at these settled residences of the family the children come under the ordinary and the regular educational machinery. (2) Showmen are keenly anxious to give their children the best education possible, and many of the more wealthy of them send their children to good public and private schools. (3) I have made a personal canvass of some of the largest fairs in the country, taking a careful census of the child life in the caravans, and the result of my investigations has been to show that in the movable homes of showpeople at fair times a smaller percentage of children of school age are to be found therein than might be found in the same number of house-dwellers in the artisan or middle-class quarters of towns.

The showpeople, knowing that I have given the best years and work of my life to their educational and spiritual welfare have asked me at this extremely short notice to write to your lordship, in order that, as a class, they may not be reckoned as either gipsies, itinerant hawkers, or tramps.

When, in 1887, efforts were made to class show-children as gipsies or canal-boat children, it was proved to the satisfaction of the House of Commons that to do so would inflict a terrible injustice on a worthy and industrious class of people.

(4) We wish also to point out that full facilities now obtain in every town for show children to attend school for short periods of time; but that prior to 1892 or 1893 the conditions under which the school grant was given practically closed the school doors against show and circus children. Since that embargo was removed every advantage has been taken by the parents to send their children to school for short periods of time in towns where they may be located. School managers and the clergy now encourage the children to attend school, and through the hon. local chaplains of our Guild this is now increasingly done.

For the information of the Board of Education I will gladly furnish all necessary proofs that, as touching the children of the travelling showpeople, all that is needed is the wise extension of existing facilities, and the recognition that show children are being educated, and that their parents are keenly anxious to give them every possible mental and intellectual equipment for their work in life.—I am, my lord, your obedient servant, THOMAS HORNE, hon. chaplain.

The Lord President's secretary sent the following reply:—

Privy Council Office, Dec. 24, 1906.

Dear Sir,—I am desired by Lord Crewe to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th inst., and to say that the question to which you refer was subsequently withdrawn; but that, if the matter is again brought forward, your representations will receive his careful consideration.—I am, yours faithfully, G. E. G. MURRAY.

The Rev. T. Horne.

We need hardly point out the great importance of keeping the powers that be in full possession of the real facts that govern show life, and that any attempt to legislate for show children, along the lines of the Canal Boat Acts or the Movable Dwellings Bill of 1887, will meet with the most determined opposition of the showman and his hosts of friends.

AT the Alexandra Fair Meadow, Penzance, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Burnett have pitched their portable. The structure, known as "His Majesty's Theatre," is replete with every comfort. Plush tip-up chairs as orchestra stalls, upholstered seats as pit, and a large and well-arranged amphitheatre as gallery meet the requirements of the large audiences which assemble to sample the good fare provided. A nightly change of bill, including well-mounted and effectively-played drama, rollicking farce, and clever individual vaudeville turns, is apparently much to the taste of the local amusement-seeking inhabitants of the town and district, and there is no doubt this well-appointed temple of Thespis will enjoy a successful run of many weeks.

MR. T. E. READ'S record programme at the World's Fair, Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, is drawing tremendous crowds to this popular home of amusement, notwithstanding the inclement weather during the Christmas holidays. The circus programme is equal to the best ever given. The intrepid Caicedo absolutely revels in his sensational performance on the high wire, and the daring and graceful feats in mid air of the Siegrist, Silbon, and Viennese Troupe of nine aerialists are indeed marvellous. Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie has been greatly increased; the three lots of lion cubs, from three weeks old, are a rare novelty. Many changes are made in the various side-shows and other attractions, and a mammoth programme can be seen for the popular sixpence.

THE PIPES AND DRUM.

A STORY OF THE ROAD.
BY THE REV. T. HORNE.

Shall I tell you why we all love it,
That well-thumped, weather-worn drum?
Like the pandean pipes above it,
With a voice that is never dumb.
It speaks of a time in our history
Which none of us wish to forget,
Or to cloak it around with mystery,
As some do who move in our set.

Yes, the yarn of the pipes and the drum
Is a tale well worth repeating,
To the honour of dad's old chum—
That's his son you heard at the meeting.
As partners together for many a year,
Better men never worked at their graft;
When they cackled their wheezes 'twas good to hear
How the yokels all tittered and laughed.

'Twas the day of the one-waggon walk up,
When one prad dragged the whole lot,
When you had to parade and to talk up,
When a solda was all that you got.
Their round was in one-eyed Wales.
They were stuck at a place called Cumbran;
The folks were as hard as nails,
The takings not paying for scran.

Then the horse sickened and died, sir,
And father caught cold and was bad;
But Jim, like a true pal, tried, sir,
To cheer up and strengthen the dad.
Misfortunes fell fast and furious,
For the Toberman seized for the rent;
And the people, suspicious and curious,
Thought the devil his angels had sent.

For three weary weeks dad was ill,
And Jim—like a great-hearted friend—
The fever fiend fought with a will,
And was ready to fight to the end.
Tho' the slang was in pawn for the rent,
Says Jim to the dad, "Never mind;
So long as you're well, I'm content,
And a way out of this hole we'll find."

With a few fantocina, the pipes, and the drum,
They started for Gloucester one day;
They busked on the roads, did dad and his chum,
Till the old man broke down on the way.
How they got into Monmouth, God only knows,
There a kind-hearted soul took them in;
She'd a heart in her bosom for showmen and shows—
Pity makes the whole world akin.

Dad had a relapse, was worse than before;
He couldn't bear Jim from his sight.
And when his mind wandered would patter and door,
As though on the steps, and all right.
Then Jim would answer, "Hi, hi, Mr. Master,"
To dad's "Walk up; be in time,"
Would whack the old drum, and play the pipes faster—
All pathos was that pantomime.

One night as he humoured the dad,
Softly playing the pipes and the drum,
Poor Jim, himself almost mad—
For the turn of the fever had come—
Was startled by a knock at the door,
And a well-known voice said, "May I come?"
'Twas good George Wombwell who stood on the floor,
Drawn there by the pipes and the drum.

The show at the Toll Bar delayed,
George heard the sounds hard by.
Soon his way to the cottage he made—
He didn't leave dad there to die.
He was tenderly taken to George's own van,
And fed on the fat of the land.
To be with friends is new life to a man,
'Tis a tonic that wealth can't command.

So now, sir, you hear the true story,
The romance of the dad and his chum,
And that is the halo of glory
Surrounding the pipes and the drum.

ABERAVON FAIRS.

MR. STUDT'S AGREEMENTS WITH THE COUNCIL.

The monthly meeting of the Aberavon Town Council committees was held on Tuesday, in last week.

For many years the running of the two Aberavon fairs in September and April has been left in the hands of Mr. Henry Studt, who worked the events up from a small beginning to their present-day success. The price previously paid by Mr. Studt for holding the fair was £25 a year, and it was thought that a larger sum should be demanded, or that the Corporation should run the fair themselves.

At a previous meeting it was decided to ask Mr. Studt to pay £100 a year for the privilege of running the fairs.

Mr. Hy. Studt attended the meeting and clearly explained the whole conditions, and after a discussion it was decided to enter into an agreement with Mr. Studt to runs the fairs for £70 for the first year, increasing by £10 a year to £100, until such time as the Corporation require the field for building or any other purposes excepting a fair; that the Corporation have the right to the grazing of the two fields, and that an undertaking be given Mr. Studt that no large shows be allowed in the Cattle Market three weeks before the fairs. Mr. Studt agreed to these terms.

Mr. Studt asked that the date of the September fair be altered from the first Monday to the first Thursday in the month, as the present arrangement made it come too near Neath, and allowed no time for shifting from one place to the other. This question was deferred.

AT the Victoria Theatre, Barry Dock, the pantomime still continues. A more complete and prettier pantomime in a portable is impossible. The scenery is sublime, costumes excellent, and Cinderella's coach is really fine. The children, under the coaching of the proprietor, go through their parts in fine stye. Mr. John Johnson, as one of the Ugly Sisters, keeps the house in continuous laughter; his patter is refined, but funny. Special songs and new jokes continue to draw packed houses. The transformation scene arranged by Mr. Johnson is magnificent, and well worth seeing.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

A crowded and enthusiastic holiday audience assembled on the night of our visit to do justice to the excellent fare provided at this handsome Hall by the indefatigable and popular management so ably represented by Mr. Ernest Bridgen. Proceedings opened by the overture, conducted by Mr. Louis la Rondelle, and brilliantly rendered by the band, which is one of the most attractive features of this establishment. Mr. J. G. Graham and company presented the novel dramatic episode The Yellow Fang, written by John C. Brandon. the action of which passes in an opium den in Chinatown, San Francisco; it is well and powerfully written, capitally staged and admirably interpreted by all concerned. The sensational wire-walker, Wynham, had an enthusiastic reception for his highly clever and interesting performance. Lottie Lennox, who is a warm favourite in this district, was greeted with much laughter and applause for her clever rendering of her popular songs, "I feel so lonely" and "Ain't it nice to have a father?"

Ernest Shand made a very welcome reappearance here in his cleverly-written and as cleverly interpreted songs, entitled "Look at the weather," "Oh dearly beloved brethren," and "Eve! Eve! Eve!" The audience were so delighted with Mr. Shand's turn that they were loth to lose him even at the end of the third song.

Katie Traill, the charming comedienne, at the piano was favourably received in "Sailing in my balloon." The Vasilescu Troupe of eccentric pantomimists appeared in a comedy act on the triple bar, and also gave an exhibition of skill as comedy cyclists, meeting with considerable applause. Billy McClain, Miss Cordelia, and company appeared as coon singers, dancers, and entertainers in a Southern scena, entitled The Hottest Coon from Dixie, and won general approval. Lilian Lowe sang delightfully, and was enthusiastically applauded in "Flight of ages" and "The song that reached my heart." Peggie Lennie and Walter Hast appeared in an attractive turn, entitled The Sea Nymph, a poetic fantasy, and had every reason to be well pleased with their reception, which was enthusiastic. The Three Tauberts delighted all with their skilful performance of "La Mattiche" and other items on xylophones. The large audience dispersed at the end of this long and liberal programme in excellent humour, a fact materially contributed to by the courtesy of the management, who do all that is possible to make frequenters of their halls cosy and comfortable as well as giving them the best of variety talent.

EALING HIPPODROME.

Mr. E. W. James, who, for a time, is without a second-in-command, is presenting this week a most attractive programme. Holiday crowds are of the merriest, and the choruses of popular songs—of which there are many—are caught up with great spirit. First honours must be given to the Craggs. The word "go," or the French term, elan, most aptly describes the remarkable turn of these world-famed acrobats, who are appearing here in their latest merriment creator, Laughterland. The plot is simple enough, but forms a happy medium for the whimsicalities of this clever family. The humour is genuinely funny, while the unique way in which the expert troupe plays the old English game of rounders is simply marvellous. Skill, daring, and grace are alike associated in this excellent presentation of modern acrobatics. Mr. Herbert La Martine is just one of those versatile artists whose popularity is never in doubt; he is agile as a dancer and melodious as a vocalist, which he proves in his two songs, "The Yankee Doodle Boy" and "Water-Melon Vine," while his bâton manipulation is quite a bewilderment of gyrating curves. Mr. Tom Leo, the "lazy comedian," exploits his song, "Lazy," for all it is worth. His notion is to put the work out, and, in the end, the audience is not only singing his song, but thoroughly enjoying the task. The Ellimans do not belie their title as genuine musical entertainers. They are true artists, and their refined entertainment is the musical bonne bouche of the evening. As duettists or soloists they are altogether admirable. A pot-pourri of popular tunes, played as a duet with concertinas, and most admirably supported by the Hippodrome band, under the direction of Mr. W. Neale, is received with rapturous applause, each refrain being eagerly taken up by the "upper house." A word for the fair member of the duo, who is handsomely gowned in heliotrope. Miss Minnie Atkins has two successful numbers, "When the blue moon shines" and "Ebenezer," in which her fine contralto is of great service in securing her a well-merited recall. The members of Lionel Vaughan's company appear in their "latest London laughing success." In Trouble, by Stanley Adams. The incidents of the scena take place at the Palace Hotel, at Brightlink, and the idea of the two men, who are exactly similar in appearance, is well worked up in the merry plot. Miss Violet Carlyle is the fortunate possesor of two tuneful melodies, "My tiny firefly" and "Mountain Maid," this last being allied to a picturesque setting. Here is the representation of an encampment in the woods of the Far West, while a glowing log-fire adds warmth and colour to a pretty scene. The chorus of the "Mountain Maid" is caught up by the whole house, which, in the best of tempers, showered down its applause upon the evidently gratified vocalist. A welcome interlude is that of Stelling and his canine comedian, Kiswiski, a knowing Irish terrier. This clever little dog works a sort of Morse signalling with his tail, and walks upon his "hands" to save his shoe-leather. Mr. Reuben Hill, character and vocal comedian, is entertaining with his song, "Come along, little girls," and the ladies seem quite willing to respond to the invitation. Donald Hall and company are responsible for a song, and an exquisite little scena, "Will you dance with me, Marie? The acceptability of "Ballooning" was soon shown by a whistling accompaniment, but the success of the talented couple is reserved for the scena. In his charming song, "Marie," an altogether different note is struck. Mr. Hall receives here most valuable aid from his charming partner. She has only a silent part, but her silence is more eloquent than words. The expression of reviving love is most tenderly portrayed, and her final acceptance of her recovered sweetheart's invitation to "Dance with me, Marie," most pathetic.

TERPSICHORE claimed homage on Monday evening when a merry gathering assembled at the Opera House, Covent Garden, to welcome in the New Year. The auditorium presented a brilliant appearance, being crowded with dancers in original and gorgeous costumes. There were ten valuable prizes, the first, a handsome sable muff, being awarded for the costume "Events of 1906." Amongst other noticeable dresses were "Good Health," "To Cairo," "Auld Lang Syne," "Spaten Beer," "Killarney," "New Year's Greetings," a pale pink satin dress trimmed with cards, flowers, and parcels, to say nothing of flowing ribbons with the seasonable motto "Wishing all my friends a Happy New Year"; and "Holly and Mistletoe," a pale green brocaded silk dress trimmed with the representative products which were responsible for its title, and a quantity of swansdown to represent snow. To the popular music of Dan Godfrey's band the fun was carried or until the small hours of the morning. Mr. W. Clarkson took a special prize for a lady's dress entitled "Rest."

CONNAH'S QUAY FAIR was continued from Monday to Friday of this week. Among the features of the fair were Mr. J. Symonds' four-abreasts, Mrs. G. Symonds' electrograph, juvenile roundabouts, and park swings, and other stalls too numerous to mention.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.

"The Era" Annual, 1906, is welcome as containing carefully compiled lists of the pieces produced during the past year in London, the suburbs, and the provinces, in Paris, and in Berlin. The rest of it is curious and entertaining reading. There is the almanack with its "memorabilia of theatrical events occurrences, &c." There are besides a score of stories and other articles contributed by theatricals a very good one being Miss Louie Freear's set of verses, "'Boy Bob' at Sea," which has humour, feeling, and swing. The book contains many theatrical portraits. As a book of reference the Annual is of great use and value, and while some of its contents doubtless appeal more keenly to the professional than to the outsider, any thoughtful person may derive from its study much amusement and no little insight into the conditions, the magnitude, and the complexity of the English theatre of to-day.—Morning Post, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.

"The Era" Annual appears once more in its familiar binding, a compendium of information and amusement for all who are interested in theatrical affairs. In the calendar will be found an array of anniversary dates, some recent, some recalling memories of old times and actors and actresses long passed away. The summary of new plays produced during the past year is admirably done, its value being increased by the alphabetical list which is appended. Well-known actors and actresses contribute stories in accordance with a custom justified by its success.—Daily Telegraph, Jan. 18, 1906.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows :—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

TRADE MARK

A RICH AND A POOR CHRISTMAS. Code Word, CHEVREUIL.

The Christmas of two rich little girls and one poor little boy. Santa appears, first in the lovely nursery, then in the lonely garret. He divides the toys amongst them, but reserves for the little boy a most beautiful dream, in which is everything that the heart of a little boy could desire.

297ft. The Subject £4 19s.

CABBY! BY THE HOUR. Code Word, BYZANTIN.

Most exciting and amusing scenes of a very slow old horse and cab and a very impatient, irritable old gentleman. Screamingly funny.

THE LITTLE BLIND GIRL. Code Word, BUGGY.

Story of a little blind girl. She gets lost, and is found by a wicked old woman, who treats her very badly. In desperation she runs away, but unfortunately she falls into a well. A search party is sent out. She is finally rescued by a policeman. Very pathetic.

445ft. The Subject £7 8s. 4d.

Tinting extra, 5s. 6d.

THE BILLIARD FEVER. Code Word, BUVETTE.

A man mad on billiards; thinks everything he sees is a billiard ball or something to do with the game. This leads to many ridiculous and funny situations.

379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.

A NEGRO KING IN PARIS. Code Word, BUTINER.

A black king in Paris with his suite—Ministers, cooks, doctors, &c. They commence to do Paris. Take things off the shop fronts, eat all kinds of things, &c. Seeing a fine chubby baby, our black friend thinks he would like to eat it. This is prevented by the timely arrival of a policeman. After all kinds of catastrophes they are all finally locked up in a cage.

346ft. The Subject £5 15s. 4d.

IN CAUSE OF FAITH. Code Word, ABIME.

Fine dramatic quality, and shows in stirring scenes the theft of papers and valuables from a Government official. The thief dying, confesses his sin to a priest, who goes to a hidden place to regain the spoil and return it to the official. There the priest is watched and attacked by two other thieves, who finally squabble and kill each other, and one gives up the booty to the noble priest, who, wounded, takes it back to the rightful owner. The latter is just about to be arrested for not having the valuables in his possession. Grand finale, in which the good priest is blessed and thanked gratefully for his courageous action. Perfect quality.

643ft. The Subject £10 14s. 4d.

EXCURSION TO NIAGARA. Code Word, BUTER.

Magnificent views of a steamer on the Ontario Lake. The Rapids shown. The river before the fall and after the fall, and Goat Island. The most perfect film of Niagara Falls ever produced.

610ft. The Subject £10 3s. 4d.

Tinting extra, £1 1s.

WRESTLING MATCHES OF 1906. Code Word, CARMELITE.

We think this film, representing four of the champion wrestlers of the world, now wrestling in Paris, cannot but interest our friends, both at home and abroad. Splendid quality.

297ft. The Subject £4 19s.

THE BIRTH OF CHRIST. Code Word, BUTOIR.

This is a beautiful film, and shows with exquisite tinting effects the atmosphere of the East, the birth of Christ, his adoration by the Wise Men, culminating in a grand tableau remarkable for its clear portraiture.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

Colouring extra, £2 16s.

COMICAL ESCAPE. Code Word, CABILLAUD.

Convict escaping from prison resorts to various means to hide his identity, becoming in turn a scarecrow, nursemaid, and finally getting free and bringing an innocent man into the hands of the police. Also very amusing.

445ft. The Subject £7 8s. 4d.

VENETIAN TRAGEDY. Code Word, BURLESQUE.

The story occurs in lovely Venice amidst beautiful surroundings. The wife of a proud noble loves a young man. She writes suggesting a secret meeting. The torn-up letter is found by a beggar, who, wishing to blackmail, gets money for it from the husband. The husband follows the lover in a gondola, and eventually stabs him in his wife's room, throwing his body out of the window into the canal below. Intensely dramatic.

595ft. The Subject, £9 18s. 4d.

Colouring extra, £3 12s.

ALADDIN AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP. Code Word, BROUER.

The old fairy story retold, with beautiful scenery and Eastern effects, and coloured very effectively in parts. Grand quality.

824ft. The Subject £13 14s. 6d.

Colouring extra, £2 2s.

STARTING THE NEW YEAR WELL. STILL TO THE FORE.

A GOOD OMEN AND NO BLUFF!!!

At Bolton Fair, Lancashire, on New Year's Day, four highly successful Shows were given by the following gentlemen:—Colonel Clarke, near to the Town Hall; President Kemp, at the Market Place; Captain Payne, also at the Market Place; and Messrs. Fenton Cross, at the Temperance Hall. At each Show everything went without a hitch, and it is gratifying to know that in each instance the projecting machines used were GAUMONT'S PROFESSIONAL CHRONOS—still first in 1907.

WHAT WILL THE NEW YEAR BRING?

It may bring a general application of electric motive force in place of steam motive power. It may bring the perfecting of the flying machine. It may bring a general application of the motor to all kinds of road traffic, thus superseding the familiar horse-drawn vehicle. It may bring many things to astonish the world. It will bring the Universal application of MECHANICAL ENTERTAINMENT whereby it will be possible to hold an audience an entire evening without engaging a single "turn," "band," "star," or "orchestra."

THERE'S MONEY FOR ALL IN THE NEW YEAR WITH GAUMONT'S CHRONOPHONE.

Little Meg and the Wonderful Lamp.

On a cold winter's evening a young girl is just about to draw the curtain close at the French windows. As she glances out she sees with sorrow a poor ill-clad child, shivering with cold, offering a tray of odds and ends for sale. Going to her mother she entreats her to have the girl in; gaining her consent, she opens the window and fetches the unfortunate youngster. Taking her tray from her, she gives her a cosy place near the fire. A little later a maid walks into the room bringing with her the young mistress's cloak, and she gets her ready to go and see the pantomime. Looking at the child she has befriended, the kind girl once again appeals to her mother to allow her to take the little unfortunate with her. The mother at first will not hear of it, but ultimately encouraging her daughter's good nature she consents. Both girls ready, they leave the room, the maid following with the tray in disgust. Inside a box at the theatre the youngsters are enthusiastically watching the many wonderful scenes of Aladdin. As the lamp is rubbed and the geni appears, bringing with him all sorts of wonderful gifts, the children clap uproariously. Leaving the theatre in a carriage, the kind youngster drives her poor friend home and kisses her good-night. Entering her humble house the child flies to her poor mother, who is lying ill in a very sparsely furnished garret. The low level these poor people have come to is soon seen by the appearance of the broker's men, who clear (in spite of all entreaties) all the goods from the place. The poor girl watches hopelessly, but suddenly remembering Aladdin's lamp, she leaves the house and goes to the theatre. Awaiting an opportunity at the stage door, when the coast is clear, she darts in and comes out with the wonderful lamp. As she is about to run away she is pounced upon by one of the property men, who calls a policeman and gives her in charge. The constable takes her and marches her off towards the station. Turning the corner, a carriage drives past, but not before the occupants have noticed the charge. A lady and her daughter alighting from the carriage, it is seen they are the two kind people who have lately befriended the poor child. Going up to the policeman matters are soon put straight, the property man looks on open-mouthed at the substantial amount put into his hand by the lady. The ragged child thanks her friends and runs off with the treasured lamp in her possession. Going straight to her mother's apartment, she shows and describes what she has got. The weak woman shakes her head despairingly, but cannot convince the child that the property is of no use. The girl rubs the lamp hard and waits, nothing of course resulting. After several attempts she sinks down on the floor in despair and quite exhausted. The rich and happy child in her carriage, after fully realising the late incident, and wishing to play the geni, goes to several provision shops and makes purchases. Then, driving to her friend's house, she enters the room quietly with her good things, just as nother and child are in a happy state of unconsciousness. Without disturbing the pair she leaves her parcel and empties her purse on the floor, leaving the place quite happy after her charitable actions. When mother and child awake, they are wonderfully surprised at the sight which greets them. The eager youngster, undoing the parcel, jumps about the room with the food in her hands. Her mother, thinking no doubt of rent, gathers up the coins almost miserly.

FOX HUNTING.

The most complete, most successful, and most beautiful picture of a hunt ever produced.—Vide Press.

IN 23 DIFFERENT SCENES.

Section I. LEAVING THE KENNELS.—"Simply marvellous."—Standard.
The Hounds scratching at the gate, anxious to get out. Huntsmen and hounds leaving.

Section II. ON THE WAY TO THE MEET.—"Tit-bits of the first order."—The Field.
Huntsmen, runners and hounds coming through the woods and crossing a swollen ford with the water well over the huntsmen's boot tops. Horsemen, Lady Riders, traps, lads on ponies on their way to Milton.

Section III. THE MEET.—"Full of the most interesting details."—The Bystander.

Section IV. MOVING OFF TO DRAW.—"An exceptionally interesting picture."—Daily Telegraph.

Section V. THROWING HOUNDS INTO COVERT.—"The best representation of the winter sport that can be imagined."—Morning Leader.

Section VI. THE FOX BREAKING COVERT.—"The 'view-hollos' and 'tally-ho' were loudly cried by excited hunting people in the fauteuils."—The Bystander.

Section VII. "GONE AWAY."—"A veritable panorama of the chase."—The Field.
Huntsmen, Hounds and Riders taking hedges in full cry. Along the road, over fields, away they go helter-skelter. Another view of the fox is also shown.

Section VIII. A CHECK.—"A very pretty picture indeed."—The Sporting Times.

Section IX. "FOR'D AWAY."—"Again the fox comes down the screen at full speed, with that twisting action one knows so well."—The Field.
Reynard is closely followed by the hounds and huntsmen. Again we see the field in full cry. Two fine incidents happen in this section. One is a terrible tumble and the other the pony clearing a fence on his own chased by the luckless rider.

Section X. BREAKING UP THE FOX.—"The great charm about the pictures is that they are so distinct."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Section XI. RETURN TO KENNELS.—"Brimful of life and healthy movement."—The Star.

Section XII. FEEDING AND LOOKING OVER HOUNDS.—"The Public will loudly applaud the pictures."—The Sportsman.

Section XIII. THE LAST HOME.—"And then——there is seen a plaintive figure limping home across a field ever so slowly and so sorry for himself. A pathetic expression, and scarcely able to move, but he will get there eventually. The expression of that dog is human——"—The Express.

"EVERYTHING IN THE WHOLE PICTURE IS SPLENDID."—The Times.
"THE PICTURE IS PAST PRAISE."—Truth.

THE STAGE ARC LIGHT OF THE FUTURE.

THE

MACHIN ELDORADO STAGE LANTERN

(Fully Patented and Protected).

These lamps have been designed by an expert in stage lighting, and have proved themselves a great success where fitted.

Among the many advantages claimed are a Saving in Current of from 50 per cent. to 75 per cent. over battens, without taking the cost of incandescent lamps into account; a great saving in labour, one man can easily control twenty lamps with one lever-board; all battens and lengths can be dispensed with; specially-prepared flexible coloured mediums are used; the danger from falling glass is thus avoided; the simplicity of construction, there is no danger of them getting out of order; they can be adapted to any stage; no counter weights are required, and the lamps cast no shadows, thereby getting over a difficulty stage-managers of big productions have had to contend with in the past; they flood the entire stage with a powerful, soft, sunlight effect, not the steel cold light of the ordinary stage lamp; there are no shadows and no flickering.

A perfect stage lamp in every way, which will meet a long-felt want. The saving in current will pay the cost of the lamps in a very short period.

Mr. Elliott has two "featured" songs, "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you" and "Under an umbrella," both of which were vociferously encored.—The Era, Dec. 29.

MAUD ROCHEZ
Will Return to London
June 10, 1907.
Exclusively Engaged for the
LONDON HIPPODROME.

The Era, Dec. 8.—Maud Rochez presents a variety theatre run entirely by monkeys, and wonderful they are; the orchestra is composed entirely of Darwinian species, the scene-shifters and supers are of the same type, and the "artists" are also monkeys. Their programme, too, is quite clever. They conjure, juggle, wrestle, motor, dance, steeplechase, play musical instruments, and, in short, their versatility is amazing; the chef d'orchestre would put Sousa to the blush. Nothing funnier than this has been seen for a long time, and Miss Maud Rochez must have spent much time and patience in teaching her pupils.

Dr. WALFORD BODIE,

M.D.

GREAT AND GLORIOUS SUCCESS AT THE EMPIRE, HACKNEY.

READ! READ!! READ!!!

THE HACKNEY EMPIRE.

Last night's audiences filled every part of the house, and so great was the crush that the seats might easily have been booked twice over. Even standing room was at a premium. . . . The chief attraction of the week is Dr. Walford Bodie, who gives a very novel and edifying exhibition of bloodless surgery, and effects some wonderful cures from paralysis with the aid of electricity. All the patients treated have been discharged from the London hospitals as incurable. One of the cases dealt with last night was a twelve-year-old child —Louisa Cleary, 39, Southwark-street—who had been paralysed from birth and been discharged from Great Ormond-street Hospital, Guy's Hospital, St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and the London Hospital, as being beyond all human aid. She was carried on to the stage, and, it was stated, was so afflicted that she walked on her ankles, and then only with difficulty. After Dr. Bodie had performed an apparently simple feat in bloodless surgery and applied his electric treatment, the child for the first time in its life gained the entire use of the affected limbs; and the joy which it displayed at being able to raise its arm and leg and run about, was quite touching to see. Dr. Bodie explained that the secret of his method was that he practically ran the risk of his life in every case he undertook, inasmuch as it was necessary to pass a high voltage of electricity through his body to accomplish what to the lay mind was little short of a miracle. He then proceeded to pass three million volts through his body, making himself a human resistance coil for the time being. By means of the electricity he was able to light a cigarette with his fingers, and ignited a linen handkerchief with the current which passed through his body from his right hand to his left. In the same way he lit a number of gas-jets with a banana held between his teeth. A series of electrical experiments which he performed on certain members of the audience who volunteered to go on the stage caused intense amusement.—Hackney and Kingsland Gazette, Dec. 12.

And as to turns as applied to bicycles, one has to see Lotto, Lilo, and Otto go through their performance before being truly entitled to say that one has seen real trick cycling. This trio do some remarkable evolutions on their wheels, and in the end the two male members finish up with a bicycle polo match, with a huge rag ball, which is not only a screamingly funny performance, but is also extraordinarily fast and very expert of execution."

Songs, Changes, and Specialities Cheered and Cheered Again.
Complimented by Mr. Elliston, Mr. Morton, and the Entire Local Press.
Specially Retained. Palace Theatre, Hull, March 18, 1907.
As it was expected, Miss Barbara Babington makes a splendid Prince Florizel, and sings in a captivating manner. She has all the necessary dash for the part she plays.—Hull Daily News, Dec. 27, 1906.
Miss Hersee deserves so fine a lover as Miss Barbara Babington brings to her in the part of Prince Florizel. Miss Babington is a model of elegant symmetry; she makes a graceful principal boy.—Hull Daily Mail, Dec. 27, 1906.
Miss Barbara Babington is a charming principal boy, and Hull playgoers are justly proud that she can claim a family connection with the city. Miss Babington has a pleasing voice, and her grace of manner and deportment make her a perfect "boy." Last night she was presented with a bouquet; before the pantomime is many days old she will have won favour with the town.—Eastern Morning News, Dec. 27, 1906.
Dealing with the fai rmembers of the cast first, Miss Barbara Babington is to be congratulated upon the favourable impression she has created as Prince Florizel. Endowed with a taking style she sings and acts in a manner that wins her a host of admirers.—The Stage, Jan. 3, 1907.

MISS LILLIE LANGTRY'S Welcome return to her admirers in the Metropolis, whose reception is a most cordial one. Sparkling and effervescent as ever, the tireless comedienne keeps spectators in a state of excitement by the energy which she infuses into her singing and dancing. The ear of the audience is kept amused by the humour of her songs, and the eye is kept constantly on the move to follow the rapid steps of the popular comedienne, who is able to preserve her vivacity and charm even when careering along the stage at lightning speed. Determined efforts are made to extract an encore from this popular young lady.—The Era, Dec. 15.

The Pelican, Jan. 2, 1907, says:—
Mr. Edwin Brett is that very rare person a really humorous comedian. As Bluebeard his method is quiet and artistic. He doesn't shout or clown unduly, but gets his effects ably and well, and sings his several excellent songs with point and distinction, such as sundry other comedians might well seek to imitate.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE New Alliance of Variety Artists, Musicians, and Stage Employees has, through its secretaries, Messrs. Frank Gerald, J. B. Williams, and William Johnson, had an interview with Mr. Tozer, Mr. Adney Payne, and Mr. Sutton, representing the Tivoli, Oxford, and other variety houses. The interview took place at the office of the Syndicate in Durham House, Strand, and the result is that the directors named will submit the proposals made on behalf of the Alliance to the members of the Entertainment Proprietors' Association, and a further interview will take place early next month, when the matter will be again considered in conference. The proceedings on Tuesday were of an amicable nature throughout. It was admitted that so far as the stage staff were concerned, the abolition of the "tips" had made a difference to the men which the management ought to take into consideration.

THE agreement with Mr. Gibbons comes into force at all the halls under his control on Monday next. Mr. Gibbons's enterprises include the Royal, Holborn, the Empire, Islington, the Duchess, Balham, the New Grand, Clapham, the Hippodrome, Ealing, and the Empire, Croydon.

A MEETING of stage-managers was held last week to consider their relations to the movement initiated by the Alliance. Mr. Harry Mountford presided, and among the representatives of the Alliance present were—Mr. Frank Gerald, V.A.F., Mr. William Johnson, general secretary N.A.T.E., Mr. C. C. Bartram, Mr. A. Voyce, and Mr. Harrison. The questions submitted were discussed, and the meeting adjourned until this week-end.

AN agreement was signed on Thursday between the Alliance and Mr. Frank Macnaghten, which covers all the halls under the Macnaghten control so far as the interests of the variety artists and musicians are concerned, and all the London halls so far as members of the stage staff are concerned. The stage employees will receive the rates recognised by the Society, and all stage employees are to be members of the National Association of Theatrical Employees. This agreement is, practically, the charter of the Alliance, and is being agreed to by other proprietors.

THE General Staff branch of the N.A.T.E. met on Wednesday to deal with the large number of applications for membership received, and letters were read from many towns and cities in the United Kingdom asking for information and assistance to form a local branch. It was decided to give the Alliance full power to deal with the interests represented by the branch.

THE local branch secretary of the A.M.U. is helping the stage employees to form a branch in Oldham. A meeting with that end in view will be held in Cork on Sunday.

MR. DONALD MACLEAN, assistant-stage-manager of the Comedy Theatre, was taken suddenly ill on the 3rd inst. and died the following day, heart failure and congestion of the lungs being the immediate cause of decease. The funeral took place on Saturday, Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, the manager, and Mr. A. Palmer, the master carpenter, being present, among the friends and relatives of the deceased. The stage staff sent a wreath, as did the attendants of the front of the House. Others came from Mr. Chudleigh, Mr. Clifton Brooks, stage-manager, the members of the company, Mr. Harry Thompson, master carpenter, Duke of York's Theatre, and Mr. Burbick, property-master of the same house. Mr. MacLean, who was a native of New Zealand, was very popular with the staff at the Comedy, for whom he was instrumental in getting a goose and sundry other seasonable gifts at Christmas.

THE American Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees have recently raised the wages of the travelling men, the rates being now as follows:—Master carpenter, $40 per week; assistant and flyman, $30 per week; all extra men, $30 per week; property man, $30 per week; assistant property man, $25 per week; electrician, $30 per week; assistant-electrician, $25 per week.

WE regret to announce the death of Mrs. Andrews, the mother of Mr. R. Andrews, Mr. Frank Curzon's master carpenter, and of the late Miss Bessie Wentworth. Mrs. Andrews died on Saturday last, and was buried on Wednesday in the family grave at Tooting Cemetery, beside her daughter. The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous. Among those who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. R. Andrews, Mr. A. C. Andrews, Mr. C. Andrews, Mr. C. Aube, Mr. C. Chapman, Mr. A. Roos, Mr. Arthur Palmer, Mrs. Knowles, Mrs. Whittlesea, and Mr. and Mrs. George MacDonald. The whole of the arrangements were admirably carried out under the supervision of Mr. T. Dunkley, of Westminster Bridge-road.

THE DARLINGTON STATION FIRE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I correct through the columns of valuable paper the various reports which have appeared with regard to the fire that occurred at Darlington Station on Sunday last? It is true that the entire company of My Sweetheart and the whole of the scenery were on the train that was on fire, but nothing connected with this company was damaged as reported, and the statement in an evening paper that my papers and private property was destroyed is also without foundation.
Yours faithfully, P. HOWARD STURGESS
(Mr. Wentworth Croke's company manager).
Theatre Royal, Darlington, Jan. 10, 1907.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—This week Mr. Harry Benet presents his pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, which was much appreciated by the crowded audience on Monday night. Miss Ray Anderson makes a dashing Robinson Crusoe, her songs being well received. Miss Marion Williams as Polly is quite captivating; Miss Lily Carver is seen to great advantage as Capt. Tea Pot. Mr. Denis Lyndon is decidedly original and quaint as Mrs. Crusoe; Mr. W. Melville-Page as Little Willie adds greatly to the fun; and so does Mr. Tom McKay as Friday, who also contributes some clever dancing. The remaining characters are in the capable hands of Mr. E. Curtis, F. Sietru, Mr. F. Clive, and the Misses Grace Wilson, Trixie Bascombe, and Wynnie Russel. The Garnet Quartette of Dancers are a great success. In the Palace scene, Clivetta, juggler; Read and Wright, top boot dancers; and the Peritas, acrobats, give turns of high merit. The scenery is especially good. The musical-director is Major L. Hornsey.

ABERDEEN. — HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The D'Oyly Carte Company opened the second week of their present visit with The Mikado. The house was crowded in every part. Miss Rassam excelled herself as Katisha; Mr. Walenn played Ko-Ko with many happy individualistic touches; Mr. Moss made an excellent Nanky-Poo; and Miss Hastings was wholly suited to the part of Yum-Yum. Miss Evans was a piquant Pitti-Sing, and Miss Mabel Burnege also played one of the "little maids" with marked charm. Mr. Kavanagh in the title-part, was in fine voice, and Mr. Tunks gave a good rendering of Pish-Tush.

PALACE THEATRE. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Casey's Circus, a most amusing burlesque, is the principal attraction here this week, with that versatile comedian, Mr. Tom Woottwell, as a good second. Miss Billie Barlow is an exceptionally piquant comedienne; the Mezettis are exceedingly clever acrobats; and among the other successful artists are the Lynches, in their American picture songs; Mr. Frank Coyle, a highly original comedian; Miss Marie Wilton, a graceful dancer and singer; and Miss Emily Lyndale, a pleasing vocalist.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas; Musical Director, Mr. Alf. Carter.—Good houses are being drawn by the fine performances of Mrs. Frank Bateman's company in No Wedding Bells for Her, the staging, scenery, and dresses being very elaborate. Miss Lilly Montague gives an admirable portrayal of Lola Delaspierre; Mr. Stuart Lomath as Frank Hatherleigh, a clergyman, plays the part to the life; as does also Mr. George Herbert as Horatio Fane, an old actor; Mr. Percy Shaw as Dick Delver, the detective, is very good, and Mr. Arthur Linay as Harold Trevelyn, Mr. Will Skelton as Simkins, Mr. Robert Lord as Adonis Tightfist, Miss Grace Battersby as Doris Fane, and Miss Ellen Owen as Marie Flail help valuably towards the success of the representation.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. B. Barnes.—Mr. Fred Granville's pantomime company, Babes in the Wood opened here on Monday to a packed house, and every item was applauded to the echo. Miss Cissie Bodina makes herself immensely popular with her performance of Robin Hood; Miss Hettie Lind gives a charming portrayal of Maid Marion; as the Babes, Harold and Lucy, Master Harry Boden and Miss Edie Bell prove to be particularly clever children; Mr. Joe English is responsible for much fun as the Dame; Miss Belle Carr is very good as Will Scarlett; and Madge Holdford must be complimented for her portrayal of Allan a' Dale. Misses May Day, Nellie Price, May Cornish, and Queenie West are excellent in their respective parts; Miss Maud Lind plays the good Fairy with effect, her numbers being well rendered; Bungling Bill and Gentle Georgie are divertingly depicted by the Kimberley Boys; and Mr. Norman Hall is mirth-provoking as the Wicked uncle, Brokah de Pawn. The Three Graces, in their unique poses, prove a valuable attraction. The dresses and scenery are particularly fine.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Potter, Vandy, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—A good bill is provided at the above hall this week. The McConnell Trio are very successful in A Musical Mistake; Amy Anderson and Co. are well received in the musical scena, The Banana Queen; Ely Adair is very bright and pleasing; Billy French is a smart coon singer; Ernest Montanore and Co. must be highly complimented for an excellent sketch, with first-class acting; Jenny Hartley is duly appreciated; Leon and Leoni are admirable musical experts; and the Hippo Pictures complete a good show.

ALDERSHOT. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The popular musical play, Bluebell in Fairyland, is from start to finish a scene of brilliance, and unstinted praise is due to Mr. E. G. Falcon's talented company, who use every effort to bring about a successful issue. The principals are:—Misses Florence Somers, Constance St. Bride, Vera Vizard, Emily Wall, Bertha Johnson, Messrs. Lawrence Emery, Frank Lennard, J. H. Bishop, Chas. Resti, Harry Douglas, whilst there are some forty or fifty in smaller parts, and the chorus.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Revill.—Dick Whittington has only made a brief stay (two weeks) with us, and has now gone to fulfil engagements elsewhere. In his place has come on the scene Cinderella, her little glass slipper, and her train of burlesque attendants, comedians, and coryphées. Chief among those who give the pantomime vitality are Miss Nancy Newell, who makes a sympathetic and dainty Cinderella, and Miss Kitty Phelps, who has a brisk and airy way which sits well on the Prince. Mr. Allen Amber and Miss Cecilia Kent, as Maudie and Ethel, are eccentrically funny; Mr. Robt. Williams as the Baron, Messrs. Yorick and Yorick as brokers' men, eccentric knockabouts; and Mr. Harry Pleon as the baron's page, cause great laughter. Miss Minnie Terry is a dashing, impulsive Dandini; Miss Bella Terry is sweet and neat as Eglantine; and Miss Ethel Davies as the fairy godmother, Sunbeam, is elegant of figure, graceful in movement, and sings sweetly.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The present company for the week includes Gorge Ray, a humorous Scotch comedian; Fred and Maud Vypond, who are favourites; Sam Redfern, negro eccentric; Harry Briggs, described as a triple-voiced vocalist; Wragg and Wragg, Royal military athletes; Clown Charlton, in his eccentric musical variety act; the Six Brothers Luck, in Blazes; the Naval Quintette, in Ashore in Venice; and the Bioscope.

ATTERCLIFFE. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chris. A. Wordsworth. — To a house crowded in every part Mr. Edwin C. Jazon presented on Monday evening his pantomime, Cinderella, a production full of "go" from start to finish, abounding with tuneful music, tasteful dresses and scenery. Miss Flo Melville is a vivacious Cinderella; as Prince Brilliant Miss Louie Hurman is most captivating, and makes an ideal principal boy; Miss Madge Bryde is pleasing as Dandini; Miss Ada Pierce as Dorothy is seen to advantage; Miss Florrie Burnette is graceful and winsome as Queen Bountiful, and her songs are rendered in excellent taste; Mr. Stan Aubrey as Baron Crooked, Mr. Charles Preston as Arabella, Mr. Alf Brookes as Isabella, and Mr. Fred Ward as Buttons are a quartette of comedians who cause endless mirth by their witty sallies and comical by-play; in this direction excellent service is also rendered by Messrs. Onda and Leon as Staff and Roller; specialities are introduced by Pearce and Ward, burlesque boxers; Onda and Leon, triple-bar performers; Mr. Stan Aubrey, legmania artist; Harding and Preston, expert dancers; and McCann's performing dogs. The stage and business arrangement of the company is in the hands of Mr. F. Strachan.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—A programme of all-round excellence is provided here this week. The Jackley Trio, including the whistling comedian, George, give an acrobatic act of much merit; a pleasing turn, which is most acceptable, is provided by that popular humorist, Mr. Wilson Blackledge, his representation of a village concert meeting with hearty applause; Rosel gives a clever and daring gymnastic exhibition; Miss Minnie Fenton is a Scottish comedienne of much merit; Steeley and Dowton are seen to advantage in a burlesque scena; Mr. T. Wordley Hulse, assisted by a good company, gives a highly dramatic and sensational sketch, entitled The Fight in the Forge; Mr. Charles Rose is an excellent comedian and dancer; and Mr. Clayton's Attergraph pictures are up to date.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On Monday Mr. R. C. Buchanan and Mr. Ernest Stevens presented Cinderella, by Stanley Rogers, music by Harry Richardson. Miss Madge Daly as the Prince makes much of the part, singing well and tunefully; Cinderella is sweetly played by Miss Lily Eyton, who sings well, and is admirably supported by Mr. Harry Ray, as Capers, who is a specialist in dancing and knockabout business. Mr. Frank Barclay raises the character of Dandini to the high level of grand opera, with his sympathetic voice and cultured style. The Baron has an amusing delineator in Mr. Freddie French, and his partner the Baroness is admirably presented by Mr. Ted Young, whose songs receive encores nightly. The two daughters are well taken by Miss Edith Barwell and Miss Grace Desmond, and the Duke of Whistbridge has a fine representative in Miss Madge Allan. The Fairy Godmother is attractively played by Miss Elsie Cooper.

BACUP. — NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.— Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here this week with the romantic play, entitled The Love that Women Desire. Mr. Jerrold Heather acts with power and effect as Philip Carnaby; and Squire Abingdon is commendably presented by Mr. J. O. Stewart; Mr. Alfred Brandon is responsible for the characterisation of the villain, Richard Abingdon; whose accomplice, Madge Abingdon, is successfully embodied by Miss Cicely Desmond; Frank Hardy is portrayed with good dramatic effect by Mr. Leonard Montgomery; Mr. Graham Winsford as Dr. Brandrath and Mr. Hugh Wallace as the Rev. Arnold Cathorne, both give an excellent account of themselves; Mr. John Hignett as Dennis O'Rourke and Miss Nita Imeson as Pattie Swift cause much amusement; Mr. J. W. Wilkinson is droll as P.C. Sowerberry; Miss Lalla Stanhope gives an admirable impersonation of the part of Sybil Thorburn; and Miss N. Griffiths is successful as Mariquinha, an Indian maiden.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone. —Mr. Herbert Ralland's company in La Poupee is here. The Lancelot of Mr. Arthur Cozens is an amusing presentment, and Father Maxime is well done by Mr. Walter Balfour. The Hilarine of Mr. Fred Seymour is brimful of humour and eccentricity; and Alesia is capitally and vivaciously embodied by Miss Mysie Devine.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr William Greet's company in The Shulamite is here. Mr. Algernon J. Hicks gives a good rendering of Simeon Krillet, and Mr. Charles Fancourt makes an excellent Robert Waring; while Miss Ruth Shepherd is a sympathetic and artistic Deborah Krillet.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Attracting here are Mr. George Formby in some amusing songs; the Three Orros, clever gymnasts; Miss Hall, a vocalist of much merit; and Fred Horsfall, a clever singer. The Champions are successful comedians; Eric does a novelty act; and Mlle. Eldee gives an artistic turn.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Sindbad entered upon its third week on Monday with every sign of lasting popularity. The second half of the pantomime has been considerably brightened up by the introduction of several new songs and jokes. Miss May Hart (Sindbad) gives the rousing song with chorus, "My Soldier Boy." Miss Mollie Wynne (Ganem) now renders the popular "Zuyder Zee" in Dutch costume, with clog dance. To Miss F. Cameron (Kali) has been allotted the taking air "Cheyanne," which she sings in capital style. Two fresh ditties, "How dare you!" and "Not in England," fall to Mr. Percy Baverstock (Grinbad), and this smart comedian gets hearty recalls for his extra labour. Mr. Arthur Royce (Mrs. Sindbad) and Mr. E. W. Coleman (Fitz-Gubbins) are always to the fore in the funmaking. A special meed of praise is due to the ladies and children of the chorus, together with the orchestra, for their share of work in making the pantomime a success.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—An exceptionally good programme is provided this week, including, as it does, the Courtiers (consisting of four ladies and five gentlemen), who entertain with melody and refined humour that secures them many encores. Charles Collette and Joan Derry present their new farce, Tea for Two, which is received with applause. Notwithstanding that Harry Freeman craved the indulgence of the audience on account of a severe cold, he is not allowed to depart until he has given a trio of his popular songs. Francis O'Flynn gains success as a banjo virtuoso; Belle Braham, the popular pictorial songstress, gives her latest selections with unmistakable enjoyment to he audience; Cairns and Lynch contribute some excellent buck dancing in wooden shoes; Marion Scott's singing of "The man in Manitoba" is accorded a warm reception. Raymond's bio-tableaux depicts "The Tragic Wedding."

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. J. W. Whitbread's Irish company opened here on Monday, and presented the new drama, The French Hussar. The piece met with great success here, not a little of which was due to the impersonation of Tom Burke by that capital actor, Mr. Frank Lyndon. His acting left nothing to be desired. Mr. James O'Brien (a great favourite here) as Darby, "the blast," created much merriment with his exceedingly humorous impersonation. Mr. Dane Clarke must be commended for his realistic impersonation of Napoleon; and Miss Jessie Glenn furnished a vivacious interpretation of Kitty Malone. Miss Madeline Hurst portrayed Josephine, Empress of the French, excellently; and the iniquitous attorney-at-law, Tony Bassett, was realistically embodied by Mr. Harry Richardson. Mr. Ryland Leigh exhibited exceptional skill in his impersonation of Capt. Montague Croft; and Miss Cecilia Dare distinguished herself as Marie De Meudon. Mr. Tom Ireland in the dual rôles of Capt. Bubbleton and Mehee de La Touche rendered able assistance; and other parts were well sustained by Miss Amy Whingate, Miss E. F. Brady, and Messrs. Jno. Daly, Byrne Dawson, Tom Bayley, and C. Romer. It should be added that this company is under the able direction of Mr. Dane Clarke. During the week Charles O'Malley and the Colleen Bawn have also been presented.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris. — The Christmas pantomime, Mother Goose, continues to be a great attraction, and Mr. Warden deserves the heartiest congratulations on the triumph he has achieved. An enormous hit has been achieved by that clever comedienne Miss May Moore Duprez; and Mr. Martin Adeson also works very hard to please, and succeeds admirably. There are not many dull moments when he and Mr. Wm. Cromwell (Jack) occupy the stage. Miss Carlotta Levey's songs have won the popular favour; and Miss Molly Macintyre delights all with her charming rendering of "Au Revoir, My Little Hyacinth." Miss Elsie Robey commands much success by her vivacious and charming interpretation of Lady Biddy, singing "Borneo" with rare charm. We have nothing but praise for the excruciatingly funny 'bus scene and the concluding scene, "Heartsease," an exquisite stage picture.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General Manager Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. Fred Karno's company heads the bill, and presents with great success the amusing sketch, Early Birds. Mr. Albert Christian is paying a return visit, and has been heartily welcomed; his fine baritone voice has been heard to the utmost advantage. Baker and Balfe are aptly described as marvellous xylophonists; a good reception nightly has been accorded the Bros. Hayes, who appear in their comedy act, The Porter and the Professional, which is certainly very funny. Mr. Harry Leybourne's mimicry of stars is surprisingly realistic; and Miss Katie Cohen's cultured vocalism gains many admirers. Jess Thorne, comedy artist, and the Empire Pictures complete a fine programme.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company is appearing this week in the sterling drama, London's Curse. Mr. Horace Denton is seen to great advantage as George Montgomery; and that charming actress, Miss Nina Blake-Adams, furnishes a clever impersonation of Mabel Montgomery. The villainies of Abraham Scroby are realistically depicted by Mr. Percy M. Stevenson; and that capital comedian, Mr. Tom H. Solly, is exceedingly humorous as Mussels. Mr. Elmore Frith sustains the difficult rôle of Dr. Cameron with much credit to himself; and Mr. Cyril Grier acquits himself admirably as Rev. Ernest Langton. A special word of praise is due to Mr. R. S. Innes—a new-comer—for his decidedly funny impersonation of Rory Drummond. Miss Roma Tremayne interpreted the rôle of Lena Montgomery with much grace and charm; and Miss Mattie Crawford was a vivacious Lottie Smithers. Mr. H. Hesselgrave was all that could be desired as the repulsive Marley; and other parts were well sustained by Messrs. Ed. Smythe, F. Parker, and T. Oakley. The Alhambra Bioscope exhibits a capital picture this week, entitled "A Pleasant Day (?) in the Country."

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—On Monday Hamlet was played here by Mr. Allan Wilkie, who made a very intelligent Danish Prince; Miss Ina Cameron was a painstaking Ophelia; and Miss Carrie Baillie a satisfactory Gertrude; the Ghost had an awe-inspiring exponent in Mr. Herbert Morgan; the fine exposition of Laertes by Mr. G. Alex. Marsh was well received; as also was Mr. T. Coleman's Polonius. The Merchant of Venice, Corsican Brothers, Romeo and Juliet, Othello, The Bells, and David Garrick were underlined for the week.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. George Dance's company is delighting large audiences with a spirited and delightful performance of Veronique. Miss Ethel Negretti is in the title-rôle, and her performance is rapturously received; as Florestan Mr. Roland Bottomley appears to advantage; Mr. Tom Seymour creates amusement as Coquenard; and Mr. Percival Knight gives a humorous rendering of Loustat; Miss Doris Greville is in every respect an excellent Madame Coquenard; the Countess is cleverly played by Miss Edith Devonshire; Miss Isobel Leonard is a charming Denise; and Aunt Benoit is adequately represented by Miss Maud Leonard.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke. — Hill and Whittaker, talented instrumental and vocal artists, are again appearing here with much éclat, and Mr. J. W. Ashcroft, the veteran Irish comedian, is fulfilling a highly successful return engagement; Spry and Monti have made a hit in The Dandy Guardsman; the New York Nippers are popular in an amusing turn; and a strong combination also includes Miss Nelly Farrell, a talented Irish comedienne; the Sisters Marion, accomplished duettists; Hallam and Stanton, versatile artists, in A Broken Journey; the Lovelaces, song illustrators; Mr. Fred Keeton, character comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Queen of Hearts is playing to full houses. Mr. George Robey as the Queen continues to please; Miss Ethel Haydon has rare vocal charm; Miss Millie Lindon scores with her well-emphasised singing and acting as the Prince; and Messrs. Edward Lewis, Tom Hearn, and T. A. Shale, together with the Misses Valli-Valli and Helen Cecile, are very popular.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Crusoe's Adventures is being received with every favour, and Miss Georgina Delmar, in her fascinating performance of the voyager, is ably supported by the Misses Lulu Valli, Nell Emerald, Louie Collier, &c., and Messrs. J. F. McArdle, Fred Wright, jun., Colin Coop, Geo. Miller, and the Hayters, &c.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Cymbeline has drawn most appreciative audiences, and is to be withdrawn to-night, after a successful run of three weeks.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Cinderella is winning fresh laurels for Mr. Collingwood, who has again put on a pantomime both merry and ornate. He is reaping his reward in full houses.

METROPOLE THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Saved from the Sea affords the Metropole company many opportunities. Mr. Percy Dawsone acts Dan Ellington in a hearty, robust manner; Mr. Austen Milroy scores heavily as Richard Trenton; Mr. Edward Finlay ably portrays Peter Scalcher; Mr. Fred A. Marston's utility is seen in the part of Jim Weaver; Mr. Andrew Emm is humorous as Billy Snooks; Mr. Vernon Proctor shines as Jenkins; and Mr. Francis Everard is adequate as the Governor of the Gaol; Miss Rose Ralph gives a delightful representation of Nan; Miss Amy Corelli is admired as Polly Blake; Miss Bella Power, in the rôle of Mrs. Blake, shows to advantage, and Little Gladys secures sympathy for the boy, Jack.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The French Spy appears here with a strong company, headed by Mr. Fred Benton, whose acting as the strong man, Fritz, is one of the salient features of the representation; Miss Madge Devereux is dramatic in her handling of the title-rôle; Miss A. Harrison Tate plays Olga with distinction; Mr. Beresford Lovett invests the character of Capt. Summers with desirable force; Mr. Max Coutts gives a clever study of Count Romanoff; Mr. L. Chaseby works well as the lieutenant, Maxwell; Mr. G. Sherraton acts in admirable fashion as Petross Romanoff; Mr. Seymour Perry makes a humorous Knipps; and Miss Ella Seton fills the part of Julie conspicuously well.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Christian is fulfilling a most successful engagement here with Mr. Wentworth Croke's No. 1 Company, including Miss Grace Chalmers, whose Glory Quayle is hailed with the utmost satisfaction; Mr. Frank Tennant's Hon. John Storm is a highly finished performance; Mr. Charles Hill is an able representative of Parson Quayle; Mr. Edward Ling does creditably as Father Lamplugh; Mr. Charles E. Dering is successful as Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. Frederick Scarth acts with sang-froid as Lord Robert Ure; and Miss Vashti Wellborn's Polly Love is well rendered.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Bo-Peep, which is being produced this week by Dean Tribune, is a tabloid pantomime written on recognised lines. The familiar story is told in an entertaining manner to the accompaniment of tuneful music and pretty dances. Strasberger's Lilliputians make up for their lack of inches by their extraordinary ability, while another item which has the stamp of originality is that given by Lindon's Vaudeville Entertainers in a comedy mélange, Monks at Play. The Three Dumonds, strolling players; George Newburn, mimic; Marie Dumas, soprano; the Three Merrills, trick cyclists; Harry Lawson, comedian; and Zanfretta and Napio, eccentric musicians, are also responsible for attractive items.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The Little Stowaway, a dramatic sketch, under the direction of Ethel Arden and George Abel, Ltd., holds the premier position on the bill this week. It is one that has always been a favourite with Gaiety patrons, and this week they show no deterioration in enthusiastic applause. Grahame and Harrington enhance their reputation with a dramatic episode, A Daughter of Pleasure; Tate and Tate give an exceedingly smart, up-to-date performance as comedy acrobats; the Bob Hanlon Troupe display considerable ability in their double somersaults and Pirouettes; Lily Lena is a charming comedienne; Dolly Moore is a delightful juvenile male impersonator; Stewart and Morgan, in their musical scena, Leaving Ireland, receive the plaudits of a delighted audience; T. G. Callaghan is a quaint comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford.—That clever and popular comedian, Nat Clifford, is paying a welcome return visit; as "The Bounding Navvies," Wild, Willie, and West display an agility and freedom of action, in conjunction with comedy, which secures them considerable popularity; Charles Cardow has an excellent imitation of the modern drama; while Tennyson and Wallis are capital comedians and cross-talkers; Starr and Jerome are excellent sand dancers, and Adams and Ward good comedians. Ida Rose, Sam Morrison, and Mabel Le Roy complete the programme.

BORDESLEY PALACE. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The chief turn this week is supplied by John Warren and Company, in a mystifying act entitled The Magic Carpet. Mr. Warren also introduces some smart conjuring. The Grovini Sisters are clever tumblers and acrobats, and the Vetter Bros. present their muscular turn in attractive and novel manner; the performance of the Huxter Bros. is of a distinctly different character. Their astonishing long-distance somersaults earn enthusiastic applause from the audience. Little Tichbourn is a smart young comedian and long boot dancer; Fred Elton gives a pleasing musical and vocal item, and Torbay, shadowgraphist, appeals effectively to the audience.

CURZON HALL.—Signor Volpi's Royal Italian Circus continues to attract appreciative audiences, several new items being added.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—The boards here are occupied this week by Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company in The Indian Mutiny. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton as Lieut. Manley gains much appreciation; Messrs. Villiers Stanley and J. S. Sheddon play with distinction Nebu Singh and Abul Khan; Ra Goonga is in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Keand; Mr. Cyril Harrison is a satisfactory Captain Manley; and Mr. John Davidson is well placed as Major Ingleby. A sympathetic Ghuz-nah is seen in Miss F. Melrose Millett; and Miss Lillie Grey as Mrs. Major Ingleby and Miss Agnes Kingston as Kate Ingleby are also worthy of mention. Mr. Cecil Morand is amusing in the rôle of Terry O'Brien.

BLACKPOOL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—AN unusually fine performance of Sherlock Holmes is being given here nightly this week by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart and Co., and their efforts are meeting with the success they merit. Mr. Stewart, as the famous detective, has a part to which he is eminently suited, and carries all before him; the virtuous celestials applauding him to the echo. Dr. Watson is carefully played by Mr. Stanley Logan; James Larrabee finds a most capable exponent in Mr. Stephen T. Ewart, an actor well known and admired by Blackpudlians; Mr. James Skea (Professor Moriarty), Mr. Fred Bell (John Forman), and Mr. Henry Littlejohn (Sir Edward Leighton), likewise give a good account of themselves. A charming and painstaking performance of Alice Faulkner is contributed by Miss Gladys Harvey; Miss Georgina Wynter cleverly enacts the part of Madge Larrabee; and Miss Dot Selby supplies a creditable portrayal of Mrs. Faulkner. Other parts are in efficient hands; the staging is highly effective.

OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Silver King, played by Messrs. Polini and Melford's company, is again the attraction here. Mr. Fred D. Daviss gives a very powerful rendering of Wilfred Denver; and Nellie Denver has a sweetly sympathetic exponent in Miss Daisy Scudamore; Mr. Edward J. George continues to play Jaikes as he alone can; whilst Mr. L. St. George Lowther, as The Spider; Mr. George Belmore, as Henry Corket; and Mr. Arthur Wright as Elijah Combe also merit commendation.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred. Waller.—The premier place on this week's bill is occupied by the Werner Amoros Troupe of jugglers and comedians, whose turn is particularly good. Other contributions to a capital programme are Carrie Joy, comedienne; Harry Morris, a clever mimic; The Ringling Trio, American eccentrics; Oakley and James, in "A Tit-Bit of Everything"; The Kyasyas, athletes and weight-lifters; Ed. B. Ford, comedian; and The Wheelers, cyclists; Vernon's Imperial Bioscope is a perennial attraction here.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. C. Moody.—Mr. James Kiddie's company is here, with Dick Whittington. In the nom-rôle Miss Adele Rosye is charming; Miss Leah Laurie wins favour for a pretty conception of the part of Alice. Others to whom praise is due include Bass and Guinness, quaint comedians; J. H. Wakefield, Fred Spencer, Alec Kendal, Archie J. Milne, Mesdames Gladys Kildare, Lily Jeffries, Florence Hilton, Annie Broughton, the Three Sisters Kilner, and the Le Belle Troupe of Parisian dancers.

GAIETY.—Proprietor, Councillor John Grantham; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur James.—In addition to animated pictures, Mr. James has provided an excellent attraction in the form of a spectacular pantomime, entitled Starlight's Dream, which has been most successfully interpreted by local children.

HIPPODROME.—The Apex Animated Picture Company is presenting here the latest invention, viz., the Chronophone.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—On New Year's Eve Mr. J. F. Elliston presented to a large and appreciative audience his 27th annual pantomime, the subject chosen this year being Mother Goose. The book, which is brightly written, and up-to-date with songs and local allusions, is the work of Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and an exceptionally good combination of artists is engaged in the production. The parts of Mother Goose and her son Jack are in the hands of those clever comedians Charlie and Harry Rich, and the part of their Dutch servant, Gretchen, has afforded Miss Lola Patey an opportunity of displaying exceptional abilities, her impersonation, including the song, "By the side of the Zuyder Zee," with chorus of midget singers and dancers, being admirably done. Of the remaining comedians, Mr. H. O. Wills (Lord Pudsey), Mr. Leonard Maitland (Wibsey Slack), and Mr. W. Fullbrook (Mayor of Tapham), make the most of their opportunities, the latter's "astronomical" sketch being very amusing. Of the ladies, Miss Isabelle Dillon figures prominently as a dashing principal boy, Colin, Jill being nicely impersonated by Miss Pauline Hague. The Demon King and the Fairy Queen are respectively undertaken by Mr. Charles Homer and Miss Violet Ashcroft. Dances, &c., are given by the Eight Tiny Tots, a troupe of midget dancers, Miss Lottie Stone's quartette of lady dancers, and the Four Rosebuds. The incidental music is composed and arranged by Messrs. Wm. Closs and J. Ainscough, the latter of whom is musical director, and the whole is produced under the personal direction of Mr. Elliston.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—La Roland, in her phenomenal success, entitled "Mysterious Grotto Dances," heads the bill here, where she is supported by an old Bolton favourite, J. W. Hall, comedian; Sid Herman, Hebrew comedian; Ivy Lennard, characteristic vocalist; Carl Rosine, magician; John Alexander and his pantomime company in The Troubles of a Tourist; the Tennessee Guards, in a wonderful exhibition of lightning gun drill and wall scaling; Charles Leighton, "the man at the piano"; Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian; De Vere and Kenwick, American comedy duo, introducing burlesque pictures on popular songs; Oakdene, comedy ventriloquist, in his nautical ventriloquial scena, "The Stowaway"; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young. — Crowded houses are witnessing Mr. E. C. Jazon's Aladdin. As Aladdin Miss Edna Latonne plays with plenty of dash, and renders her songs in a pleasing manner; Miss Florrie White makes a capable Princess Badroulbadour, Miss Lila Lingard a pleasing Pekoe, Mr. J. C. Morris an amusing Widow Twankey, and Mr. Harry Vernon an effective Abanazar; spirited performances are given by Miss Flo Russell as Bercour and Miss Blanche Vernon as Caramel; Mr. Cyril Carle is a capable exponent of the Emperor; Mr. B. Best leaves nothing to be desired as Gin Sling, the Vizier; and the Genie of the Ring and Slave of the Lamp are respectively well played by the Sisters Varley; Messrs. George and Edwards work hard as Ping and Pong; the specialities are distinctly good, the Sisters Reno, in various national dances, being exceptionally smart and clever; a refined and neat performance is given by Kayardos' equilibrist and cannon ball juggler; also a clever contortion act by Mar Merlin. The scenery and dresses are pretty, and chorus and ballet well trained.

BOSCOMBE. — HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's pantomime, Aladdin, is playing to fine houses here this week. The book is by F. Leslie Moreton, Francis Knowles being responsible for the music, the whole being produced under the stage direction of Mr. A. J. Nicholl. Miss Minnie Love as Aladdin, a decided success, fully merits the applause she receives for her singing and acting; Miss Lala Melrose makes an attractive Princess; and Miss Violet Kenyon is good as Pekoe. Miss Zoe Gilfillan as the Genie of the Lamp has an excellent voice; Mr. Mat Melrose is whimsical as Widow Twankey, causing much mirth; Mr. A. J. Nicholls appears to advantage as the Emperor; and Mr. W. P. Owen is a droll Abanazar. The specialities include Welda and Wynne, who, as the Chinese policemen, introduce some clever juggling and dancing; and the Four Berlin Belles are a particularly able set of dancers. The arduous task of conducting is well sustained by F. Gompertz Leake.

BOSTON.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. Saphrini.—This popular place of amusement was crowded on Monday to witness an excellent bill of fare that does great credit to the management. Mr. Chas. Morritt caused a sensation with his marvellous illusions. He also introduces and works Beulah, the mysterious lady thought-reader and the blind man who is gifted with a wonderful memory. Charlie Bradford is a very good comedian; Miss Brenda Leslie with illustrated songs was encored; The boy Samson, weight-lifter and wrestler, challenges all comers under twenty years of age, and was successful in throwing three opponents on Monday; and the American Rayograph shows some very good pictures.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Mouillot's well-balanced company in The Girl Behind the Counter, opened here on Monday. The play is beautifully staged and dressed, and met with a cordial reception. Mr. H. D. Clarke as the General has a part in which he simply revels; Mr. Howard Cridland, too, makes a success of Viscount Gushington, and Mons. Jules Charmettes as Mons. Duval invests the character with much humour; Mr. Arthur very droll and entertaining page; and great fun is also provided by Mr. Syd Walker and Mr. Cliff Lake as the Ugly Sisters, and by Mr. F. Hulme Sharp as the Baron. These four comedians make a great hit with their travesty of the suffragettes, and by their many grotesque bits of nonsense keep the audience in the happiest of moods.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—An excellent programme is sustained here this week. The Six Imrie Girls win cordial applause in their novel act, American Girls at Practice, their club exercises being especially effective; the Treshams are very diverting in their sketch, Roads Up; Frank Lynne, American comedian, contributes several amusing songs; Woodward and Walton are clever rag-time dancers; the Wilton-Heriot Trio make a great hit in their sketch, Beauty and the Bounders; Florence Deighton is a pleasing double-voiced vocalist; the Ashers (Agnes and Mike) achieve success in The Earl and the Girl; Tom Parker evokes hearty laughter with his comic songs; Zasma is a clever trapeze artist and performer with heavy weights; Madge Osmond is a juvenile male impersonator; Florence Carlow is a dainty comedienne and dancer; and the Alhambra-scope pictures are excellent.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—There is a capital company here this week. George Leyton, assisted by numerous auxiliaries, wins hearty applause for his treatment of the dramatic episode, The Wreck of the Birkenhead; or, A Tale that will Never Die; the Leslie Brothers, musical comedians, merit unstinted praise for their clever and amusing turn; the Ergotti and King Luis troupe are well received in their fine risley act; David Poole, novelty ventriloquist, is very entertaining; Arthur Kenny, the sensational cyclist, accomplishes some wonderful feats; My Fancy, "the Queen of Sand Dancers," submits a good turn; Martinetti and Grossi, novelty surprise artists, are amusing; Harry Desmond is a droll comedian; Simosa San is effective in her juggling and balancing speciality; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Little Hans Andersen is still attracting large audiences here. The fairy play has been brightened by the introduction of fresh business by Mr. R. Foster Knox (Merman), Mr. George Howard (King of the Copper Castle). Miss Evelyn Hughes (Karen) adds new dances to her part, and Miss Mabel Lavelle (Princess) contributes fresh songs. The dances by the Misses Elsie and Mabelle May are especially pleasing features of the performance.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Humpty Dumpty is proving highly successful, full houses being the rule at each performance. The scenery and dresses are quite up to the high standard to which we have been accustomed, and the staging generally is on a magnificent scale. Miss Sybil Arundale and Miss Maud Darling are both highly successful as principal boy and girl; the comedians, Mr. Horace Mills, Mr. Bert Gilbert, and the Brothers Griffiths, work hard and effectively in keeping the pantomime sufficiently lively; and the Tiller "Superba" Quartette score in speciality dances.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Cinderella appears to hit the popular taste, for the attendance is good at each performance. The pantomime is staged with much liberality, the dresses being tasteful and the scenery exceptionally fine. The company is hard working and efficient, Miss Mimi Fisher, as Prince Charming, deserves much commendation for a smart and effective performance of the part; Miss Dolly Denton is in every way pleasing in the title-rôle; and Miss Cissy Hilton makes a capital Dandini. The Ugly Sisters are cleverly portrayed by the Misses Cherry Wardroper and Blanche Bayley, and Miss Alys Eden, who sings sweetly, makes a graceful and effective fairy godmother. The comedians all work hard, Messrs. Karr and Kooney as the broker's men; Mr. Alan Wye, as the Baron; and Mr. A. G. Spry as the Page. Contrary to usual traditions, there is no Dame in this pantomime.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Bella and Bijou head the programme, their capital entertainment being always well appreciated here. Both the lady and gentleman are exceptionally bright and amusing, and their sterling ability as vocalists adds much to the attractiveness of the turn. Tom Davis Trio scores heavily in "Whirling the Whirl" on motor cycles in mid-air; the Three Sisters Jonghmans obtain applause for their harmonised popular songs; May Bass is a pleasing vocal comedienne; the Zelovas are clever acrobatic equilibrists; Gilbert Girard is successful as an animal and instrumental mimic; the Seddons, lady juggler and comic waiter, do a good turn; and Fred Herbert is successful in topical songs. The performance concludes with "Where's There's a Will, there's a Way," depicted by Vernon's Imperial bioscope EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—The programme here is headed by an attractive turn by Countess Romanow, the lady presenting a series of graceful and artistic poses, entitled "Iris," the intervals between the poses being utilised by the Bioscope in depicting various incidents in her life, including how she came to adopt the stage as a profession. Milton Ray's company has a capital sketch, in three scenes, The Cruise of the Calabar; The Cullane Trio score with a comedy absurdity, Over the Garden Wall; the Hartfords do an exceptionally clever bicycle act; Charles Rutland, comedian, obtains applause; Vernando does a good ventriloquial turn; the Greys are pleasing operatic vocalists; and Joe Conway, comedian, is appreciated. The performance concludes with a good display of Empire animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—Poole's Myriorama, animated pictures, and a strong variety show continues to attract a large attendance at each performance.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD.—Manager and Lincensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. William Maclaren is paying a welcome return visit with Claudian, in which he ably sustains the principal character; Almida is ably presented by Miss Lily C. Bandmann; Mr. Chal. T. Chaloner as Belos and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa cause much laughter. Mr. F. Owen Chambers makes an excellent Tetrarch; Mr. Douglas Earle gives a fine performance as Agazil; Alcares is a good study by Mr. Weston Hubbard. In the prologue Mr. S. Brisco Farbridge (the Holy Clement), Mr. Edmund Grogan (Theorus), and Miss Rosa Webster as Serena are most successful. The choruses are well rendered, and Miss Amy Hardcastle does a pleasing cymbal dance. The scenery and dresses are excellent in every detail.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The habitués of this house are favoured this week in witnessing Mr. Robert Courtneidge's excellent company in The Dairymaids. Miss Violet Lloyd is a distinct success as Peggy. She has a charming stage presence, and a delightful voice, which is highly appreciated. An old favourite here is Mr. Lionel Victor, who is funny as ever in his new rôle of Joe Mivens. Another clever mirth provoker is Mr. E. Statham Staples, who undertakes the part of Sam Brudenell. Miss Beryl Vaudrey's sweet voice is heard to advantage as Helene and a delightful performance is given by Miss Cissie Sephton as Eliza. Miss Rhoda Gordon is a charming Winifred; Miss Edith Blanche is a most stately Lady Brudenell; Mr. Forbes Dawson is a smart Doctor O'Byrne; Mr. George Desmond is good as Lieut. Brudenell; and Miss Madge Avery is sufficiently stern as Miss Pychase; the Sandow Girls are a most acceptable diversion. Mr. Albert Bartlett is the conductor of the orchestra and Mr. J. B. Gordon the general-manager.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A delightful programme is presented here this week. The Lukushima troupe of Japanese give a pleasing and varied turn of balancing and risley acrobatics. The Apollo Glee Singers are accorded a hearty reception for their masterly performance. Arthur Bromley and Lina Fontein in A Musical Birthday are most acceptable, and Mark Merry, comedian, tickles the audience with his songs. The five Casino Girls give a good selection of popular music on brass instruments; Chas. J. Johnson sings coon songs; Miss Yetta trips the light wire gracefully; and the New Empire Theatroscope projects a funny picture, "The policeman's little run and King Ko Ko's visit to Paris."

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company is appearing here in the 'Varsity Belle, a farcical comedy. In the title-rôle, Miss Josephine Ellis, an actress of undoubted ability, acquits herself with distinction; Professor Septimus Stoney, in the hands of Mr. James Danvers, is acted to the life; and in Act 3 he is responsible for some clever work in his musical sketch, receiving good support from Miss Kathleen O'Brien as Eve Stoney. Miss Tessa Myers is pleasing and winsome as Maud Stoney; and Miss Emma Rainbow cleverly sustains the part of Mrs. Parker. The Professor's mother-in-law, Theocritus Ward Sparkleton, is well placed in the hands of Mr. Edward Chester, and Mr. R. Harley West (George Barker), Mr. Roy Barraclough (Albert Perrin), and Mr. Frank Lilliput (Runyard) all deserve mention. The comedy is preceded by a dramatic episode, entitled The Last Hour.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's No. 1 company is appearing here in The Two Little Drummer Boys. Mr. Fred Emery ably impersonates Capt. Carsdale, and Mr. Archie Helsby acts the part of Capt. Darrell with much ability. The two drummer boys are effectively played by Miss Maggie English (Eric) and Miss Lily Beverley (Jack). As Alma Carsdale, Miss Mildred Eversleigh is charming, and Miss Kathleen Magee, is successful as Margaret Rivers. The fun is supplied by Miss Edie Macklin, Mr. J. Magrath, and Mr. Harry Lyndon.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's company heads the bill here with a merry musical mélange, The Prince of Monte Carlo. It is run on comic opera lines, and is very successful. Other turns include Ernest Nelson, a local "Sandow," who performs feats of strength; Marlo, juggler; the St. Johns, instrumentalists, dancers, and comedians; Primrose Quartette; Sisters Darnton, duettists; and Jessie Burnett, comedienne and dancer.

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The principal show here is Haley's Juveniles, a company of splendidly trained children; other notable turns are Frederica's troupe of performing toy terriers; Willie Haig, a clever acrobat; L. C. Smith and C. Johnson, coloured artists, who sing well; F. Whiteley, comedian and dancer; Carr and Rose, in a little sketch; Lily Watson, comedy patter artist; and Ridgewell, character comedian.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—Mr. Newman Maurice's pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, is attracting large audiences this week. Fun in abundance is provided by Mr. Fred Walker as Granny; Mr. Chas. Comfrey and Mr. Jackson Hayes as the Baron and Lawyer Fox are amusing; Mr. Bernard Davis (the Wolf) is the possessor of a fine voice; and Messrs. McKie and McKay as Pen and Ink cause much laughter; a winsome Red Riding Hood is found in Miss Ida Taylor; Miss Kitty Carrie is a bold and dashing Robin Hood; Fairy Bluebell is prettily played by Miss Maisie Kelly; and Miss Ruby Parsonage and Miss Tessie Venu dance well as Jack and Jill. The stage-mounting is unusually good, and the Snow Ballet worthy of special mention.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—An excellent pantomime, Dick Whittington, was produced here on Monday night by Mr. Milton Bode. Of the principals Miss Gladys Warren as Dick is an easy first, having a charming appearance and a nice voice; Miss Flo Challis as Tommy is also a favourite; Miss Kathleen Severn as Alice is well suited to the part; Mr. Rolando Martin is excellent as the Lazy Apprentice; Mr. Bob Hutt is very funny as Fitzwarren; as is Mr. Fred Danvers as Matilda; Messrs. H. and E. Fimans as Captain Scrapper and Bill Oakum are most comical; a special word of praise is due to Mr. Carne Curre, who is a very agile Cat. In the variety element introduced, Wallace gives a remarkably clever juggling turn; and Collins' Six Lancashire Lasses are graceful in speciality dances. Mr. C. A. Wenman is responsible for the stage management.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Red Riding Hood has surpassed all expectations, and the rush to see the finest production yet staged in Wales has brought forth the announcement that the duration of the pantomime will be longer than anticipated. The costumes and scenery are pronounced to be the most extravagant yet seen in Cardiff, while the local opinion of the artists is most flattering to the selection of Mr. Milton Bode. Ted and May Hopkins are gaining a great reputation as the cleverest of Welsh comedians; Mr. Ainsley Burton (the Squire) and Mr. Jay Laurier (Johnny Stout) are already great favourites; the principal boy and girl, Miss Annie Purcell and Miss Norah Guy respectively, are two very capable artists; Messrs. Keith and Merson are the smartest couple imaginable; Miss Nellie Duval as the Fairy Queen achieves success; and two capital portrayals are those of Mr. Walter Walton (the Demon) and Mr. Stanley Fields (the Wolf).

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—In Sight of St. Paul's, presented by Mr. Arthur Carlton, has drawn good houses this week. Mr. Ernest R. Allen undertakes the part of Tom Chichester in a very able manner; the delineation of Harry by Mr. W. H. Domoney leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Herbert Cecil makes the most of the character of John Gridston; and Mr. Henry Gilpin deserves praise for his portrayal of Bildstein. Miss Gussie Everett's Cynthia Dell is powerful; and Miss Cissie Bellamy makes a charming Eileen.

KING'S THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Holles.—As Good as Gold is being presented here by a talented company of artists under Mr. Fred S. Jennings. Miss May Hastings is clever as Nora Williams; Mr. H. H. Barrington as Mark Williams achieves success; Lieut. Stanton is represented in manly fashion by Mr. Wm. Heilbronn; and Mr. Richard Ferris as Sir Richard Wharncliffe proves a reliable exponent.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The amusing Hebrew comedians, Jordan and Harvey, cause uproarious laughter here with their patter; Frank and Jen Latona present a taking musical turn; Dusty Rhodes is a smart comedian; Theo Hardeen manipulates all sorts of handcuffs in an amazing manner; and the mysterious Sylvesta proves most entertaining. Holden's Mannikins, a perfect marionette show; Chas. Robinson, in beautifully-illustrated songs; Hurley and Cole, in a song-scena; the Mascotte trio of lady gymnasts, and the ever-welcome Bioscope complete a capital programme.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare-Devil Dorothy, is the attraction this week. In the title-rôle Miss Dorothy Desmonde displays considerable versatility, and is quite a success. That excellent comedian Mr. H. C. Barry makes Silas Crump a very prominent character; his eccentric humour fits the part exactly, and he is deservedly a big favourite. Variety turns are quite a feature of the performance, and Miss Dorothy Desmonde's fine rendering of popular ballads, Miss Nellie Harcourt, American soubrette (a clever dancer), the Misses Mabel and Lillie Blake, acrobatic dancers, Miss Marie Vere, soprano vocalist, and Mr. H. C. Barry, in funny songs, are much appreciated.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The top of the bill is occupied by the Six Æolians, who introduce many novel and striking effects in their clever vocal and dancing act; the Pasquali Brothers are, we should think, absolutely "the last word" as hand balancers and equilibrists; Miss Fatmah Diard has a charming voice and delightful style, and she soon became a warm favourite; the Mayvilles are responsible for much laughter in their clever novelty act. A smart trapeze act by Natalia and Diana, Mr. Bert H. Delmar in his mimetic monologue "At the Halls," Wyndham and Waters in a funny and well-worked sketch entitled The Professor and his Pupil, and the Pepiscope, with new pictures, are popular items of an excellent and well-varied programme.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—Mr. George Testo Sante and company are playing The Life of a Showman here to good houses. Mr. Aurele Labat successfully interprets the part of the villainous Hendrick Marias; Mr. Edward Warden gives a good reading of the Rev. Cyril Arliss; Mr. Chas. Osborne plays the rôle of Stickers with telling effect; and in the hands of Mr. George Testo Sante, Brien Leader is made a most popular character; Miss Amy McNeil displays ability in the part of Agatha Winter; while mention should be made of the good work done by Mr. Fred Vaughan as Ned Chuckers. The comic element is by no means lacking, and Messrs. Frank Sante, Will Lindsay, and Miss E. Lewis as Tommy Allthere, Ben Tec-Tac, and Angela Matton are largely responsible for the humorous element. Master Harry Warden has a capital part in Dickie; while Miss May Warden plays with natural ease as Lynette Leader.

CHATHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Mr. George Dance's company is this week doing splendid business with The Beauty of Bath. Mr. Leslie Holland, in addition to undertaking the duties of stage-management, plays in breezy style Mr. Seymour Hicks's part, Lieut. Richard Alington. In the title-rôle we have Miss Gladys Guy, with a pleasing manner and a sweet voice; Mr. Frederick C. Leister makes a sufficiently dignified Viscount Bellingham; smart dancing is one of the chief features of Mr. Jack Crichton's Sir Timothy Bun; the character of Lord Quorn is capitally played by Mr. Alex Chentrens; Miss Edith Cruikshanks makes a natural Mrs. Alington; and very amusing are Miss Ida Laurie and Master Sydney Grata, as Mrs. Goodge and her son. Mr. Sheriff Clunes makes a popular Mr. Beverley, and Miss Jessie Fraser contributes some neat dances. The dresses, scenery, and general staging reflect great credit on Mr. Dance.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have Lillian Victoria, character impersonator; Dale and Vale, pedestal dancers; Luigi Salvino, in a well-liked musical act; Leonard and Larry, duettists and patterers; Vincent, who somersaults from the top of some half a dozen tables; W. H. Merrie, eccentric comedian; Dick and Dorothy, on a welcome return visit; Mdlle. Von Etta, who mystifies with her neatly-worked illusions; Lacey's Erascope, with a particularly interesting film; and Mr. F. V. St. Clair, who gets his customary rousing reception.

THE GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. F. E. Donne.—One of the leading items here is the sketch, Charley's Uncle; or, What Has She Got? which is rattled through by Mr. Bates Maddison's company, including Mr. Robert Barton (Chas. Mendham), Mr. Jos. R. Tate (Mr. Overproof), Miss Margaret Huntley (Dolly), and Miss Lucy Beaumont (Sarah); the Eight Lancashire Lads fairly bring down the house with their singing and dancing; Kyoto scores with his burlesque and conjuring; Bert Williams is a ventriloquist with funny dialogue; and Ma Geraldine, comedienne; Charlie Williams, Scotch nigger and big boot dancer; and May Fallowfield, soubrette, complete the list.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—A powerful attraction this week is provided by the visit of Mr. George Dance's premier company in The Little Michus. The foster sisters are charmingly impersonated by Miss Alice Coverick as the bold and engaging Marie Blanche, and Miss Gipsy Dale, a winsome and dainty Blanche Marie; both ladies have pleasing voices, and do excellent work in the concerted music. As Gaston Rigaud Mr. Wm. Everard is a gallant and picturesque lover, possessed of a good tenor voice; Mr. Robert C. Harcourt plays judiciously the part of the bourgeois lover, Aristide Vert; Mr. Foster Courtenay is a brilliant representative of the eccentric General des Ifs; Mr. Gilbert Child's agile impersonation of Bagnolet is also full of quaint conceits, and he wins the favour of the audience with his clear singing and nimble dancing. The elder Michus are ably represented by Miss Mary Young and Mr. Leon Simpkin, the former singing admirably and the latter giving a well-defined study of a genuinely humorous part. Miss Bessie Mackenzie is graceful as Mlle. Herpin, and gives a vivacious fan song; Miss Mary Forbes as Mme. du Tertre sings with much charm; and Mlle. Marjorie as Mlle. St. Cyr is a solo danseuse of singular grace, and gives a novel pas seul in the last act. Mr. Otto Manns directs the augmented orchestra in a skilful manner.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. Geo. Brydon-Phillips' pantomime Little Red Riding Hood is drawing large audiences here. A second edition will be produced on Monday.

MUSIC HALL.—Agents, Messrs. Phillipson and Golder. — This week we have a visit from Mr. John H. Tomkinson and his Gipsy company. Miss Evie Lynn is heard and seen to advantage in song and dance; Vio Lette is a smart male impersonator; Walter Wallace repeats his well-known ventriloquial turn; the Recars are a couple of smart acrobats. Amongst others who appear are Harry Plowden, the Two Dees, and the Rizarelis.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—The attraction here this week is Miss Louie Esmond's company, under the direction of Mr. Edward Neville, in the drama The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. Neville makes a highly successful Prince Lucio Rimanez, Mr. H. Evan Gibbon gives a good reading of Geoffrey Tempest, Mr. Fred Cherry is seen to advantage as Morris, Mr. W. Langely makes a capital valet, Miss Louie Esmond looks and acts charmingly as Diana Chesney, Lady Sybil Elton is safe in the hands of Miss Nita Langford, Miss Rosie Neville gives a fine interpretation of Mavis Clare, and Miss Cecil Bryne is also worthy of mention as Mrs. Grimbes.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Harry Graham's Red Riding Hood opened a week's engagement here on Monday. The Great Escaladers gave a daring exhibition of ladder and other balancing, which was followed with marked attention; Miss Mabel Kessler, as Boy Blue, who sang well, contributed excellent solos on cornet and posthorn; Miss Eunice Young as Margery Daw and Miss Rosie Juden as Riding Hood were both successful; and the charming singing of Miss Renee Van Aken as Fairy was much appreciated; Miss Winifred Hamilton looked well as Prince Charming; Miss Grace Stafford was effective as Mary Muffit; and Dame Trott was ably represented by Mr. Arthur Drew; Mr. James Wood cleverly depicted Baron Badlot; and Messrs. Grant and Kelly made the most of the parts of Johnny Stout and John Green respectively.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de' Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Ben de Frece.—The chief turn here this week is a highly dramatic episode, entitled The End of the Story, which introduces some very smart sword-play, the cast including Messrs. Barrington Foote and Douglas Hamilton, and Miss Diana D'Orsay; Hector, in his unique wire and hoop-rolling speciality, is deservedly applauded; Stacey and Williams, comedians, make a big hit, a like remark applying to Lily Lawrence, a comedienne with a particularly forcible style; Cissie Lupino, speciality danseuse, is a charming young lady, with a tasteful style of dancing; and Tom Dunmore appeals successfully as an eccentric comedian.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Ernest Abbot and his company are paying a most successful visit this week. On Monday night A Wife's Triumph was produced. Mr. Ernest R. Abbot fills the rôle of Frank Wilton with great distinction, and as Robert Dewhurst Mr. Douglas C. Phelps gives entire satisfaction; Messrs. W. H. Garbois and Mr. Weedon Ross are excellent in their respective rôles of Ellis Jordan and Julius Hartman; Mr. Edwin Keene as Ben Bradford and Miss M. Tennant as Margery Crib are excessively funny; Miss Ada Abbot in the rôle of Bessie Dewhurst is really good; and as Alice Wilton Miss Dorris Dew is clever. The other parts are well sustained by the remainder of the company. Sapho was produced on Tuesday night with Miss Ada Abbot as Fanny Legrand; and during the week Trilby and East Lynne were also billed.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company entered on its third week's engagement here on Monday night, when The Lion and the Mouse was repeated. Miss Christine Silver as the Mouse played with much power and proved herself a very clever actress, and Mr. Leslie Carter filled the rôle of the Lion with his usual ability. The other parts were capably filled.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The patrons of this popular place of amusement are treated to a capital entertainment here. The Mannon troupe of knockabout artists appeared in a pantomime sketch Uncle Yank; and other turns included Miss Edith St. Clare, comedienne; Herbert Cyril, comedian; Miss Amy Eastwood, soprano; Mr. Charles Russell, in a song scena; Mr. Geo. Adams, baritone vocalist; Frederick Neiman and his ventriloquial minstrels; and the Glenroy troupe.

COVENTRY. — THE EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. A. Rapd.—A high standard of excellence is maintained at this popular house; Mr. Harry Tates's No. 1 company is appearing in the comedy sketch Motoring; Marguerite Ismay and her five white coons are seen in an Indian scena, Kickapoo, some fine dancing and singing being given; Henry A. Moore is given a hearty reception as a monologue artist and mimic; the Imperial Troupe of Russian singers and dancers are well received; J. A. Wilson with his dog, Private Towser, gives a pleasing entertainment, and is clever; the Monte-Negro Troupe are very amusing; the Sisters Carina introduce a splendid musical exhibition; Clarissa Talbot and Albert Pearce give a comedy, entitled The Spider and the Fly. The Bioscope pictures are included.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Mr. Frank Curzon's No. 1 company is here in The White Chrysanthemum, to which a hearty reception was accorded on Monday night. Much amusement is afforded by Mr. Davy Burnaby as Lieut. Chippendale Belmont; Mr. F. Pope Stamper as Lieut. Reg. Armitage is very capable, his singing and acting being much admired; Mr. St. John Hamund is seen to advantage as the peppery admiral, Sir H. Armitage, K.C.B.; Mr. O. E. Lennon as Sin Chong provides much humour, and is heartily received, he being ably supported by Mr. Harry Paulton as Private Perks; Miss Dorothy Court as the heroine, Sybil Cunningham, gives a charming impersonation; Miss Gracie Sinclaire is effective as Cornelia Vanderdecken; Miss Maisie North is clever as a society lady, Betty Kenyon. The songs and dances throughout the piece are all well received.

THE HIPPODROME.—A very good programme was put before a fairly good house on Monday evening. Lady Mansell's Juveniles in A Concert Rehearsal were applauded for their fine dancing and singing; Herbert Lloyd, the diamond king, gave an original sketch, which was much appreciated; Stanley Coope and Co. cause great amusement with their farcical absurdity, The Lady Doctor; other contributors to the programme were Zaro and Arno, comedy bar experts; Rita Reeden, male impersonator; Jemmy Lynn, comedienne; Rose Reval and Arthur Pearl. A very good set of animated pictures concluded a first-rate night's entertainment.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is on a return visit with The Face at the Window. Mr. T. W. Dunscombe is a capable Paul Gouffet; Mr. Scott Leighton as the Chevalier Lucio Delgado deserves praise; Mr. Alfred Warne as Henry de Brisson submits a careful study; Miss Marie Barrett as Marie de Brisson acts in a finished manner; Mr. C. Alan Huieson is funny as Peter Pottleberry; and Miss Gladys Newcombe makes a sweet and winsome Babette. Mr. Gilbert Hall faithfully interprets the part of Lucien Cortier; Mr. George Phythian as Le Blanc, the mad doctor, has a part to his liking; and Miss Marie Tennant as Le Pinan pleases.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, opened here on Monday to a full house. Miss Verona Phillis in the title-rôle wins the hearts of all with her graceful presence; Miss Emma Don as Prince Charming infuses plenty of dash into the part, and the singing of her various numbers is distinctly pleasing; Miss Ada Twibell is a bright and vivacious Boy Blue; Miss Molly Hackett as Miss Muffit is a favourite; and Miss Cissie Robey as Margery Daw is commendable. Mlle. Tessie D'Alberti as Fairy Glowworm charms everyone with her singing; Mr. J. Templar Ellis is original and funny as Baron Badlot; and Mr. Harry Howe makes an excellent Dame Trott. The Bros. Lavelle provide continuous amusement as Johhny Green and Jimmy Stout; and Mr. G. H. Penn contributes a droll impersonation of Simple Simon. Mr. E. Ridgwell as the Wolf deserves commendation. Clever dances are executed by the Acme Quartette. Specialities by the Don Black and White Comedy Team, the Bros. Lavelle, and the Four Hearns are enjoyable. The scenery is gorgeous, and the dresses lovely.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Mr. Peter Davey's pantomime company is presenting Goody Two Shoes here this and next week, and the whole show is full of merit. The music, by Mr. J. H. Russell and Mr. Leonard Gautier, calls for special mention; the dresses are picturesque and rich; and the chorus is quite in keeping with the general excellence of the production. Mr. Hugh B. Pinnock's book is well written. Miss Ernestine Desborough's finished portrayal of Crispin wins general admiration, and Miss Ethel Beech as the Chevalier Hurley is admirable. Miss Ethel Bryan deserves a warm tribute of praise for her delightful performance of Goody, a part which suits her to a nicety; Miss Phyllis Back is a bewitching Margot; Miss Violet Broughton is a comely Timothy Twigg; and dainty ladies give satisfaction as the Tea Girls and 'Prentice Boys. Mr. Wyn Weaver's business, facial expression, and humorous acting as the Earl of Godiva are highly relished; Mr. Ernest Noble never fails to amuse as Peeping Tom; Mr. Tom E. Sinclair is the right man for the part of Dame Durden, being immensely funny; and adequate assistance is given by Messrs. Reginald Ring, Greville Bros., T. Brooklyn, and Lionel Weston as Marcodison, John Barleycorn, the Town Crier, and Giles. Mr. E. Levano is a smart acrobat, and the Sisters Thurban are awarded a cordial reception for their instrumental turns. Miss Florence Swinden is a clever dancer.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. James's pantomime The Babes in the Wood is still being well received here. Misses Daisy Lane and Flo Varley have established themselves firm favourites as Maid Marion and Robin Hood; Miss Dorothy Oswald sings her numbers sweetly as Fairy Diamonde; Misses Beatie Benson and Lily Farrer are a pleasing little pair as Bertie and Gertie; Mr. Harry Carman is a host in himself, and makes a whimsical Baroness Snatchall; Mr. Allan Dale does wonders with the part of Baron Snatchall; Messrs. Blarney and Kennard introduce well-thought-out comic business as Rob and Plunder; and the smaller rôles are looked after in a satisfactory manner. A brisk harlequinade is well worth mentioning.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Mr. Alec Hurley and his brilliant company are causing a great sensation here in the comedy scena The Coster's Beano; the Four Jumels give an interesting musical act; Billy Hobbs is commendable in coon song and dance; Lucy Weston is an agreeable comedienne who sings creditably; Sam Mayo, immobile comedian, as usual receives quite an ovation; the Brothers Zampa submit astounding jumping and acrobatic feats on one leg; Fielding and Hull are exhilarating society vocalists; and the sketch The Mysterious Mrs. is enacted in first-rate style by Messrs. Arthur Estcourt, George Claremont, W. Johnson, Arthur Byron, and Misses Daisy Norman and Barbara Bateman. Others in the bill are the Marsumas, comedians on wheels, and Alice Blandford, vocalist.

DARLINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Miss Minnie Palmer and company, under the direction of Mr. Wentworth Croke, are the attraction this week. Miss Palmer is still in the front in musical comedy, her embodiment of Tina being greatly applauded. Mr. Robert H. Howard is smart in his impersonation of Tony; Miss Elsie Forster in the rôle of Peck-a-Boo is very pleasing; Mr. F. W. Leonard scores as Joe Shotwell; Mr. Richard Elliott is clever in the part of Dr. Oliver; Mr. Leslie Tyler shines as Harold Bartlett; Mr. Alfred Ibberson as Dudley Harcourt affords every satisfaction; Mrs. H. B. Russell as Mrs. Hatzell is greatly appreciated; Miss Mildred Silvestre makes a typical Mrs. Fleeter.

DARWEN. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. A. E. Smith's company is this week appearing in the pantomime Aladdin. Miss Florrie Curette makes a good principal boy; Miss Bessie Carlton sings nicely as Pekoe; Miss Emay Leycestor dances well as the Princess; and Miss Connie Irwin appears with credit as the Genii of the Lamp. Mr. Fred Ramsdale is excruciatingly funny as the Widow Twankey; the Bros. Padley provide amusement as the Chinese Policemen; and Mr. Arthur Warren (Abanazar), Mr. Percy Beresford (Grand Vizier), and Mr. Frank Wheatcroft (the Emperor) are all well placed. Specialities are presented by the Padley Bros., acrobats and hand balancers; the Silverdale troupe of lady dancers; and Mr. Oliver Chew, whistler.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—On Monday night the pantomime of The Forty Thieves entered on the third and last week of its run. Miss Emmie Milstead has scored all through; Miss Edna Cragge has thoroughly vindicated her selection for the part of Abdallah; Miss Flo Warner has made herself a popular figure; and the Sisters Poole and Messrs. Burley and Burley are outstanding features of the performance; while Messrs. Sid Cotterell, Dan Agar, Allan Carruthers, Joe Bell, Watty Griffin, and Carthage Caldcleugh are all highly deserving of another special mention. Among the new features this week are Mr. Henry Abdy's canine hippodrome and Mlle. Marvelle's cocokatoos and macaws.

PALACE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The premier attraction here this week is the Schiavonis Troupe of lady and gentlemen acrobats, who provide an excellent turn, and are cordially received. W. Permane's educated bears are a very intelligent set of animals, and their performance reflects great credit on their trainer; Frank Hartley, an accomplished juggler, gets a good reception; Edwards and Dacre, comedy artists, are fairly irresistible; Chas. H. Gould and Co. submit a most amusing sketch, entitled A Matchless Match; and Maud Laverne, burlesque artist, scores with her charmingly rendered songs. The Bioscope is, as usual, very entertaining.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—The pantomime Dick Whittington has now got into excellent working order, and is running with commendable smoothness. All the up-to-date songs are included in the show, their popularity being evinced by the manner in which the refrains are taken up by the audience.

DONCASTER. — NEW THEATRE AND EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Miss Lancashire, Limited provided a continuous ripple of laughter here on Monday evening.

William Henry Thompson was capital; and Miss Pattie Groves displays a rich vein of humour in her impersonation of Bridget Thompson; the title-rôle was brightly played by Miss Florence Barnet, who, with song and patter, fully upheld her reputation.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is this week paying a return visit with Under Two Flags, and is, as usual, drawing crowded houses nightly. Mr. Wellesley Draper, a finished actor of experience and skill, portrays Bertie Cecil with a nice appreciation of the chivalrous nature of the Guardsman, and his success is instantaneous. The many moods and contradictory traits in the character of Cigarette are cleverly and sympathetically depicted by Miss Mary Thorn. A good stage presence and resonant voice are of considerable assistance to Mr. Robert Faulker in making a decided hit as Lord Rockingham. Mr. Charles West sketches well the unprincipled young rake Barklie Cecil, and Mr. Charles Brooke is an impressive and dignified Lord Royellieu. Mr. Arthur Elwyn as Colonel Chanteroy acted the part with ability; and the Captain de Chanrellon of Mr. Joseph Cowell is also a noteworthy piece of work. A highly amusing skit of the money-lender Baroni is contributed by Mr. Fred Beck. An admirable study of Rake is given by Mr. Harry Benson, who not only causes much hilarity in his amusing comedy scenes, but succeeds in touching just the right note of pathos in the more serious moments of the play. Miss Mabel Ormonde, a stately Princess Corona, acts in a most pleasing manner; and Miss Madge Stevens plays Lady Beatrice with good effect. A dainty and captivating impersonation of Lavinia is to be commended as the work of Miss Amy Maitland.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—On Monday night Messrs. Moody-Manners' company entered on another week's engagement here, when Carmen was played before a large and appreciative audience. Mlle. de Lussan achieved a distinct triumph in her portrayal of Carmen, her vocal items were heard to great advantage, and met with well-deserved applause; and Mr. Joseph O'Mara as Don José was in remarkably fine voice, his solos being admirably sung. Miss Kate Anderson as Michaela sang with much charm and grace, and as Escamillo Mr. William Dever did extremely well, singing and acting with earnestness and ability. Miss Watt as Frasquita and Miss Alvord as Mercedes were both acceptable in their respective parts. Messrs. Bailey and Moppett were also exceedingly good as Il Remendado and Il Dancairo. The choruses were sung in praiseworthy style, and the orchestra was all that could be desired. On Tuesday night The Merry Wives of Windsor was repeated, and met with a good reception. The Huguenots, Lohengrin, Eugene Onegin, Romeo and Juliet, and Maritana are also billed.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—Sinbad the Sailor, which has entered on its third week here, continues to draw packed and delighted audiences nightly. All the artists are accorded a warm reception, and the songs and clever dances are greatly enjoyed. Miss May Beatty continues to charm the hearts of the audience by her interpretation of Sinbad, as does also Miss Blanche Astley as Zorilda. Mr. Gus Walker is mirth-provoking as Mrs. Eliza Sinbad, Miss Agnes Gunn plays with credit the rôle of "the Spirit of Adventure." Mr. T. E. Finglass as Pompey elicits applause for his clever coon singing and dancing; Mr. Edward Lauri is very droll as Tinbad; Miss Nina Osborne is pleasing in the rôle of the Princess, and the part of the Sultan has a good representative in Mr. Fred Arthur. Mr. Cecil Kingsley makes an admirable Grand Vizier, and the Cavalazzie troupe deserve commendation for their excellent dancing.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—On Monday night Miss Annie Bell's company presented Sapho. In the title-rôle Miss Annie Bell played with success, her dramatic style and commendable enunciation securing marked approval, and Mr. Otto Minster was particularly good as Jean Gausin. Mr. Oliver Roger's acting as Father Legrande was productive of considerable amusement, and Mr. George Antley well sustained the part of Césaire. Eugène Flamant had an excellent exponent in Mr. Pringle Roberts, and the parts of Caoudal and Paul Dechelette were successfully undertaken by Messrs. H. Langford and Lawrence Kingsley.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Another capital list of turns is billed here this week. Fred Karno's troupe of comedians in Saturday to Monday cause roars of laughter nightly; the Arthur Lloyd Trio score successfully in their sketch Little Charlie, or the Twin Sisters; and Kathleen Bradford sings and dances herself into favour. The antics of Hale and Earl are no less amusing than their acrobatic display is clever, and Lily Esplin displays ability as a comedy artist; Charles Pastor is a comedian with a style peculiarly his own, and is warmly applauded; and the Empire pictures are up-to-date.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The company this week is one of all-round excellence. The Sisters Onetti give a clever gymnastic display which is well received; Barney, Burke, and Bray are exceedingly funny in their absurdity From London to Madrid; and the Sisters Lytton are a charming pair of duettists whose success is undoubted. Mlle. Sylvia's tableaux vivants come in for loud applause, and Stirling and Cashen, comedy duo, gain approval for their efforts to please. Liggins and Murlone render some vocal items in good style, and Laura Lorne is a pleasing character vocalist. Other acceptable turns are Gillen, ventriloquist, Kiaro, novelty equilibrist, and the Bioscope with the latest films.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. M. Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Go-Won-Go Mohawk is here this week, with Wep-Ton-No-Mah. The principals in the cast are practically the same as on its last visit.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—The bill is headed this week by George M. Schilling, who relates his remarkable experiences during a walk round the world; the Donatos deserve a special word of praise for their clever turn as one-legged clowns; an amusing sketch, entitled The Darktown Insurance Depôt, is given by De Voy, Hurst, and Fredericks; Joe Dale is an excellent descriptive vocalist; and other good turns are supplied by Violet Frances, comedienne; Daley and Collins, cross talk comedians; and Mora and Flora, in a quick change and musical act.

DUNDEE.—PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The star turn this week is Harry Grey, "the Australian Nugget," whose ludicrous get-up and quaint humour are the cause of much hearty laughter; in one of his songs a novel and very effective use of the bioscope is made. Attila Brothers, gladiatorial marvels, give a fine exhibition of weight-lifting, and their posing is very artistic; the Wedburns are old favourites here, and, as usual, score heavily; Lidden and Hayward present an excellent comedy sketch, the male member being a clever trick pianist; Will Bell, a capital Irish comedian and dancer, proves very popular, as does also George W. Kenway, who successfully mimics several leading music-hall artists; Olive Armadale, a dainty comedienne, with a taking style and exceptionally sweet voice, gets a flattering reception; Mabel Higson, comedienne and dancer, and Phil Rees, double-voiced vocalist, both score in their respective lines; and the Bioscope, with some very fine films, completes.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—The brilliantly successful pantomime Mother Goose entered on the third week of its run on Monday. Miss Gertie Douglas and Miss Winnie Darrell, the principal boy and girl respectively, have many admirers; and Mr. Sam Thomson, the leading comedian, has made a tremendous hit. All the other members of the company work hard and well, with the result that the panto goes with a swing that is truly delightful.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—In an excellent variety programme this week the chief attraction is Charlie Green, the English heavy-weight wrestler, who challenges all and sundry to meet him. Several local wrestlers have accepted his challenge, and some exciting bouts have been witnessed during the week. Miss Eva Frere has a good budget of songs, which she sings very sweetly. Chas and Grin are well received, their humour and patter being very enjoyable. The Levines score in an acrobatic sensation "The Dude and his Page," in which they display some marvellous feats of balancing. Whirlo, "the monkey cyclist," presents a smart act in trick riding. The Two Olives, comedy artists, Jean Gordon, dice manipulator, and Alec Alexander, vocalist, complete a varied and attractive bill.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company opened a two-nights' engagement on Monday in the musical play The Toreador before a packed house. Mr. Richard Adams sustained the part of Pettifer with credit; Mr. Fred Thompson did excellent work as Sir Archibald Slackett; and Mr. Herbert Wills did ample justice to the part of Augustus Traill. Mr. Sidney Granville admirably sustained the rôle of Carajolo; Mr. Henry Arthur was a capable Governor of Villays; Mr. Robert Rous had a genial rôle, and contributed largely to the success of the piece as Sammy Gigg; Miss Leah Howard was exceptionally good as Susan; Miss Winsome Etherington acquitted herself with credit as Dora Selby; Miss Gwen Clifford scored as Mrs. Malton Hoppings; Miss Nina Carlton gave an exceptionally good impersonation of Donna Teresa; and Miss Beatrice Rowe was successful as Nancy Staunton.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Devonshire Park and Baths Co., Ltd., under the management of Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark.—A bright, clever, and tuneful attraction is offered here by Miss Claudia Lasell and her excellent company, who are appearing in The Sweet Girl, under the management of Mr. Charles E. Hamilton. The scenery and dresses are strikingly pretty, and novelty is everywhere apparent. Miss Claudia Lasell possesses all the life and charm to ably assume the part of Lola; Miss Alice Lethbridge is an attractive Fritzi, and her exquisite grace and refinement in her dances is one of the happy memories of the performance; Miss Muriel Harding, pleasing in manner and appearance, is an excellent Countess Lizzi; Mr. Fred Eastman, drollest of comedians, as Count Liebenberg, cleverly keeps the house in constant laughter; Mr. Algernon Newark as Anthony Strauss does admirable work, and introduces with fine effect his clever mimicry; Mr. Lister Morrah, as Dick Kenyon, sings and acts in a bright and effective manner; Mr. Douglas Phillips must be accorded high praise for his vocal work, and he is an earnest Florian; Mr. George de Lara is a refined and diverting Plewney; and Mr. W. H. Page is a very worthy Schmitt. A very fine and well-trained chorus and augmented orchestra are under the direction of Mr. K. E. Irving.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—The first of the pantomimes here, Jack and the Beanstalk, is presented by Mr. Mouillot's capable company, and fun and beauty are judiciously blended. Miss Lucy Kipling (Jack), tall, handsome, and refined, is a principal boy of the very best type; and in Miss Katie Yates she has a partner who is a clever, dainty, and charming Stella, and her song, "Snuff your little wicks," is ably given; Miss Roberta Pulleyne, pretty and attractive, and Miss Daisy Kersey, bright and vivacious, are another able and successful couple; while Miss Lydia Bland, as Luna the Fairy, scores with her well-rendered songs. Les Belle Americaines Troupe are prominent, and their smart, clever dances arouse enthusiasm. Mr. Edward Kipling is a vastly entertaining Dame Trot; his performance is genuinely humorous, and without any suggestion of vulgarity. Mr. W. G. Sutton is a happy and genial King Grumpus; Mr. Alick MacMillan as MacHaggis supplies plenty of humour served up in excellent Scotch fashion; and Mr. Lionel Gasden and Mr. J. R. La Fane are very good villains as Marrowfat and Asparagus. The Miltons introduce their diverting skating act, and play Jack's cow.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—Mr. Dan Thomas and company are again delighting audiences here with Aladdin. A large share of the work falls on Mr. Thomas, and as Widow Twankey he worthily upholds his reputation of being one of the liveliest and funniest dames in pantomime. Mr. Fred Hutchings ably seconds his efforts, and keeps the fun moving rapidly as the Vizier; Mr. Arthur Mordant is quite a success as Abanazar; Mr. Arthur Jenner is an imposing Emperor; and very good and comical work is done by Messrs. Haverly and Homer as Slip and Slop. The pretty face and figure of Miss Daisy Yates and her fine fund of vivacity all help to make her work as Aladdin pleasing and popular; Miss Amy Belrose is a dainty Princess; the Misses Emmie and Cissie Ford do satisfactorily as Pekoe and Catchee; Miss Marie Lewis and Miss Minnie Saunders are able representatives of the Slaves of the Ring and Lamp; and the Four Dandies are clever and expert dancers. The scenery is pretty, and the pantomime brisk and funny.

ECCLES.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Manager, Mr. Ernest Hales; Secretary, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. Charles Macdona's chief company in Are You a Mason? is here this week. Mr. Ernest Cossart gives a carefully considered and able rendering of George Fisher; the character of Amos Bloodgood is capably impersonated by Mr. E. H. Paterson; the Frank Perry of Mr. Howard L. Tracy is worthy of the approval given by the audience; Mr. Buchanan Wake makes a good John Halton; Mr. George Austin as Hamilton Travers is laughable; Mr. Victor Kerr is a clever Ernest Morrison; Miss Adelaide Grace deserves credit for her capital portrayal of Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood; Miss Margaret Fareleigh, Miss Babs Stuart, and Miss Madge Merrique take the respective parts of Eva, Annie, and Lulu with satisfactory results; Miss Dora Gregory as Lottie is highly amusing.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The Merveilleuses, presented here by Mr. George Edwardes's company, is played by a cast of uniform excellence. Dr. Hugo Felix is fortunate in having his music interpreted by vocalists so admirable as Miss Deborah Volar, Miss Anna Hickish, and Mr. W. Talleur Andrews, while the comedy element is safe in the hands of such talented actors as Mr. Eric Thorne, Mr. Jack Cannot, Mr. Legai Robinson, and Mr. Robert Hale. Mr. Hale's impersonation of the dandy Lagorille shows what versatility this clever player possesses. Mr. Willie Warde, jun., and Miss Dora Langham in the rôles of Monsieur and Madame De Goutieres are nightly encored for their smart duet; and Miss Vivian Talleur evokes the loudest applause for her graceful dances. The chorus is well drilled, and the dresses and scenery are extremely beautiful.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's delightful pantomime Cinderella is running with the smoothness and briskness which result from repetition, and the spectacle is attracting large audiences. Miss Phyllis Dare's impersonation of the title-part has lost none of its freshness and vivacity; Miss Gwennie Hasto has won golden opinions by her graceful dancing; Miss Marie Rignold has elaborated her part of the stage-struck Arethusa, her acting showing much fertility of invention; Miss Vera Vere is admirable in the strongly-contrasted character of the saucy Mopsa; and Miss Violet Englefield's Rudolph is full of dash. Mr. Dan Rolyat, who has afforded much mirth to thousand of playgoers, was, unhappily, laid aside by illness on Monday, and Mr. W. H. Ashdowne, who played the part of Baron Lacklands on the occasion, is entitled to high praise for his comic resource and individuality. Mr. John Humphries as Daisy, Mr. Stephen Adeson as Choddles, and Mr. Ray Russell as Dandini brighten up their scenes by their unforced humour and excellent business.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—Mme. Alice Esty heads an attractive bill with a finely-rendered operatic scena, Betta the Gypsy, in which she is well supported by the members of her company, including Miss Lena Pierpoint, Mr. Crawford Kent, and a good chorus. An interesting sketch, entitled Crystal Gazing, is successfully produced by Mr. William Day and Miss Laura Dyson; the two Sisters Petram cleverly conduct an amusing marionette performance; the Five Bogannys carry through a capital acrobatic display with much spirit and humour; and the Brenton Sisters, comediennes and dancers, give a lively turn. Mr. Harry Drew, the Welsh bass vocalist, sings several popular songs with powerful effect, greatly to the enjoyment of his audience; Prince Kokin, Japanese juggler, presents a very smart exhibition of his skill in balancing and other dexterous feats; Miss Ethel Ra Leslie contributes some characteristic songs in finished and artistic style; De Dio appears in her weird dances and gyrations in earth, air, fire, and water with extraordinary effects obtained by the aid of flowing draperies and electric lights; and the American Bioscope shows a selection of good films.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—The humorous spectacle Ally Sloper's Big Water Carnival still retains its place as the main attraction on a good holiday programme. Among the more recent items of variety entertainment by which the carnival is preceded Herr Addison's troupe of trained fox terriers take the lead; considerable diversion is provided by The Costers' Outing; and the comicalities of Neddy Vokes furnish unlimited amusement. In all respects the bill is kept up to a high level, and the passing weeks duly evidence the continued popularity of Mr. Cooke's well-known house.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—The third week of the Christmas pantomime Aladdin opened on Monday, and the production has continued to draw large houses. Miss Rose Helene as Aladdin is a great favourite; and Miss Lulu Louden as the Princess, by her winning and pleasing manner scores one of the hits of the pantomime. Miss Blanche Browne as Prince Pekoe sings charmingly. The Dame (Mr. E. W. Amery) as usual provides much merriment; and Mr. Fred Fowler as the Magician, while introducing local and topical allusions in a most amusing manner, deserves commendation for his clever acting. Another talented artist is Mr. Harry Emeric (Wishee Washee), and Mr. J. H. Booth is good as the Emperor of China. The Royal Tokio Troupe give a clever exhibition of balancing and tight-rope walking; and Messrs. Baroux and Bion are smart knockabouts. The augmented orchestra is under the able direction of M. Legrand.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—The pantomime, Jack the Giant Killer, is running its last week here. It has been one of the most successful ventures of the theatre, and has been well patronised. Miss Eily Helene, as the principal boy, has, right up to the finish, maintained a freshness and piquancy in acting and stage presence which have been quite charming. On Wednesday evening a complimentary benefit was given on her behalf. What has proved a unique attraction throughout the run was the dancing of Mlle. De Dio in "Terpsichore's Dream," the limelight effects playing upon the sinuous evolutions of this accomplished lady being nothing short of bewildering, as they were also bewitching.

TOWN HALL.—Mr. R. A. P. Williamson of the Gaiety Theatre, Dundee, presented The Babes in the Wood pantomime to an enthusiastic audience here on Monday night for a week's run. Miss Mai Duncan makes a charming Robin Hood; Mr. George Melvin is well received as Helen McMutchin, the babes' nurse, a part which he interprets in the Harry Lauder vein of humour. The other leading characters are well sustained. A feature, and a very popular one, is the number of specialities interpolated throughout the production.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—Pantomime holds sway this week, and we are having the story of Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp placed before us by Mr. Ronald Grahame's company. Miss Celestine Brandon in the title-rôle is all that could be desired as a pantomime principal boy, being endowed with a fine figure and a good singing voice; Miss Lucy Fitzroy as the Princess is charming, and sings and dances admirably; Miss Edie Cameron as My Sweete is a very capable artist, whilst Miss Edna Hana as Pekoe acts throughout with great animation; the part of the Widow Twankey is in the capable hands of Mr. Gilbert Hart, who contributes largely to the success of the show; Mr. Tony Freedman as the Grand Vizier is another comedian whose efforts meet with the reward they deserve; Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon as Abanazar works hard and successfully throughout the performance; Messrs. Grant and Allen cause great amusement as the Policemen. Several specialities are introduced, including the Cambrian Glee Singers and the Clifton Trio of Dancers. The scenery and dresses greatly enhance the production, which is a capital one in every way.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company, under the direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland, is presenting this week A Clever Impostor. Mr. Stuart Cleveland is seen to advantage in the title-rôle; and Mr. Herbert Evelyn makes an excellent Captain Desmond; Mr. John Worth a capable Stephen Grosvenor; Miss Maud Steeple as Margaret gives the right touch of avariciousness to the rôle; Miss Isabel Singleton is good as Maisie Grosvenor; and Miss Florence Gomer as Annie Pleasant and Mr. Edward Swinton as Jim Brightside supply the humour. Mr. Robert W. Lynn is well suited as Bob Darnforth; Mr. Eric Dare as Harris and Mr. William Waring as Matakan both do justice to their respective parts; and Miss Emma Litchfield is really excellent as Nora Grosvenor.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Peter Davey's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, met with a cordial reception here on Monday. Mr. Charles McCann causes hilarity in his impersonation of the Baron; Mr. Alfred Sandoe and Mr. Charlie Clark make a hit as Blustering Bill and Dare-Devil Dick; Mr. William Benson works with happy results as Martha Maiscypop; Miss Millie Henderson gives a bright representation of Jasper; Miss Ethel Rainforth is a vivacious Felicita, singing and dancing charmingly; Miss Alice Bowes as Chrissie (the girl babe) takes the part in a dainty manner; and Miss Queenie Harvey as Reggie is all that can be desired; Miss Margery Chard, a successful Titania, sings in a captivating manner; and Miss Cissie Clark as Puck is smart, both in acting and dancing. The scenery and electrical effects are very fine.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—Mr. Bert Coote's Fatal Wedding company appeared here for three nights last week. Howard Wilson and Robert Curtis were well played by Messrs. E. Owtrunn and Guy Hastings respectively. Miss Katherine Clarke was a pathetic Mabel, and Miss Leah Marlborough gave a powerful study of Cora, the adventuress. The comedy element was safe in the hands of Mr. C. H. Hughes and Miss Julia Temple. Jessie, "the little mother," was charmingly played by Miss Marie Wilson. The children's scene went as well as ever. This week we have Miss Rose Moncrieff's company in Little Red Riding Hood. The title-rôle is represented by Miss Ethel Maries, and Miss Blanche St. Marie is a dashing Robin Hood. Messrs. Burns and Bentley introduce some clever dancing, and the scenery and mounting are effective.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; Licensee, Mr. Edward Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Sinbad the Sailor continues to attract large audiences. New songs and a fund of topical patter have been added.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. Augustine Knight is presenting The Assassin here this week. Mr. Knight is a decided success in the part of Prince Demetri; Mr. Ed. E. Ashby ably depicts Ivan Ipanoff; Mr. Theo. Balfour is an excellent Duke Carl; Mr. Edwin Jenner is a clever Capt. O'Neil; Mr. Chauncy Morris a creditable General Nicol; and the comedy element, of which there is abundance, is well looked after by Messrs. C. H. Raymond (Alphonse), Tom Taylor (Peter), and Miss Marie E. Robertson (Katrina). Very praiseworthy is Miss Ella Vane's impersonation of Countess Wanda; and as the volatile American, Connie Jonathan, Miss Hettie Senior is very popular; Miss Frances Waring fills the rôle of Nita with distinction.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Her Nameless Child, presented by Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company, forms the attraction at this house. Mr. J. W. Evelyn plays Anthony Ford successfully; Arthur Ford receives good treatment at the hands of Mr. F. R. Gwyn-Richardson; Mr. Ellerslie Pyne is an excellent Lord Woodville; Mr. Alvin Sawyer as Tom Rivers, Miss Grace Harlington as Bessie Brookes, and Miss Madge Trevelyan (Crayont) fill the comedy rôles with credit; Miss Pattie Hastings makes an excellent Phyllis Ford; and a clever rendering of Lady Sybil emanates from Miss Grace Jones.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—HIPPODROME.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—Pictures continue to form the main attraction here, and are well received by fairly good audiences. Interesting items are also introduced by Miss Katie Johnstone, a pleasing vocalist, and Miss Dolly White, a little local lady, who is a clever male impersonator.

GLASGOW.—GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—The House that Jack Built is proving a phenomenal success here, and the only regret is that the theatre, large as it is, is far too small to accommodate the crowds who seek admission. Mr. Fred Kitchen as Dame Trot is always merry and bright, and his facility in the devising of new and funny business is evident at every performance; Miss May Mars, who was unfortunately off duty last week owing to a severe cold, is now back in her place as the Prince, and received a most hearty welcome from the large audience. Her songs go well, and she possesses the happy knack of being able to combine well with the comedians, the result being that some of the best scenes in the pantomime are those in which the dignity and grace of the Prince are brought into immediate contrast with the eccentricities of Mr. Fred Kitchen as the Dame; Miss Luna Love as the hero, Jack, is a strong favourite, and her "Zuyder Zee" and "Starlight Sue" songs are repeatedly encored; Miss Frances Kapstoune is an attractive Jill, and two popular favourites are the little girls who play Marjory Daw and Tommy Tucker (Wee Mona and Maudie Francis), both of whom are remarkably agile dancers; Mr. Harry Lappo as the Dame's youthful husband, Mr. Fred Whittaker as the clever and life-like Cat, and the Harmony Four in their musical specialities, are also of immense value; the business of the 14th Black Hussars is also as striking as it is original, and their musical selections are much enjoyed.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Of the success of Mother Goose here the best and most conclusive proof is found in the fact that additional matinées have been found necessary for every day this week—a most unusual occurrence for the week after the holidays in Glasgow. Miss Ethel Campbell and Miss Ella Retford make a fine dashing couple as Robin and Marguerite, and their song and dance items are well received; the Sisters Hall are also strong favourites, while the funny business of Messrs. Austin Lenton, Wal Croft, Harry McLelland, and Foreman and Fannan is, if possible, more excruciatingly comic than it was at the start of the run.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—The pantomime at the Metropole continues to draw crowded and enthusiastic houses, and The Babes in the Wood seems likely to prove one of the most successful annuals seen at this theatre. Miss Rose Hamilton makes an ideal Prince Radiant, and her songs, which are many, go with a fine swing, while her acting is always bright and full of animation; Miss Lucy Lynch as the Princess is also a bright little actress, and plays her part well; Miss Ada Martine shines in song and dance, and many of the most catchy ditties in the piece fall to her lot; Miss Patti Bella imparts much vivacity to the part of Sir Bertie Boulevard; Miss Vinnie Edmunds as Mollie and Misses Blanche Albert and Ada Merry as the Babes also add their quota to the general success. Of comedians there is no lack here, and Messrs. Albert and Edmunds as the two ruffians claim first consideration. Their business throughout is good, and they are full of resource; Messrs. Bernard and Weston as the King and his faithful Page are another clever pair of fun providers; Mr. Mark Tapley as the Widow and Mr. Ernie Sparks as Tommy also give valuable assistance; a word of praise is due Miss Cecilia Maude for her singing in the part of the Fairy Sunshine, the special favourite being the pretty ballad, "When Love comes a-knocking at the door"; the airship and the railway station scene provide much lively fun, and the whole pantomime runs brightly from start to finish.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's highly successful pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is now running its third and last week before setting out for fresh fields and pastures new. During the holidays it was extensively patronised, and the efforts of Messrs. Dawson Dewick, Harry Albery, T. D. Tandy, Farr and Farland, and Grapho and Jackson, as comedians, were highly enjoyed; while Miss Amy Allnutt as Robin Hood, Miss Belle Travers as Maid Marian, and Baby Lilybelle and La Belle Sylvia as the two Babes were one and all worthy of the highest praise.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—A good programme is submitted here this week, one of the attractions being the engagement of Miss Hilda Jacobsen, the musical comedy star, who was seen to much advantage in an original operetta, entitled, 10 p.m. J. W. Rowley continues as great a favourite as ever; and Herbert Darnley's company is responsible for a laughable performance, entitled The Freaks; other items of special interest include the Two Bostons, the novelty showmen; the Macarte Sisters, novelty wire act; Harry Russon, character comedian; Alma Gray, expert dancer; the Two Anartos, in sketch, The Morning Mail; and the American Bioscope with new pictures.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The chief turn this week is a cleverly acted condensed drama, by Fred Eustace and company, called Our Curate, in which Mr. Eustace plays the title-rôle, depicting a clergyman who can handle his "mauleys" when required in defence of his parishioners; while Miss Mary Eustace makes a very effective heroine; Hale and Frances are American eccentrics who give a pleasing display of juggling with hoops; it is pleasant to listen to such a fine soprano voice as that of Alexandra Edwin; Elsie Bernard is a clever American comedienne; Ernest Torrence has a powerful baritone voice, which he uses to good purpose, while his songs are finely illustrated by lantern slides; Lilith Leyton and John Spurling give an amusing sketch, entitled The Order of the Bath; Charles Mildare is an accomplished singer and whistler, who gives realistic imitations of the singing of birds; Griffin and Dubois are acrobats who do clever feats in a laughable way; the fine orchestra begins, and the Bioscope usually ends, a very interesting entertainment.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—This week the principal item in the programme is Joe Peterman and his company in the highly amusing extravaganza, The Belle of the Orient; another popular feature is Marie Dainton's clever imitations of well-known theatrical and musical stars; Jack Whiteford, the energetic Scotch comedian, meets with a hearty reception; Sable Fern's tuneful ditties go remarkably well; America's funniest jugglers, Cole and Rags, give an amusing show; and Jack Neil's songs and patter are fully appreciated.

COLISEUM. — Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Sam Gething; Acting-Manager, Harry Burdette.—Mr. Leo Stormont and company are still here in Rob Roy. Mr. Stormont is very fine as the bold outlaw; and Miss Madge Flynn is also successful as Helen; Mr. Forest Niven's Dougal and Mr. Geo. Hunter's Baillie are the other outstanding characters; Madge Cory is heard in a dialect turn; Frank Darwin is an actor-vocalist, who does well; Esta Stella has a gratifying reception, singing and dancing charmingly; Gertrude Bradshaw is a charming soprano vocalist; the Allisons make a good appearance in a matrimonial vocal sketch; Conway and Leland, the monopedes, deserve the warm applause they receive; Damarael Rutland and company, in a boisterous domestic sketch, A House Full, provide much fun; the Seven Serezoffs are marvellous jugglers. The Bioscope is also in the programme.

PALACE. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—A good all-round programme is submitted here this week. The King's College Boys are the principal entertainers, and their rendering of both part songs and solos is a vocal treat, which is thoroughly enjoyed by the audience; Henri Bekker, conjurer, who displays wonderful skill, has had also a capital reception; the other contributors to the programme include the Cormans, comedy duettists; Mark Leslie, coon comedian; Morny Cash, a clever comedian; Fred Mason, whistling coster comedian; Allsopp and Bekwith, comedy artists; Chas. E. Colby and Lily E. May, ventriloquist and dancer, in their smart speciality act; the Gilberts, expert dancers; and the Alskarno Trio, risley acrobats.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Howard; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Bowerman. — Ara, Zebra, and Vora, are much appreciated in their Indian Pastimes; Marcus Boyle is a good patter comedian; the Musical Keiths are a praiseworthy turn; Jessie Star has some capital songs; and Emmie Ames does well in "Emmie's Christmas Tree"; Ada Whitton is successful as a male impersonator; Frank Newbury, comedian and whistler; the Garden Quintette, dancers; the Sisters Clare, comediennes and dancers; and the Gaiety Bioscope are included in the programme.

GLOSSOP. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph's company, in the pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor, is this week proving a great attraction. Miss Stanton sustains Sinbad in a clever manner, her singing of "Snowflakes" being loudly encored; Miss M. Santley is captivating as Princess Zazora; whilst Miss E. Errol (Capt. Selim), Miss Norah Neville (Irza), Miss L. Richardson (Princess Fatima), and Miss Jennie Bradbury (Queen) are conspicuous in their respective parts; Mr. Bruce Green as Mrs. Clifford Gibson Sinbad is good as a mirth-maker, and is also successful in the song, "Catch of the Season"; Little Keeno is exceedingly droll as Tinbad the Tailor, and brings down the house with his impersonations of popular music hall stars; Mr. F. Derley gives a good delineation of Captain Cuttle; and Mr. A. Romer (Caliph of Bagdad) and Mr. C. Leamington (Grand Vizier) are a couple of good characters; Mr. George is effective as the Old Man of the Sea; and other important parts are in the safe hands of Mr. Southey (Storm King), Mr. Farrell (Biglad), Mr. Gorman (Quizlad), Miss Dolly Richardson (Fairy Good Fortune), Mr. G. Raper (Kingrusty, M.U.G.), Miss E. Streathley (Adventure), Miss Marie Muire (Industry), Miss Elsie Streathley (Energy). Specialities are well gone through by the Alhambra Girls, vocalists and dancers; Wyman, acrobatic trick skater; P. J. Durney, globe walker; the Deronkeys, wire-walking, spade-dancing, &c.; Farrell and Gorman, musical eccentrics; Little Keeno, boy comedian.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—The company is this week headed by the Cumberlands troupe of cyclists, who meet with a great reception. Jean Seul, Indian illusionist, performs his "Black Magic" to the amazement of the audience; Bandoni, the one-man band, is good, and his concertina specialities are praiseworthy; Messrs. Gold and Sterling as the artist and the Welsh girl, are a most entertaining pair, who win much applause; Mlle. Ada Gatley in her graceful swinging wire and juggling act, gives a neat and clever show; and Messrs. Elliott and Warne, with a tumbling and dancing act, prove very expert. The Four Sisters Sligo introduce a novel Irish vocal and musical speciality, and Belford and Mars are smart patterers and comedy entertainers. Mr. Harry Bent gives impersonations of well-known comedians, and Miss Carlotta Lunn, ballad vocalist, sings with taste. The Bioscope, although last, is always looked forward to with expectancy.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. J. E. Tomlinson.—Mr. Stanley Carlton's company, in the drama A Marriage of Vengeance, occupies the boards this week. Mr. Stanley Carlton as Paul Earnsliff gives a capital representation; Mr. Sidney Finnes puts considerable force into his rendering of the character of Geoffrey Vannock; Mr. E. Kellen Taylor is highly successful as Glynne Earnscliff; Mr. Edward Fryer cleverly imp

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—An excellent programme is headed here by the Chronophone (Gaumont's patent) pictures, that sing, talk, and dance with phenomenal success. Stylo, the marvellous hoop manipulator, makes a welcome reappearance; Alex Keith and Julia Kent, in their latest comedy, The Waiter and the Barmaid, evoke enthusiastic plaudits; another brilliant turn is provided by the Reynolds's Minstrel Quintette; "Its the girl" is quaintly rendered by Frank Boyce; Marstro and Mlle. Oretta (eccentric equilibrists), and Bert Lytton (character vocalist) are good, and Bert Woodward (the coon on wheels), is as popular as ever.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—Mr. Jno. Tiller's Dick Whittington pantomime is being presented here twice nightly to crowds. Mr. Will Lytton's Idle Jack is distinguished by quaint songs and patter; the broad comedy of Mr. Teddy Gibbs as Sammy Saltpetre and Mr. Barney Dixon as Horatio Marlinspike keep their auditors in continuous laughter; Mr. Herbert Garside, an old favourite here, is equally successful in the character of Fitzwarren; Eliza is humorously presented by Mr. George Elliston; and Mr. Gaston Morel is as busy as a "bee" as the cat. Miss Jessie Templeton makes an ideal Dick Whittington; a delightful Alice is found in Miss Dorothy Gould; and the Princess Zuleikah of Miss Lizzie Hay is a fascinating performance.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—The pantomime, Sleeping Beauty, is still running briskly, and business continues excellent. Mr. J. W. Churchill has introduced a new song, which is really amusing, and his performance throughout is most diverting; Miss Lily Vane continues her admirable impersonations as Beauty Allfair; Miss Esme Gordon is a dashing principal boy; Mr. Alf Bishop, Mr. Dave O'Toole, Mr. Lonnen Meadows all do really fine work; and Miss Agnes Molteno and Miss Ada Tilley also score. The Morton Trio, the Howards, and Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers are specialities which will be long remembered. Ganty's "Electric Bower" is undoubtedly a great feature in the evening's entertainment.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwards.—The Ten Loonies head the bill this week in the clever performance. Ulrick is seen in some wonderful barrel feats, which are much appreciated; Toch and Tard provide an amusing and highly interesting turn; J. H. Greener has a good baritone voice, which is heard to advantage. A capital sketch is given by Miss Lillie Dene and C. G. Dawson; Lillian is a smart trick cyclist; Harry Maynard is a character vocalist of much ability; and the pictures are capital

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding-Smith.—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Tomlinson's company, in the well-known drama Secrets — — —, was the attraction here the first three nights of this week. The company is a good all-round one. Mr. J. E. Tomlinson was effective as Ibrahim, the money-lender; Mr. Wilson Summers appeared with success as Lieut. Herbert Markham, the breezy hero. The comedy was in the hands of Mr. Victor T. Raymond and Miss Katie Lever as Peter and Winnie Wilkins. Mr. Lal Abdul Cottman made a capable Kara Mesrour; Miss Lizzie Palmer as the Christian maid, Ismalia, gave a creditable performance.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—Messrs. Dan Thomas and Fred Clements are presenting, twice nightly, their pantomime, Dick Whittington, and the attractive costumes, bright music, taking songs, and choruses, and heaps of fun render the production completely successful. Miss Trixie Cotterill is entrusted with the rôle of Dick, and her sparkling vivacity at once marks her a favourite; dainty in all she does, Petite Mabel Hind makes Alice a firm favourite; Mr. Fred Clements undertakes the character of Old Fitzwarren satisfactorily; a capital representation of the Cat is given by Pete Almonti, his efforts being repeatedly applauded; irresistible humour is freely dispensed by Sam Michello, Syd Crossley and Chas. Dore, who are respectively appearing as Betsy, Idle Jack, and Silly Jim. Others who gain appreciation are Harry Pastor, as the Captain; Ida Bell, as the Emperor; Madge Goodall, as the Princess; and specialities by Mlle. Estelle's Excelsior Quartette, Peto, the man monkey, and Baddow, ventriloquist, are appreciated.

HASTINGS.—PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. A. B. Tapping and a strong company are producing Poor Jo this week. Mr. A. B. Tapping as Tulkinghorn is an ideal family lawyer; as the pompous Sir Leicester Dedlock, Mr. E. Maule Cole deserves credit for a good piece of acting; Mr. Algernon Syms cleverly hits off the Rev. Chadband. Miss Naomi Nelison depicts the French temperament admirably; Miss Helen Anderson is very natural in the title-rôle, and Miss Kate Wingfield gives a most intelligent representation of Lady Dedlock.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday in The Breed of the Treshams. Mr. H. Tripp Edgar gained warm praise for his performance as Lieut. Reresby; Mr. Oswald Lingard submitted an admirable impersonation of Viscount Dorsington, and Mr. Richard A. Green as Col. the Hon. C. Hungerford was scarcely less successful; Mr. Cecil Klein's Cornet the Hon. F. Tresham was a fine character delineation. Miss Celestine Bertram made a convincing Batty, Miss Nelly Clyde a charming Margaret; and Miss Violet Agnew as Mrs. Bagshaw and Miss Miriam Holt as Helena Pierrepont gave meritorious performances. Mr. Wilfred Compton ably stage-managed.

HASTINGS HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Miss Dorothy Vincent, an attractive vocalist and comedienne opens a good programme. Mr. Walter Wallis is a highly amusing comic character comedian; Miss Clare Chadwick's quartette of lady operatic vocalists introduce some pleasing selections; some amusing films are seen on the bioscope, particularly one of pathetic significance, "The lost necklace"; a laughable comedy sketch is given by Marlow and Manton; Miss Nellie Cotter sings with good taste; Macdonald and Hunting give some excellent imitations of American singing and dancing; a popular comedian is seen in Mr. Charles Denton; a well-acted scena from A Royal Divorce is introduced by Ronald Bayne and Evelyn Hope.

ST. LEONARDS PAVILION THEATRE.—Piermaster and Entertainment Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, supported by Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., and company, are presenting a series of classical plays. The company is large and effestive, and the pieces are exceptionally well mounted. The original play, Carmen, from Prosper Merimée's opera, and Alexandre Dumas' Camille have been successfully produced. In the last-named play Miss Florence Glossop-Harris takes the titular character with much refinement; Mr. Edwin Beverley is natural as Mons. Duval; as Armand Duval, Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., shows a finished piece of acting. Comte de Varville is finely acted by Mr. A. Cotton Holmes; in the part of Gaston de Rieux, Mr. Percy H. Vernon shows himself a sound actor; Mr. Duncan Yarrow is no less happy in the character of Gustave. Miss Irene Woodford cleverly depicts the womanly part of Juliette; Miss Marion Bird gives an excellent rendering of Francine; Mrs. Edward Saker is quite at home in the part of Madame Prudence; Miss May Saker and Miss Kate Turner are equally successful in the respective characters of Nanine and Nichette. Mr. Edward Landor does the part of St. Julien full justice.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. Barnsley.—When a Man Hates is being presented by Messrs. Green and Hinton and company. Mr. Travis Green plays the part of Pietro Danelle to perfection; Mr. Arthur Hinton gives a performance of nerve-trying intensity as Paul; Miss Leila Zellwood shows dramatic power as Olga Gwynne; Miss Jennie Clare's Dolly is bright and vivacious, and Mr. Henry Compton is good as Smart.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Lewis.—Mr. Howell Webb's company, in The Convent Bell, is paying a return visit, and meets with a very hearty reception. The company is a good all-round one, and the piece well staged. Mr. Webb fairly revels in the part of Pickle Podds, and Christine Valgrave, in the hands of Miss Emily Huby, is a powerful impersonation.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—Messrs. Pardoe's company is here this week in Cinderella. Miss Lottie Holland as Prince Charming is a fine principal boy, her vocalism and dancing being excellent; Miss Beatrice Shamrock in the title-rôle is charming, and her songs were well received; an excellent Princess Rosella is found in Miss Nelly Rose, whose dancing is heartily applauded; and Miss Ada Stelling is good as Dandini. Mr. Tom Hume is a funny Baron No Cash; and Miss Violet Rivers as Eva and Miss Louie Bright as Maud are responsible for much laughter. Mr. Geo. Hyam as Scoots is smart in his patter and songs; the Bros. Hannaway as Blobbs and Blabbs are capable comedians and dancers; Miss Constance Bellamy scores as Fairy Rose Leaf; and as Father Time Mr. Tom Griffith comes in for applause. Specialities are introduced by the Four Desmond Girls, dancers; Bros. Hannaway, clog dancers; Zenieth, as Jacko the monkey; the De Veres, Continental acrobats; and special mention should be made of the Pardoes, in their marvellous human skipping-rope and human bundle act.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company is here for the week with a well-selected and popular programme. In Maritana Mr. Turner showed all his usual skill in acting, and the veteran tenor's singing was a fine object lesson to many a younger vocalist. The Maritana was Miss Kitty Brownless, and her clear articulation and freshness of voice won a thoroughly deserved success; Miss Jessie Dennis was a satisfactory Lazarillo; Mr. John Ridding was energetic as Don José; and Mr. S. Clifford sang well as the King of Spain. The well-trained chorus was bright and alert under the direction of Mr. T. Lawton. The other operas down for performance are The Bohemian Girl, The Waterman, and part of Il Trovatore, Satanella, The Lily of Killarney, and The Daughter of the Regiment.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The boards of this popular house of varieties are for the week in possession of the fine old Carl Rosa Opera Company. An attractive series of works is announced, including Faust, Tannhauser, Maritana, Il Trovatore, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Carmen, and The Bohemian Girl. The favourite, Faust, was presented by a cast in which Mr. Edward Davies acted and sang brilliantly in the title rôle; Miss Grace Nicoll sang artistically in the exacting part of Marguerite; in Mr. Arthur Winckworth an almost ideal portrayer of Mephistopheles was found, his fine voice and finished acting being greatly effective; Mr. Dillon Shallard sang with much sympathy as Valentine; Miss Dorothy Mayfield was a good Siebel; Miss Douglas Wilson happily cast as the dull-witted Martha; and Mr. F. Clendon was vivacious in the small part of Wagner. The big chorus and largely augmented band, conducted by Mr. Eugene Goossens, contributed much to the completeness of the production.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The constant peals of cheery children are ample testimony to the manner in which Mr. Morton's Cinderella adds to their amusement. The musical items are now the common possession of the street boy, whilst the witticisms of the comedians are heard on many sides. Miss Barbara Babbington has a striking personality, and she has already made a host of friends. The nightly gift of flowers as they fall into the auditorium from the hands of the aerial ballet is a feature always eagerly expected.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr Wynn Miller.—The success of this pantomime has been such that already Mr. Hart has cancelled an engagement which was to have followed the present run. The life, colour, and movement of the stage crowds, the splendid scenic effects are all contributory to the admiration with which it has been received. The sabot dance of the Edene Troupe, who accompany Miss Marie Nielson in her Zuyder Zee scena, is an especial feature in this show. As the cat, Mr. B. Kellino has made a distinct hit. The Fairy Queen (Miss Ivy Moore) has a beautiful contralto voice, which she uses with considerable artistry, her rendering of "Snowflakes" being an excellent vocal effort. Crib and Crib are sufficiently funny enough to make the most blasé critic laugh.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The play this week is proving an admirable attraction for the large number who patronise this very popular playhouse. It has some striking situations and a cleverly constructed plot. As the wronged wife, Miss Daisy Halling has every opportunity to shine. Needless to say, she avails herself of it to the full. The two exponents of the new and old school of detectives are Messrs. Chas. Halling and Mr. Frank Dallas, who respectively impersonate Vincent Rainsworth and Inspector Gilbert. Miss Lym Darlington has a striking contralto voice.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Appearing here are The Enemy of Man, a powerful little story, presented by Frances Harrold and company; a clever act by Ben Harris's Nippers, a novelty bicycle race by Hall and Wilson, Silly Billy Elliott (a special favourite), Johnny Walker, Voldam Bros., and Alexander Royal.

THE PALACE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Jno. T. Barnett.—Happy Holland, an artistic operetta, presented by Jake Friedman, is the leading attraction here. The bounding billiardists, Kelly and Ashby, are very clever; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lucas give realistic scenes of some of Charles Dickens's immortal characters. Other good turns include Mason and Bart, Edie Veno, Horace Jones, Carlos Cæsaro, and Dan Conroy.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Lachie Thompson's Topweights appear in a clever boxing and wrestling act; Adelina excels in an impersonation of our late Queen and other celebrities; Bertha Duckett is a smart male impersonator. Other favourites include Marie York, the Vaudevilles, Harry Leaton, Two Daniels, and Dan Noble.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—The New Century Animated Pictures are entertaining packed houses, this being their thirteenth week.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Variety is still drawing large houses here. The Onatis Troupe give a clever juggling performance: Clarke's Nippers are a smart quartette; the Two Mephistos are clever contortionists; George Young, the blind collier musician, is a success; Los Toreadors create roars of laughter; Lei is a funny ventriloquist; Mlle. Omega performs some graceful feats on the wire; Vosper astonishes by his skilful manipulation of paper and his impersonation of distinguished men; the Juvenile Saletos are dexterous acrobats, and Ellis and Watts are successful as duettists and dancers. The pictures shown by means of the Electric Featherscope are very clear.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Good business is being done here this week. The bill is headed by Aerian and Ostara, whose daring aerial feats hold the audience spellbound. The performing horse, "Japan," furnishes a remarkable instance of what can be done by patient training; the Brothers Alberto (Hilton and Wooton), in their football match on bicycles provide a novel and entertaining turn; Claude Ohmy and Mr. Yelding in their rival jockey and other equestrian acts are very smart; Miss Lilly and Miss Ada are accomplished horsewomen; and Zavolo and Mons. Footitt provide skilful juggling entertainments. The clowns, headed by August and September, raise hurricanes of laughter.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—A variety company occupies the boards here this week. Fred Baugh and Miss Rosa Neale provide a laughable duologue; Jones and Mansfield are successful in The Prodigal's Return; the Bros. Esdaile are eccentric comedians; in Outflanked, Mr. Henry Coutts figures as a quick-change artist; the Albano Troupe of musicians give an excellent musical treat; Mr. W. R. Grey gains much favour as a ventriloquist; Birch scores as a concertina manipulator; May Neilson is a clever dancer; and Harry Wynne, comedian, and the Pocket Opera Company in Claude Duval also appear.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—A clever Japanese magic performance is provided by Yettmah. The Grahams, in a living marionette entertainment, are successful; Norah McEvoy is applauded for her songs; Rex and Rell impart pleasure by their songs and dances; and Herbert Potts, comedian; Louie Rell, male impersonator; and Rex Graham, comedian, complete.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Mr. John A. Thomson's company is here for three nights with the pantomime Dick Whittington. The company is a strong one, and the scenery and dresses are pretty. Miss Fay Garnet Vayne in the title-rôle appears to great advantage, her singing being very good; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne as Alice Fitzwarren sings and dances with nice taste; Messrs. Long and Beal as Alderman Fitzwarren and Pimple are responsible for much of the fun; Captain Bunting has a clever representative in Mr. Sid Morelli; Mr. William Nixon is good as the Emperor of Morocco; Mr. Joe Rowlands as Idle Jack causes much laughter; Mr. E. Young Fixott as Betsy Jane (Fitzwarren's cook) is very amusing; Mr. Victor Garnet Vayne is an agile cat. All the other parts are well done.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Lights Out has been played here this week, by Mr. J. Maunder-Gregory's company. The important part of Klara Volkhardt is finely represented by Miss Frances Davis, an accomplished actress; Mr. Charles Esdale creates a favourable impression as Lieut. von Lauffen; Sergeant Volkhardt has a manly representative in Mr. Lionel D'Arragon; and Mr. Richard Fielding gives a clever rendering of Corporal Helbig.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—A diversified programme is being provided for the current week, one of the chief items being Miss Mabel Bright and company in a vocal mélange, called Girls Will be Girls. The Montagu Brothers appear in a sketch entitled The Sculptor's Dream, an artistic performance; James Eadie and Cissy Ramsden make a good impression in a pot-pourri act; Little Zola proves himself to be an amusing comedian; Lily Langtry is enthusiastically applauded; and Douglas and Gordon are responsible for a droll absurdity.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jerold E. Reed.—The attraction this week is Messrs. Little and D'Arcey's pantomime company, in The Forty Thieves. Miss Minnie Silcott makes an ideal Abdallah; and Ganem is carefully embodied by Miss Violet Silcott; and Miss Marie Silcott is charming as Morgiana; Mr. Willie Black is droll as Ali Baba; Mr. James Ferguson is quite at home in the part of Cogia Baba; and Mr. Ted Wooton makes a good Cassim Baba; Messrs. Malone and Conley are excellent in their respective parts of Hassarac and Hassaric. Specialities are introduced by the Esmeralda Troupe of dancers, the Daunton Shaw Troupe of cyclists, and the Sisters Silcott, first-class vocalists and dancers.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Carson.—Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company with The Spider and the Fly is paying its first visit here this week. A capital performance of Cyril Girdlestone is given by Mr. Stanley S. Gordon; Welby Girdlestone is exceedingly well played by Mr. Ellis J. Preston, who also ably undertakes stage-management; Mr. H. C. Lanceley's Rev. Mr. McAllister is admirable; Miss Amy Venimore gives a talented and artistic portrayal of Stella Grey, the Spider; Miss Nina Vaughton's Edith McAllister is full of merit; Mr. Charles A. Preece is very energetic; and his Remus Roe teems with humour; Mr. Charles Russell puts in some good work, as does Mr. Reginald Payne. Praise must also be bestowed upon Miss Lucy Murray, Miss Ada Palmer, and Miss Winnie Barton.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Major Ward.—Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company occupies the boards this week in The White Chrysanthemum. Mr. Richard Telford's interpretation of Sin Chong, and Mr. Jamie Dallas's eccentricities in the character of Private Perks, are irresistibly funny; Mr. Shirley Lea as the irascible admiral, is distinctly clever; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce as Lieut. Armitage, and Mr. H. E. Garden as Lieut. Belmont, are most successful. Miss Muriel George in the dual rôle of Sybil Cunningham and O'San, makes a good impression; Miss Wilmot gives a lively rendering of the part of Cornelia, and is ably supported by Miss Dorothy Septon as Betty.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Panizer.—Lynn has never seen a brighter or better pantomime than Bluebeard, for the successful production of which Mr. Louis Du Cane is responsible. The tuneful music is the work of Mr. J. G. Hahn, who ably conducts. Miss Isa Bowman proves a capable principal boy in the part of Selim; Mr. Gus Danby as Bamboozlem is funny, the two together giving an excellent "take-off" of grand opera. Mr. Louis Du Cane is an admirable Blue Beard. The performance of Mr. Alex. Godfrey as Pimple is most humorous. Mr. Johnny Clegg, too, is very much at home as Sister Ann, and helps the fun along in an irresistibly taking manner. Miss Florence Hersee makes a dainty and fascinating Fatima, and Miss Cissie Thompson proves a fine and capable Cashim. The excellence of the specialities introduced is quite an outstanding feature of the entertainment. Mr. Mac Stuart and Miss Theresa Stuart as Stuart and Stuart give a clever variety turn. The Sisters Warner are responsible for clever turns. Indeed, the whole performance is rounded off with many excellent features. The costumes, the artistic scenery, the bevy of smart girls, and excellent comedians combine to make a production that should run with unabated success to the close of the pantomime season. Mr. W. Collard, as business-manager, capably controls the front of the house.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton—This week the well-known Russell-Rosse répertoire company is appearing in A Pair of Spectacles, Caste, and Our Boys. The company is a strong one, and does justice to these famous comedies. Messrs. A. J. Harding and Norman Clark may be specially mentioned as being entrusted with the bulk of the work.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—The Span of Life occupies the boards this week, and the drama is very well presented by Mr. Arthur Carlton's company. Miss Guinevere Shinton gives an admirable impersonation of the heroine, Kate Heathcote; Mr. R. S. Trelawney submits a fine portrayal of the hero Richard Blunt, and Mr. Sanderson Moffat is well suited to the villain's part, Dunstan Leech. The comic element is introduced by Mr. Sam Roberts as Nutty Brown, and Miss Kitty Russell as Shrove Tuesday. The Brothers Stebbing, acrobats, add to the success of the play.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. W. J. Fergusson and John Porter; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Martin.—Horace White, novelty ventriloquist, is placed at the head of the bill here, and his entertainment wins rounds of applause; a very funny sketch, Another Man's Wife, is capitally presented by Hilda and Leigh, and the Sisters Aindow supply a pleasing musical turn; Ferris and Farnley are eccentric comedians; Keir and Kempton sing very well; Rezene and Robini are comical gymnasts, and Lily Hayes sings and dances well. The Hippograph, in a series of new pictures, is still an attraction.

PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. and C. Fell; Manager, Mr. John Fell.—The bill is this week headed by Mr. Alf. Gibson, comedian, and he is accorded a good reception. The Brothers Lawrence, comedians, cause roars of laughter, and Titan supplies a marvellous turn. A comedy musical act is supplied by Wyllie; Mlle. Telka is a pleasing vocalist, and Monti J. Howe, speciality artist, is well received. The Edison-Swan pictures complete a first-rate bill.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—After judicious pruning by the experienced and energetic producer, Mr. Edward Cadman, the Grand pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty, has, up to the present, enjoyed a career of pronounced success. The work of the principals is full of freshness and originality, and there is a plenitude of good wholesome fun. The lavish scenic display and magnificent dresses continue to evoke spontaneous admiration at every performance. The audience being particularly enthusiastic over the scenes "Night and Morning" and "The Butterflies' Ball," which close the respective acts.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Mr. John Tiller's pantomime, The Forty Thieves, has got into excellent working order, and goes with snap and brightness from start to finish. As already indicated, the scenery and mounting are on a scheme of lavish splendour never before attempted here, whilst, in the hands of Mr. Bob Selvidge, Mr. Harry Dent, and their worthy associates the fun is never allowed to flag. Ali Baba's donkey, as presented by Mr. Sam Poluski, jun., is a quaint animal, and amuses the juveniles vastly. New songs and business are being introduced nightly.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The success anticipated for Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean season at the Queen's is being more than fulfilled, for large and enthusiastic audiences are the rule nightly. A Midsummer Night's Dream is running smoothly, and the sumptuous and elegant mounting of the piece evokes many expressions of admiration. Mr. Benson as Lysander, Mrs. Benson as Titania, Miss Tita Brand as Hermia, and Miss Leah Hanman as Puck score artistic triumphs in their respective parts; the bucolic humour of Bottom is portrayed with rare fidelity by Mr. George R. Weir; and the Peter Quince of Mr. E. A. Warburton is also a most satisfactory and convincing effort. Twelfth Night was presented by the company at a well-attended matinée on Wednesday.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Limited; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The dramatic playlet, La Vivandiere, a condensed version of Under Two Flags, is admirably staged here this week, and the acting of Miss Isabel Derry and her company in the principal parts is of a high order of merit. Alice Maydue is singing dialect songs in her best style, and readily finds favour; the Coloured Meisters once again encounter a rousing reception for their fine vocal turn; and those accomplished musicians, the Stavordale Quintette, easily maintain a notable reputation; the Paxton Trio do some wonderful feats in the way of hand balancing; that sound juggler, Walter Bellonini, retains the attention of his audience through a clever act; Fraser and Mac are to the fore with a comedy instrumental act; Ruth Doris and Princess Pauline are a pair of pleasing comediennes; and an interesting show of Bioscope pictures completes.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Charles Weldon.—At this popular Barrasfordian house the Warsaw Bros. are an outstanding feature, with a clever and comical musical show; Leoni Clarke is arousing interest by his wonderful collection of trained animals; the New York Comedy Four combine harmony and comedy very successfully; the vocal and instrumental speciality by Dr. Ernst and Co. never fails to evoke lavish applause; an excellent comedy sketch is presented with ability by Harry Thorpe and Zoe Coe; that clever pair of speciality dancers, Espinosa and Neilson, arouse the enthusiasm of their audience; and there are acceptable contributions by Anthony, comic conjurer; the Cartos Brothers, expert hand balancers; Ted Saunders, a more than usually correct mimic; and Minnie Mace, comedienne and dancer.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A mirthful sketch, Three of a Kind, cleverly played by Arden and Abel's company is the pièce-de-resistance here, and proves a very attractive lead; the Bros. Bright are stars in the gymnastic world, and shine brightly; Onda and Artell introduce comedy into their acrobatic act with success; Cline and Clark are well-known as coon specialists and enhance their reputation; and notable success is also achieved by Martinengo, with vocal and instrumental contributions; George Prince, comedian; and Charles Stanton, speciality vocalist.

ALBERT HALL.—Catlin's Royal Pierrots continue a season of pronounced success at this hall, their clever entertainment of song, dance, and diverting farce, ably led by Mr. Will Catlin, proving very enjoyable to full houses.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—A welcome return visit of Mr. William Greet's No. 1 company, presenting the delightful musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl, is the attraction here this week. Mr. William Stephens repeats his mirth-provoking portrayal of Jim Cheese with the greatest success, and Miss Frances Earle is a charming and dainty Elphin Haye; Mr. Arthur Harrold both sings and acts well as Dick Wargrave; Mr Percy E. Wright is good as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Miss Jennie Richards is well placed and amusing as Liza Shoddam; Miss Gertrude Melville is vivacious and clever as Daisy Fallowfield; and Mr. H. Courtin as Bunker Bliss; Miss Beatrice Anderson as Mrs. Shimmering Black; Mr. W. Norman as Downham; Mr. Green Taylor as Mr. Talk; Miss Joan Clifford as Virginia Bliss, and Mr. Fred W. Patrick as Mr. Hazel, are also responsible for clever and successful delineations of their respective parts. The chorus is strong and well-balanced, and altogether the perfomance is a thoroughly good one.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The pantomime of Aladdin is now in its third week, and the various artists engaged work together in a most commendable manner. Miss May Marton is a favourite in the title rôle, and Miss Janet Reynolds as the Princess is prominent with a dainty portrayal. Both Miss Ethel Wilson as Pekoe and Miss Lovell as Nicee are smart. The comedians are untiring in their efforts as merriment merchants, chief among whom are Mr. Tom Owen as the Widow Twankey; Mr. Clifford Morgan as Abanazar; Mr. Frank Couch as the Vizier; Mr. Leo Sterling and Mr. Happy Attwood as the Chinese policemen; and Mr. Tommy Nelldon as the laundry man. The Royal Welsh Meister Singers and Leo Sterling, the musical comedian, gain much applause, and the pretty scenery and tasteful dresses of the excellent operatic chorus and principals are also greatly admired.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Crowded houses here on Monday evening practically received La Milo with open arms, and gave the famous poseuse a magnificent reception. She charmed everyone, and her visit, which has created quite a sensation, is a pronounced success. The interludes between were filled up with some clever lightning caricatures of public men by Cruickshank. At the other end of the bill is John Le Hay and company, who are presenting a most enjoyable and cleverly-constructed comedy operetta, entitled Poor Beggar, which created an excellent impression and much merriment. The Brothers Schenk, head and hand equilibrists, score with a smart show; the Schutzenliestern Quartette are delightful vocalists; Buddha's blackboard proves an interesting and inexplicable illusion; Ernesto is an excellent musical equilibrist and juggler; and both Hettie Chattell, burlesque actress, and Lily Tiso, a pretty comedienne and dancer, give entertaining turns. The Bioscope is retained, and creates the usual amount of interest.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Sibbon's miniature circus, introducing ponies, dogs, and cats, lead here this week, and the clever performance is heartily appreciated; Blanche and Diacoff return, and are accorded a warm welcome for their famous bicycling feats on a teacup track. In connection with this engagement an amateur competition is being held. Cissie Coman is well received for her illustrated songs; Percival and Morley create hearty laughter with a well-played little sketch: D. W. Watson, the one-armed cornet and post-horn soloist, well maintains his popularity; the Two Sprees are versatile vocalists and dancers; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, which has become quite a fixture, is again a special feature of the programme.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Messrs. F. J. Little and Mr. Fred Darcy's pantomime, Sindbad the Sailor, opened here to a crowded house on Monday night. Miss Marie Reeve is a highly popular Sindbad, her liveliness and vocal ability winning her much success; Miss Amy Calcott makes a charming Zorilda, her singing and dancing being much admired; Mr. Albert E. Mann plays Mrs. Sindbad with unfailing humour; Mr. Walter Adams as Tindbad works hard, and keeps the fun going with his droll songs and sayings; Messrs. Newes and Sullo as Baccah and Stoppah are first rate knockabouts; Miss Marian Ellis as the fairy, Lustre, is worthy of high praise, her singing being excellent; Miss Nell Brough as Selim has plenty of dash, her whistling solo being greatly appreciated; the marvellous Westwoods, comedy cyclists, bring down the house for their daring performance; Dobits and Buxton, operatic vocalists, sing in grand style; the Calcotts, banjoists, Knoto, contortionist, and Les Beaux Belles, singers and dancers, all contribute largely to its success.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Mr. Stanley Rogers' fairy pantomime, The Fair One with the Golden Locks, continuing its phenomenally successful run, still draws crowded houses. Monday evening's performance was marked by the return to the cast of Mr. Barry Lupino, who had been laid aside for a few days by an affection of the throat, and the genial comedian received a cordial greeting. The piece goes with undiminished vigour. The brilliant spectacle, entitled "Electra's Dream," in which Alma, Abdullah, and La Superbe appear, is a great achievement in electric lighting effects.

LINCOLN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner, Mr. Frank King.—That The Private Secretary still retains its power to amuse is shown by the hilarity with which the representation is greeted this week. High commendation is due to Mr. Donald Price Evans as the Rev. Robert Spalding, and to Mr. W. Hargreeves as the choleric Cattermole, Miss Ashford being ably interpreted by Mrs. Alfred Davis. Miss Dora Gray and Miss Beth Elliott also appear with success. My American Admirer is an excellent curtain-raiser.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—Vocal harmony of a high order is furnished by the Silvertone Quartette; excellent turns being given also by Francis and Alfred, jugglers, and by the Donnas Trio on the trapeze. Gus Hindel, Virto, Ethel Yorke, and Johnny Holland's company in The Millionaire are also successful.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The stage here this week is occupied by Mr. Peter Thompson's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, from the pen of Peter O'Dicks. The whole production is bright and attractive, and full of up-to-date songs, besides having plenty of smart dialogue. Well presented and prettily dressed, the pantomime has proved a draw, good business having been done during the week. The Babes are represented very nicely by the dainty Misses Renee Grahame and Babs Lloyd, upon both of whom was bestowed loud applause for their smart dancing and singing; Miss Maude Beaumont was a dashing Robin Hood; an attractive Maid Marian was submitted by Miss Lou Langley; the Danbys caused nearly all the laughter with their antics as the Ruffians; Mr. Wilton Marsh was a merry bad Baron; Mr. T. G. Vane assisted with the fun as the humorous Nurse; a pretty Fairy Queen was depicted by Miss Maudie Grayson; Mr. Arthur Ainsley and Miss Lelia Lakeman efficiently filled the rôles of the Spirits of the Old and New Years; and able assistance came from Mr. Willie Barrett (Simple Pimple) and Mr. Fred Paget (Friar Tuck). Some clever specialities were introduced by N. T. Kioto, Japanese equilibrist; Babs Lloyd, mimic and coon dancer; Rosa Walmsley, skipping-rope dancer; Renee Grahame, male impersonator; the Yankee Quartette of acrobatic dancers

Westleigh; Mr. Sydney Grant was an able Walter Clifford; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood acted with force as the poacher Warriner; Mr. Robert Wilton was careful and reserved in the character of the clergyman, Denham; Miss Florence Palmer was a sweet Lilian Westleigh; Miss Beryl Ravenswood showed much care as the poacher's daughter; Miss Ada Maud played with satisfactory results as the gipsy, Old Meg; and Miss Florence Cameron was a lively Nancy Grey. The Royal Bioscope had some particularly fine pictures.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Here this week the "Royal" Stock Dramatic Company have given a fine rendering of the drama, Uncle Tom's Cabin, in which real negroes have been introduced. Mr. Charles Herberte made an ideal Tom; Mr. Walter Foster played well as Phineas Fletcher; Mr. Francis E. Wybert filled the part of Mr. Shelby with every satisfaction; Mr. H. G. Brandon, an able artist, was a capital Marks; Mr. Albert Sember acted with great effect as the slave, George Harris; the villainous Legree found in Mr. Frank S. Strickland an able exponent; credit is due to Miss Sara Blumenthal for her very complete Aunt Ophelia; Miss Florence Barnes proved a lively Topsy; Miss Violet Macfarlane showed much tenderness as little Eva; Miss Lilian Burns acted with discretion as Eliza; Miss Lina Nazeby earned recognition for her Cassie, and Miss Harriett George did the most with Aunt Chloe.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The principal feature of the programme here this week is the comedy sketch entitled Teddy Smiles, the Sportsman, which is produced by the well-known comedian Will Hebden, assisted by a good all-round company. The whole affair proves exceedingly enjoyable. Hill and Mack are a pair of able comedians, vocalists and dancers; the comedy ventriloquism of Cavalli is a pleasing item; Zernyi's work as a contortionist is remarkable; and Kennedy and Manion are smart juvenile vocalists and dancers.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—A second edition and last two weeks are announced of Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Puss in Boots.

OLYMPIA, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—For yet another week the grand spectacle, The Earthquake, is in the bill. It has proved a powerful attraction. The Lyons Trio of pantomimists, with their sketch of The Parson, Lady, and Butler, cause screams of laughter; Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston present a pleasing artistic comedy tit-bit, Practical Joking; the De Wynne Bros. perform some remarkable head and hand balancing; as contortionists Genaro and Theol want a lot of beating; Los Granadas are immensely amusing as the "bounding boys"; and others in the list are Frank Harwood, character vocalist, and Rose Archer, a clever mimic.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—A deal of the evening's entertainment here this week consists of the Bioscope showing the Moir-Palmer fight; a return of Donnybrook; or, St. Patrick's Day, by Lizette Sutherland and her company of juveniles, is welcomed; and Daisy O'Malley is a winsome comedienne and dancer.

HAYMARKET.—Licensee, Mr. J. S. Childs.—Harry Calden's Sketch Company is here with A Sprig of Shamrock; Miss Florence Leo Ville has a charming turn as a conjurer and jester; Miss Madge Pollard, a neat serio and sand dancer, makes her first appearance in Liverpool; Jack Hylton, who earns much applause, is an eccentric comedian of considerable merit; Jake Euston has a good turn as comedian and coon dancer; and the Bioscope shows some capital pictures.

TIVOLI. — Proprietors, Liverpool Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—An acceptable bill of fare is given at this pretty theatre this week. Miss Florrie Gallimore comes with her popular and amusing songs, which take immensely; Harry Champion earns a cordial reception for his capital songs; Miss Josie Delaine receives hearty applause at the conclusion of her Mirror and the Maid scena; continuous laughter follows the comedy sketch, The Dancing Master, provided by Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor; the remarkably intelligent show by Galetti's monkey comedians is watched with interest; as a comedian and patterer Mr. Charles V. Adams is exceedingly funny; Mignonette Kokin wins much favour for her songs and eccentric dancing; some especially good conjuring comes from Ormonde Penstone, assisted by his Chinatown belle; and Teau-Ngo and Los Rupertos introduce a novel equilibristic act

REYNOLDS' EXHIBITION.—The seasonable show at this old-established and popular place is the marionette pantomime of Jack and the Beanstalk. It is one of the best of its kind seen here for years, and the attendance of families has been exceedingly satisfactory.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. R. Chaplin.—This week the boards here are occupied by Mr. John Gerant and company in the military drama, At Duty's Call. As Harold Alison, Mr. Gerant acts powerfully; Mr. Harry Scott as Capt. George Alison is excellent; Mr. Walter P. Carr in the part of Jack Spencer is good; Mr. Ernest St. John as General Gordon contributes a first-rate portrayal; Mr. Harry Ugar as Terry, with song and dance, is much appreciated; Miss Eva Belle's comicalities as Mary find favour; and Miss Jeannie Weston as Salema, and Miss Lily Crammonde as Dora, both do well.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company appear this week in The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell is as successful as ever as the Strangler; Mr. Wallace Curnock is capable as Paul Blanchard; Mr. George Denham creates amusement as the Smiler; and Miss Rosabel Dodd as Cora and Miss Maggie Stuart as Sophie are loudly applauded.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is paying a return visit this week with the ever-welcome Gay Parisienne. Mr. Will Harman in the rôle of Ebenezer Honeycomb is most amusing, and acts with great spirit; Mr. Squire Day is also good as Major Forsdyke; Mr. Phillip Moore is well suited in the part of Tom Everleigh; Mr. J. Fitz-James as Hans is excellent; and Mr. Bloomfield scores as Fritz; Miss Nance O'Neill is a graceful Norah; as Mlle. Julie Bon-Bon Miss Lillian Talbot is dainty, and dances with much energy; Miss Holford Beringer is a capital Mrs. Honeycomb; and Miss Madge Soutter is successful as Ruth.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA — Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Bright and tuneful music, clever songs and dances, are associated with the pantomime, Aladdin, which is presented here this week after a fortnight's successful run at Yarmouth. Mr. Graham Falcon's company has already received full notice in these columns, and it only remains for us to say that each and all have thoroughly settled down to his or her allotted task, and that the whole entertainment works throughout with commendable smartness. Praise is due to Miss Blanche Marion (Aladdin), Miss Nina Moore (Princess), Mr. Jack Waller (Abanazar), Mr. Claude Dampier (the Widow Twankey), and Mr. Harry Kirk (the Emperor). The scenes are wonderfully bright and effective, and the chorus work well together. Mr. Gerald Alexander is the business manager, and Mr. David Cruickshank is responsible for the stage duties. Mr. H. E. Stone ably conducts the orchestra. Some smart specialities are introduced in the palace scene.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Walter Melville's No. 1 London company in The Female Swindler, under the charge of Mr. O. Silverstone, occupies the theatre this week. The name part is ably sustained by Miss Grace Leslie, who proves herself an accomplished artist; Miss Florrie Kelsey as May Andrews successfully portrays the character of the ward; Mr. Clarence Ibbotson is responsible for the comedy, and is irresistible as respectively Lord Hitchitt, Billy Binks, the Scotchman, and the Washerywoman. The part of Abraham Mickstein is in the able hands of Mr. John Belton; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe ably sustains the character of the villain; Captain Stanton and Mr. Kenyon scores in the part of the retired merchant, Mr. James Oliver.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley. — Messrs. Arthur Northway's and W. V. Garrod's company in The Prodigal Parson is here this week. As the Rev. Tom Godley Mr. W. V. Garrod gives a vigorous impersonation; Mr. Arthur Northway is a clever Enoch Jaggins; Mr. O. Redmonde an interesting Phil Drive; Mr. W. Hayward an effective Ben Jaggins; Miss Lydia Hart a pleasing Gretchen; Miss Vera Fordyce a sympathetic Fern Godley; and Miss G. Conover a satisfactory Myrtle.

MAIDSTONE.—CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Beslee.—The New Barmaid, played by Mr. Alexander Loftus's company, is drawing crowded houses here. Mr. Loftus is well suited as Bertie White; and as Colonel Claymore and Captain Loveburv Mr. Harry Collie and Mr. James Hawkes are popular. Mr. James Grant as William White and Mr. S. Hall as Mons. Bonsor both do well; Miss Violet Osmund as Dora Heather is excellent, her singing and dancing being especially good. Miss Amy Preston as Ethel Joy and Miss Winifred Preston as Lady Moulton also deserve mention.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Stanley Baskerville.—A good bill is headed by the Bros. O'Brien in a marvellous display on the triple bars; Ross and Grayson are a quaint comedy couple, their piano playing being received with enthusiasm; J. H. McCann is a clever acrobatic skate dancer; Hughes and Elliott please with clever sand-dancing; Edgar Forest's Sketch Company amuses with a comedy sketch; the Adderley Bros. are smart musical mimics; Georgie Beaufort, comedienne; and He and She, dancers, together with the Bioscope, complete the bill.

MANCHESTER.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—The New Aladdin at this theatre continues to go in fine style in the hands of Mr. George Edwardes's company.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Midnight Wedding is presented here this week by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's talented company. In the principal parts of the Princess Astrea and Paul Valmar Miss Annie Saker and Mr. Alfred Paumier are particularly successful; and good work is done by Mr. Clinton Baddeley as Captain Rudolph von Scarsbruck, Mr. F. W. Freeman as the Crown Prince, Mr. Ernest E. Imeson as Lieutenant Streisburg, and Miss Marian Fawcett as Safanella. In light rôles, Miss Ada Champion, and Messrs. James E. Page, Edward Fletcher, and Algie Spalding are entirely satisfactory; and the scenery and dresses are brilliant and elaborate.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A capital pantomime of Aladdin is presented here this week by Messrs. Holland and Wood. All the requirements of a successful travelling show are here supplied in full. Miss Frances Haskoll plays Aladdin in free and vigorous style; and her vis-à-vis, the Princess, is daintily impersonated by Miss Florence Wood, who has a very good singing voice. Fine fun, and plenty of it, is supplied by the comedians; notable among whom are Messrs. Nash and Noel, two eccentric members of the Imperial Police; Mr. Percy Curry, an impressively queer magician; and Mr. George Reeves, a typically funny Widow Twankey. Others worthy of mention are Miss Poppy Holland, Mr. Walter Watson, Miss Ada Jenner, and Miss May Harvey; while valuable help, in the way of specialities, is contributed by the Three Trees (Dolly, Bibby, and Portia), accomplished vocalists and dancers; Kendrick and Laura, also excellent singers and dancers; the Chameleon Cave Guards, in a military march, with electrical colour effects; and Messrs. Nash and Noel, eccentric comedians. The production is embellished with elaborate scenery, dresses, and effects, and contains the usual complement of popular and successful songs.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan. Acting-Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Messrs. Phelps and Tilbury's romantic comedy-drama, The Blind Foundling, is the attraction here this week. The play is written by Mr. Chas. H. Phelps, who sustains with distinction the picturesquely dramatic rôle of Gerald Dalton, a fallen artist. Miss Belle Tilbury as Isabel, Dalton's wife, gives a delicate and sympathetic rendering; Miss Mabel Hall excites interest in her depiction of Fairy, the foundling; Mr. Lawrence Brien presents a neat delineation of Parson Ray; and acceptable humour is interpolated by Mr. R. Earl as Dick Dobbins, Miss Ray Watson as Winnie Dobbins (both of whom add vocalism to their accomplishments), and Mr. John Byron as Algy, the London "Johnnie." The scenery is effective.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is here this week in the successful play An Unwedded Wife. The drama is of distinctly good quality, and it is staged with excellent effect. Miss Van Praagh gives a very fine depiction of Marian, the "unwedded wife", and Mr. J. Edward Whitty is also very well placed as David Drummond. Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes as the villainous Blackstone is correspondingly excellent; and great praise is due to Little Dorothy for her clever and appealing depiction of Reggie. Others who do well are Mr. Logan Darra as John Hawthorne, Mr. Milton Bedford as Lennox, and—in humorous parts—Mr. Richard Purdon, Mr. Harry Townley, and Miss Jessie Gillette.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—On Monday Mr. Richard Flanagan took a benefit here, a big attendance of the public and a huge popular programme signalising the event.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A picturesque electrical act is shown here this week by Nillson's flying ballet of ladies in mid-air. Rosina Caselli and her little Mexican dogs are a big turn, the diminutive canines exhibiting really wonderful intelligence and cleverness. Harry Trevanion and company are seen in a dramatic sketch, A Bolt from the Blue; Johnson and Bert give their clever absurdity, The Queer Customer; the Schwartz Brothers, Continental parodists, offer a very amusing turn; the Three Renards add a smart exhibition of novelty gymnastics; Herr Fritz, illusionist, presents a variety of magical surprises; and other pleasing turns are contributed by May Orchard, juvenile comedienne, and Harry Coates, the singing navvy. The Bioscope depicts the pantomime of Aladdin.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Fred Karno's latest success, The Football Match, is still being played here, and the efforts of a capable company, including Messrs. H. Weldon, Will Poluski, jun., Ernie Myers, Robb Gilmore, and Miss Lily Lonsdale (who sings nicely), are greatly appreciated. In addition, we have an exceptionally clever and amusing acrobatic, hand-balancing, and juggling act by the Three Laurels; and a capital performance by Lux's well-trained dogs. Rosie Lloyd, a first-rate comedian, makes a decided hit; Leah Adell, in her vocal scena "Memories," is pleasing, and Kismet, a dramatic episode, is well played by Mrs. Oscar Luck's company. The Palace pictures are excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—That sensational, dramatic, and aquatic spectacle The Flood is still the attraction here, and is undoubtedly a perfect triumph of realism. A capital turn is offered by Phil and Nettie Peters, a smart American comedy duo; and Sydney James's Strolling Players are particularly successful in a pleasing vocal burlesque. Lena Willard is a charming comedienne, a neat dancer, a sweet singer, and a clever impersonator; the Wotpert Trio present a unique spring board performance, and are well received; William Gourlay is good in his speciality dancing act, "The Scarecrow"; and some excellent cornet playing and club swinging is done by Alburtus and Millar. "O Peaceful Night" is well rendered by the choir; Miss Madge Robertson sings "In Dreamland" in fine style; and "Where there's a will there's a way" is an amusing film shown by the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Miss Hugh De Burn and company, including Messrs. George Arbuthnot, Cecil Lane, and Miss Delia Curzon, head the bill here this week in a delightful old English comedy entitled The Lady of the Roses, in which Mrs. De Beera acts charmingly. The Dayton Family are expert risley performers, and, as usual, are well received. Ruth Molloy makes a big hit in her clever imitations of music-hall stars; George and Leila are decidedly good in a smart and refined musical skit, The Noble Volunteer; Childie Stuart is a chic comedienne; Ted Waite, a comedian of the accentric order, amuses with two songs; Daisy Wright and Crazy Elton are good dancers; Lily Foy is a pleasing comedienne; and Carl Howard in his "Concoction of Comedy and Magic" is highly amusing. Raymond's Vivagraph completes.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The top turn here this week is a clever and entertaining musical mixture in one scene, entitled Office Hours, presented by Clarence C. Corri, who is responsible for the music. Edgar Dereve, author of the words, figures in the company, which is quite a successful combination. The programme includes also the Three Brothers Curran, in a smart boxing act; Brull and Helmsley, the damsel and the dude, in their music-shop diversion; Chas. Valvo, an up-to-date ventriloquist; Leotard Brothers, the comical clowns and marvellous hat-throwers; Victor Courtney, speciality artist; the Edgertons, in an American novelty act; and a clever but unnamed deputy for Shawlene. The Bioscope is pleasing, as usual.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Tom and Marie Motramo are to the front here this week, and, as usual, create no end of laughter with their smart patter, and delight with their musical entertainment. Ada Fawn, comedienne, is accorded a warm welcome, and sings three songs in capital style; the Two Paolias give a clever muscular exhibition, with poses; Will Walton is a first-rate comedian; Raglus causes much laughter with his tennis ball manifestations; and amusing also are the Evalos in a comic juggling act. Mr. "E." is a smart patterer and an up-to-date joker; the Vekeys are expert banjoists; and Beatty and Blanche are dainty comediennes and dancers. "The Midnight Sun" is the Bioscope subject.

HIPPODROME, HULME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Smoking Concert here this week, under the direction of W. B. Crabtree, is a vastly amusing affair, and is responsible for considerable merriment. Henry Herne and company are seen to advantage in their greater water sensation, Blackmail; and some good whistling is done by Arthur Slater, the man in white. The Bendons appear with success in an original comedy song scena; Vowles and Bryan are good in song and patter; and the Brothers Pimm are smart in a quick-change act. Others who contribute enjoyable items are Ce Me Marie, the "Eastern Wonder"; and Conway and Garland, comedians. The Bioscope pictures are amusing.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield Theatre Company; General-Manager, Captain Cecil Clayton.—Mr. Frank Thorne's company occupies the boards here with Napoleon the Great. In the title-rôle Mr. Hugh Montgomery proves himself a very powerful actor, and is appreciated. Mr. Harry Earlesmere as Colonel Lavernes plays with great success; and Colonel Meuron is ably portrayed by Mr. Phil Harper. In the exacting part of Marie Walewska Miss Leslie Warner is very successful. Miss Maud Russell does justice to the character of Mlle Marbocsy. Miss Florence Thorne scores as Mère Dumont, as also does Miss Marie Harcourt in the rôle of Marcelle Choupin. Mr. Albert Sinclair makes a capital Sergeant Choupin and Mr. Frank M. Thorne a successful Pierre Pomponnet. Mr. Bartlett Garth is a capital Paul Laczinska.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Tom Jennings.—Dr. Walford Bodie occupies the premier position amongst various excellent items which have been provided by the management this week. Interesting and amazing electrical experiments together with a demonstration of "bloodless surgery" upon local subjects have proved a great attraction. Dollie Robson, "Dr. Bodie's Prodigy," also gains a good share of applause. Bella Skene well merits her inclusion in the bill of fare, as does Harry Hoyland, who sings "The New Mephisto." Nellie Langtry, operatic vocalist, is keenly appreciated and loudly applauded. Tom N. Mills, Australian actor and vocalist, is well received. The Nano Bros. put in some clever work on the bars; and the Bonanzas, acrobats and staircase performers, excel in their own particular line of business. Some excellent Biograph pictures are also on view.

MARCH.—PUBLIC HALL THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Joseph Collingwood.—Messrs. Kloof and Fields' company occupied the boards here on Saturday and Monday last with the pantomime Aladdin. The company is a well-selected one, and includes some good artists. Miss Cissie Ramsey as Aladdin, Miss Florence Lewis as Princess Yosan, Little Billy Kloof as Widow Twankey, and Mr. F. G. Fields as Abananza are all worthy of praise, and are well supported by the other artists. The dresses and scenery are attractive and appropriate, and the music and songs bright and pretty. Some good specialities are included in the programme.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company has been appearing here this week in The Electric Man. Merriment is the keynote of the comedy from start to finish. The principal character, Walter Everest, is a rôle in which Mr. Bernard Copping works particularly hard and very successfully, both as the young man about town and his electric counterpart, his representation of the machine-made man being particularly clever. Mr. Hastings Lynn, as Jack Strange, is always alert, and the part could not be in better hands. Mr. Augustus Wheatman gives a good representation of Mr. Jobbins, the private inquiry agent; and Mr. W. H. Rotheram plays well as General Pomeroy. Miss Dorothy Hullah enacts the part of Mrs. Everest with humorous appreciation of its possibilities; Miss Amy Fanchette gives a laughable portrayal of the Cockney landlady; Miss Gertrude Tate makes an altogether charming Stella; and Miss Isa Bellington a delightful Mary. The piece has been preceded each evening by A Case for Rescission.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Monillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—With a return to variety this week there has been an attractive programme. The Sisters Stratton, dancers and duettists, have been most successful; Robbie Roy, Scotch comedian, has proved quite a fund of amusement; Rose D'Alberg dances daintily and sings delightfully; Mozarto gives a novel show as an instrumentalist; and Joe Mac, comedian and dancer, has been much appreciated. Phillips and Terry present an amusing sketch, The Revolt of Man; and the pictures are, as usual, interesting.

MERTHYR TYDFIL. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—A programme full of good things is submitted here this week, and includes the Gotham Quartette; Sisters Pine, in a screaming comedy, Maggie's Day Out; Violet Beatrice, boy impersonator; Matt Wilkinson and company in a sketch, entitled The Registry Office; Rose Cabini, comedian; Larola, the funny man; the Leonards (Bob and Jennie); and the Theatre Bioscope, with a rare display of good pictures.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The company engaged here this week is one of all-round excellence, and includes the Fitzroys, society gymnasts; J. T. Daniel, character comedian; Arnetti, musical eccentric; Hopkins Bros., Welsh comedians; Denby and Dent, comedians; Kex and Ford (Harry and Wal), cross-talk comedians; and the Biograph displays several new pictures of an interesting description.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Messrs. Griffin and Drake's pantomime, Beauty and the Beast, is the attraction here this week. Miss Emmie Hands is delightful as Beauty, singing with rare power and charm; a dashing Prince is found in Miss Vesta Fay, who also sings well; Mr. Chas. Rowen is a hughly diverting Baron; Mr. Mark Merrit and Mr. Walter Rollat make a pair of lively and amusing dames; as Flip and Flop Mr. Owen Edwin and Mr. Will Atom contribute their full quota to the excellent comedy; Mr. Mark Lane is a source of abundant merriment as Twiddleums; as the fairy, Starlight, Miss Gladys Wells uses a sweet voice to excellent advantage; Miss Maud Drake is a pleasing Margery Maydew. The specialities are of exceptionally high class, and include Mlle. Collard, with her burlesque lions and tigers; Stanley Urchins, singers and dancers; the Griffin troupe of juvenile dancers; Lambert and Hands in a song-scena; the Three Sisters Geronde, vocalists and dancers; and Miss Carrie Sylvester, coloured vocalist.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas Imeson.—A Royal Divorce is being presented here by Mr. W. W. Kelly's company. Miss Edith Cole in the part of the Empress charmed all by her pathos and intense passion. In the hands of Mr. Frederic Victor Napoleon is very effectively presented. As the Marquis de Beaumont Mr. Graham Woods acquits himself creditably; Miss Agnes Imlay is pleasing as Marie Louise; Mr. Claude Agnew does full justice to the part of Talleyrand; and Stéphanie de Beauharnais has a clever representative in Miss Ellen Richmond.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. R. W. Chatto.—Mr. James Kiddie's company, in Cinderella, has had a most successful run. On Monday evening the Japanese sailors from the stranded "Awa Maru," who had been invited, sang their national anthem, and at the conclusion the building fairly shook with the rousing cheers given for the Japs. Mlle. De Rose makes a delightful Prince; Miss Edith Harmer a charming Cinderella; Mr. Tom Payne an amusing Page; and Mr. Dick Thomas a droll Baron.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles B. Rembges.—The Five Powells, who head the bill here, create roars of laughter as "the Deserters"; Cyrus Dare's imitations of children are clever; the San Kwani troupe provide a clever conjuring and acrobatic display; and Lottie Lennox sings some catchy numbers in excellent style. Harry Cotton, comedian, causes laughter; Freeman and French score in their comedy A Broken Honeymoon; Walter Clyde provides some excellent singing; and the Empire pictures conclude the programme.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf Graham.—A bright programme is presented here this week. The star turn is Hughes in an amusing burlesque entitled Codology. A very effective exhibition of gymnastics is given by the Loma Trio; the Four Geraldos in juggling are clever; and the Sivronis, comedy artists, please. Fred Villars, vocal comedian, does well, and Will Sullivan causes laughter. Other turns are Mabel La Blanche, and the Palascope.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is this week appearing in His Majesty's Guests. The Sergeant Lightning of Mr. Dick Kitchen is a creation of irresistible drollery; Mr. Frank Morton sings well, and acts in a natural manner as Lord Basem; Miss Leonora Castelle is a handsome and dashing Lady Maud; Dolly Miffen has a suitable exponent in Miss Edith Ager; and Miss Kitty Brunton does well as Miss Manley. Mr. Chas. Usher is aptly suited as the successful business man, Mr. Miffen; Mr. Sid Kearson is highly amusing as the clerical, Mr. Minks; the same applying to Mr. Mike Johnson as the German doorkeeper. There is abundance of pantomime business, and a really efficient chorus under the baton of Mr. F. H. G. Moran.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Aladdin, the tenth annual pantomime at the Theatre Royal under the management of Mr. Robert Arthur, continues to run a happy and successful course. The principals have one and all settled down well to their various rôles. The bulk of the work still falls upon the favourite Scottish comedian, Mr. Neil Kenyon, whose quaint representation of the Widow is a really clever character study. Messrs. Charles Harvey, Fred Allandale, and Alfred Clarke are all proving favourites. Nightly Miss Lily Morris wins applause for her graceful and dashing portrayal of Aladdin. Owing to indisposition, Miss Florence Smithson, the Princess, was unable to appear on Monday night. In Miss Olive Wade the management are, indeed, fortunate in having at hand a very capable understudy, her songs all being rendered sweetly. Miss Kitty Cavendish, in the part of the Irish girl, gains much appreciative applause, and the well-trained and strong chorus continues also to be a feature of this most attractive production.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—All points to an unprecedentedly successful run at the Tyne Theatre of Aladdin, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's twenty-fourth annual Newcastle pantomime. Universal praise is being gained by Mr. Harry Lauder's impersonation of the much-travelled Scot, and his four songs, all marked by the finished rendition of the true artist, are being hummed all over the city. An energetic and versatile Widow Twankey is Mr. Dan Crawlay, who ably seconds Mr. Lauder as a mirth-provoker. Indeed, Messrs. Lauder and Crawley may truly be described as the happiest couple ever seen on a Newcastle stage. In the hands of Miss Beryl Somerset the part of principal boys is played with rare grace and vivacity, and Miss Jose Collins continues to win favour by her charming representation of the Princess. All the other principals are gaining popularity, especially Mr. Imro Fox and Mr. Harker Nicholls.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clarke.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company In Holy Russia opened here on Monday. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy as Colonel Richard Forrest is quite successful, and Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy as Renee Rubinoff, receives frequent recalls.

GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Bacon and Bolam; Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Messrs. Granville and Osmond's company in The Still Alarm is paying a visit here. The turning out of the fire brigade works the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. J. F. Preston's company are here in Rogues of the Turf. Mr. Preston gives a fine impersonation of Joe Farman; Mr. Horace Custins makes a first-class jockey, Sammy; and other members of the company lend adequate support. Mr. G. W. Hunter is full of fun; the Dandies are well received; Griff scores heavily with his assistant Alpha; Paulinetti and Piquo perform smart gymnastic feats; Jimmy Shields is popular with his eccentric dancing; Russell Brandow, acrobatic dancer, wins much applause; Nina Gordon performs wonders on the piano, and Winnie Gordon, siffleuse, meets with much appreciation. Gus Dalton, comedian, and the American Bioscope complete the bill.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Lydia Yeamans is once more starring at this popular hall, with her pretty voice and her inimitable mimicries. Her pianoforte accompaniments are played by that talented musician F. J. Titus, and the combination is admirable in every way, their turn meeting with the heartiest approval of the audience, who applaud vigorously. The Martelloni troupe of lady acrobats give a surprisingly neat exhibition; T. W. Royal is an expert clog dancer; Ada Parker sings coon songs admirably; and another coon singer, equally popular, is Mamie Cannon, who scores heavily; the Villions, acrobatic cyclists, are in much request in their new comedy act; the Krags Bros. go through some novel gymnastic feats; In Answer to an Advert, is a comedy scena well staged by Rogers and Weston, and A. E. Clifford, versatile comedian; Harold Parker, comedian, and the Barrascope complete.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Dick Whittington, produced by Messrs. J. D. Hunter and Sidney Cooper, entered upon its third week on Monday. Never before in the history of Newport has such patronage been bestowed upon any entertainment, which is bright, breezy, and most enjoyable.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Heading the bill here are Carl and Mary Ohm in a circus turn, with bears, ponies, monkeys, and dogs, which show careful training. Alexander does some daring trick cycle acts; Wilson and Waring, in a Bit of Nonsense, are enjoyable, and the Northern Troupe of International Dancers provide a taking turn. Harry Anderson's songs are well received; Minnie Derson (comedienne) is attractive, and the Three Guitanoes are clever acrobats. Tom Lytton, a comedian of merit, and the Bioscope complete the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Herman.—This week we have the annual visit of the Compton Comedy company, with Mr. Edward Compton and Miss Mackenzie, supported by Messrs. Henry Crocker, Dennis Cleugh, Philip Gordon, G. Wallace Johnston, Vernon O. Crabtree, Montague Lane, Charles Rogers, Hubert C. Brett, and Mesdames Marie Hassell, Marion Le Strange, Adeline Uncaster, Rose Parker, Barbara Pigot, and Nellie Walters in David Garrick, The Desperate Lover, She Stoops to Conquer, The School for Scandal, Edmund Kean, and The Rivals.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—Lockhart's elephants, presented by Capt. Taylor, head the bill this week, and have been a source of great interest; Violet Ray is a good vocalist and a capital violoncello player; Empress, the lady handcuff manipulator, gives an attractive show. Other interesting items are furnished by A. Richards, character comedian; the Two Madges, juvenile artists; Sphinx, magician; Renee Walon, comedienne; C. Vincent, and the Hesse trio of acrobats on the wire.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The King's Secret, presented by Mr. James Stillwell's company, has had a cordial reception here. As Captain Douglas Fairburn Mr. Paul E. Tuelon gains much appreciation; Mr. James Stillwell is responsible for a capital impersonation of Hassan Alfar; Mr. Laud Richard Brooklyn is good as Lieut. Dorincourt; Mr. Herbert Benstone acts well as Count Bernstein; and Mr. Charles Crosby makes the most of Lawyer Swivinton. As Zenope Miss Zana St. George shows ability; Miss Lena Lattridge is a pleasing Birdie; Miss Katherine Barnett a satisfactory Satar Newark; Miss Cissie Clement a clever Leila; and Miss Violet Barley-Clarke a successful Charlie Fairburn.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Richards Trio, the Giddy Golfers, top the bill here, and meet with a hearty reception; Mr. Will and Miss May Lannon, pedestal dancers, have made a hit; and the Sisters Grosvenor prove themselves to be capital vocalists. Mr. Harry Barclay, comedian, is popular; Miss Vera Mayne, vocalist, is pleasing; Mr. James Toner as a mimic is successful; and the Bio-Photoscope still meets with much appreciation.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company in Mr. Popple of Ippleton is here this week. Mr. Alfred Longley does well as Freddy Popple; Miss Millie Hylton is charmingly dressed and plays and sings excellently; Miss Florence Plunkett is pleasing as Louise; Miss Cora Lingard deserves special praise for her acting, singing, and dancing; Miss Alice Rene and Miss Stella S. Andrie ably represent the jealous wives of Henry and Doring, who are represented in a capital manner by Messrs. Sydney Courtenay and James Stevenson; Mr. L. Bulloch Webster as Norman Popple plays well; Mr. Robert MacLachlan is successful as Jacques Kenyon, whilst Mr. Tom May as Platt causes much fun and merriment. Every number and part went with the greatest smoothness, due in no small measure to Mr. H. R. Matthews as conductor.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Boswell's circus is quite an attraction here this week. Richardo and Salving are very clever as balancers; Tom Stuart gains much appreciation as an actor-vocalist; Marie Terry and J. S. Barnett are pleasing comedy artists; the Bohemians (Will and Madge) are very good in their instrumental acts; Lily Tabras is quite a favourite in her singing and dancing; whilst the Hippo Bioscope is this week immensely successful.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill. — At Cripple Creek, admirably acted by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, has made a decided hit here this week, the theatre being packed full with a most appreciative audience on Monday night. Mr. Stanley Bedwell is an ideal Joe Mayfield, his delineation of the manly miner being full of effective points; Mr. Eric Hudson is uncommonly good as the villain, Martin Mason, and is well supported by Mr. Oscar Power as Manuel Alvarez; Mr. A. D. Layland is exceedingly popular as the Indian Wakketah; and Mr. H. Leander is an amusing negro; the comic element is supplied by Mr. Will Hook as Reggie Harwood and Miss Daisy Carlton as Maggie Mason, who sing and dance together with great success; Miss Agnes Verity plays with power the difficult part of Dynamite Ann; Miss Lily Beagle acts pleasantly as Belle Gordon; and the part of the child, Little Tatto, is cleverly taken by little Rosie Hopkins.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Bentz.—The pantomime, Goody Two-Shoes, is having a merry and successful career. Miss Maggie Bowman, in the title-rôle, is a sprightly actress, and dances delightfully; Miss Marie Adair as Roland sings nicely and acts charmingly; a sweet and fascinating Dolly Dimple is furnished by Miss Adela Crispin, who particularly distinguishes herself; Miss Nelly Horsley, who is, owing to the illness of Miss Carrie Foy, impersonating Peter Piper, makes a good impression; Miss Florence Lister as Mephisto and Miss Lena Wylie as Fairy Goodheart are both charming, their accomplished singing being a particular feature of the pantomime. Of the "funny fellows," Mr. Peter Bermingham, who represents Sandy Sapps, takes a leading place. He has installed himself in high favour, and does an immense deal to minister to the amusement of the audience. Mr. Jack Foley as Dame Freckles is responsible for much fun; as Simple Simon Mr. Tom J. Morton is alert and comical all through, his facial flexibility adding to his other accomplishments; Mr. Harry A. Gribben is remarkably droll in his impersonation of the Baron Grabb, and by his histrionic skill imparts a strong individuality to the character. The brothers Thomas and James Passmore as Tom and Phil prove themselves very comical in their "business," and very agile knockabouts; as Smirk and Smile Messrs. Claremont and Victor contribute a capital acrobatic and handbalancing exhibition. The pantomime is strengthened by the inclusion of the Tricky Trio (Misses Dolly Lancaster, Queenie Hollingsworth, and Maisie Rawlins), a sprightly and smart set of dancers.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Wilson. — The Seven Zerbinis are prominent here this week with The Enchanted Glen; a particularly pleasing comedy act, Flipp and Flopp, is submitted by the Four Delevines; the Brothers Ashley cause much merriment with Next, Please; the Maros are smart bar eccentrics; and the list also includes the names of Harry Nation, comedian; Tray and Rich, black and white faced comedians; Connie Morri, comedienne and dancer; Gus Merriman, negro mimic; the Sisters Melba, vocalists and dancers; and the Hippodrome Bioscope, with entertaining pictures.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Tom Toy.—Appearing with considerable success this week are Pimple's Arabs, a marvellous combination of youthful performers; Marie Rosebery, a chic comedienne; R. C. Note, a popular singer; the Three Cheers, in a Dick Whittington scena, introducing performing cats; Cullan and Coyle, refined eccentric comedians; Dainty Daisy Davenport, comedienne and dancer; and Mark Anthony, a quaint humorist.

PENTRE. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Counsell.—Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth's pantomime Aladdin is being presented here. Miss Edith Royal in the principal rôle is capital; Kitty Cameron, a youthful but talented artist, gives an agreeable performance of Pekoe; the fun waxes fast and furious when Mike Madden appears on the scene as Widow Twankey, and he is well supported by Percy Vere as Wishy Washee; Reg. Astley and Harold Cliff, knockabouts, contribute merriment; and Walter T. Hybart is well placed in the rôle of Abanazar. The flying ballet creates a pleasant sensation.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—On Monday night a hearty reception was given Mr. Charles Macdona's company in the musical comedy, The Gay Parisienne. Miss Lilian Talbot scores a distinct success in the title-rôle; the Ebenezer Honeycomb of Mr. Will Harman is an impersonation of irresistible drollery; Mr. Squire Day is well placed as Major Fossdyke; Mr. Philip Moore as Tom Everleigh plays the part creditably; Mr. Clifford Seyler ably sustains the character of M. Pompier; Miss Madge Soutter is lively and comical as Ruth; and Miss Nance O'Neill successful as Norah.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The pantomime Bluebeard is now going very strong, and promises to be one of the most successful of the many Mr. Williams has produced. Mr. George Brooks as Sister Ann is a very popular comedian; Miss Peggy Primrose is chic and vivacious in her song "Shy Ann"; Miss Muriel Langley infuses plenty of dash and vim into the part of Selim; and the Sisters Gilbert's accomplished singing and dancing are also a strong feature of the performance.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—Mr. Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding has been retained for the third successive week by reason of the great success achieved.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—This week's programme is interesting and diversified. Leonard Barry is amusing in his scena, The Moucher's Walk; the Ford Trio, who, by the way, were quite recently performing in the London streets, doubtless find their popular reception at the halls more acceptable and remunerative; Jimson's sketch is very interesting, and is well received; Mersano has something novel in the coin and card business; Bosanquet gives a clever musical performance on a number of instruments made by himself; Bernardo is a humorous comedy juggler; and Lily Luxmore an accomplished acrobatic dancer. Other items are Edwin Barwick, vocalist, and Vernon's Pictures.

PORTH. — THE PALACE (LATE OPERA HOUSE). — General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—This week a capital variety programme is provided here. It includes the Alberto Troupe, marvellous hand, head, and wire equilibrists; Sam Dalton, vocal and eccentric comedian; Effie White, in her kaleidoscopic dance; La Belle Lily and Albert, high-class gymnasts; the Marconis, electrical wonders and demonstrators; Miss Lilian Travelli, ballad vocalist; Geo. Antill, comedian; the Two Wambas, in their comedy musical act; the Three Whirligigs, in a wonderful pot-pouri of singing and dancing; and the Palace Electric Bioscope.

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. George Edwardes's company in the musical fairy play, Two Naughty Boys, is here for a fortnight. Max and Moritz, the Two Naughty Boys, are played by Messrs. Nelson Keys and William Spray, who simply revelled in their respective parts; Mr. Reginald Crompton was very good indeed as the Schoolmaster; Mr. George Franklin as Hans did excellent work, and scored with his song, "The Jolly Miller"; Mr. Lewis Grande gave a truly able presentation as the Farmer's Boy; Grizel and Gretchen, the two good little girls, were well portrayed by Miss Daisy Stratton and Miss Lydia Flopp; Granny Bauer was delightfully sustained by Miss Kate Bishop; Mr. Richard Kavanagh made an amusing Widow Bolt; Master Roy Lorraine ably spoke his lines as the Brownie King; and Miss Marie Lohre as Daffydowndilly acted gracefully and danced well; a word of praise may be said of the dog Fritz, cleverly played by Master Ernest Hollom; and also of the donkey Lulu, smartly worked by Messrs. Almonte.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate. —The capital pantomime, Little Aladdin, is going swimmingly at this house. Large and appreciative audiences testify to its great popularity.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A very strong programme is in evidence here this week.—The marvellous Craggs, with their latest acrobatic and pantomimical sketch, Billy, score immensely; Kitty Clover and company in comedy sketch, Mr. There's Heir, are most amusing; the Strads, musical sketch artists, give an extremely clever mélange, and gain much applause; Mill May and Therese, singing protean artists, are graceful and clever ladies, who give an excellent and refined turn; the Katos, in their lilliputian act, are as much liked as ever; Ingram and Irving, speciality entertainers, gain cordial greetings for their efforts; Johnny Dwyer, comedian, is very humorous in his patter, and can sing a good song; Gladys Whitton is a youthful singer, possessing a good contralto voice; Atlas, Vulcana, and Sisters Atlas are a great additional strength to the bill; Payne's Bio-Photoscope concludes the show.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Executors of the late Mr. Wm. Johnson; Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—The boards this week are held by Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company in Leah Kleschna. The message of the playwright loses nothing in its interpretation by this very able company; Mr. Paul Belmore is intense and powerful in his study of Kleschna; Mr. William F. Grant's Paul Sylvaine is a very convincing presentment of a noble character; Mr. Hamilton Deane's conception of Raoul Berton, the high-born hooligan, is a piece of good work; and Mr. Campbell Goldsmid as Schram gives, with a suggestion of much reserve force, an admirable rendering of a complex character; Miss Bessie Rignold in the title-rôle is fine in tragedy, and equally successful in pathos. The play is well mounted, the last set being a notable example of scenic art.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company is appearing here this week in Jack and the Beanstalk. Miss Kitty Upton is a handsome and pleasing representative of Jack, rendering her songs agreeably; Miss Nellie Burdett, a charming Dora, scores a great success; Messrs. Barrett and Knowles, as Dip and Dan, keep the house in continuous laughter; Mr. Hal Forde, a good baritone, in the character of Dame Trotter, sings some acceptable songs; Mr. Alfred Maynall as Silly Billy supplies a good share of the fun; and others who ably sustained their respective parts are Mr. Jack Haddon as Squire Musty, Mr. H. A. Langlois as Grumbles (the giant), Miss Marie Rayner as Discordier, and Miss Jeanne Langlois as Harmonia. Enjoyable variety turns are given by Messrs. Barrett and Knowles, Messrs. Forde and Sterling, the Sisters Florencie, H. A. Langlois, and the Alhambra trio of dancers.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—The programme submitted here this week includes as its chief attraction Claude Ginnett and company in Turpin's Ride to York, which is received with great favour; Gorman's Youngsters appear with success in a pretty scena, entitled The Waif; Charles Lestree is an expert juggler; Clown Zertho introduces well-trained performing dogs; Standing, the singing mill lad, renders some popular songs; and other good turns are those of Russell Carr, ventriloquist; Edward Ind, comedian; and Nellie Navette, burlesque actress and speciality dancer.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mr. Fred Granville is here with the drama For Better or Worse. Mr. Edmund T. Sayers, in the part of Horatio P. Ranter, keeps the house in continual good humour; Mr. Wm. Sage is a capital Lieut. Hector Dalrymple; Mr. Chas. Whitlock as Capt. F. Hillard and Mr. Robert Forder as Major G. Crawford display power; and Mr. Charles Doyle as Ned Earnshaw leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Georgina V. France is a successful Olive Heathcote; Miss Jenny Sage a popular Dolly Delaney; and Miss Dolly Vardon a lively Melinda Little. Miss Harrietta Taylor also acquits herself well as Belle Baverstock.

RAMSGATE. — AMPHITHEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—During the past week large audiences have assembled to witness performances of Mr. D'Esterre's Elephant and Castle pantomime, Robinson Crusoe. The show has gone with a swing. Miss Agnes Paulton is charming in the title-rôle, her graceful acting and sweet singing being greatly appreciated. Miss Maud Denny makes a capital appearance as pretty Polly Perkins; and Miss E. Guilbert plays the Fairy of Romance in a manner worthy of high praise. The cannibal potentate, King Hokey, finds a suitable representative in Mr. Brian Daly; and Mr. H. E. High, a funny Friday, also contributes a clever speciality turn on skates. Mr. W. Stevens and the Phydoras add much to the attractiveness of the pantomime; the Four Diamonds dance smartly; and the remaining parts are well filled.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Mr. Walter Melville's fine combination of artists gave an admirable presentation of the powerful play A Girl's Cross Roads here on Monday evening. Miss Hilda Beverley as Barbara Wade gave a powerful and clever impersonation, being especially brilliant in the third act. As John Meadows Mr. Charles Franmore was also most successful, his portrayal being indeed thoroughly delightful. Mr. Wilson Gunning made an excellent Jack Livingstone, and Mr. Cyril Vernon was equally good as Dr. Weston. Miss Florence Zillwood gave an artistic interpretation as Nellie Meadows; and Miss Jessica Black submitted a delightful portrayal as Constance Cornell. As Tilly Vane and Toby Turvey Miss Mabel Scudamore and Mr. Fred Ingram proved to be excellent comedians, the latter being especially clever. Mr. Gerald Jordan gave a good impersonation of Cuthbert Lumley.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode.—Mr. Milton Bode's own company is occupying the boards this week with the popular musical comedy, The Belle of Mayfair. The part of Sir John Chaldicott is taken in capital style by Mr. Harry Parker. Miss May Yates as Julia, Miss Mabel Dent as the Lady's Maid, and Miss Emily Stevens as Lady Chaldicott, all sustain their parts with marked ability. The play is put on the stage in the complete and elaborate style characteristic of all Mr. Bode's productions.

LARGE TOWN HALL.—Messrs. Poole's myrioramic entertainment is still drawing crowded houses, and a most successful season here will terminate tonight. A splendid series of animated pictures has been exhibited, the very clever "Pantomime with a Motor Car" being especially well received, and a first-class variety show has given great satisfaction.

REDHILL.—MARKET HALL.—Market Hall Company, Proprietors; Mr. A. Simmonds, Secretary.—Messrs. Henry Chattell and G. W. Bowes are presenting The Sign of the Cross at this house. The Mercia of Miss Nancy York is a charming character study; Miss Winifred Williamson as Stephanus is equally strong; Miss Lena Gordon is a dashing Berenicel; and Miss Katie Johnson a vivacious Dacia. The Poppœa of Miss Kathleen Day is very good. Mr. Wallace G. Court is a fine Marcus Superbus; Mr. Burton W. Yaldwin ably embodies the cruel unrelenting Nero; Mr. Cyprian H. Matthews as Tigellinus and Mr. Lionel Yaldwin as Lucinius are equally satisfactory in their several characters; the comedy work of Mr. Donald McAdam as Glabrio creates much amusement. The Favius of Mr. W. Burton also deserves mention. Mr. John Galbraith is the acting-manager, and the company is under the business-management of Miss Harriett Greet.

ROCHDALE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Mr. Leslie Austen is excellent as Shamus M'Dermott, and Mr. Chalmers Mackey is quite irresistible as Barney O'Hea. Mr. David M'Farlane is seen to advantage as Connor Martin, and Mr. St. John Stuart is deserving of mention as Gerald Courtney. Mr. Arthur Prescott as Michael Kenny gives a capital rendition of the part. Miss Nana Flensberg is sprightly as Biddy M'Guin, her songs and dances being well received, and Miss Adele Liddon is seen to advantage as Mrs. McDermott. Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as Norah M'Grath gives a highly finished rendition of the rôle.

RUGBY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—This week Mr. Arthur Gibbons is presenting Little Red Riding Hood. The pantomime is well staged and the scenery is excellent. Miss Nellie Banks makes a charming and vivacious Red Riding Hood; Miss Nina Terri as Maid Marion is very successful; as Prince Bountiful Miss Janet Lawton is a prime favourite; Miss Maud Ferguson also does well as the Wolf. The fun is in the capable hands of Mr. Geo. Westland as the Baron, Mr. Ted Mac as Dame Marjory, Mr. T. J. Banks as Johnny Stout, and Mr. Sam Johns as Tommy Thin.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Alleyn M. Hylton.—Mr. John A. Thomson's popular pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, was here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings, matinées being also given on the last two days. Miss Edith Wallace found scope for the display of a nice voice as Jack; while as Jill Miss Maggie Allwood sang and danced effectively; Miss Georgie Mansell made a good impression; and Miss Nellie Stewart acted charmingly as Little Bo Peep; Miss Ella Rose was a dignified Britannia, and sang admirably; the humorous side was ably depicted by Messrs. Teddy Worth, Harry Harcourt, Wallace Bosco, and Percy Galino, who respectively sustained the parts of Tommy Tucker, Mother Hubbard, Sir Peter Piffin, and Billy Piper; Mr. R. Lomas gave an exhilarating and novel rope-climbing entertainment; and Mr. Percy Galino proved himself a refined performer with the bones; Mr. S. W. Brooks directed the musical side of the performance; and Mr. Reginald Maddox stage-managed admirably. The company includes a comedy and efficient chorus.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The Tyrant, a drama treating of incidents in Venice, made interesting, was presented on Monday before a full house, when Mr. Fred C. Somerfield ably sustained the part of the Avenger Homodei. The title-rôle had an excellent exponent in Mr. Roy Fortescue. Miss Marie Dagmar's acting as Tisbe added to her reputation, and Miss Millie Ford made good use of her opportunities as Lady Katherine. In comedy parts Mr. Sydney Lynn (Victor), Mr. Wilton Drury (Nobbo), and Miss Lizzie Chambers (Reginella), were responsible for much laughter. The other members make most of their opportunities. The dresses and staging were very creditable.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Miss Ella's troupe of performing lions are a good draw; Barton and Ashley, in their sketch, Canal Boat Sal, are exceedingly funny; Hope and Wayho (Eva and Jack) make an excellent impression with their scenes from Charles Dickens's works. The programme also includes Hicks Clerks in Day at the Seaside; Max Milian clever equilibrist; Rene and Smith, American comedy and speciality artists; Guss Barra, comic musical motorist; Charles Denbow, comedian; and Daisy Pearl, comedienne.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—A very enjoyable programme is presented this week. Hard Lines is a comic sketch, which includes Miss Florence Smithers in her character of Dolly, Mr. Owen Dacroy, Miss Barley Clarke, and Mr. A. Leslie Martin. Rent is a very amusing panto. sketch, played by Harry Daniels and company; J. W. Rickaby pleases with his comic business; Bros. Durant are smart grotesque acrobats. The other turns include Walter Curtis, merriment merchant; Gus Harris, with his songs; Primavesi, smart juggler; and Chris Masters, character vocalist.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company are here this week with The Manxman. Cæsar Cregeen is capitally portrayed by Mr. Frank Etheridge; Philip Christian is well enacted by Mr. Sydney C. Kearne. Ross Christian, Dr. Mylcreest, Monty Missit, and Professor Mawley are adequately impersonated by Messrs. Dudley Stuart, Tom Bowron, W. Hilton, and F. Lynton. Nancy is cleverly played by Miss Nelly Freeland, and Miss Mona Spearing is satisfactory as Miss Christian. Miss Minnie Watersford is a powerful Kate Cregeen, and Mr. Alfred B. Cross is as popular as ever in the character of Pete.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Sidney Beltram.—A welcome return visit is this week being paid by Mr. Edmund Tearle, supported by Miss Kate Clinton and company. Othello was presented on Monday. Mr. Tearle appeared in the title-rôle, and portrayed the part with his well-known ability, frequently eliciting hearty applause. Iago was excellently embodied by Mr. Bernard Turner; Mr. Clifford Marle as Cassio was entirely successful; Roderigo was powerfully played by Mr. Neale Fitzwilliam; Mr. G. T. Greig did well as Montano; Desdemona was presented in finished style by Miss Esther Tearle; and Emilia was carefully treated by Miss Mary Campbell. Jeanie Deans, Ingomar, Three Musketeers, and Hamlet made up the week's répertoire.

SHEERNESS.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—Fair houses are the rule here this week. Miss Minnie Lomas scores as a balladist; Mr. Gus Daniels makes a big hit with his comic and descriptive songs; Miss Marie Florence is loudly applauded for her comedy songs and excellent dancing; Mr. Phil Reymond, the well-known and popular comedian, continues a prime favourite, his character songs being highly relished; Miss Lillie Thomas, the clever little local lady, is making a great success in her popular songs; and the programme concludes with a comedy sketch by the Elsons, entitled The Tables Turned, which causes roars of laughter.

S. Hutchinson's capital ventriloquial turn; Mr. Wal Bendene's marvellous contortions; Messrs. Reed and Lerne's smart quips and cranks; and an agile troupe of lady dancers add to the smartness of the pantomime.

SMETHWICK. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—There is a capital pantomime here this week. Messrs. Little and D'Arcy's Robinson Crusoe being staged. Elaborate dresses and scenery are carried. As principal boy Miss Marion May's attractive style wins the hearts of everyone. Miss Cissie Conyers is a daring and dashing Captain; Billy Crusoe and Jimmy Crusoe are entertaining as played by Messrs. Carl and Sandy, who have a most diverting boxing bout; Sarah Crusoe is screamingly Funny as played by Mr. Fred Lloyd whose patter and songs were excellent. Mr. George Rapley, as the sweet-tempered buccaneer, is really droll. A jolly dog is Mr. Charles Denman; and Mr. Jack May is a clever monkey. Polly's father is well played by Mr. Will Hicks; Miss Beatie Moore is a pretty Fairy Queen; and a specially effective Man Friday is Mr. Sydney T. Russell, and Mr. Tom Shenton and Miss Bertha St. Ruth also distinguish themselves. The Three Zaracs introduce a side-splitting sketch, and the marvellous Ladderites are responsible for thrilling feats.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—The Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—An exceptional attraction for this week is provided by Mr. Percy Norman, whose company gives a pleasing performance of A Woman Worth Winning. Mr. Sidney Barton is well suited as the Czar; Mr. Gilbert Standing gives prominence to the part of Amos Pauloff; Fergus Lovinskie has in Mr. A. B. Mackay a clever impersonator; Mr. Percy Norman is a capable General Borinski; Messrs. E. Hall Eldon and E. C. Edwards are humorous exponents of Bertie Scribbles and Peter Popples respectively; Miss Iris Daventry is effective as Lola Kalnovky; and Miss Ida Mackay is an interesting Katerina. Miss Maud Buchanan gives an admirable delineation of Roma Pauloff.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless. —This popular skating rink continues to draw more enthusiasts daily, who are well rewarded with good sport on a splendid maple floor. On Wednesday evening several events of last week's most successful fancy dress carnival were a special attraction, which comprised the semi-final and final of the gentlemen's race, obstacle race final, and the hockey match between the Pavilion and Westcliff Skating Clubs for the silver challenge cup.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS. —Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens, Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—By arrangement with Mr. Fred Harrison and Mr. Cyril Maude Beauty and the Barge is this week being presented by Mr. Arthur Hardy's well-selected company, including Blake Adams, who in the principal rôle of Capt. James Barley repeated his former successes, and created much merriment by his versatile and diverting interpretation of the character; Ethel Smedley had a charming and vivacious representative in Miss Dido Drake, who lent ample assistance to the amorous captain; Mrs. J. Braithwaite infused any amount of fun into the part of Mrs. Baldwin, which was very successfully depicted; Miss Lilian Locke enacted the rôle of Mrs. Porter with excellent effect; Tom Cod had a capital exponent in Mr. Fred Knight; Mr. Edward Coventry played well as Lieut. Seton Boyne, R.N.; the irascible Major Smedley had a characteristic impersonator in Mr. Walter Pemberton; whilst Mr. Charles A. White was good as John Dibbs. As a curtain-raiser Jerry and a Sunbeam was presented.

ALBERT HALL WINTER GARDENS.—Lessee, Mrs. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—The principal turn here this week is supplied by James Willard and company, in a diverting dramatic sketch, entitled Did He Deserve It? which was capitally played by Mr. James Willard, Miss Mildred Carr, Miss Queenie Elliott, and Mr. G. Evision, assisted by "Tiger," a clever mastiff dog. Other good items were presented by Cyclumina, in an electric cycle act; Ruby Dahl, with her merry mannikins; Perrette and Mona, in their comedy quick-change musical double turn, entitled Teasing the General. The programme for the week includes Charles Maw, the one-armed strong man; Chorley and Connor, comedians and dancers; Mlle. Victoria Dagmar, horizontal bar and gymnastic rope act; Jennie Sydney, comedienne; Seymour Jackson, tenor vocalist; and the Bioscope with the latest films.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Good houses are witnessing Mr. Charles Chard's company in Goody Two Shoes. Miss Annie Casey in the title-rôle wins favour by her charm of style; Miss F. Black as Roland is also well received. Ample comedy is supplied by Mr. J. Topping (Simple Simon), Mr. Sydney Dean (Dame Freckles) and Mr. James Kurry (Sammy Sops). Miss Julie Fuller is good as the demon king, and a couple of good workers are found in Miss L. Bronson and Miss Gladys Bronson. Cyrus and Maud and their wonderful performing donkey also score.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson. — Repairs, an amusing pantomime sketch, by Wal Pink's company, is brim full of merriment, and is responsible for large audiences. The refreshing humour of Cliff Ryland, raconteur, is always effective; a clevery enacted sketch, The Crazy Cook, is smartly contributed by Picitt and Lizette; the Sisters Chester, in a vocal, musical, and dancing act, retain their popularity; amusing comedy is introduced by the Rumbo Austin's acrobatic navies; and other popular turns include Hettie Lee, comedienne and dancer, Rene Best, comedienne, and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. K. Hall and Jos. Sweeney.—Helen Charles, an exceptionally clever mimic, is the star turn here, and is creating a great impression; Bugler Carr, in a musical and equilibristic act, submits a novel turn; the Three Clarions, in a musical absurdity, are pleasing; Miss Myra Love, dainty comedienne, receives deserved applause; and the remaining items, Henry Lee, comedian and mimic, Jack Rae, comedy gymnast, and the Tivoli Bioscope, all have their admirers.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—Mr. F. Marriott Watson's play, A False Wife, is paying a second visit here. Miss Florence E. Florence gives an artistic portrayal of Estelle de Lussan; Mr. Watson fills the rôle of Jean Berand in an able manner; Mr. Fred H. Constable deserves commendation for his rendering of George Manefield; as Agnes Weyland Miss Annie Hylton displays ability; Miss Ivy Chandos as Bessie Blazer is a decided success; Mr. Elton Morgan as Ben Rattler, and Mr. Allen Charles as Archibald Brown Tee, both provide excellent fun; Miss Flo Morgan does well as Sarah Bernstein; and Mr. Harold Wallace submits a mystic portrayal of Zorak.

Duncan and Morton as Bo-Be and Pe-Ter, the policemen, work well together, and create much merriment; Little Della as the Genie of the Ring is a clever little artist; and the specialities are all good. Special mention should be made of Mlle. Zerina Tankerville's toe dancing, Miss Peggy Lyndon in a musical act, and Madame Cordelia in an electric picture dance.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Swindon's first pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor, is still moving merrily and successfully, but despite its drawing powers it has to terminate with this week owing to arrangements previously made. All the leading artists have become extremely popular, especially Miss Fanny Robina in the title-rôle. She is delightful throughout, putting plenty of spirit into her work. As Sadie Miss Norah Haywood has made herself a great favourite, her dances being particularly fine. Miss Evelyn Geldard is bright and pleasing as Selim, while Miss Nellie Beacon as Fairy and Miss Florence Inman as Youson each deserve special mention. The fun is plentiful, Mr. Will Crackles (the Dame), Mr. Harry Ongar as Sinbad, with Messrs. Hans and Lux, each contributing a share. In addition to the excellent dancing turn given by the clever Ongars (Harry and Ivy), a charming turn is given by Miss Florry Cooper, whose capital voice is heard to fine effect in two songs, "The stars are angel faces" and "Right at the top." She should be highly complimented on her great success.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—The pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, by Mr. J. A. Thomson's company, has achieved a great success here, and is drawing crowded audiences. The principal boy part is entrusted to Miss Beatrice Varley, a young lady of graceful presence, that secures for her the public favour at her first appearance. Her work is full of vivacity and energy, whilst the rendering of her various numbers is distinctly pleasing, her particular success being the now popular song "Snowflakes"; as Red Riding Hood Miss Ella Willmer is all that can be desired, and she quite captivates the audience with her winsome acting, her attractive manner making her at once a favourite; Miss Ivy Boulton as Boy Blue fills the part in a very creditable style, and is well supported by Miss Kate Pennington as Rosa; the humorous side of the programme is sustained by Mr. Fred Latimer as Dame Trot, and Mr. George Newham as the Baron, both of whom fill their respective parts in a manner causing continuous laughter. They are also responsible for some clever burlesque dancing. Miss Fay Desmond is a charming Fairy, with pleasing and effective ways, and an excellent voice, which is heard to great advantage, especially in "My Tiny Firefly"; Mr. Fred Anderson is a mirth-provoking Tommy Green, his song as a yokel being extremely funny; and Mr. Lovell Rowland also deserves praise for his Simple Simon, to which part he does full justice; mention should also be made of the character of Wolferino, in which Mr. Victor acquits himself well, and of Sandy, which Mr. Fred Boulton makes a real character study; some particularly good variety turns are also introduced, including Mlle. Bartenelli, who is a clever contortionist, some of her feats being really marvellous; and Paulo, the boy juggler. The chorus have been well trained.

Miss Cissie Wade made a charming Red Riding Hood; Miss Vera Dudley a dashing Boy Blue; and Miss M. Sadie a sprightly Prince Alfair. Mr. L. Wylie was the wicked Baron, and Mr. H. Fegum the Wolf; while Miss E. Cliffe was the Fairy Queen and Miss Lyndon the Baron's daughter. The fun of the pantomime was well maintained by Mr. J. D. Hunter, whose Dame Trott was uproariously funny; and he was well supported by Messrs. F. Thatcher and F. Mayer as Tommy Green and Johnnie Stout; while Mr. Bertram C. Gunnell proved himself a real comedian in his first-rate impersonation of Wearie Willie. The specialities in the Palace scene included Miss Rosa Rosetti in a musical mélange, Miss Vera Dudley in Dutch song and dance, and Mr. Wylie and his mannikins.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company in the musical play, The Blue Moon, was here during the first three nights of this week. Mlle. Marguerite Nondin depicts the parts of Blue Moon in a successful manner; Mr. F. W. Bowes is very droll and diverting as Moolraj; Mr. Charles Stephenson causes roars of laughter as the funny and irresistible Private Charlie Taylor; Mr. F. J. Rooney capably presents the character of Captain Jack Ormsby; Mr. Victor Wallace makes a capital Major Callabon; and Mr. Basil Mercer scores as Bobbie Scott; Mr. Fred Inwood is well placed as Prince of Kharikar; Miss Mary Glanbrane as Lady Brabasham sustains her part in a commendable manner; Miss Dorma Morgan is charming as Evelyn Ormsby; and Miss May Audrey is a vivacious and clever exponent of Millicent Leroy.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Stanley and Vandyke create much merriment in their laughable sketch, entitled On the Shelf. Miss Clara Hastings, comedienne, sings in good style; Miss Nellie Gamion, descriptive vocalist; Miss Peggy Fame, comedienne, wins favour; the Prinellas ably present a rural sketch; and Mr. Joe Hastings contributes some smart jumping feats. Mr. Harry Wright, comedian, also delights.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—At the head of the bill here are the Abdullah Arabs in feats of pyramid building, which are marvellous. Maie Walters, comedienne and dancer, is good; and Walter King, the doleful comedian; Spry and Austin, vaudeville artists; the Two Cromwells, clever jugglers; George Westland, a lively Scotch comedian; the Norman-Leonard Trio, in a musical sketch, and "Aladdin" on the American bioscope complete the list of attractions.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Beaudyn's No. 1 Company is here in A Beautiful Fiend. Mr. Montague Beaudyn sustains Ivan Paulovitch very creditably; Miss Sydney Crowe charmingly portrays the title-rôle; Mr. J. P. McBride does well as Count Karateff; Mr. Herbert Sheardon as Sergius Strogoff is good; Mr. Harry Oates makes a comical Christopher Crackles; Nadine Karateff is cleverly played by Miss Irene Munro; and Miss Annie Clunn is successful as Patty Woodlands.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmott.—The singing of Parks's Eton Boys forms the chief feature of the entertainment here; the Sisters Belmont are charming dancers and vocalists; and Harry Eden has some wonderful dogs; Charley Best is versatile; Leo Vincent is an original ventriloquist; Cavern and Cave score well; Barney Kane is a quaint Scotch comedian; and a sketch, entitled A Morning Dip, and the Royal Bioscope complete.

WEDNESBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby. — Mr. and Mrs. John Walters' Babes in the Wood is drawing crowded houses here. Miss Bertha Cousins as Robin Hood is loudly applauded; Miss Fanny Adamson makes a sprightly and bewitching Maid Marion; Dolly Dimple is ably presented by Miss Jessie Yonde; and as Dame Flossie Miss Ally Benson is a prominent figure; the Baron is humorously portrayed by Mr. Ernest Thirlway; the Babes, Bertie and Cissy, are admirably rendered by Miss Kitty Chester and Baby Blyth respectively; and excellent fun is provided by Messrs. Traynor and O'Connor, as Blustering Bill and Wavering Wally. The variety includes the Emerald Quartette of acrobatic dancers and the Sweet Sixteen ballet troupe.

WEST BROMWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—A good house assembled on Monday to witness Mr. Lingford Carson's company in A Modern Adventuress. William Delby was smartly played by Mr. M. Carroll; Mr. Sydney C. Cranston did well in the character of Harry Delby; the Wallace Danton of Mr. Ernest J. Fare was all that could be desired; Mr. Will White appeared to distinct advantage as John Crompton; and one of the features of the success was the emotional acting of Mr. Charles Draycott in the rôle of Pietro Danelli. Mr. H. Scatchard gave a clever impersonation of Steve Meredith; Mr. J. Dobson Clyde made the most of the detective; Miss Marie Robson gave a sympathetic rendering of Vivette Delby; and Miss Nellie W. Warden as Sally Hodges was quaint, Miss Muriel Thompson furnishing a finished interpretation of Violet Meredith.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—A successful return visit is being paid here by the Six Brothers Luck in their pantomime The Hotel Grand. A good turn is given by Francis Lyric; Selby and Myers receive encores for their singing and dancing; Mr. Richard Tinberg gives smart character-studies from famous plays; the Seven Wulfrunas cause incessant amusement in their knockabout act; interesting music is submitted by Diamond and Beatrice; Miss Gertie Gitana displays great talent as a vocal actress, and well deserves all the applause accorded her; and Frank Cass contributes a good song.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather—An enthusiastic audience welcomed Mr. F. R. Benson's (North) Shakespearean Company, which commenced a week's visit on Monday with The Taming of the Shrew. The rôle of Petruchio was entrusted to Mr. Henry Herbert, and the interpretation was entirely satisfactory. Miss Dorothy Green's delineation of the part of Katharine was perfect in every detail, her treatment of the part being naturalness itself. The character of Bianca was remarkably well played by Miss Louise Graeme. Gremio found an able exponent in Mr. Reginald Owen. Mr. Henry Morell's style as Hortensia was excellent, and Mr. Reginald Davis was especially effective as Baptista.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The Topsy-Turvy School of Irish comedy by Collinson's company provokes one continued roar of laughter. Their performance is brimful of good dancing and singing and irresistible jokes. Satsuma, Japanese magician, is neat and smart; Arthur Aldridge, a tenor of unusual ability, gains popularity with some good songs; the marvellous Herculean equilibristic feats of the Wilfords cause astonishment, which develops into unbounded enthusiasm; Beattie Foster, low comedy artist, and George Hall, sifflleur and vocalist, contribute entertaining numbers, and amusing pictures on the Bioscope are thoroughly enjoyed.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Messrs. Chas. S. Kitts and Somers Bellamy's pantomime Cinderella is here this week. Miss Rhoda Windrum's Cinderella is a charming piece of work; the rôle of Prince Brilliant is well sustained by Miss Jennie Lynwood; Miss Madge Haines is a genial and rollicking Dandini; Mr. W. T. Riley, Mr. Bert McNallie, and Mr. J. Oliver Russell work well together as the Baron and the two Ugly Sisters; and Mr. Chas. S. Kitts is responsible for some refined humour as Billy Boy; specialities are given by the Three Sisters Gage, a trio of smart and active dancers; Messrs. Ford and Ford, patter comedians; and Baby Eileen, a tiny little singer and dancer.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; Business-Manager, Mr. John Cassidy.—The programme here this week includes Miss Nora Bremner, a smart speciality dancer; Walter Levalle, a good comedian; Charley Hampson, with a well-trained dog and pigeons; Martin Henderson, the blind concertina player; Miss Nellie Belmore, a clever serio; the Bros Tarrant, who give a smart turn; Valesco's Circus of performing animals; and Little Lottie Lonsdale, child artist, in dances and song.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company is engaged here in the musical play, Three Little Maids. Mr. B. Barratt is painstaking as Mr. Branscombe, whose three daughters have charming exponents in Miss Mabel Kerridge (Ada), Miss Daisy Sylverton (Hilda), and Miss Eva Weigh (Edna). The part of Lady St. Malory is canital in the hands of Miss Kate G. Beck, and her three protéges have pleasing representatives in Miss Milda Stericker, Miss Bertha French, and Miss Nellie Clapton; Mr. Frank Henderson is amusing as Lord Cheyne; Mr. Eric Barrington good as the Frenchman; Mr. Frank Wilson acceptable as Brian Molyneaux; and Mr. Bert Barton amusing as Cupid.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. James Kiddie.—This week Mr. Junius Booth, the well-known American actor, is here with Monte Cristo. Mr. Junius Booth presented a fine study of the complex character of Edmund Dantes; the Danglers of Mr. Augustine Bowerman was excellent; Mr. G. W. Crowe's performance of Fernand was commendable; Mr. Walter Huron made a sound and capable Villefort; Mr. Leonard Marshall played De Morcef in polished fashion; the Caderousse of Mr. J. W. Braithwaite could hardly have been improved upon; Miss Clara Elstob was well suited as Mercedes; Miss Alice West made the most of Sophie Danglers; and Miss Emma Robberds was distinctly successful as La Carconte.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's Aladdin has again proved an artistic and financial success, the theatre having been well filled nightly.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Clito wins universal admiration in her classical poses; the Beau Ideal Troupe of children are capital singers and dancers; Belloni's parrots and cockatoos are well-trained; the Musical Shipbuilders play various instruments well; and Great Recco gives an original absurdity entitled How to become an Acrobat. Olive Veno is a good dancer, and the Three Moxons are clever acrobatic comedians. Barny Noble, in stories, Steve McCarthy, Irish coon, and Marie Kendall, vocalist, also prove very popular.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. —The bright and breezy Chinese Honeymoon is being played here by Mr. Milton Bode's excellent company. The part of Mr. Pineapple is admirably depicted by Mr. George Rydon; Mr. Rudolph Kloss is an excellent Hang Chow; Mr. P. Allerton Turner is an effective Chippie Chop; Mr. Leonard May does well as Hi Lung; and Mr. Harry Jennings is a successful Tom Hatherton. Miss Nancy Rossiter is a charming and attractive Soo Soo; Miss Gladys Ward is seen to advantage as Mrs. Pineapple; Miss Maud Adams is an able Mrs. Brown; Miss Bertha Buckley is a capable Mi-Mi; and Miss Gwennie Harcourt is a very clever and amusing actress, who displays great ability in the character of Fi-Fi. Beautiful frocks and effective scenery add greatly to an already very attractive production.

EMPIRE PALACE.—A good bill is provided here this week. The Seven Savonas and the Six Cycling Elliots give excellent performances at different houses. The Shelleys present a comedy duologue, Betsy's Blunder; Luis Hardt is an exponent of physical culture; and Mlle. Lumiere appears in her electric fairy grotto. Other attractions are Marriott Edgar, the man in red; the Sisters Williams, burlesque artists; Zaid, performer on the rings; and Millie Williams, comedienne.

THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—This week's attraction consists of The Traitor, which is being played by Messrs. E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg's company. The principal characters are played by Mr. Bersley Evans, Mr Stephen E. Scanlon, Miss Isabel Hunt, Miss Katharine Vere, and Miss Effie Bartlett.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here this week in Peter's Mother. Mr. Charles Harley, an old Worthing favourite, does excellently in the character of Sir Timothy Crewys; Miss Ruth Mackay charmingly portrays the part of Lady Mary Crewys; Mr. Percy Hutchison puts in some fine work as Peter Crewys; Miss Mary Griffiths is highly amusing as Lady Balstone; as is Miss Florence Harwood as Miss G. Crewys; Mr. Eille Norwood gives a manly portrayal of John Crewys; Mr. F. G. Thurstans scores in the part of Canon Birch; Mr. Townsend Whitling ably acts the rôle of Dr. Blundell; Miss Hilda Honnis is extremely winsome as Sarah; Herr C. Adolf Seebold has installed his own electric plant, and the light is giving every satisfaction; Mr. Seebold intends to inaugurate a new régime here. The first three evenings and Wednesday matinée are to be given up to dramatic performances, while the remaining evenings are to be worked on the two performances a night plan, the programme to consist of variety items.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week a capital all-round company has entertained the patrons here. Mr. Ernest Heathcote proves himself smart as an eccentric; Mr. J. K. Tideman and Mr. Harry Royde provide much amusement with their comic singing; Miss Josie Watson contributes an acceptable turn; Mr. Harry Daubney as a ventriloquist is entertaining; and the pictures continue to prove attractive.

YORK.—ROYAL—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Two Little Vagabonds is one of the most popular dramas which visits York, and its reception this week has been most enthusiastic. Miss Edith Martin is pathetic as Wally, and Miss Josie Beltram lively and interesting as Dick. Both these artists play together admirably; Lionel Ellis as Bill Mullins gives a powerful rendering of a heavy part; and Miss Evelyn Shaw as Biddy causes vast amusement.

OPERA HOUSE. — Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke. — Daisy James is the bright particular star this week, and has made hosts of friends. Horace Wheatley's Irish witticisms find great favour, and in both song and dance he is an adept. The charming speciality artist, Nello, gives a pleasing show, and the Elgars sing tunefully; Elwanger and company give a clever sketch, and the Boighette Troupe, in their own line, have few equals.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

THEATRICAL INVENTIONS.

The concise descriptions that we give below of recent patent applications are specially contributed by Messrs. Howard and Co., patent agents, 57 and 58, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will assist readers in any patent matters.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATION.

18652.—Artificial eyelashes. Mme. Devrient, Abbey-gardens, Abbey-road, London, N.W. These cut from strips of silk fabric having two selvedges united by cross-threads. Longitudinal threads retain the material in proper condition while it is being cut into shape. For fixing the eyelashes the selvedge is bent at right angles and gummed.

APPLICATIONS.

29593.—Thomas William Newey, 128, Colmore-row, Birmingham. Improvements in braces for supports for stage scenery and for other like uses.

2.—Ludwig Szentgyorgyi, 31, Bedford-street, Strand, London. Improved apparatus for indicating occupied seats or the like in theatres and similar places of amusement.

211.—Alfred Demarest Starr, 70, Chancery-lane, London. Improved apparatus for producing the illusion travelling in a ship.

IT was in the year 1853 that the General Theatrical Fund, which had been in evidence for thirteen years, was incorporated by Royal Charter, and its dinner at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street, with the Hon. F. H. Berkeley in the chair, was a jubilant one. The chairman, in proposing the "Army and Navy," coupled with the toast the name of Mr. P. T. Cooke, who, in his reply, said that it was so long since he had had anything to do with the real Navy that he had forgotten all about it. Charles Dickens, the trustee of the Fund, proposed the health of the chairman, and made a bright, commonsense speech, not remarkable for wit or brilliancy. In the course of the evening a "new Bacchanalian glee for three voices," called "Let Concord Tune the Strain," composed by Mr. Alfred Mellon, was sung; and amongst the subscribers for the year were Benjamin Webster, Charles Kean, Mrs. Theodore Martin, William Creswick, and Mme Celeste.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, JAN. 3.—This was just the right kind of piece for the Christmas holidays, and it will assuredly enjoy a run well into the New Year. It is a judicious admixture of excellent sentiments, bright humour, and a little good-natured satire—in a word, an ideal volks-play. The Berlin lawyer, Lehmann, has a second wife of aristocratic lineage and tastes to match. He cannot deny her anything, and to pay her extravagant bills has recourse to dishonesty. Not that he means to be dishonest; he borrows gradually from trustee money in his keeping until the sum is a fairly large one, always with the intention, of course, of paying it back. One day, unexpectedly, the money is demanded; Lehmann sees himself, in his mind's eye, already in the dock, and flees the country. He goes to America, where he is lucky in all he undertakes, and returns to his home a wealthy man. He has many surprises in store for him. The disgrace he feared was never known outside his own family, for the deficit was made up at the last moment out of the savings of Auguste, the faithful cook. Frau Lehmann has become a changed character, having opened a shop, and is working hard for a livelihood. Lehmann arrives just on Christmas Eve, in time to make everybody happy, and the piece ends to the chimes of the church bells. The acting of Frau Wille-Bach as the jewel of the kitchen—Auguste with the golden heart—was delightful to see. It was the most grateful rôle of the play; but all the chief characters are natural and convincing, and were one and all well sustained. The author thoroughly deserved the enthusiastic "call" allotted to him.

A NEW operetta, by Herr Eysler, text by MM. Stein and Lindau, met with an exceedingly cordial reception at the Central Theatre last week. The title is Künstlerblut, and—as the name implies—the scene is laid in Bohemian or artistic circles, the action passing in Vienna. The authors have written an unusually good book round a feminine David Garrick theme, and Herr Eysler's music is vivacious and pleasing, if not highly original. Fräulein Mia Werber, and Herren Marx, Peer, and Deutsch gave first-rate renderings of their respective parts; chorus and orchestra, under Herr Redl's capable conductorship, were all that could be desired; while the mounting was pretty and tasteful. The Central is certainly furnished with a one-piece bill for many weeks to come.

AT the New Schauspielhaus a new four-act play, by Felix Philippi, entitled Der Helfer, has made a decided hit. It is a serious play, well conceived and constructed, and was admirably interpreted by some of the first members of this very high-class company. The plot may be told in a few words. Senator Oddendahl—head of an ancient and reputedly wealthy house—goes to a young bank-director for help, begging the loan of 400,000 marks to save him from ruin. Now, the banker has a liaison—all unknown to anyone but himself and his mistress—with Beate, the Senator's frivolous young daughter. Oddendahl comes to the banker just at the close of a visit from Beate. The young man helps the old one, who thanks him with fervent gratitude. When his daughter's disgrace becomes known to the Senator, he bitterly upbraids the betrayer, and the latter offers to make good his fault and marry Beate, although he has no great liking for the idea of matrimony. The girl, however—and here the scene reminds one strongly of a similar one in Magda—will not accept for her husband the man whose mistress she has been. She casts the blame of everything upon her surroundings, and Oddendahl declares they must all work to pay back the debt they owe. Beate, upon hearing of her lover's generosity, softens, and we conclude—as the curtain falls—that a wedding may transpire after all.

"COUSIN BOBBY," Karl Millöcker's sparkling little operetta, achieved a tremendous success at the Theatre des Westens on Saturday evening. It is given as a reason why this work has not hitherto been performed that the book was, in its original condition, too poor and trivial. Be that as it may, it is a matter of wonder that enterprising managers could neglect any work of the deceased Operetta King, and it is—musically speaking—a gem of its kind, quite equal to Gasparone and the Bettelstudent. Herren Jacobson and Wagner have written a capital modern libretto, Director Below arranged for a first-rate cast and effective staging, and Kapellmeister Saenger conducted—a fact which guarantees a good performance. The plot is so full of whimsical complications that a detailed description would be almost impossible. The action passes in the Saxon Switzerland. Sauftleben, proprietor of the Reform Hotel, is expecting the arrival of a wealthy nephew from Macedonia, to whom he hopes to wed his pretty, but portionless, daughter. Bobby Spielvogel, impresario of the Macedonian Variety Troupe, turns up, impecunious and ready-witted. He is taken for the anticipated kinsman, and fills the situation to a nicety. When Agamemnon—the real nephew—arrives he is taken for a new waiter and when his mother and sister put in an appearance later on the fun and confusion increase. After endless misunderstandings everything comes to a satisfactory termination, each lover wedding his lass according to the dictates of his heart. Foremost in the admirable cast were Fräulein Doninger and Herr Fritz Werner—the latter in the title-rôle. Artists, authors, and manager were called and applauded to the echo, over a dozen floral arrangements and laurel wreaths being handed up.

ON New Year's Eve a performance of Der Freyschutz was given at the Royal Opera, with Fräuleins Destinn and Dietrich and Herren Grüning, Hoffmann, and Griswold in the chief rôles. The house was crowded, and the audience was an enthusiastic one. At the New Royal Opera (Krolls) Lortzing's pretty little Czar und Zimmermann filled the bill. An excellent cast had been provided, including Frau Herzog, Herr Liebau, and Herren Berger, and Knüpfer; and here, too, applause was unusually hearty.

Two new operas of importance will be performed for the first time the first week in February, one in Berlin and the other at Vienna. Our Royal Opera will produce Tschaikowsky's Pique Dame, a work which was acquired last season, and announced for last January. At the Imperial Opera House, in the Austrian capital, rehearsals of Schilling's Moloch are going on daily, under the superintendence of the composer and the Intendant-General, Herr Mahler. The new work is reported to be unusually fine.

MILLOCKER'S pretty little comic opera, Cousin Bobby, is holding the boards at the Theatre des Westens, to the exclusion of everything else. Crowded houses are the result, and nightly ovations for Fräulein Doninger and Fritz Werner, who score in the principal rôles.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Jan. 10.—This amusing piece is not new, but it came as a novelty to the large audience, who welcomed it with enthusiasm. It has stood the test of time well, and has been further improved by the addition of some up-to-date couplets and jokes. A narration of the plot is perhaps unnecessary, the story of the "beautiful Hungarian," Irma von Berénczy—who sets every man by the ears—being fairly well known. The music—which is from the facile pen of Herr Gustav Steffens—is pretty, but proved the weak point of the otherwise capable cast. With the exception of Frau Wille-Bach's impersonation of the title-rôle, the singing left much to be desired, although the acting was very good and bright. The Luisen company is first-rate in either tragedy or comedy, but it draws the line at musical plays. Frau Wille-Bach was altogether charming as Irma, and Fräulein Urmainska and Herr Huener gave capital renderings of their respective parts. The piece was well staged, the orchestra admirable, and Die Schoene Ungarin will undoubtedly see a number of performances.

IN the bill of the "Kammerspiele" (chamber plays) at the Deutsches two early works of Goethe's have had a place—Die Geschwister, a one-act drama, and Die Mitschuldigen, a three-act comedy. The former, having a couple of very grateful rôles—those of the brother and sister, Wilhelm and Marianne—is always a safe draw on any stage when adequately acted. Herr von Winterstein and Fräulein Höflich, although they are artists whose talents nobody would think of disputing for a moment, did not do these particular characters full justice. Director Reinhardt is a past-master in the art of mounting his plays—witness the splendid manner in which his Shakespearean dramas are staged; but he lays less stress upon the judicious assortment of his casts and upon the individual acting. As a matter of consequence, a slovenly tone has crept in, when it is not—as is the case in Shakespeare's comedies—one of burlesque and caricature. The performance of Die Mitschuldigen was more successful, Herr Arnold, in the part of the landlord, being very humorous.

NEVER within my knowledge has such a neck-and-neck struggle for the rights of a piece taken place as that between Directors Reinhardt and Barnowsky (of the Deutsches and Kleines Theatres) for the possession of Oscar Wilde's Bunbury, alias The Importance of Being Earnest, alias A Trivial Comedy for Serious People. The German version was announced for New Year's night at both houses, and it was literally at the eleventh hour—two hours before the doors opened—that the conflict was decided in favour of the Kleines, and Herr Reinhardt, all in a hurry, put on Man and Superman instead. This naturally meant a tremendous puff for the piece, and there was an unprecedented rush for tickets at the Kleines, many being sold by dealers outside the doors at fabulous prices. The piece met with a thoroughly cordial reception, and the interpretation was excellent all round, so that a long run will assuredly follow.

OUR third Schiller Theatre was opened in the suburb of Charlottenburg on New Year's Day. When the former Walhalla Theatre, in the heart of the city, was altered and reopened as a people's theatre, with modest prices and a company to match, and called the Schiller, a good many people doubted its ultimate success. The undertaking has prospered beyond all expectation. A second Schiller Theatre (the former Friedrich Wilhelmstädtisches) opened in the North of Berlin some years ago, and the third house is a handsome new building, which will certainly fill a want in the West. Schiller shares are now coveted as paying concerns; the companies are high class, and the performances rank with those of any good average theatre in Germany.

THE new Figaro Theatre not yet being quite finished, and the company becoming impatient, the directors have decided to begin operations in the theatre of the Secessionshaus until their own is ready. Consequently the début of the Figaro company was made here last week, and may be recorded a success. Four one-act pieces comprised the programme, several of them being novelties to Berlin audiences. Der Kavalier, a persiflage by MM. Timmory and Manouisi, opened the evening's entertainment, at once putting the audience in good humour. Die Klaue, a dramatic fragment by Jean Sartène, followed, admirably acted by Frau Olga Wohlbrück (one of the directors) and Herr Kupfer. The chief success of the evening was Mark Twain's farce, Der Chicago Landmann, which, as is superfluous to relate, bristled with wit and humour. Leo Poldi's very broad farce, Unterm Bett, was the last piece on the programme, and that, too, made its mark. The acting of all four plays was capital, and the auspices of the new undertaking are decidedly favourable.

HERR ADOLF PHILIPP'S new piece at his theatre, the Deutsch-Amerikanisches, is drawing well. The title is Der Sorgenbrecher, and although the author terms it a burlesque, it partakes more of the character of a farcical volks-play. "Sorgenbrecher" means one who drives dull care away, a type of the "little ray of sunshine" familiar to us all. This estimable person, Karl by name, is an easy-going, rakish young fellow with a kind heart. Having made his native haunts too hot to hold him, Karl goes off to the land of dollars, returning—reputedly—a millionaire. His wealth consists entirely of diamonds, which he found at Klondyke. His person sparkles with the glittering jewels; his coffers are full of them, and his generosity is as great as ever. He pays all his old debts and those of his friends with diamonds, and the money-lenders are more than satisfied. Suddenly the bubble bursts. The jewels are all discovered to be paste, and there is lamentation and gnashing of teeth. But Karl holds the receipts in full of the Jews, and manages to get into a good situation, which enables him to marry his old sweetheart and live happily ever after. The piece is laughable, and being very well acted—Herr Philipp himself taking the name-part—is, as has been already stated, proving a considerable attraction.

THE handy little date book for 1907 issued by Mr. T. Harris, manager of the Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Company, is now ready, and furnishes a valuable guide for theatrical managers and all connected with the profession. Among its most useful features are lists of London and suburban theatres, with their telephone numbers, and also of provincial theatres, all alphabetically arranged. The names and addresses of billposters in all the towns of the United Kingdom are also set out in similar order, and tabulated pages for records of receip

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

"ALADDIN" AT THE SHAKESPEARE.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

That the above pantomime has caught the public fancy is amply testified by the enthusiasm which prevails throughout each performance, and Mr. Dudley Bennett and those associated with him in its production must feel very gratified by the enormous success that has attended their efforts.

Since the opening night several new numbers have been introduced, and the principals having thoroughly worked up their respective parts, the whole performance goes with a bang from start to finish. The gorgeous scenery and dresses were fully described in a former notice, and it is sufficient to say that they could not very well be surpassed. Miss Winifred Hare as Aladdin continues to charm all comers with her attractiveness and vivacity, and is indeed an ideal principal boy. Her singing, too, is greatly admired, and amongst her numerous songs the most popular are "Why do the girls love Charlie?" "Hello! Hello! Hello!" and "Banish sorrow till to-morrow," the last-named of which is sung with great effect, and fairly brings down the house. Miss Mary Hay has established herself a warm favourite with the audience, and her refined manner and dainty appearance are well suited to the rôle of the Princess. Her chief songs, "My Prince" and "Zuyder Zee," are rendered with much expression, and find immediate favour. Miss Marion Hargrave as Pekoe plays with success; and Miss Ethel Ivimey is an engaging Pitti Sing. Miss Vera Thompson as Hi-Tid-Li and Miss Ethel Ford as Hi-Ti are also acceptable in their respective parts. Owing to the continued illness of Mr. Mark Melford, the rôle of Widow Twankey is being filled by Mr. Dan Lyndon, who proves himself a worthy substitute, and scores a distinct success; making the most of every opportunity and working with untiring energy, his quaint antics and witticisms cause uproarious laughter. As Abanazar, Mr. Arthur Reynolds is a host in himself, and is extremely diverting throughout; he is especially successful in the songs "Let me sing" and the topical song "Boodle." The Ethairien Brothers as Wishee Washee and Ki-Ki well deserve the hearty applause that is accorded them for their clever knockabout business, and in parts that allow plenty of scope for their comicalities they are particularly amusing. Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy as the Emperor also contributes a meritorious performance. The clever speciality dancing of Susie and Protti is still a leading feature, and special mention must be made of the minuet, arranged by Signor Protti, and executed with much grace by a number of artists dressed in Old English costumes. Mr. J. Collins's troupe of see-saw girls also contribute their quota of dances, and an encore is always demanded for their swing song and dance. A word of praise must also be accorded to the chorus, who render the concerted pieces with due effect, and to the excellent work of the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Sidney Shaw. The comfort of the audience is, as usual, well looked after by Mr. E. de Hague Body, Mr. Bennett's popular acting-manager.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

Cinderella is now quite at home at the Elephant and Castle, and with capital songs, pretty music, and an abundance of good, wholesome comedy, is attracting large audiences. Miss Gracie Taylor as the Prince Splendid introduces a new song, "My Irish Daisy," whilst her original songs go with a great swing. As Cinderella, Miss Alice Digby sings and dances daintily; whilst Miss Nora Morra as Dandini is as full of life and go as ever, her song, "Peggy machree," being a great favourite. The comedians now work much more together, and introduce a deal more clever business. Mr. Herbert Rule as the Baron and Mr. Arthur Carlton as Toddles, his page, introduce much capital fun; as the two elder daughters of the Baron, Mr. Willie Scott and Mr. Arthur Watts are delightfully effeminate; as the broker's men, Mr. Harry Rennoir and Mr. Mount Stephen are an indefatigable pair, and, as boisterous knockabouts, are a great success. The motor-'bus adds to the fun, the laughter being loud and long whilst unfortunate pedestrians endeavour to catch it. The Aroza Belles, as acrobatic dancers, show much skill, and are much appreciated. Mme. Van Dalle sings sweetly as the Fairy Godmother; Mr. S. Leddard as the Herald declaims distinctly; whilst as courtiers the Misses Violet Varcoe, Maggie Edwards, Sissie Salisbury, and Miss Essex are effective. Mr. R. A. Neville as acting-manager looks most carefully to the comfort of the audience.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Jan. 7, 1907, the Tragic Comedy, in Five Acts, by Jacob Gordon, entitled "THE MUSICIAN."

The Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company still continue to hold the boards here, evidently to the great satisfaction of their Yiddish patrons. On Monday night they presented the tragic comedy by Jacob Gordon, entitled The Musician, which has the merit of not being wearisome, and at the same time contains many forcible situations, together with good dialogue and an interesting story. The play was well mounted, and was favourably received by a well-filled house. We should just like to mention that it would be a decided advantage if the various scenes throughout the progress of the piece were shown on the programme, and we trust the Yiddish management will see their way clear to adopt this simple plan—always in force at all other theatres—in order that their audiences may realise where the particular action is taking place. Mr. S. Feinman makes a picturesque Zelig Itzek, and gives a fine performance, varied by occasional outbursts of passion, whilst his spirited rendering of the part roused the house to enthusiasm. Mr. N. Hamburger as Achtafel did all he had to do sufficiently well; while Mme. Berman was a decided success as Miss Jane, and Miss R. Bryh distinguished herself favourably as Perele. Mr. J. Goldsmith acted with much skill as Pinchas Zlotsky, holding his powers well in hand; while Mr. M. Gusofsky as Herschuni was in every respect an impersonation of the highest order. All praise must be given to Mr. Isaacowitch for his masterly exposition of Count Bluchovsky; and Mme. Goldstein played Feiga in a highly creditable manner. Reizele was portrayed in a tender and sympathetic style by Mme. J. Kayer; and that popular favourite, Mr. J. Scherman, was exceedingly good as Noti Myer, into which character he thoroughly infused the necessary business and humour. During the week The Son of the Star, Menasha, The Bigamist, The Wise Man, The Savages, and Sulamith have been played, whilst on Wednesday night the benefit of Mr. S. Feinman took place, who thought the opportunity was too good to be missed, and therefore presented a handsome diamond ring to the esteemed acting-manager, Mr. Fred Brown, as a remembrance for all the attention and kindness he had given him during his engagement at the Pavilion Theatre.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Jan. 7, the Musical Play, entitled "THE SPRING CHICKEN."

The first production to follow pantomime at the Dalston Theatre is the Gaiety musical comedy, entitled The Spring Chicken, which is brightly presented by the members of Mr. George Dance's company. Mr. J. S. Durant as the advocate, Gustave Barbori, is chiefly noticeable for the amount of energy which he displays in his embodiment of the character. The same element predominates in the case of Mr. Harry Averell, Barbori's head clerk, who comes out best in the parasol duet with Miss Chrissie Ralland, who is a petite Rosalie. Mr. Fred Payne causes many a hearty laugh by his quaint acting as Mr. Girdle, the advocate's father-in-law; and Miss Nellie Kavanagh as Mrs. Girdle becomes a decided favourite with the audience, her songs, "In Regent-street" and "I guess," being encored in most determined fashion. Miss Vivienne Clare is light and interesting as Dulcie Barbori; Mr. A. Drinkwater as the Baron Papouche provides a good sketch of a familiar stage character; and Miss Clarice Cartner is a dignified Baroness. Mr. C. Brierley as Girdle's son, and Miss Lilian Errol as the niece of Girdle, do well as a couple of frolicsome youngsters. Mr. Edwin Dodds as Felix, head waiter at "The Crimson Butterfly," is responsible for a good deal of merriment; and Mr. E. Cecil Moylan as the proprietor of the restaurant impersonates to the life the excitable foreigner. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Knight Pearce.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 27, 1906.—PRINCESS'S THEATRE (Lessees, The Brough-Flemming Comedy Company).—After a most successful run of two weeks, Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace was withdrawn on Friday evening in favour of a revival of Dr. Wake's Patient, which was presented to a large and enthusiastic audience on Saturday evening. Mr. Flemming's admirable realisation of the full-blooded Devonshire farmer has improved by age, and is undoubtedly the finest character he has presented to Melbourne playgoers. Miss Beatrice Day repeated her excellent performance of Lady Gerania; Lady St. Olbyn is certainly one of Mrs. Brough's cleverest impersonations; Mr. Carter Pickford made a satisfactory Dr. Wake; the rest of the characters were admirably played by Mr. Macmahon, Miss Gordon Lee, Miss Emma Temple, Miss Bessie Major, Mr. J. Forde, Mr. Dundas Walker, and Miss Kate Gair. The comedy was mounted with its usual completeness and received with as much delight as on its first representation.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis).—Bumper houses are the order of the day at this theatre, and, judging from present appearances, The Spring Chicken has come to stay. On Saturday evening the burlesque The Fatal Marriage; or, A Deadly Wedding, was re-introduced, and proved highly successful. Miss Morrell has established herself a firm favourite with Melbourne audiences, her rendering of the two numbers, "Rosalie" and "Gently," nightly calling forth genuine applause. The mounting is on the usual lavish scale which characterises all Mr. Williamson's productions.

THEATRE ROYAL (Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant).—The sensational melodrama The Power and the Glory continues to attract large audiences. On Saturday night the many striking incidents in the performance were loudly applauded, and the various members of the company met with enthusiastic receptions. On Saturday evening next Mr. Anderson will stage The Face at the Window for a brief season of twelve nights.

OPERA HOUSE (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—A remarkably clever turn was presented for the first time on Saturday evening in the shape of Messrs. Caselli and James, expert banjoists, who gave a finished performance, which met with instant approval from an enormous house. Messrs. Caselli and James are among the first arrivals of the numerous star artists engaged by Mr. Rickards on his recent visit to London. Seibo, the champion club manipulator and plate thrower, repeated his wonderful act; the Cabiacs astonished with their acrobatic feat; Keely and Agnes gave an eccentric turn; Duncan and Godfrey appeared in a new sketch; while interesting items were contributed by the Sandow Girls, Miss Maud Fanning, Mr. Arthur Elliott, Tom Dawson, Alf Lawton, and a host of others.

THE Gaiety Theatre, under the able management of Mr. Joe Solomons, continues to draw large houses. Artists now appearing with great success include the Three Swifts, Frank York, Nancy Symmonds, Elsie Babs, Reuben Davis, Doris Baker, Winnie Bond, Arthur Morley, Jack Hagan, Frank Melvin, and Fred Ireland.

SYDNEY, DEC. 4, 1906.—"Wonderland City" is the latest and greatest of Australasian ventures in the arena of entertainment. Mr. William Anderson, having secured a suitable site, at an expenditure of £20,000, has transformed the place into a delectable spot. On the 1st inst., although hardly ready for the public, he opened his twenty acres of shows, shelters, and every kind of thing that could gladden and entertain. The Premier officially declared "Wonderland City" open in the presence of 20,000 people. Five thousnad electric lights, large and small, made the place a veritable fairyland. Dells, grottos, cosy bowers, a maze, a switchback, helter-skelter, a vast skating-rink, and cognate methods of time-passing were largely patronised. The King's Theatre, seating 800, was densely packed with visitors, who were treated to a variety entertainment. Mr. Anderson himself planned and supervised everything with the aid of Mr. C. W. St. Julian, and "Wonderland City" will be managed by Mr. I. Josephs, whilst Mr. Anderson attends to his other ventures.

"TURNED UP" is Messrs. Meynell, Gunn, and Varna's change of bill at the Palace, and Mark Melford's fun-maker vastly delighted our local playgoers. Mr. James Lindsay has a capital part in Bones, once so popular with the late Robert Brough. Mr. Lindsay captured the favour of his public, and made a genuine success of his comedy. Mr. H. Halley was a capital Captain Medway. The cast included Miss E. Guildford Quin, Messrs. Harry Hill, J. W. Deverell, Frank Hawthorne (specially good), the Misses Bernard, Violet Dene, Helen Russell, Florence Leigh, and the little nigger boy, Master Willie Parke. The production was directed by Mr. H. W. Varna, and preceded by Wig and Gown.

"THE VIRGINIAN" has caught on so strongly that the Waldron-Humphrey-Kirkwood company at Her Majesty's will need no change of bill until the arrival of Miss Tittell Burne, who opens in La Tosca on the 8th inst. with Mr. J. C. Williamson's dramatic company, in which Mr. Thomas Kingston will be the Baron Scarpia.

"THE MIDNIGHT WEDDING" is turning people away at he Criterion, just as The Fatal Wedding did, and with much better reason, having its superiority as a drama in mind. Mr. Harcourt Beatty makes Paul Valmar a veritable hero of romance; and Miss May Congdon, with Mr. Chas. Vane and the rest of Messrs. Meynell and Gunn's large company of adults and "kiddies," tell the story of adventure and triumphant virtue with nightly success.

THE Tivoli folk gladly welcomed Miss Leonie Dixon in her clever songs and dances; and Miss Gladys Conway and Mr. Joe Lashwood gave a good performance on their opening night. Tom Dawson came back and joined the company, which includes the Alaskas, Stewart and Lorraine, Harry Tate's Fishing party, Miss Cassie Walmer, Pat Mason, Irving Sayles, and a host more of Mr. Harry Rickard's specially selected artists. Mr. J. C. Late, the general-manager, returned from New Zealand during the week.

The Bondman reaches its hundredth representation on Wednesday afternoon at the Adelphi. In the evening the management will celebrate the event by presenting a copy of the cloth-bound edition of Mr. Hall Caine's play, containing numerous illustrations, to every member of the audience.

THE MOTOR CYCLE AND THE PROFESSION.

We are all long-suffering as far as Sunday travelling is concerned, writes Mr. F. C. Dee, business manager, for the Freedom of Suzanne company, and it was not until I had had a surfeit of Sunday's tedious journeys by rail that I decided to invest in a motor-cycle as a means of passing a more pleasant "day of rest" than the "cooped up" confinement I had undergone on the S.E. and C.R. and L.B. and C.R. I had already proved to my own satisfaction its usefulness in running round the outskirts of the town (in which I was resident-manager) in checking extra printing positions, and a light runabout of moderate power and convenient size appealed to me in the motor-cycle on tour. So I made a start with a 2-h.p. engine, and by adding a strong luggage carrier, extra wide mudguards, and afew other sundries I had soon transformed the machine into a very serviceable mount.

I must confess I was a trifle uneasy at the first few initial attempts, but with a bit of luck I got to my destinations safely, and in fairly good time. To fight some of the hills around Yorkshire and Derbyshire it needed more than a 2-h.p., and until I had a machine of 3½-h.p. I never really tasted the delights of motoring. Of course, the initial outlay on the machine's purchase is the only item that need worry the hesitating purchaser, the expenses to follow are for upkeep, such as petrol, grease, and tyres. One gallon of petrol, costing 1s. 3d. will last an average rider 90 to 120 miles, whilst grease is even less expensive. As regards tyres, I generally run through a set every year; but as these are included in the original outlay, they cannot be taken into consideration, and any novice, after one or two attempts should be able to repair a puncture or burst.

It is abundantly clear to me, from members of profession I have met, that a good many would avail themselves of this form of locomotion if they could be satisfied in the knowledge that they would not be having constant breakdowns, but I can assure them that since the motor-cycle has now reached such a high pitch of efficiency they can set their minds at ease on this count. All who have goods to sell will tell you that the most expensive is the cheapest in the long run. So with motor cycles: buy a good one, and your trouble is at an end. I have never spent a penny on repairs beyond tyres, which (by my own laziness) I have not troubled to repair, and this would not amount to more than 10s. in a season. Having ridden as a pleasant combination of business and pleasure since 1903, I do not hesitate to ask our sporting element to give "the sport" a trial, feeling, when once they have tasted the delights, they will become thorough converts to our theatrical motoring ranks, to which I have added two members in The Freedom of Suzanne company this autumn tour alone.

In this company we have four motor-cyclists, and strange to say, they all write Vindee Special motor-cycles, one having a side-car attached for a passenger. The fashion in motor-cycles, as with ladies' hats, changes every season, and it is only the desire to be up-to-date that I have had the latest in machines every year, my present mount being a 5-h.p. Vindee Special, and with so much power I am convinced that unmountable hills are few and far between. In conclusion, I would say that I shall be only too pleased to offer intending purchasers any assistance I can in the choice of a machine most suitable to work for which it is required. Beyond the original outlay, the only expenses in up-keep are:—Petrol, 1s. 3d. a gallon, lasting 90 to 120 odd miles; grease, 1s. 6d., lasting three or four hundred miles; but one must not forget that one's "digs" bill will run up accordingly, for the motor-cycle is the best appetiser one could wish for.

ACTORS' COMMONWEALTH.

There is a happy little community of actors and actresses at Terry's Theatre, who are running a pantomime on co-operative lines. The fact that they are doing so must not be accepted as an indication that the theatrical profession generally have adopted the principles of Karl Marx, but is due to the pluck and resourcefulness of the pantomime company referred to.

After two weeks' rehearsal of Little Red Riding Hood at Terry's, Mr. Samuel James, who was "running the show" in conjunction with Mr. W. H. C. Nation, produced the pantomime on Boxing Day, and on the following Saturday a notice was placed at the stage-door, stating that the production would come to a conclusion at the fall of the curtain that evening. The notice indicated something in the way of a dispute between Mr. Nation and Mr. James. Into that it is not necessary to enter. There was a meeting of the principal members of the company, and they decided that the pantomime should not be terminated so quickly. Mr. Nation also played a part in the deliberations, and it was eventually agreed that all the people who were receiving a salary not exceeding £3 should be paid in full, and that the other artists should share whatever balance was remaining, pro rata according to their previously arranged salaries. Mr. Nation consented to give them the same percentage that he had offered to Mr. James, and, furthermore, generously guaranteed that the "takings," so far as the artists were concerned, should not fall beneath a certain amount.

"We went on," said Mr. Fred Storey, in telling the story to our interviewer, "and last Saturday the lesser people were paid in full and the principal members of the company shared the balance. And the show is still going on! It is a great mistake for people to talk jeeringly of a 'commonwealth,' and to suggest that actors and actresses don't work well together. The people here are simply like a big family, and support each other just as if they were assisting to present a pantomime for Mr. Collins at Drury Lane, and getting their salary in the ordinary way.

"How long will the pantomime last? Well, we may go on for ten or twelve weeks, for all we know at present. There have been very good audiences, and proof of the satisfactory condition of affairs is to be found in the fact that Mr. Nation has this week bettered his previous offer to us, and has guaranteed us more money."

Mr. Storey, who is playing the part of Lawyer Fox in Red Riding Hood at Terry's, was engaged for the pantomime at very short notice. He was appearing in The Merchant of Venice at Liverpool when the call to London came, and he was only able to secure a week's rehearsal for the present production. It was, of course, a quick study, and, we are pleased to say, a successful one.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

THEATRICAL WEDDING.

A pretty and interesting wedding took place on Tuesday, at All Saints' Church, Norfolk-square, W., the contracting parties being Mr. Frank Beresford, who returned from South Africa the previous week, having concluded his fourth engagement as leading man with Mr. Leonard Rayne, and Miss Dorothy Mahomed (Dorothy Milne), second daughter of the late Dr. Mahomed, of Guy's Hospital, and Mrs. Mahomed, of 152, Harley-street, W. The Rev. W. Boyd officiated, and the service was choral, the solo being admirably rendered by Mr. Fred. W. Carter.

The bride, who looked charming in white crêpe de chine, with jasmine wreath and veil, attended by two little bridesmaids in white silk, with wreaths of forget-me-nots, was given away by her brother, Dr. Deane, the bridegroom being supported by his brother, Mr. J. Cooke Beresford, as best man. Amongst the numerous congregation were Mr. and Mrs. Raine Kennedy (Miss Wynne Matthison), Mr. Leonard Rayne, Mrs. Tennyson Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Fallowes (Miss Annie Leaf), Mrs. Geoffrey Pearson, Miss Maud Stewart-Drewry, Mr. Stanley Drewitt, Miss Hilda Sims, Miss Ethel Chown, Mrs. Darley Hartley, Mrs. Chas. J. Davies, and Miss Katherine Brook. A reception, which was largely attended, followed at 152, Harley-street, the residence of the mother of the bride. Later in the day the happy couple left for Aldeburg, Suffolk, where the first part of the honeymoon will be spent.

MEMORIAL TO MR. JOHN A. ATKIN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I have been approached by many old friends of the late Mr. John A. Atkin who desire that something shall be done to perpetuate the memory of one who was universally beloved, and whose loss is now widely mourned, and, being one of his oldest friends, I venture to make this appeal through your valuable columns.

It has been proposed that there should be erected a headstone to his grave, Mrs. Atkins's permission for which having been freely given. The following gentlemen have already signified their willingness to act as a committee:—Tom H. Taylor, The Worst Woman in London and The Female Swindler companies; W. R. King, manager, Dalston Theatre; Harry Chappell, manager, Standard Theatre; &c., and we guarantee at once £5.

—Yours faithfully, ASHLEY PAGE.

Standard Theatre, Jan. 10.

N.B.—Any friends of the late Mr. J. A. Atkin wishing to participate in this movement should send their contributions to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, hon. treasurer, at The Era offices. All contributions will be duly announced in these columns.

"THE BONDMAN" AT ADELPHI.

The Bondman, interrupted in its successful run at Old Drury by the sway of King Pantomime, has gone to the traditional home of melodrama, the Adelphi, and has found there an environment equally as advantageous as that at the National theatre. It was played on Saturday night at the Strand house to a storm of enthusiastic encouragement, which completely justified Mr. Otho Stuart's interesting experiment, and the reception of Mr. Hall Caine's play reminded one of the first nights at the historic house in the eighties, when the lamented Will Terriss, as the true British hero—with ringing tones and manly voice—was the idol of pit and gallery. The play has been shorn of certain realistic details—such as the much-advertised cow and the haystack; but in all essentials the performance is quite equal to that given at Drury Lane, most of the excellent company selected by Mr. Arthur Collins for the first performance again doing duty.

The chief exception was the substitution of Miss Edith Wynne-Matthison for Mrs. Patrick Campbell in the part of Greeba. The younger actress has established her right to a leading position at a London theatre by her admirable work as a tragedienne at the Court, in such parts as Electra, and the pathos of her beautiful performance of Everyman touched the hearts of devout listeners on both sides of the Atlantic. In the part of Greeba there is much silent suffering in the second act, and few opportunities for display until we reach the scenes in Sicily. Miss Wynne-Matthison, however, treated the interlude of Jason's declaration in the second act with infinite delicacy and tact, and hearts went out to Greeba in her agonising doubts as to the fate of the man to whom she had so solemnly plighted her troth. The interview with Jason at the President's house in Sicily sounded, however, a more strenuous note, and the actress rose to the full heights of a really fine dramatic situation, and handled it with genuine power. The house was delighted, and curtain calls proclaimed an assured triumph.

Mr. Frank Cooper's performance of Jason was what it always has been—magnificent, and that playgoers remembered this fact was apparent as soon as the ragged, unkempt sailor made his appearance in the Hall of Fairbrother Farm. The cheers from all parts of the house must have been gratifying evidence to Mr Cooper of his excellent work, and he made haste to justify the good opinion so felicitously expressed by again enthralling the house in every scene of importance wherein Jason figures. The Bondman would be worth seeing, if only for the firmness and virility of an impersonation that will live in the memory. Jason, the vagabond, bitterly revengeful, and Jason softened by love—magnanimous, big-hearted—were in splendid contrast.

In the great sulphur mine scene Mr. Walter Hampden, who succeeds Mr. Henry Ainley in the part of Michael Sunlocks, gave fine effect to the sufferings of the deposed President, and the impression created was exceedingly moving. Mr. Hampden was somewhat nervous in the earlier scene, but warmed to his work, and his success was never in doubt.

Mr. Lal Brough's amusing study of senility has gained considerably since the first night, and Grandfather, with his funny little trot and his shrewd remarks, kept the house laughing whenever he was on the stage.

That fine actor, Mr. Henry Neville, could not improve on his entirely satisfying representation of Adam Fairbrother, and the dear old farmer, with his simple faith and deep affection, again stood out as a most lovable character.

Miss Marie Illington's Mrs. Fairbrother reminds one strongly of George Eliot's Mrs. Poyser in "Adam Bede." Expediency is the primary plank in her philosophy, and her advocacy of the doctrine of what may be termed "an eye to the main chance" is punctuated with many shrewd observations, to which Miss Illington's crisp delivery and excellent accentuation of points do most complete justice.

Mr. Austin Melford has advanced his reputation considerably as an actor by his really fine embodiment of the degenerate priest, Father Ferrati, which evoked the admiration of the Delphians on Saturday as much as it had done at Old Drury. It was a genuine triumph, and Mr. Melford deserved the cheers that greeted him at the conclusion of his scene in the President's house, and again in the final phase of the drama at the Presbytery on Lonely Island.

It is Mr. Oscar Adye's fortune to be associated with the careers of interesting stage villains, and he was quite at home in emphasising all the essentials that go to establish Dr. Boni's right to the sound detestation of gallery and pit, and though never under-acting the part, he did not fail to realise its sinister import.

Mr. Francis Chamier gave the necessary foreign air and warmth to the part of the Marshal of Police; and Miss Dora Clements was characteristic in a small part.

Miss Florence Wood's Christian Ann—a small part—was the essence of good-nature, kindliness, and common sense; and mention should also be made of the good work done by Miss Grace Edwin, Miss Rhoda Ray, Miss Eily Malyon, Mr. Fred Grove, Mr. Stephens, and Mr. Hewetson. It is interesting to note that "Mr. Derwent," who appeared as one of the convicts in the sulphur mines, is a younger son of Mr. Hall Caine.

AMUSEMENTS IN NEW ZEALAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WELLINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Thursday, Nov. 1.—Messrs. Willoughby and Ward's company opened a nine nights' stay with The Man from Mexico to a fairly full theatre. The farce is rattled through in good style, and the principal parts are played by Miss Grace Palotta, Mr. Hugh J. Ward, and Mr. George Willoughby, of whom it may be said that the two latter work exceedingly hard. Mr. Ward's playing is delightful; Mr. Willoughby plays with great restraint, and is of great service in a poor part; whilst Miss Palotta struggles gamely with another and even poorer rôle. Smaller parts are played by Misses Olive Wilton and Gillian Scaife, Messrs. Edward Bonfield, Reginald Wykeham, C. Warburton Gamble, and A. Cornell.

THEATRE ROYAL.—The Fuller entertainment still attracts considerable audiences, who seem mightily pleased with the fare provided.

OPERA HOUSE.—Saturday, Nov. 10. — To-night, Messrs. Willoughby and Ward staged The Talk of the Town, and the large audience shrieked with laughter at the humours of the piece. Miss Palotta was delightful as a stage Américaine; Mr. Ward again contributing work of the highest calibre; and Mr. Willoughby abetting with a good and consistent piece of work as the prize-fighter. The season closed on Nov. 12, and has been a very real success, the houses having been uniformly full.

A NEW hall is being erected at Abertillery, Mon., by the proprietor, Mr. A. Tilney, upon the site hitherto occupied by his sawmills, which have been rebuilt on adjacent land. The inside dimensions are 110ft. long by 45ft., giving seating accommodation when completed for 2,000. There will be end and side galleries, with separate exits upon three roads from these, as well as those from pit and stage. The new hall is to have every accommodation in dressing-rooms and sanitary appliances, whilst the comfort of both professionals and patrons will be studied in regard to warmth, ventilation, &c. The architects for the building, which is expected to be finished in about two months, are Habershon and Faulkner, of Newport.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. WILLIAM GIFFARD.

Like many others, Mr. Giffard began the serious part of life—that of earning a living—in quite a different sphere to the attractive surroundings of the stage. He was educated with a view to becoming an engineer, but in consequence of indifferent health went out to Canada and took up farming. This was followed by an experience in the backwoods, trapping and lumbering—hard, but health-giving work. An occasional visit to a large city such as Toronto, and a night at the theatre, to which at all times Mr. Giffard was considerably attached, brought on the "acting fever" which has more or less incapacitated him for other employment ever since. In America Mr. Giffard fulfilled one or two engagements for which the remuneration promised was not forthcoming and the experience, though useful, was dearly bought.

Returning to England seventeen years ago, he again encountered "Mr. Bogus," and upon one occasion had the distinction of assisting in the carrying of the scenery from one town to another. The forgetfulness of the "Ghost" to even shuffle, let alone walk, induced Mr. Giffard to seek new fields. Some of his earlier engagements were with the late Frank Scudamore's plays. A tour as the "jeune premier" in The Flying Scud followed, and then a period under the management of Mr. Henry Dundas. After that, Mr. Giffard was in the original production of The Dark Continent, Messrs. Morell and Mouillot's first venture, and he also supported Mr. Mouillot in his répertoire, including The Bishop of the Fleet, Garrick, and The School for Scandal.

In 1892 Mr. Giffard joined the then famous Calvert and Helmsley Répertoire Company. They played classical drama, comedy, melodrama, and farce, appearing often in six to eight pieces weekly. It was a school of acting in the full sense of the term. Enthusiasm and love of work for work's sake was the dominating tone. Mr. Louis Calvert, with all the traditions of his great father and his own remarkable intuition for stage management, was the lead, supported by Miss May Harvey, an actress of exceptional brilliance. Mr. Calvert produced and the company had the privilege of appearing in many notable performances for the Independent Theatre Society and the Arts Club of Manchester and Liverpool. Shakespeare's Love's Labour's Lost, The Two Gentlemen of Verona, Richard II. (the latter without scenery), Goethe's tragedy Clavigo, Ibsen's drama Rosmersholm and his comedy An Enemy of the People, and Browning's Blot on the 'Scutcheon were some of the works. Many of the performances took place in the one time Gentlemen's Concert Hall at Manchester, the site of which is now occupied by the Midland Railway Company's hotel.

The company occasionally played Ibsen's comedy An Enemy of the People on tour, and there are two rather amusing anecdotes in connection with these performances. At a well-known fashionable Lancashire seaside resort the theme of the comedy—a contaminated water supply—happened to be a burning local question, and upon the night the company played the piece the opposing factions in the Town Council occupied the private boxes facing each other. The frequent allusions to the folly, the selfishness, and the determination to stifle the truth by the municipal authorities in the play were hugely enjoyed by both sides as typical of each other. The other little tale is the remark of a disgusted pitite, who was heard to say as he left the theatre, "That ain't acting—all that sort o' thing 'appens at 'ome every day." Truly a compliment to the extraordinary naturalness of the dialogue and action. Few authors more deserve the gratitude of artists than Henrik Ibsen, for he indeed wrote "actors' parts."

Upon one occasion, during the annual visit to the Isle of Man, the company had a special production of Richard III. On the first night Mr. Calvert, who is a most enthusiastic fisherman, caused some considerable anxiety as the opening time drew near by his non-appearance. After an uneasy search, the coming Richard was discerned bobbing up and down in a row-boat in Douglas Bay, more intent upon landing a large codfish than eager for the fray with Richmond.

In 1893 Mr. Calvert and Mr. Helmsley dissolved partnership, and Mr. Giffard was appointed business-manager, with occasional special parts and understudy to Mr. Calvert. It was then a combination one might well be proud to manage, unequalled save by the Benson and Compton companies. It was while with Mr. Calvert that Mr. Giffard had the happiness to meet his wife. She shared all the leads with Miss Ada Mellon. Of course there was Mrs. Louis Calvert with the company, a charming and clever actress, who played the mothers both for and to the company. That fine old costume drama Proof was one of the staple bills, and upon one occasion at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, there was a difficulty in casting the part of the Grand Dame. At the last moment Mrs. Charles Calvert volunteered to take up the part, and Mr. Giffard had the pleasure of going from Newcastle to Manchester to escort Mrs. Calvert north. She received an ovation upon her appearance, and remained with the company a long time.

In 1896 Mr. Calvert, in conjunction with Mr Flanagan, commenced that series of remarkable Shakespearean revivals at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester. For many months the company had the details of Henry IV., Part 1, under consideration, but just previous to the production Mr. Giffard commenced a long period of touring in costume drama, with his wife in the leads. Their first venture was No Cross, No Crown, followed by The Black Bishop, The Red Coat, A Bid for Fortune, and at one time a répertoire including Garrick, Monte Cristo, and Proof. In 1901 the company had the privilege of appearing in a production of Richelieu for the benefit of Mr. Jonathan Dewhurst, himself appearing as the Cardinal—a grandly impressive performance.

Mr. Giffard is the author of several plays, and writes under the name of Barry Williams. He attributes his success as a producer and stage-manager to the training he had under Mr. Louis Calvert, and speaks of that gentleman in terms of enthusiastic admiration.

THE LATE MRS. EDMUND PHELPS.

Mrs. Edmund Phelps, who died on the 2nd inst. at 22, Sandown-gardens, Goodmayes, the residence of her son, was the daughter-in-law of Samuel Phelps, and her father, John Hudspeth, was an actor who was for a long time conneced with the old Queen's Theatre, afterwards the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Tottenham Court-road. Under the name of Henrietta Hudspeth she, in 1862, appeared at Sadler's Wells Theatre, under the management of her distinguished father-in-law. Then followed an engagement with Mme. Celeste at the Lyceum Theatre, and a season at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, then under the control of Mr. Mercer Simpson. At the Lyceum she appeared in a now forgotten play, entitled Paris and Pleasure. It was there she met Lydia Thompson, George Vining, Henry Neville, and John Drew. Since then she has played in all the principal theatres in London and the provinces. The younger generation of playgoers will remember Mrs. Phelps best as a member of Mrs. John Wood's company, at the Court Theatre. It was during this engagement she played Lady M'Phail in A. W. Pinero's comedy, The Cabinet Minister, and the cook in Mr. F. Horner's The Late Lamented. Years ago Mrs. Phelps toured America with Charles Wyndham, appearing in Pink Dominos,

MRS. EDMUND PHELPS.

Brighton, Naval Engagements, &c. Those who remember A Night Out at the Vaudeville will have a pleasant recollection of her performance in that amusing piece. She filled an engagement with Mr John Hare at the Garrick Theatre, toured many years ago with H. B. Conway in old comedies, and she appeared as Lady Grey in A Gaiety Girl. When a complimentary benefit was given Mr. James Perfect, on his retirement from the position of manager of the Parkhurst Theatre, Holloway, she recited with the same charm of manner that always characterised her acting a rhymed address, specially written for the occasion by Mr. R. T. Baines.

On Nov. 25, 1904, Mrs. Phelps was given a benefit matinée at His Majesty's Theatre, organised by Mr. Tree, Mr. A. F. Henderson, Miss May Warley, and others. The programme included The Man Who Was, with Mr. Tree as Limmason, and Messrs. Arthur Bourchier, George Alexander, Cyril Maude, and other well-known actors and actresses appeared in other plays. A cablegram was received from Sir Charles Wyndham, who was in America, expressing his intention of contributing fifty guineas. The proceeds of the benefit amounted to over £400.

Edmund Phelps, the husband of the deceased actress, was in his day a prominent actor who played leading parts. He made his first appearance in London at Sadler's Wells, when he was seen on Nov. 21, 1860, as Uric, in Lord Byron's gloomy tragedy, Werner, his father appearing in the title-rôle. Mr. Edmund Phelps died quite suddenly at a comparatively early age. The death of his widow has caused deep sorrow amongst her relatives and friends. She was not only an excellent actress, but a refined, charming woman, whom to know was to esteem.

In the prettily-situated Highgate Cemetery Mrs. Phelps was laid to rest on Monday afternoon. The funeral was a very quiet affair, and very few were present save the principal mourners. The absence of anything like a crowd on the present occasion was no doubt due to the fact that Mrs. Phelps was not known to the present generation.

The funeral cortège left the house at 22, Sandown-gardens, about noon, and arrived at the cemetery at half-past twelve. The first carriage was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Phelps (son and daughter-in-law); in the second were Mr. Samuel May, Miss Geoghan, Mrs. E. Burnley, and Mr. Thomas T. Hulbert; in the third, Mrs. Langdon Bruce, Miss Farr, Mrs. Clements, and Mrs. Portway.

The coffin, which was of polished oak, with handsome brass fittings, bore the inscription :—

SARAH ELIZA PHELPS,
Died 2nd January, 1907,
Age 67 Years.

The Rev. Mr. Bingley, the Cemetery Chaplain, officiated at the Burial Service. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Messrs. H. Dyer and Sons, of Seven Kings and Forest Gate.

Among the wreaths were several beautiful specimens of the florists' art. A harp of white chrysanthemums and pink roses bore the message from the children of the deceased, "In affectionate remembrance of our dear mother"; another, a cross of white chrysanthemums and arum lilies, said, "In ever-loving memory, from Mrs. Plowman and Harry and Alice Plowman"; and others, "In loving memory of my dear mother, from Kate"; "In affectionate remembrance, from Colonel and Mrs. Edwards"; "In affectionate remembrance of a dear old friend, from May Warley"; "In deep regret and sincere sympathy, from Mrs. Samuel May and nieces"; "In loving and affectionate memory, from Vera and Thomas"; and a pretty laurel wreath from Mr. and Mrs. F. Paget. Mr. H. Plowman, of Haverstock-hill, who was the executor of the family, attended at the graveside.

MR. GEO. HENRY, who has acquired the rights of the late Mr. Wilson Barrett's play, The Sledge-Hammer, and is taking it on tour this month, has engaged Mr. Howard Brenan to play the late actor-author's part of Everard. Mr. Brenan is one of the youngest juvenile leading actors on the stage, being only twenty-three.

MR. FRED W. WARDEN, of the Palace Theatre, Belfast, invited the children of the local workhouse to the matinée of the successful pantomime Mother Goose on Friday. The compliment was highly appreciated by the Board of Guardians, who tendered their best thanks to Mr. Warden for his generosity.

CHATS WITH DRAMATIC AUTHORS.

MR. FRANK STAYTON.

Practical views on the drama are always acceptable, and these Mr. Frank Stayton, by virtue of a varied experience and deep reflection, is able to give. Mr. Stayton puts no limits to the capacity of the British dramatist, and prophesies that, with the proper facilities, a brilliant future is before him. Born on Christmas Day, 1874, in the Isle of Wight, Mr. Stayton has travelled the five Continents, enlarging his appreciation of life as a whole and always seeking to turn it to dramatic account. The plays from his pen which have seen the light number half-a-score, but he has in hand some thirty or more pieces not yet produced, most of them, he declares, much better than those that have been seen. Mr. Stayton's literary effusions have also included a number of short stories and letters to the newspapers on the lack of dramatists and the reading of plays.

"I commenced to write plays from the cradle," says Mr. Stayton. "I remember adapting Mr. Barnes of New York—without permission—when I was fourteen; there was one scene entirely my own. Mr. Barnes, urgently needed in Corsica, arrived in Marseilles just in time to miss the steamer. Undaunted, he threw off his coat, dived in, swam after the steamer, and caught her. On reflection, this feat was scarcely a good advertisement for the steamship company, but it made an admirable 'curtain' to my third act. The play, however, was not accepted, other adaptors cutting me out.

"I was very versatile; I imitated Gilbert, Robertson, Byron, and Pinero. I don't suppose the originals would recognise the imitations. The dramatic critic of a Sydney newspaper gave me considerable encouragement, wading methodically through reams of terribly impossible manuscript. I persevered. In 1893 my first play was produced. I wasn't in the least excited; but on the next day horribly ashamed. I wanted to crawl away and die. The papers cut me to ribbons. At nineteen one feels these things. Years later Mr. Arthur Playfair produced a farce, written in conjunction with Mr. Argles, called Our Cousins. Miss Sophie Larkin, Miss Lillie Belmore, Mr. Playfair, Miss Bessie Major, Miss Astor, my sister, and Mr. T. P. Haines were in the cast. The play had a successful run in the provinces, but has never been played in London. In 1901 I produced The Despatch Bearer at Richmond, with Miss Terry Lewis, Mr. Yorke Stephens, and a good cast. The play was toured for some time and did very well. In the spring of that year Mrs. Willoughby's Kiss was given a trial performance at Brighton, where it met with an extraordinarily fine reception. In 1902 Mr. Curzon produced it at the Avenue, where it failed to attract—after six weeks' excellent business. The play, as I originally conceived it, was a study of a sentimental egoist with a daughter who was not afraid to be direct, and I believe it contained some strong scenes; but the characters had to be whitewashed for London, and, between two stools, the play fell to the ground. The same thing happened with The President, produced by Mr. Hawtrey at the Prince of Wales's Theatre in 1902. Originally a comedy of character finishing with a grim, but inevitable, tragedy, it was thought wiser to rewrite it as a farce. But the change of environment did not suit it, and, in spite of the superb mounting given to it by Mr. Hawtrey, the play was received with righteous indignation by the Press, and was withdrawn after seventeen performances. It was in this play that Mr. Hawtrey made his first appearance as a vocalist.

"Angelina's Lover was played in front of Little Mary at Wyndham's, and has since been played a good many times by Miss Lloyd. A Maid from School was tried by Miss Loftus during the same year, afterwards taken to Terry's, where it had a short run. But its production was a mistake; it put me back years."

The future of Mr. Stayton, however, presents a brighter outlook. "Mr. Oscar Asche," he continues, "is about to try a new play of mine called The Two Pins. This is a mediæval comedy specially written for Mr. and Mrs. Asche. The great majority of my plays are still hunting for managers to produce them, both here and in America. They are certainly far in advance of anything I have had produced, but play-placing is a terribly trying occupation. The man who has something to say, and endeavours to express himself in dramatic form, must have the patience of Job, the perseverance of a spider, and the self-control of an Indian if he is to succeed. He has to fight ignorance, prejudice, conservatism, the inherited ideas of yesterday as to what constitutes a play; he must learn to take disappointments philosophically; and he must try to learn to laugh as his plays come back to him with methodical regularity. He must learn dependence upon his own judgment, to have the courage of his opinions, faith in the future, and he must never show it when he is hurt. There are too many dramatists and not enough managers. There are plenty of good plays; but managers are not looking for good plays. They are looking for plays with long and dominating parts for certain actors. The smallest character in a play should be as well-drawn and as well-acted as the principal part. The play is the thing, and until managers realize that—until they engage actors to fit the parts instead of commissioning dramatists to fit the actors—play-producing will continue to be an unprofitable amusement.

MISS MARGARET MURCH (better known as Daisy Murch) having terminated a successful stock season at the Elephant and Castle Theatre will now be seen in the halls, having been engaged by Mr. J. G. Grahame for lead in The Yellow Fang on the Stoll tour.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, JAN. 2.—The Law and the Man, a drama in four acts and a prologue, now running at the Manhattan Theatre, is founded on Victor Hugo's novel, "Les Miserables," Mr. Wilton Lackaye being the author of the latest stage version of that voluminous work, a thoroughly satisfactory dramatisation of which would seem to be an utter impossibility. Mr. Lackaye has constructed a melodrama of the old-fashioned sort, and has probably succeeded as well as any who have essayed the same task before him. He has summed up the difficulties he encountered in the remark that if the entire book were put upon the stage it would take twenty-four hours to play it. In a witty speech on the opening night he told how a friend asked him several months after he had completed the play, under the title of Les Miserables, if any manager had accepted it. "Accepted it," he replied, "why, they can't even pronounce it."

The play has nine scenes, covering a period of nineteen years. In the prologue, Jean Valjean has just been released from the galleys, and is begging for shelter in the streets of Diton. He is befriended by the good Bishop Welcome, whose silver candlesticks he purloins. In the first act we see Jean as the Mayor of Meme. He gives Fantine her liberty in a stirring passage, and in the second scene surrenders himself in court at Arras to save an innocent man. This is one of the strongest situations in the play, the court scene being realistic and impressive. In Act II. Jean comes as the outcast to Thenardier's inn, and carries off Cosette, the daughter of Fantine. The third act shows the garden of the house where Jean is living in retirement as the wealthy and prosperous Le Blanc, the fatherly guardian of Cosette. Ten years have passed, and Cosette is a maiden with a sweetheart. The conspirators gather and inveigle the harassed hero to the den of thieves, from which he escapes by the window a minute after the soldiers burst in. The first scene of the last act shows the wedding breakfast, and at the end the old man appears, and tells the bridegroom, Marius, the truth about himself. The final scene discloses Jean in his lodgings, and presently Cosette and her husband arrive only to see their benefactor die.

Mr. Lackaye's Jean Valjean is a graphic and moving portrayal. Others in the cast who distinguish themselves in prominent rôles are Miss Jeffreys Lewis, Miss Josephine Sherwood, and Messrs. Melbourne MacDowell, John D. O'Hara, and Frederick Esmelton, the latter, as the wheelwright, Champmathieu, being particularly praiseworthy.

MR. HENRI DE VRIES, whose protean sketch, A Case of Arson, aroused extraordinary interest last season, is appearing at the Bijou Theatre in a new American play, in a prologue and three acts, entitled The Double Life, which has for its theme the curious mental condition known as aphasia. The author of the play is Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart, a magazine writer, whose name appears on the programme as Rinehart Roberts. Crude and ordinary in its earlier scenes, the drama becomes intensely interesting and exciting in the second act, and when the final curtain falls one retains the impression of having seen a play which is decidedly "out of the ordinary." The rôle assumed by Mr. De Vries is that of a wealthy young New Yorker, who, while travelling in the coal-mining regions of West Virginia, meets highway robbers, and is shot in the head. The robbers, having accomplished their purpose, leave the traveller for dead. The wound, however, is not a fatal one, and the young man eventually regains consciousness. While life is spared to him, his memory is gone, and after vainly trying to remember his name, and establish his identity, he begins his career anew. Thereafter, he is known as Joe Hartman, a name given to him by an old physician, who finds him on the road, and nurses him back to bodily health. Hartman becomes a miner, and as such passes through many vicissitudes, until a shock restores his memory, his name, and his former position in society. As Joe Hartman he rears a family, and there is a pretty romance, which concerns his daughter, Molly, who falls in love with the son of one of the owners of the mine where Hartman is employed. It is due to this romance, and a false construction put upon the attentions of the young miner to Hartman's daughter, that the memory of the man is restored, together with the realisation that twenty of the best years of his life have been spent at the hardest kind of work, while he is actually one of the owners of the mine in which he has laboured.

Mr. De Vries, whose acting of the double part of Frank van Buren and Joe Hartman, shows a complete mastery of the art of pantomime and facial expression, gives a performance that is well worth seeing, and is frequently applauded. Mr. Harry Dodd, as Dr. Storm, a whole-souled country physician, contributes a capital characterisation. Miss Sarah Truax is sincere and womanly as Mrs. Hartman; and Miss Sibyl Klein, as Molly, is charming.

AT Weber's Theatre a new entertainment in two parts, entitled Dream City and The Magic Knight, made a big success on Christmas night. Such a company as is now under engagement to Mr. Joe Weber has never been brought together on the stage of this unique and popular little house since the days when it was known as Weber and Fields's Music Hall, the list of entertainers including such well-known names as Miss Cecilia Loftus, Miss Lillian Blauvelt, and Messrs. Maurice Farkoa, Otis Harlan, Will T. Hodge, Frank Belcher, Lores Grimm, and others.

Dream City, by Edgar Smith and Victor Herbert, is a clever "skit" on the methods of the modern suburban builders. Wilhelm Dinglebender, a Long Island farmer, played by Mr. Weber, is offered a good price for his property by J. Bilkington Holmes (Otis Harlan), a land "boomer," who wants to transform the fields into a modern city. Under the influence of his own home-made wine Dinglebender falls asleep over the plans, and dreams that all the wonderful things Holmes has promised to do have come to pass. A palace has risen on the site of the old homestead, skyscrapers occupy either side of a thoroughfare that was formerly a lane used for driving home the cows, the police are women, opera is given free every night, and nobody labours, for every citizen is a millionaire. The second act shows the Dream City in operation in all its magnificence. Dinglebender tires of it in time, and expresses a wish to be back in Malaria Centre, with his ague, his shrewish wife, and his summer boarders. He dreams that this may be accomplished by pressing a secret button, and exploding the hidden mines beneath the city beautiful, when the pastoral character of the place will be restored. The button is touched, and the Dream City goes up in flames. There is a change of scene, and Dinglebender discovers himself 'neath the shade of the old apple-tree once more. The piece is crowded with comicalities, and Victor Herbert's music is delightful. Messrs. Weber, Hodge, and Harlan are the principal funmakers, and Miss Loftus, as Nancy Dinglebender, gives a series of imitations of local favourites, which brings down the house. On the opening night she "took off" Miss Rose Stahl, in a scene from The Chorus Lady, in such a lifelike manner that the audience roared with delight. Mr. Maurice Farkoa makes himself very popular in a new song, "I fancy you," and other vocal contributions, which are rendered in a highly artistic manner.

The Magic Knight, to which the second half of the programme is devoted, is a travesty on grand opera in general, and Lohengrin in particular, in which Miss Lillian Blauvelt, Mr. Farkoa, Mr. Belcher, and Miss Cora Tracey win the chief honours.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

THE announcement of the receipts of the performances on Actors' Day, which was made at the meeting at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday afternoon marks a new epoch in theatrical charity. It is true that more might have been done, and that 67 per cent. of those who were playing on Actors' Day have still to make good the undertaking they gave to the committee. But the fact that over fourteen hundred pounds has been received shows that the idea has taken root, and the number of defaulters is likely to grow smaller year by year. We agree with Mr. Cecil Raleigh that Actors' Day is "one of the finest ideas that have ever emanated from the profession." We give a full report of the meeting elsewhere.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM is staying at Nice, and on Friday of last week paid a visit to Monte Carlo, where he lunched at the Hotel Metropole. Visitors to the Riviera have frequently indulged the hope that Sir Charles would treat the residents and the visitors in the principality to some of his well-known impersonations. Accustomed as the popular actor is to triumphs at home, it is predicted that if he were to appear at the Casino Theatre his welcome would equal, if not exceed, in warmth any of his former receptions.

REVERENCE to the memory of the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts was paid by a number of distinguished people connected with the stage at the funeral at Westminster Abbey on Saturday. Included among the crowded congregation were Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., and Mrs. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. H. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Irving, and Mr. George Grossmith. Mr. Edward Terry, who is Upper Warden of the Worshipful Company of Furriers, of which the deceased lady was a freeman, represented the Guild at the ceremony.

MISS ELLEN TERRY may confidently look forward to a demonstrative welcome on her forthcoming tour in America, where she is held in estimation as high as that which she enjoys in her native country. The popular actress sails to-day by the Philadelphia for New York, where she starts a tour under the management of Mr. Charles Frohman which is arranged to last up to May next. Her répertoire will include Captain Brassbound's Conversion, The Good Hope, Nance Oldfield, and in all likelihood The Merchant of Venice. Mr. James Carew, Mr. W. T. Lovell, Mr. Rudge Harding, Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, and Miss Suzanne Sheldon will be among the company.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE has already decided upon the works which will form the programme of his Shakespeare Festival this year, Julius Cæsar, Hamlet, Twelfth Night, The Tempest, The Merry Wives of Windsor, and The Winter's Tale being included in the series. Mr. Stephen Phillips's new version of Faust is among Mr. Tree's contemplated productions, but as September next is the date fixed for the delivery of the manuscript its appearance on the stage of His Majesty's is still in the distant future. Meanwhile, Antony and Cleopatra is being played to overwhelming audiences.

THE ceremony of cutting the Baddeley cake was well and truly performed on Monday for the third year in succession by Mr. Harry Nicholls, the master of Drury-lane Lodge. The gathering, which took place in the saloon of the National Theatre, was attended by Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Walter Passmore, Miss Queenie Leighton, Mr. Harry Randall, and the rest of the company. Before cutting the cake Mr. Nicholls explained the origin of the ancient custom, the first record of which dates back to 1796, since which period it has been kept up without a break.

THE Irving Memorial Committee held a meeting on the 2nd inst., when the chairman (Mr. Cecil Raleigh) was supported by Messrs. Acton Bond, Lewis Casson, John Hare, Martin Harvey, Alfred Kendrick, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Mr. Edward Terry was unanimously elected a member of this committee, and Mr. George P. Bancroft was also elected to that body. Matters in relation to the publication of the list of subscriptions were discussed, and the secretary received instructions to approach certain editors on the question. In connection with the right to contribute to the memorial, it was unanimously agreed that all acting-managers should be admitted to the subscribers' list. The meeting was adjourned till Thursday, when Mr. John Hare occupied the chair, supported by Mr. G. P. Bancroft, Mr. Acton Bond, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. Edward Terry, Miss Ellen Terry, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks. Further subscriptions were announced, and a discussion took place as to the choice of a sculptor for the proposed memorial. The meeting was eventually adjourned until Friday, the 18th inst., at three.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE has selected The Drums of Oude, a one-act play, by Austin Strong, to precede Toddles, with which he will open the Playhouse on Monday, Jan. 28. The Drums of Oude, which deals with an incident of the Indian Mutiny, will be remembered as an interesting item of the triple bill produced at the Comedy on April 5 last. Mr. Kenneth Douglas will again be in the cast, which will also include Mr. Charles Maude and Miss Nancy Price.

BY the death of Sir Henry Perceval de Bathe, K.C.B., Mrs. Langtry becomes Lady de Bathe. The famous actress and Hugo de Bathe, who succeeds to the title, were married in September, 1899, the wedding taking place in a little church in Jersey, Mrs. Langtry's birthplace. The family of De Bathe is of great antiquity, Hugo de Bathe, according to Debrett, having accompanied Earl Strongbow to Ireland in 1172. The baronetcy dates from 1666, but lapsed, and was renewed in 1793 by sign-manual.

MISS JULIA NEILSON and Mr. Fred Terry will this evening revive The Scarlet Pimpernel at the New Theatre for a limited number of performances. Their new play, in which great interest has been aroused, will be produced at an early date.

MR. LEWIS WALLER has sent to the Actors' Benevolent Fund a further sum or £6 17s., which he collected by means of his autograph; and Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry have forwarded an additional sum of 13s. 6d. Mr. Tree sends daily batches of postal orders which he has received in exchange for his autograph.

THE Queen has graciously given her immediate patronage to the special matinée of The Red Lamp, which Mr. Beerbohm Tree is giving at His Majesty's Theatre on Thursday, Feb. 28, on behalf of St. Mary's Hospital for Women and Children at Plaistow. All who assist the matinée will be helping a very good cause, and Viscountess Parker, who, with the help of an influential committee, materially assisted by Mr. Arthur J. Coke, is making all the arrangements, should experience no difficulty in obtaining support for her generous efforts.

"HIS SISTER'S HONOUR," a new drama by Eva Elwes, will be produced by Mr. E. O'Dell at the Queen's Theatre, Fleetwood, on Monday.

MR. EDWARD TERRY, whose recent appointment as a Justice of the Peace for the County of Surrey has given such general satisfaction, lives at Barnes, where he has long taken an active part in public affairs. He added to his social work by presiding at a meeting at the local Public Hall on Tuesday and by taking the chair at the foundation of a rifle club. Mr. Terry is probably one of the best travelled men in the country, practically every part of the globe being known to him. His many philanthropic offices have recently been enumerated in this column, but his activities as an actor, nevertheless, remain as far-reaching as ever. Mr. W. S. Gilbert, of course, has long been a member of the Justices' Bench, and Mr. Thomas Lucas, the managing-director of the New Theatre, Oxford, and Mr. W. B. Redfern, who holds a similar position at the New Theatre, Cambridge, both write "J. P." after their name.

TEN new numbers have been composed by Mr. Leslie Stuart for the second edition of The Belle of Mayfair, which will be brought out at the Vaudeville in about a week's time. Among the novelties will be "The Pine Girl," for Miss Billie Burke and chorus; "The Lady with the Goggles and the Veil," for Mr. Farren Soutar; "I'm Military Mad" (song and dance), for Mr. Sam Walsh; and other tuneful numbers for Miss Louie Pounds, Miss Maud Boyd, Mr. Courtice Pounds, Miss Ruby Ray, and Mr. Charles Angelo. The harlequinade which formed so seasonable an embellishment of the popular piece will now be discarded in favour of fresh business in what will practically constitute a new second act.

MR. ALLEYN C. HYLTON, the manager of the Theatre Royal, Ryde, is arranging a benefit performance to take place on Tuesday under the patronage of Princess Henry of Battenberg, Governor of the island, in aid of the sufferers by the recent disaster to the lifeboat Selina, when two members of her crew were drowned. A strong local committee has been formed, including, among others, the Mayor of Portsmouth (Councillor C. Dye), the Mayor of Ryde (Alderman A. J. Coombes), Mr. Michael Maybrick ("Stephen Adams"), and General Fetherstonhaugh.

THE value of the Academy of Dramatic Art has been further enhanced by the appointment of a number of gentlemen to honorary positions on the staff. Among those who have already accepted the invitation of the Council are Sir Felix Semon, K.C.V.O., Dr. John Harold, and Dr. C. Percival White, as hon. physicians; Sir Anderson Critchett, C.V.O., as hon. ophthalmic surgeon; Mr. J. Mansbridge, as hon. dental surgeon; and the Hon. Charles Russell, as hon. solicitor.

THE German opera season at Covent Garden opens on Monday with Die Meistersinger, to be played without cuts. H.M. the King and T.R.H. the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Christian, and Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll, have graciously accorded their patronage to the season.

THE Redskins who figure in the Indian drama, Adulola, which Mr. H. Reeves-Smith is bringing over from America, are used only as supernumeraries, the principal parts being played by well-known actors, including Mr. Reeves-Smith himself as the Chief of the Ockotchees. It is claimed for the piece that it is a dignified, poetic, romantic drama, with a strong plot, and several stirring situations. The action is laid in the region of the Great Lakes, and the period is about 1756.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE and Mr. E. H. Sothern will make their long-promised appearance in London at the Waldorf early in May, when they will present a play, entitled The Sunken Bell, an English transcript by Charles Henry Meltzer of Hauptmann's Die versunkene Glocke. The famous American artists will also bring with them a number of Shakespearean productions, with which they intend to embark upon a European tour.

"MY DARLING" will make her first curtsey at the Hicks Theatre on Monday, March 4. Miss Marie Studholme's charming personality will admirably fit a character which is appropriately called Joy Blossom. Mr. Henry Lytton will have the part of a guardsman, Mr. J. F. McArdle will play the character of the proprietor of an irresponsible daily paper, and M. Armand Kalisz will also be in the cast.

MR. OTHO STUART has decided upon Tuesday, the 22nd inst., as the date of the production at the Apollo of The Stronger Sex, the new play by John Valentine, a fresh aspirant for playwright fame. It will be preceded by a new one-act piece, entitled The Peacemaker, written by E. M. Bryant, another of those new authors for the discovery of which Mr. Stuart is gaining so deserved a reputation. In the cast of the later piece will be Mr. Philip Knox, Mr Athol Stewart, Miss Ina Pelly, and Miss Lilian Braithwaite.

MR. DALLAS WELFORD has made a humorous hit in America in the name-part of R. C. Carton's funny farce, Mr. Hopkinson, and has won the distinction of being able to make Philadelphians laugh, a feat with which few Englishmen have hitherto been credited. Business is accordingly very great, record houses being secured at the Chestnut-street Theatre the fortnight before Christmas—usually the worst two weeks in the whole year. Mr. Welford has signed a five years' contract with Messrs. Frank Curzon and J. K. Hackett, the latter gentleman having determined to "star" the popular comedian during the summer at Chicago in a farcical repertory, and then transfer him to a London theatre in a new American play.

PRINCESS HENRY OF BATTENBERG and Princes Alexander and Maurice of Battenberg enjoyed the performance of The Merveilleuses at Daly's Theatre on Monday, and on the same evening the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and suite visited the Hicks Theatre, to witness Mr. Charles Frohman's production of The Beauty of Bath.

MR. NEIL FORSYTH, the popular manager of the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, has been the object of many congratulations on the announcement of his engagement to Miss Mollie Cathcart, niece of Dr. George Cathcart, the eminent physician. The wedding is to take place in London in March. Mr. Forsyth's association with Covent Garden began during the late Sir Augustus Harris's management, and on the latter's death, in 1896, Mr. Forsyth was appointed manager of the theatre. He is a member of the Victorian Order, and among his other decorations are the Palmes Academiques, the Saxe-Coburg Order of Art and Knowledge, and the Order of Isabel, of which he is a Chevalier. Mr. Forsyth is a brother-in-law of Mr. Frank Rendle, the lessee of Covent Garden during the autumn and winter months.

TWO THOUSAND youngsters have already visited Drury Lane, in accordance with the arrangement which the Playgoers' Club make each year on behalf of the poor children of London, and to-day 2,000 little ones will be taken to the Broadway, New Cross, and 2,000 more are invited to the Elephant and Castle. The Marlborough, Holloway, will entertain 1,000 on Jan. 19, and 2,200 will enjoy the delights of the Grand pantomime on the 26th. Arrangements are also in progress for visits to the West London, the Prince's, Poplar, the Camden, the Fulham, the King's, Hoxton, and the Crystal Palace. In addition to the entertainment, every child is presented with suitable refreshments.

MISS SOPHIE HARRISS, whose talents as an artist added to her gift for stage-management are brought to bear with such excellent results upon Baron Harriss's new edition of The Prince of Pilsen, has been relating some amusing experiences on tour to the inevitable interviewer. Letters from ladies requesting permission for their maids to view her stage gowns by Bischoff or her Maison Neuve millinery for the purpose of taking patterns therefrom are numerous, and she has grown quite accustomed to invitations to have her arms and hands submitted to the modeller in wax; but when she received the other day a letter written in all seriousness by the representative of a forthcoming exhibition expressing his unqualified admiration for her dexterity in concocting an absinthe frappée during the progress of the play, and offering her magnificent terms to superintend the American bar, she frankly owned to experiencing feelings of a mixed order.

MESSRS. CHARLES AND FREDERICK RENAD'S charming production of Puss in Boots, now playing to record houses at Mr. John Hart's Hull theatre, bids fair to continue with like business during the remainder of the run. Such are the drawing powers of the production that Mr. Hart, on seeing the performance, at once arranged to cancel an important pantomime booking in favour of Puss in Boots, the run being thus extended from four weeks, as originally arranged, to six.

MISS LYDIA DONOVAN, who, it will be remembered, successfully toured The Strange Adventure of Miss Brown and other farcical comedies for several years, has, we are informed, secured the sole theatre rights of Her One Great Sin from Miss Blanche St. Alban and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson. She will tour the piece in the early spring with a company of well-known artists, together with renovated scenery and new properties. Miss Donovan will continue to play Grace; and Mr. C. Quinton Fulford, to whose hands the business-management will be entrusted, will enact Arnold.

IN pursuance of his project of making the way easy for productions at the West End without incurring heavy financial liabilities, Mr. Edward Michael now announces that he is in a position to let the Imperial Theatre for any period from a week to ten years. It will also be available for performances by societies, and, indeed, negotiations are now pending under which the Stage Society may give its February performances at this handsome house.

MR. AUSTIN MELFORD would seem to hold the record for having appeared in more plays from the pen of Mr. Hall Caine than any of his brother actors. He was the original Amos Drew, in The Good Old Times, produced at the Princess's by the late Wilson Barrett; he created the part of the Deemster, in Ben My Chree, at the same theatre, afterwards touring England and America as the Bishop in the same play; and, later, he appeared as Philip, in The Manxman, at the Lyric Theatre; also as Stephen Orry, in Mr. Barrett's version of The Bondman, produced in America. In the autumn of 1905 he played the Factor at Drury-lane; and last autumn his success as Father Ferrati, in The Bondman, was so marked that when he reappeared in the same part at the Adelphi on Saturday night, he received quite an ovation.

MISS NORA LANCASTER has had to refuse a very tempting offer to appear for two years as leading lady under Messrs. Williamson's management in Australia. Miss Lancaster, who is the daughter of the celebrated Miss Wallis (Mrs. Walter Reynolds), has given ample proof of accomplishments both inherited and acquired. During her brief career the young actress has been engaged by Mr. Forbes Robertson as juvenile leading lady; by Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree (on his last tour) for Ethel Newcome, and Miss Tree's rôle in Business is Business; and by the late Sir Henry Irving, who secured her services for two years, when she appeared as Beatrice in Dante at Drury Lane, and subsequently throughout his American and provincial tour, in Miss Lena Ashwell's part in Dante, and other rôles in his répertoire. Miss Lancaster, it will be remembered, quite captured Manchester as Galatea and Imogen in two of Mr. Flanagan's recent revivals, playing the latter rôle in the longest run of Cymbeline on record.

MISS MAUDE MAY MURRAY is making a great impression with her beautiful electrical dance in the pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Poplar. She is a pretty and graceful dancer, and her performance is certainly one of the best features in the pantomime.

MISS MURIEL WILFORD, who gave a season at the Comedy Theatre some time ago, has won great success in the United States, where she is appearing as Mrs. Sheldon in Clyde Fitch's play, Her Great Match.

MANY members of the theatrical profession will deeply regret to learn that Mr. Arthur Wheeler, for many years acting-manager at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, passed away on Thursday night (last week) as the result of a severe attack of pneumonia. Mr. Arthur Wheeler succeeded his grandfather as box-office keeper, eventually becoming acting-manager at the theatre, and on his retirement, in 1903, to undertake the control of the Colonnade Hotel, adjoining the theatre, he was accorded, by the kindness of Mr. H. Cecil Beryl, a complimentary benefit. The deceased gained many friends by his extreme courtesy and genial disposition. He leaves a widow and three young children to mourn his loss. His remains were interred at the Extra Mural Cemetery, Brighton, last Tuesday.

MR. CECIL DU GUE, who has recently concluded a successful tour in the title-rôle of Mr. Walter Reynold's play, Mr. Smith, has been specially engaged by Mr. Richard F. Symons to star as Sartorys (Frou-Frou), Armand (Camille), and other leads in his répertoire company.

A LARGE number of the artists appearing in the pantomime at Bath engaged a motor-'bus on Sunday, and made a trip to the charmingly-situated Roman Catholic College, at Downside Abbey, near Bath. The visitors were heartily welcomed by the reverend Abbot, who kindly entertained them to tea.

MR. FRED BURNS, the second son of Mr. Felix Burns, a well-known composer of dance music, has been appointed musical director of H.M. Theatre, Carlisle. Although only nineteen years of age, Mr. Burns has been for some time organist and choir-master of St. Bede Church, and several of his compositions are already highly popular.

MR. H. B. BRANDRETH, the enterprising manager of the Kennington Theatre, has the satisfaction of seeing the operatic pantomime, Humpty Dumpty, attracting as large houses as the weeks go by as at the opening performances. The pantomime has been judiciously pruned, with the result that it has gained in brightness. The cast has been strengthened by the inclusion of Mr. Fred Bowyer as Twinkle Star, and gives a really first-class impersonation. Mr. R. H. Douglass, the King, and Mr. Arthur Rigby, the Queen, are as amusing as ever, and in the railway scene, where they figure with Messrs. Moon and Morris, knockabout comedians, keep the house in roars. Miss Yvonne Lamor as Humpty, and Miss Georgina Middleton as Curly Locks, are even warmer favourites than at first. The songs and dances of the Crystals, who support the rôles of Jack and Jill, also continue to be enthusiastically acclaimed.

MR. JAMES WELCH will give Londoners an opportunity of sampling the new farcical play, When Knights were Bold, written by Charles Marlowe, at Wyndham's, on Tuesday, the 28th. The piece, which has already enjoyed a prosperous run of some three months in the provinces, was originally produced at Nottingham. Mr. Welch has a very funny part in that of a Baronet with modern inclinations, who is so pestered by the frequent allusions made to the past ages of knighthood that he has a dream in which he imagines that he is back in the days of Cœur de Lion. The dream forms the second act of the piece; but the third, in which the Baronet feigns madness, and thus cures his friends of their fondness for the days of old, is being rewritten.

ABOUT sixty members of the crew of the unfortunate Japanese mail steamer (Nippon Yusan Kaisha) Awa Maru, which is still lying stranded on the rocks at Redcar, accepted the invitation of Mr. Robert Arthur's acting-manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto, to witness the pantomime Little Cinderella at the Grand Theatre, Middlesbrough, on Monday. At the close of the performance the Japanese National Anthem was sung, the audience standing and applauding enthusiastically.

MISS FLORA HASTINGS (Mrs. R. R. Mill) has suffered a severe bereavement in the death of her husband, to whom she had been married but two years. She had left the stage, but is now compelled to return, and is anxiously seeking engagements.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES begins her tour of Nan and Tommy at Eastbourne on Thursday next. Brighton follows, and then Miss Hughes approaches the metropolis so near as Kingston. In the part of the delightful hoyden of Buckstone's comedy Miss Hughes is unexcelled, while her rôle in Mr. Jerome K. Jerome's play not only reveals that popular humorist at his best, but affords the charming actress opportunities for the display of the most admirable phases of her art.

MR. HARRY J. CRANE has been confined to his bed during the last four weeks with a severe attack of sciatica, against which he had struggled for months previously. Thanks to the unremitting care and attention of his medical adviser, he is now rapidly on the road to recovery, and hopes to be at work again very shortly.

MR. LUSCOMBE SEARELLE, we regret to learn, has been in a critical condition of health for the past fortnight at his rooms in Savoy Mansions. He has now nearly recovered, and was out for the first time on Wednesday. Through his illness, negotiations for the production of Mizpah had been suspended, but have now been renewed, and the probability is that the play will be produced on Easter Monday at a West End theatre.

"THE FORTY THIEVES" pantomime now running so successfully at Mr. Clarence Sounes' Prince's Theatre, Poplar, must shortly be withdrawn, owing to important bookings. From Monday next a second edition will be given, and this, together with the general brilliance of the production, will ensure for the remainder of the run a continuance of the excellent business this pantomime has been doing since its commencement on Boxing Day.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD'S Aladdin pantomime has been doing magnificent business at the Crystal Palace Theatre twice daily. As the business continues so good, Mr. Howard has decided to give two performances daily next week.

THE musical world has learnt with deep regret of the death of Mr. Edgar F. Jacques, who for many years has provided the analytical notes for the promenade and other concerts at Queen's Hall. Mr. Jacques, who was fifty-seven years of age, was of French descent, and settled in London as a pianoforte teacher and organist. Later he became editor of the Musical World and of the Musical Times. He has also lectured before the Royal Institution, the Royal Academy of Music, and the Musical Association.

MISS FLORENCE NELSON (Mrs. John A. Atkin) begs, through the medium of this column, to thank Mr. Fred Melville for his extreme kindness and generosity during and after her late husband's illness.

MISS MARY AUSTIN and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds have to all appearances secured another gold mine in Woman and Wine, which is breaking records everywhere. The Aquarium Theatre, Great Yarmouth, is being filled this week at early doors, which is the more remarkable considering that it is out of season. Special theatre trains are being run nightly from all surrounding districts.

THE West London pantomime, Sindbad, has proved even a bigger success than last year's Little Red Riding Hood. On several nights standing room has been at a premium, and last Saturday Mr. W. Bailey wished his theatre had been as large again, hundreds being turned away. Despite the crowded houses which have been the rule, Mr. Bailey has not relaxed his well-known charitable impulse, 200 aged male inmates of the Marylebone Workhouse having recently been enabled to witness an afternoon performance of the pantomime.

MR. H. CURLINE BALDRY has just concluded his third successful season as general-manager for Mr. David Taylor, at the Hippodrome, Tonypandy, South Wales, where for the last twelve weeks the inhabitants of the Rhondda Valley have been supplied with the finest talent money could procure. Mr. Baldry leaves Tonypandy with every good wish from his host of friends. His well-known tact and businesslike methods may be relied upon speedily to secure him an appointment.

THE Playgoers' Club are in no way relaxing their efforts for the entertainment of their members. The third Cinderella Dance of the season will take place at the Hotel Cecil on Monday, and the following Saturday Mr. Willie Clarkson will take the chair at the house dinner and concert in the Club Rooms. On Monday, Jan. 21, an informal debate on Antony and Cleopatra will be opened in the Club Rooms by Mr. Douglas Crichton; and on Sunday, the 27th, Mr. Joseph Litt will read a paper at the Hotel Cecil at eight p.m. on "Musical Comedy," with Mr. Louis Bradfield in the chair.

A "SUFFRAGETTE" verse, written by Arthur Elliot, and dropped into Arthurs and Scott's song "It's a different girl again"—a song which has proved the hit of every pantomime in Great Britain—has been the cause of some friction at Terry's Theatre. A gentleman prominently connected with the house, and who is evidently in sympathy with the votes-for-women movement, strongly objected to the particular verse and chorus, and the author-producer declared that if they were omitted the curtain would not rise. Happily the dispute has been amicably settled, and Miss Lily Harold, assisted by eight "Suffragettes" (who are afterwards dispersed by a pantomime policeman), is scoring strongly with this celebrated song.

MEMENTOS of Wagner are already attaining a high value. At a recent auction in Berlin the original score of the famous "Schuster-lied," from Die Meistersinger, was bid up to £130, while a collection of about twenty letters to the operasinger, Franz Betz, realised £70.

MISS ISABEL JAY has been retained for the title-rôle of Mr. Paul Rubens' new musical play, Miss Hook of Holland, which is to follow The Vicar of Wakefield, whose last days at the Prince of Wales's are imminent. The date of the production will, in all probability, be Jan. 31. Mr. G. P. Huntley has been allotted the part of the heroine's father.

MR. R. H. MORGAN, a South American impresario, is in London booking companies. A vast field for dramatic exploitation offers itself in the Southern portion of the New World as well as in the North, and to those who possess the right quality success should inevitably lie in wait.

MR. EDOUARD JOSE has just returned from the Cape after a successful three years' engagement with Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler as general manager of their South African enterprises. He has permitted himself no cessation in his activities, and has already started negotiations for several companies to visit South America.

BARON H. HARRISS, whose second tour of The Prince of Pilsen promises to eclipse the successes of his former one, may be said to be reaping the reward of his own acute observation and sound judgment. When witnessing the production of this latest American musical comedy at the Shaftesbury Theatre his practised eye at once detected where a few judicious alterations would give it an added attraction for English audiences, and the consequence is that several numbers the interest of which was solely transatlantic have been replaced by items of a nature which appeal more to the general public, and the stage costumes constitute the dernier cri in dainty creations from the ateliers of Regent-street and the Rue de la Paix. Baron Harriss, who, by the way, has large interests in several London and provincial ventures, has been invited to open the New Bridlington Spa Theatre with The Prince of Pilsen company.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN, who has been spending the last three weeks shooting in the West of England, was one of the guests at the Gloucester County Hunt Ball last week. Mr. Norman is now paying a visit to the South of England, but will shortly return to the Western Counties to appear at several charity performances in aid of the Cheltenham and Gloucester Hospitals. Mr. Norman will commence his spring tour in February.

M. GEORGES TROUILLOT, former Minister of Commerce and Industry and also of the Colonies of France, delivered an interesting address on Thursday afternoon before a distinguished audience, including H.R.H. Princess Christian, Commander Huguot, of the French Embassy, Consul-General Auzcoy, Lady Ardilain, the Hon. Mrs. Orry, and Sir Thomas and Lady Brooke Hitching. It was the occasion of the inauguration of the new premises of the Berlitz Schools of Languages (at 321, Oxford-street), of which Her Royal Highness Princess Christian is a pupil, in addition to other members of Royalty at home and abroad. M. Trouillot maintained that the teaching of the French and English languages holds the foremost position over any other, and dilated upon the bond of friendship and the "entente cordiale" thus encouraged. The Minister concluded an eloquent address, which was delivered in French, by congratulating all those who laboured in the cause of languages, and, therefore, he considered, in the spread of universal peace and the proper understanding between the various nations.

No fewer than thirty plays dealing with Faust are on record, the first being Christopher Marlowe's, which was written in 1588. In Mr. W. G. Wills's famous version at the Lyceum in 1885 the late Sir Henry Irving was Mephistopheles, Mr. George Alexander the hero, and Miss Ellen Terry Margaret.

AT the Amateur Players' Association, 92, Victoria-street, on Wednesday evening an address on "The Possibilities of the One-Act Play" will be delivered by Mr. F. D. Bone. On the same occasion a one-act play entitled Lizzie Epathalie, by Mr. Sabben Clare, will be produced by Mr. Ernest Mayer in illustration of the lecture.

UNDER the auspices of the Social-Democratic Federation, at the Chandos Hall, Maiden-lane, this evening, a dramatic recital of Samuel Taylor Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner" will be given by Mr. H. S. Dymond Stuckey. The reading will be illustrated by lantern views and will be supplemented by vocal and instrumental music.

"THE MORALS OF MARCUS" have made a great impression at Buda-Pesth, where, under the title of Mirza, the successful Garrick play has just been produced at the Municipal Theatre. The leading local journal prophesies that it will enjoy as great a popularity as Trilby achieved at the same theatre. For his forthcoming matinées of Macbeth at the Garrick Mr. Bourchier has engaged Mr. Cyril Keightley to play the part of Macduff, Mr. Matheson Lang being obliged to take up a previous engagement to play Othello in to-night's revival at Manchester.

THE Queen's Theatre, Liverpool, on Thursday evening held a brilliant audience, the occasion being the holding of a benefit in aid of the Building Fund of the new Children's Infirmary, which institution was that day opened by H.R.H. the Duchess of Albany. The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress occupied a private box, and all the stalls, of which there were several extra rows, and the circle were filled by prominent citizens. In addition to Mr. Lingford Carson's charming pantomime Babes in the Wood, items were given by a host of local artists, while as many of the workers at the neighbouring theatres as could get away hastened to offer their services. The management of the theatre (Messrs. Carson and Kendall) have guaranteed £200 towards the most worthy object.

THE late Sir Henry De Bathe was buried at West Stoke, near Chichester, on Wednesday. Among the floral tributes laid upon the grave in the little churchyard were wreaths from Mr. and Mrs. Bourchier and Mr. Weedon Grossmith.

THE municipal theatre at Lemberg was the scene of an alarming uproar on the occasion of the first performance of a comedy entitled We. The Socialists present protested against the tendencies of the piece, which deals with the revolutionary fights in Russian Poland, and represents the Socialists as Anarchists and murderers. During the performance of the piece there was loud shouting and hissing; crackers, thrown into the parterre, exploded and produced a panic; and finally the play had to be interrupted and the theatre emptied, several arrests being effected.

SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE has selected a comprehensive list of subjects for his forthcoming lectures. The first, to be delivered on Jan. 15 at Gresham Hall, relates to "Pelham Humfrey and his Music," the second deals with "French Violinists of the Seventeenth Century," the third is descriptive of "Rameau's Operas," and the last will concern one of Palestrina's contemporaries, Jakob Händl, who was born in 1550 and died in 1591. The last three of these lectures will be given at the City of London School. Sir Frederick, it may be added, has recently compiled a book giving the birthdays of prominent musicians, with Shakespeare quotations.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

At the recent Savoyard dinner at the Hotel Cecil, there was a good deal of reminiscence, chiefly of an anecdotic nature. The following incident, which occurred during the reign of Pinafore, may, perhaps, be added to the collection. There had been a quarrel between two ladies of the chorus, followed by a rather emotional scene; and one of the pair complained to the management. Mr. Gilbert was present when the case was tried, and his trained legal mind applied itself at once to obtaining evidence. "You say she insulted you," said the author of Trial by Jury. "What was it that she said?" "She said"—— sobbed the lady, "she said"——' "Well, what did she say?" "She said I was no better than I should be!" "But are you?" asked the interlocutor. "Yes, I am!" was the passionate reply. "My dear young lady," said Mr. Gilbert, soothingly, "don't worry. You can easily alter that."

The Daily Mail, in its issue of last Tuesday, said:—"Under shelter of the fact that England is not an adherent of the Berne Copyright Convention, German dramatic authors and theatre directors are engaged in wholesale piracy of English novels capable of dramatisation." There is an error here; England signed the Berne Convention, and is a member of what is known as the Copyright Union. At the same time, we have no doubt that German dramatic authors are doing what English dramatic authors have been held to have the right to do, namely, to dramatise a novel written by a British subject and copyrighted by that subject. It was stated by Lord Hatherley, in the case of Tinsley v. Lacy, that the only way in which an author can prevent other persons from representing as a drama the whole, or any part, of his composition, is himself to publish the work in the form of a drama, and so bring himself within the scope of dramatic copyright. Undoubtedly, this is a grave omission in our copyright laws. In our opinion, if a man writes a novel or a story and duly protects it here, it should carry with it the right of dramatisation; but as shown in the case of Tinsley v. Lacy, this is not so. The convention gives British subjects the same protection as they would have had in their own country; and as the English Government does not look after the rights of its subjects in this particular, it can hardly be expected that foreign dramatists will do so.

The reception given to Mr. John Masefield's ghastly little play, The Campden Wonder, at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon was not encouraging to the purveyors of horrors à la Théâtre Libre. The audience simply gasped at the conclusion; and if the author's desire was to horrify he certainly succeeded It must be owned, however, that the impression was created, not by physical, but by moral means. No murder is actually committed; and the awful thing about the piece is the insensibility and obduracy of the monster, who not only gets his brother and his mother hung, but goes to the gallows himself, and all in order to injure his brother, of whom the wretch is jealous because he—the brother—is getting two shillings a week more wages than is earned by the unnatural ruffian. The real case, which was tried at Campden, in Gloucestershire, in 1660, was full of mysteries. John Perry, the servant of the missing man, first protested his innocence, then implicated his mother and brother, and finally retracted his confession. The missing man turned up two years after the execution, with a romantic excuse for his absence.

In Mr. George Broadhurst's play, The Man of the Hour, which has scored a distinct success at the Savoy Theatre, New York, the principal characters are supposed to represent certain leading local politicians. Here are two passages from the play:—"The woods are full of indictments and investigations and subpoenas, but I notice there's damned few rich men in jail to-day." "When I bury the hatchet with him his head'll go with it." At the beginning of the piece a political "boss" enters into a "deal" with a railroad magnate to get a Franchise Bill passed, and his first question is, "How does it interest me?" "I'll carry fifteen thousand shares to your private account," is the answer. "In two days there'll be a jump of twenty-five points, and you can clean up $275,000 profit." This, however, is not enough for the "boss." "That's all I get," he retorts, "while you are making millions.

The tailor at times comes nobly to the help of the aspiring actor. The other day, a comedian, whose engagements had hitherto been in the minor theatres and the provinces, was "secured" for a special part at an aristocratic London theatre. He had been "resting" for some time, and his chance of being able to pay a big bill which he owed to his tailor had seemed hopeless. It was, however, absolutely necessary that he should appear well clad at the theatre; so he went to his sartorial creditor, and laid the case frankly before him. "But Mr. Blank," said the tailor, "your bill is already——" "Oh, yes, I know; but this is your only chance," replied the actor. "I am engaged on trial at £12 a week. Can you make me a frock coat as good as George Alexander's?" "Certainly, Mr. Blank, I can; but——" "Then do me a morning suit, and I shall probably be re-engaged on the strength of it. And then——" The tailor gave a great gulp, and made the plunge. "I'll do it!" he said; and he did it. Instead of the rather "rorty" individual whom the company at the West-end had expected to see, they were astonished by the arrival at rehearsal of a dandy of the first water, irreproachably clad. The re-engagement was secured, and the tailor got his money—or, at least, part of it.

The late Joe Eldred's theatrical management was a continual struggle, but he was never a "bogus" manager. "How are you, Joe?" a friend enquired of him one Saturday afternoon. "Oh," was the cheerful reply, "I've had a rotten week; but thank God, I've paid the cuckoos (the company) full up!" He was "very short" one treasury day, with only a ten-pound note to meet a twenty-pound bill; so he cut the note neatly in half, and, going to a friend, said: "Here's a nice look out! A man who owes me a 'tenner' sends me half of it to-day—for 'safety,' as he says—and is sending the other half to-morrow!" "Oh," said the good-natured friend, "give me the half-note, and I'll give you a ten-pound note for it. You can give me the other half to-morrow." This was done, and Joe then took the other half of his note to another friend, and obtained another ten. After performance at night, he honourably paid the money back to both.

On one occasion, through expensive litigation and the loss of a law suit, he was in imminent danger of arrest. He was playing in York, and, on the last night of the week's engagement, about ten o'clock two officers of the law gained entrance behind the scenes for the purpose of obtaining possession of Joseph's body. The bailiffs were received with effusion, and, being ushered into his dressing-room, were treated with lavish hospitality. Brandies and sodas, with cigars, were the order of the night, while Joe went on playing Quilp in The Old Curiosity Shop, which piece, to the wonder of the actors and audience, seemed unnecessarily prolonged. At last the curtain fell, the Minster clock tolled the hour of twelve, and Joseph dressed to go home. "I've got a cab waiting, Mr. Eldred," said the chief officer, as the trio passed the stage-door and gained the street. "Cab! What for?" said the actor innocently. "Why," replied the officer, "I've a warrant for your arrest." "Oh, nonsense," said Joseph. "You cannot arrest me; it's Sunday!"

ACTORS' DAY.

GENERAL MEETING AND REPORT.

Sir Squire Bancroft presided over a meeting of actors and actresses at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday afternoon convened for the purpose of hearing the report of the organising committee of the Actors' Day scheme, and of confirming the appointment of an advisory board. Sir Squire was supported by Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Laurence Irving, Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, Mr. William Devereux, Mr. Cecil Raleigh, Mr. Aubrey Smith, Mr. Brandon Thomas, Mr. Cecil Barth, Mr. Acton Bond, and Mr. Charles Cruickshanks. There was a goodly assemblage of members of the profession of both sexes occupying seats in the auditorium.

The Chairman, in opening the proceedings, said: It is my first duty to state that I have received telegrams and letters, expressing regret at inability to be present and sympathising with the objects of the meeting, from Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. John Hare, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. Norman McKinnel, Mr. John Hart, Mr. Chute, of Bristol, and others. I will only briefly say that with all my heart I commend this fund to your generosity and your sympathy, to your wisdom and your sense of justice. In spite of the stumblings of its baby footsteps, if properly nurtured and if strongly upheld I truly hope and I firmly believe that Actors' Day Fund is destined to be a means of destroying much of the misery that is common to our own as to every other calling. I shall now call upon Mr. Arthur Bourchier to remind us of the history of the scheme.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier said: Barely a month ago it was my privilege to be present at a meeting at the Garrick Theatre which I think I can describe as one of those meetings that mark a red-letter day in the history of the British stage. Two things must have impressed themselves upon the public—the dignity and unity of the profession. That is the keynote which Actors' Day is striving at. At the meeting referred to we were all there to worship at the shrine of the memory of the greatest actor, Sir Henry Irving, in whose mind the idea of Actors' Day originated. Sir Henry once said that if only we could get enough money to put all our charities into one great institution, enormous benefits would accrue. It was eventually suggested that there should be an annual matinée, the proceeds of which should be given in aid of Actors' Day. Well, some time ago two of our most brilliant youngsters suddenly hurled upon us the Actors' Union, and they rushed to me for counsel. I said, "Let us ring up all the other managers and people in London," and when I tried to do so I found they were all out. The youthful twain then said, "What are we to do?" Finally I suggested that one night in the year be set apart for the purpose of the Actors' Day Fund. Mr. Tree, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Maude, and myself were asked if we would meet the Council of the Actors' Association. We agreed to do so, and at the meeting it was decided that a letter indicative of something in the nature of Actors' Day should be sent out to the profession to ask if they would support it. The result was that Actors' Day began last October. It came from the hearts of the profession, and the heads of the profession were very willing to give their heads to those hearts. I believe that a very satisfactory start has been made. We did not meet with any opposition, but unfortunately we had renegades to deal with. There were people who signed the papers who have since absolutely defaulted. Whatever may be the initial difficulties and differences of opinion, I feel sure that the dignity of the profession will only be served by everybody supporting the scheme in its infancy.

Mr. A. E. Drinkwater, in submitting the report of the Organising Committee of Actors' Day Fund, said: In presenting a report on behalf of the Organising Committee of the Actors' Day, I propose to be very brief, and give a statement of facts only. Before the appointed date we had 2,214 promises of support. In estimating the probable results from this number of individual promises, allowance had to be made for those who were out of England at the time, and for those who might not be in engagements on Actors' Day. After careful examination, I find that about 40 per cent. must be deducted on account of one or other of these causes. This reduces the effective number to about 1,300. Of these 1,300 who may be estimated to have been playing on Oct. 18, there are many whose contributions are not yet to hand. Some 300 who were not on the register have sent in their contributions, and have since been added. Deducting these from the total number of contributions received, I find that about 33 per cent. of those who may be estimated to have been playing have yet to make good their undertaking, and the committee hope that they will do so as soon as possible. It is, so far, satisfactory to know that contributions are still coming in. There are several reasons for the fact that the full number does not appear on the list of subscribers. The committee gratefully acknowledge the cordial assistance they have received from a large number of managers and acting-managers; at the same time, they regret that some did not give the members of the companies the same facilities for sending in their contributions in one combined sum. They hope, however, that next year this difficulty will be removed, and that we shall be able to count on the co-operation of all concerned. This difficulty, however, has, at any rate, shown the interest of a large number of actors in Actors' Day. It should, I think, be recorded to the credit of, especially a large number of the rank and file playing in the country, that where this difficulty has arisen they have themselves sent in their individual contributions. The total amount received to date is £1469 2s. 1d. It will, I think, be satisfactory for everyone to know that all preliminary expenses were met by a guarantee fund, privately subscribed by members of the council of the Actors' Association. I hope, too, it will be satisfactory to all subscribers to know that careful economy has been exercised throughout. We have been working at the scheme for about a year and a half. At times there have been large correspondence to be dealt with and various notices to be sent out to all theatres and companies. To cope with this, the services of typewriters have been, from time to time, called in, but the cost of this, under £25, is the total amount of the expenses incurred, with, of course, the exception of actual out-of-pocket expenses covering printing, postages, stationery, &c. The committee realised from the first the great difficulties that would attend the carrying out of their scheme. They could not hope that they would, in such a complex experiment, be able to hit at once, in all cases, on the effective means of meeting the many difficulties that inevitably arose; but they have done their best under the circumstances. They have found out in what directions their difficulties lay; and, believing, as they do, that the Actors' Day will ultimately be an institution recognised and loyally supported by all actors and actresses, they are resolved to do all in their power to secure, in the future, its complete success.

Mr. Cecil Raleigh, in supporting the report, stated that for the future their watchwords should be "self-respect, self-reliance, and unity." They did not want the patronage of Dives, but they did want a united Lazarus. He thought it worthy of mention that the idea of a universal matinée in aid of Actors' Day originated in the brain of the late Mr. Edgar Bruce, and was subsequently mooted by Mr. Lestocq. On the computation that there were 250 places of amusement in England to-day—although he understood that the exact number was 260—and say that each collected £50 once a year, that would result in an aggregate of £12,500. Or even supposing that only £25 from each theatre was netted, that would mean an annual total of £6,250, with which sum an enormous amount of good could be done. After various schemes had been considered, the conclusion was arrived at that the best method of obtaining money was to have a night performance, and it was hoped that the members of the profession would combine in carrying out the project. They should unite all their charities. Mr. Tree had written them a letter inquiring as to what was intended in regard to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, but it was most earnestly to be hoped that Mr. Tree and his company would not withhold their subscriptions. As to the manner of dealing with the old funds, they should remember that they had appointed an advisory board who would give to the subject of the distribution of the funds the utmost consideration. Let the Actors' Day scheme go on, and in the fulness of time there would come a perfect system of distribution.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree stated that as Mr. Raleigh had referred to him he would take up the points that gentleman had raised. He was not opposed to the scheme, and he would join with his confrères in anything that would tend to the increased respect in which their profession was held. He thought they should do away with all public appeals, including the dinners, and he was in favour of the fusion of all the funds. They were all much indebted to the gentlemen on the committee who had given so much of their time to the subject of Actors' Day. He himself came there in a spirit of humble inquiry and not of opposition, and there was a great number of actors and actresses in the same position. He had sent a little instalment of £25 to Mr. Drinkwater, but before contributing further he felt he would like to know in what manner the fund was to be distributed and in what proportion the various existing theatrical funds were to benefit. It was his intention, with the help of his company, shortly to give a special matinée for the theatrical funds. Concluding, Mr. Tree said that it was only by understanding difficulties beforehand that they were able to overcome them, and if the advisory committee had made up their minds as to the distribution of the funds, the money already received would be more than doubled at the next Actors' Day collections.

Mr. George Alexander remarked that when the subject of Actors' Day was mooted last year it created an extraordinary amount of enthusiasm throughout the profession, and now Actors' Day was an accomplished fact. Mr. Raleigh had referred to the matinée scheme, and it should be pointed out that that touched the pockets of the public and of the manager. Many members of the profession had expressed themselves willing to give up a certain amount of money, and the other people who had not done so could at least come forward with their ideas and submit them to the advisory board. He could assure his hearers that this great scheme would prove of lasting and beneficial service. A large number of artists earning small salaries in the country had responded nobly, and that was the example all should follow. The question of the disposition of the fund should surely be left in the hands of the ambassadors they had appointed that day. Mr. Tree had expressed the wish that all the theatrical funds should be rolled into one, and it could be pointed out that the materialisation of that wish would mean a considerable saving of money. The Actors' Day advisory board would occupy a similar position to that of King Edward's Hospital Fund board, and actors could, in sending their subscriptions, allocate them to any charity they liked.

Mr. Laurence Irving considered that Actors' Day was the best, the most righteous, and most necessary scheme that had ever been placed before the theatrical world. And yet what a vast army of eager but shallow-hearted ladies and gentlemen had promised their support but withheld their money! What a thing it would be to see actors and actresses working in unity! It seemed to him that this scheme offered every possible motive for welding them all into one united body. They all ought to pledge themselves to do everything in their power to make the first anniversary of Actors' Day reap a much better harvest than had been announced that afternoon. A writer had recently stated that the literature read by actors was confined to newspaper notices about themselves, and that they were selfish. Let them show that that was untrue, and let them also prove that they were capable of concerted action for the common good

Mr. Edward Terry stated that Actors' Day was to be the means of collecting a large amount of money to assist their other funds, and it was not intended to operate to the detriment of any existing theatrical charity. A suggestion had been made by someone that one of the objects of Actors' Day fund should be the lending of money. He would reply to that by saying that every Thursday he and his fellow members on the committee of the A.B.F. lent from £60 to £90, and there was no need to start another loan fund. He himself was very much interested in the Royal General Theatrical Fund, which was an admirable provident institution open to the lesser members of the profession, and only a small subscription was asked.

Mr. Terry then read out the list of names of gentlemen constituting the advisory board. These were Mr. Blake Adams, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Oscar Asche, Mr. Allan Aynesworth, Mr. Alfred Bishop, Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Alfred Denville, Mr. Kenneth Douglas, Mr. Laurence Irving, Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, and Mr. Sidney Valentine.

In reply to a question it was pointed out that seven of these were members of the Actors' Association and four were not.

The Chairman then moved the adoption of the report, which was carried unanimously.

Mr. Hayden Coffin proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. George Alexander for the use of his theatre, and Mr. Aubrey Smith, in seconding, paid a high compliment to Mr. A. E. Drinkwater for his labours in connection with the organising work of Actors' Day fund.

A vote of thanks to Sir Squire Bancroft for presiding concluded the proceedings.

THE ACTORS' DAY MEETING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It is to be regretted that lack of time at the "Actors' Day" meeting at the St. James's Theatre prevented a vote of thanks being accorded Mr. A. E. Drinkwater. I feel sure this was the unanimous sentiment of all present in appreciation of the patience, care, and time so ungrudgingly given by him in the good cause.—Yours faithfully, IVAN BERLYN.

The Actors' Association, Jan. 10.

The play to follow La Vierge d'Avila, now running at the Théâtre Sarah-Bernhardt, Paris will be Les Bouffons, by M. Zamacois. The scene is laid in 1557, during the reign of Henry II., when kings and nobles engaged jesters to amuse them. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt will impersonate the rôle of a chivalrous youth, and the great actress is delighted with her part.

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—Last week you stated that Miss Fraser Brunner was supporting me in Her Last Dance. This was an error, of which the fault was mine.—Yours faithfully, H. Naylor Grimson.

"THE REFORMER."

A very Light Comedy, in Three Acts, by Cyril Harcourt, Produced at the Court Theatre, at a Matinée, on Tuesday, Jan. 8.

Sir Rupert Yeld	Mr. Allan Aynesworth
The Earl of Crowborough	Mr. Sydney Brough
General Carew	Mr. O. B. Clarence
Captain Reginald Ross	Mr. John L. Mackay
Eric Lowndes	Mr. Hubert Harben
Thomas	Mr. Edmund Gwenn
Ferrers	Mr. Allan Wade
Mrs. Rockingham	Miss Eva Moore
Sybil Carew	Miss June Van Buskirk

It is sometimes the happy fate of the schoolboy, when summoned to a private interview in the head-master's room, to receive, instead of the expected lecture, a cake from home. Something of the same experience was enjoyed at the Court Theatre on Tuesday. We always go to the Sloane-square establishment prepared to be serious, or, at any rate, to take our diversion in some quaint and superior way. But there is nothing cryptic or eccentric about The Reformer. It is an amusing and agreeable comedy, with just a pretence at social philosophy. As the American complained of "Paradise Lost," it "proves nothing"; but the hearty laughter which it evoked on Tuesday afternoon showed that it appealed to an audience amongst which were many members of the profession. There is just a hint of ethics at the outset—enough to excuse the production of the play at the Court. Toleration, always toleration, is the lesson taught by the philosopher of the piece, Sir Rupert Yeld. He is supposed to be very immoral; he is certainly extremely plausible. In act one, Eric Lowndes, an eligible young man, is "discovered" making love to an attractive young lady named Sybil Carew; and she gives him her photograph, with her signature attached. Then appears on the scene Mrs. Rockingham, a smart and lively widow, who is engaged to the Earl of Crowborough, a hearty but dense young nobleman, who is a lukewarm partner in the arrangement. Mrs. Rockingham is a clever, ambitious woman, who thinks that an affectation of severe morality will help her to make a position for herself in society; and so she has resolved to ostracise several notorious roués by excluding them from her assemblies. One of the offenders, says Mrs. Rockingham, is Eric Lowndes, who once, when she was still a married woman, wanted her to elope with him. When Miss Sybil hears this she determines to have no more to do with the culprit, and entrusts Sir Rupert Yeld with a commission to get back her photograph. Sir Rupert is himself one of those whom Mrs. Rockingham has resolved to ignore, and in an amusing scene he exposes her pretences, analyses her motives and character, and ends by giving her a smacking kiss on the mouth. Mrs. Rockingham is highly indignant, and declares war to the knife with him. So ends the first act.

In the second we have the spectacle of the Earl of Crowborough chafing under his engagement, and longing to be off and away to shoot tigers in Bengal with his friend, Captain Reginald Ross. Lowndes's example and encouragement, however, hold the Earl to his allegiance. Sir Rupert interviews Eric, and makes demand for the photograph, and Lowndes is so completely taken aback by this example of female fickleness that he resolves to go tiger-shooting himself, drawing with him in his change of plan, Crowborough, who writes a letter to Mrs. Rockingham breaking off their engagement, and prepares to leave for India.

In the last act, Yeld, who is really in love with the widow, continues his calm, but sage and determined proceedings. He persuades Sybil that Lowndes's fault is not unforgiveable—it is eventually ascertained that it was another person of the same name who wanted Mrs. Rockingham to elope—and sends a "wire" which brings back the young man from Dover. When Mrs. Rockingham realises that she has been jilted by Crowborough she is furious; but Yeld suggests that she shall marry him, and pretends that it was she who threw over the Earl. After slight demur she consents, and the play ends. A testy old General, with the hobby of correcting his manservant's pronunciation, supplies the "comic relief."

The production was notable for the very fine comedy performances given by Mr. Allan Aynesworth and Miss Eva Moore, in the principal parts. Mr. Aynesworth, who on this occasion wore a very becoming beard, enacted Sir Rupert Yeld with admirable point, polish, and repose, and gave the fullest value to the cool cleverness of the philosophic man-of-the-world. Miss Eva Moore made the most fascinating of smart widows, and played the part with the spontaneous naturalness, delicate finish, and bright humour which she has accustomed us to expect from her. Mr. Sydney Brough had a rôle which suited him down to the ground in that of the Duke of Crowborough, and treated it in a broad and droll way that was irresistible. Mr. O. B. Clarence's "natty" style and ultra-clear enunciation helped him to make the accurate and irritable General Carew very amusing; and Mr. Edmund Gwenn was very comical and characteristic as Thomas. Mr. John L. Mackay was entirely efficient as the easy-going Nimrod, Captain Reginald Ross; and Mr. Hubert Harben was duly earnest and ardent as Eric Lowndes. Mr. Allan Wade did useful work as Ferrers; and Miss June Van Buskirk played Sybil Carew easily and pleasantly. The Reformer, which was very well received, was followed by a play in three scenes, by John Masefield, performed for the first time, and entitled

"THE CAMPDEN WONDER."

Mrs. Harrison	Miss Dolores Drummond
The Parson	Mr. Edmund Gurney
Mrs. Perry	Miss Carlotta Addison
John Perry	Mr. Norman McKinnel
Richard Perry	Mr. H. R. Hignett
Tom Constable	Mr. Norman Page

Value will doubtless be claimed for The Campden Wonder on the ground of its being a "slice out of life." There are, no doubt, instances on record of crimes committed with inducements which seem, to the ordinary person, absurdly inadequate, and that of John Perry in Mr. Masefield's piece is one of these. The villain's motive is simply hatred of his brother, because the latter is a sober, decent fellow, while John is a blackguard and a drunkard. A farmer named Harrison is in the habit of making long absences from home, and John, in order to bring his brother down, swears that his mother, Richard, and himself have murdered Harrison between them. On this evidence they are all three condemned to be hanged, John holding out to the last with brutal obstinacy. There is an awesome effect in the prison, when the trio, after an agonising scene, are led off to execution; and then in comes Mrs. Harrison, with the news that her husband is very much alive, having simply been "gallivanting" at Gloucester. Unfortunately, the good lady has mistaken the date of the execution, and comes just too late to save the innocent from death. A memorable performance was given by Mr. Norman McKinnel in the rôle of John Perry. Mr. McKinnel's impersonation of the immovable monster was terribly convincing, and the house was hushed as John Perry growled out his strong, sullen, obdurate utterances. Mr. McKinnel's facial play was admirable throughout, and his whole reading of the character was quite powerful and predominating. Mr. H. R. Hignett gave a vigorously expressive embodiment of Richard Perry; and Miss Dolores Drummond's comedy talent was once more displayed as the spirited and loquacious Mrs. Harrison. Mr. Edmund Gurney made the best of an unthankful task as a prosy parson; and Miss Carlotta Addison was unimpeachably excellent as Mrs. Perry, her acting in the prison scene being particularly pathetic. Mr. Norman Page was satisfactory as Tom Constable. A word of gratitude is due to the very agreeable entr'acte music provided by Mr. Theodore Stier and his orchestra.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Thursday, Jan. 10.—This has been a quiet week, and M. Francis Robin, who has just opened his small playhouse, Le Trétau Royal, has seized this opportune moment to bring out a few small sketches that found favour with the fashionable audience that crowded the place. La Traite des Planches is an amusing trifle by MM. André Barde and Jack d'Avise. Lilette, having discovered that her husband has a mistress, a young actress, decides to join the profession, and applies to a shady agency to secure her an engagement. She has some unpleasant adventures, is grossly insulted by a low fellow, a member of a third-rate company, and returns to her husband cured of her desire to shine in public. Her husband breaks off his liaison, and both have profited by the lesson. The authors have drawn a capital picture of this agency, where the naïve Lilette is made to sing risqué songs of which she fails to understand the meaning.

The second piece, Octave, is from the pen of MM. Yves Mirande and Géroule. When the curtain rises we see Octave lying on his bed. He rubs his eyes, yawns, and notices with surprise that he is in evening dress. Did he come home so drunk that he was unable to undress? He wants to know the time, but his watch is gone. So is his money, his ring, and scarfpin. He looks around him, and sees other things that startle him—flowers and funeral wreaths around the bed and candles on the table; on his writing-table letters on black-edged paper. He opens one of these, and reads that he is to be buried the next day. He is believed to be dead! And he smiles grimly when he perceives that his valet has clothed him in his old dress suit, having no doubt kept the new one for himself. Hearing voices on the stairs, he throws himself on the bed and closes his eyes. The door opens, and his mistress enters, followed by an undertaker's man. He has bequeathed her all his money, and he has to listen how the woman haggles with the man, and insists on everything being done as cheaply as possible. She even bargains over the tombstone. And all these details being satisfactorily settled, she falls into the arms of Octave's friend, Henri, and arranges to live with him in a little country house. After they have left the room Octave jumps off the bed. He has heard enough, and the curtain drops. This lugubrious farce, excellently played by M. Le Gallo, raised roars of laughter.

"L'Ete de la Caumartin," the little revue that concluded the night's entertainment, was fairly amusing. The principal dramatists, artists, and politicians come in for their share of chaff, and Mlle. Franville made a big hit with her capital imitations of Mme. Jeanne Granier, Miss Crampton, Mlle. Lavallière, &c. Some of the jokes are, perhaps, somewhat spiteful, but people caricatured in a revue are not expected to show themselves too thin-skinned.

Mlle. Astral has not abandoned litigation concerning La Savelli, the play now running successfully at the Réjane Theatre. The lady playwright obtained from a judge sitting in chambers an order for the seizure of the prompter's copy of the play, with the view to proving that M. Max Maurey's version of M. Gilbert Augustin Thierry's novel is an infringement of the rights of dramatisation granted her several years ago by M. Thierry. The manuscript was duly "seized" from the prompter's hands by a police commissary, and sealed by an officer of the Paris Courts, over which M. Ditte presides. A further order of the Court decreed the breaking of the seals, and when this had been done in the presence of a formidable array of legal luminaries,, Mlle. Astral's counsel, M. Philippe, argued that the manuscript did not correspond with the play as performed at the Théatre Réjane. On M. Philippe's application, M. Ditte ordered M. Baitry to proceed to the theatre with a competent staff of stenographers, and to place before the Court a verbatim report of the words actually uttered on the stage.

Following Mme. Lina Cavalieri's example, another music-hall star intends to go over to the "regular" stage. Mlle. Jane Dancrey, the graceful dancer, has a delightful voice, which for the last two years she has carefully trained, and she will make her final bow to the manager of the Folies-Bergère, with whom she is on the best of terms, because, as she asserts, he never takes off his hat when speaking to a lady. Mlle. Dancrey will appear at the Moulin-Rouge in a lyric comedy by M. Paul Ferrier, for which M. Hirchman has written the music, and afterwards she will give us an opportunity of applauding her in La Vie de Bohème and Cavalleria. We wish this clever artist, known to London audiences, every success.

Miss Lawler, who made such a successful début in a revue at the Scala, again appeared in public, but this time as defendant before the Justice of the Peace of the 9th District. She was summoned by Mme. Evrard, one of the dressers at La Scala. The first thing the plaintiff complained of was that Miss Lawler had made use of bad language, had applied to her the name of a quadruped with two humps, and had closed a long string of epithets with the famous monosyllable that has come down to us from the battle of Waterloo. Nor is this all. According to Mme. Evard, Miss Lawler even went so far as to hit her in her "stomachs." The latter statement created much sensation in Court, and the public felt inclined to look upon Mme. Evrard as a phenomenon, when it dawned upon them that this lady must have been thinking of the before-mentioned quadruped when she gave these particulars. Miss Lawler indignantly denied the charge. Mme. Evrard, she said, refused to to help her dressing, whereupon she "gave her a bit of her mind," but without making use of the incriminated words. As to the assault, Miss Lawler asserted it was a wicked story. She admitted having pushed the dresser out of her room, but in a gentle manner. Both parties having called their witnesses, the judge awarded Mme. Evrard £4 damages. "That's £2 per stomach," remarked the usher of the Court under his breath.

M. Le Bargy having divorced his wife, Mme. Simone Le Bargy, the question arises under what name that lady will in future appear before the public. Other actresses before her have divorced, but they always took care to add their own name to that of their husbands. When Mme. Sarah Bernhardt lost her husband, M. Damala, or when Mme. Simon-Girard ceased to be Mme. Max, the public did not notice any change on the bills. With Mme. Le Bargy it is different. When she married the great sociétaire of the Comédie-Française she became his pupil, and was glad to be engaged at the Gymnase under a name so well known. To-day she repents her imprudence. Having in a short time won fame with the public who know her as Mme. Le Bargy, it is not pleasant for her to have to adopt a pseudonym. Fortunately, the public will always recognise her under no matter what disguise, and several of our managers have already made her tempting offers. Thus, M. Guitry is preparing in her honour a revival of La Femme de Claude; and M. Samuel, the Variétés manager, is willing to pay he ra gigantic salary if she will accept a rôle in Le Grand Casimir...

On Saturday next our Fine Arts Ministry will decide who is to succeed M. Pedro Gailhard in the management of the Opéra. M. Aristide Briand is anxious to secure M. Carré, and to replace him at the Opéra-Comique by M. Porel. This combination, however, presents serious financial difficulties, and it is therefore not imporbable that M. Messager and M. Broussan will become joint directors of our first lyric stage.

MEMORIES OF BELLE BILTON.

BY ONE WHO KNEW HER.

That Miss Belle Bilton (the late Lady Clancarty) commenced her professional career in the music halls, as has been generally reported, is a mistake. It was in the February of 1881 that she and her sister Flo first appeared at Elliot Galer's Theatre, Reading, in the chorus of the children's Les Cloches de Corneville company. The proprietor of this combination was the late Charles Bernard, although his first wife was really the owner of the company, and out of her private means financed it, in addition to making all the dresses and taking a loving interest in the venture. Following Reading, the company went to the Gaiety, London, playing under the late John Hollingshead's régime a series of matinées with considerable success. A long tour followed, and continued until the November of the same year, during which the little artists played at all the leading provincial towns, finishing at Elliot Galer's Opera House, Leicester.

Amongst others of the company who have since been successful in their profession were:—Messrs. Bertie Coote, Cecil Barth, Daly Cooper, the O'Connell Family, Misses Carrie Coote, Josephine Henley, Belle Black, and more than one well-known dancer, pupils of Miss Lizzie Gilbert, who had a troupe of little dancers in the same opera. The musical director was Mr. "Jimmy" Glover's uncle, Mr. W. F. Glover, and the general-manager and producer Mr. Russell Rosse.

In connection with the company was an authorised travelling school, held every day excepting Mondays and Saturday for three or four hours. The juveniles were not only taught the three R's, but French, and also the practice and theory of music. Prizes were given, and in a competition for the best imaginative story Belle Bilton came out first, the story being printed in the Derby and other provincial papers. Its title was "This House To Let," and it described the wanderings of a ne'er-do-well, who, after reformation, comes back to his village and his mother, only to find this placard on the old cottage. In the December of the same year (1881) the two sisters went to the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, and played small parts in Dick Whittington, and the following Christmas found them at the Comedy, Manchester, again in pantomime.

The children's Les Cloches de Corneville numbered seventy-eight children and eighteen adults, the latter being composed of matrons and male attendants. The smallest salary of this juvenile combination was thirty shillings a week and their board, washing, and lodging. Pocket money was given to the amount stated by their parents, and the treasurer had a bad time of it when he came to deduct amounts that had been disbursed during the week for tarts, &c.

It has been mentioned that Lady Clancarty had a special liking for painting, and for this fact the writer can vouch. It was on her birthday during this tour that he gave her her first serviceable box of paints. Her first use of it was to paint his portrait, and though the attempt was most emphatically successful in one way as far as colouring and magnitude were concerned, he did not think it then at all flattering.

The initial worries of that tour he will never forget. The first journey was to Middlesbrough, and because it was taken in a special train the youngsters thought the line belonged to them. During a stop there was an entire exodus of them to the refreshment-rooms. At the next station the doors were locked, but what did that matter? They climbed out all over the place like young monkeys, and how the milk and buns disappeared! And not a refreshment lady attendant said an unkind word or wondered why there were not more coppers in the till!

"Yes," writes our correspondent, "there was worry, but bless me, when I look back to it what pleasant worry! Their sorrows were mine, and their pleasures mine; and there is not one of them now whom I would not like to meet after all these years, and like to be young again with them, talking over the times when they were caught red-handed stealing the apples out of a dignified bishop's grounds in a certain cathedral town, which were, unfortunately, too near the dressing-room windows. By the way, the said bishop had a summons taken out against the delinquents. I can hear a chuckle now from one well-known comedian and another respected member of the Stock Exchange when they read this confession. For I had to get them out of the town by certain methods which, at that time, I did not wish them to emulate or understand.

"No wonder Lady Clancarty endeared herself to the Irish tenantry and all around her. As I write I look at one of her childish letters to me, and the commencement is, 'Dear Daddy,' telling me of her little worries and troubles, but mainly full of her hopes and ambitions for the future."

NEW HALL AT SOUTHEND.

Upwards of one thousand persons crowded into the King's Hall, West Cliff, Southend-on-Sea, on Monday, the occasion being the opening of West Cliff's new place of amusement. The builder, Mr. E. H. Adams, has spared neither money nor effort to erect one of the prettiest halls to be found outside of London. The auditorium, with the small, cosy balcony at the end, has seating accommodation for 700, handsome tip-up chairs being placed in the fauteuils and the balcony. Access to the building is gained from Hamlet Court-road, through an arcade which is in keeping with the general character of the hall. The floor is embellished with mosaic designs, whilst in the roof are some fine examples of Cloissonne glass, which are inscribed with the names of notable composers. At the end of the arcade is a box-office, crush-room, manager's office, and at the rear a fair-sized kitchen. Above is the balcony, a large banqueting hall, and the refreshment room. Neat mahogany fittings, with embossed plate-glass panels, are provided, and a luxurious pale green carpet covers the floors and broad staircase. Maple wood, with invisible nailing, has been used for the floor of the hall, which is specially suitable for dancing. A small stage, fully equipped, completes the hall, which, it should be added, is heated by the most modern hot-water system, whilst the lighting, by electricity, is perfect, electroliers of very handsome design being utilised. The safety of the public as regards fire has been very carefully considered, and emergency exits open outwards into a spacious right-of-way into Anerley-road, by which the building, when crowded, could be emptied in about three minutes. Messrs. Paul Vandy and J. E. Adams are the proprietors of the hall, and Mr. Vandy, who has frequently delighted Southend audiences with his marvellous juggling feats, will undertake the management.

A high-class entertainment was given on the opening night, amongst the performers being the Musical Palmers, who played on a variety of instruments, and were loudly applauded; Miss Dora Barrington, who possesses a rich soprano voice, was encored for her songs; and other very creditable turns were given by the Woellhafs, comedy duo; Miss Daisy Almer, comedienne; Miss Altea, rolling globe equilibrist; the Derricks, musical comedy artists; Miss Marion Wills, in The Troubles of a Stage-Manager; the Balzens, Japanese jugglers; Miss Fontanbleau, with her high-leaping dogs; and Miss Ruby Bijou, a remarkable dancer.

DEATH OF MR. TOM BOWMAN.

His many friends in the profession will learn with much regret of the sudden death of Mr. Tom Bowman, who up to Saturday night last was playing in the production of The Flood at the Hippodrome, Manchester, under the management of Messrs. Moss and Stoll. He had been in indifferent health for some time past, but as late as six o'clock on Monday evening he was prepairng to attend business when he completely collapsed and died at 1.45 a.m. on Tuesday.

Born in 1841, the deceased actor was for fourteen years in the 15th King's Hussars, stationed in India, and it was upon selling out of this regiment that he started his professional life. His career on the stage extended over thirty years, and included three years' engagement at the Pavilion, London, in the old "stock" days, with Mr. Isaac Cohen, twelve months with the late Fred Fredericks at Stratford, E., and more recently with Miss Ethel Arden, Mr. John Wainwright, and many others.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—We beg to make an appeal on behalf of the late Thomas Bowman Closs, professionally known as Tom C. Bowman, who died suddenly on Jan. 8, at the age of 65. Poor Mr. Bowman had fallen on bad times previous to his engagement in the production of The Flood, and owing to that and ill-health he died destitute, leaving a wife to mourn his loss. We urge his brother and sister artists not to let this poor old man, whose life has been spent in the profession, and who died in harness, as it were, go to a pauper's grave.

The smallest donation will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged. Whatever may be left after funeral and other expenses will be handed over to his widow.

THE MUSIC HALL SICK FUND.

The usual monthly meeting of the Management Committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday, at the York Hotel, York-road. Mr. W. J. Wainratta (vice-president) occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs. Frank Heath, Tom Carney, J. Mulcaster, and W. West.

Mr. Heath (the hon. treasurer), reported that the bank-books showed for the past year a satisfactory increase in the income of the Society, and with judicious management there was every prospect that the financial position would continue to show an improvement.

It was mentioned by Mr. West, who was a member of the original committee, that the Society will have completed its fortieth year of existence in a few months, having been established in the autumn of 1866. The resolution to found the institution was unanimously adopted at a meeting held on Aug. 22, 1866, at Weston's Music Hall, Holborn, presided over by Mr. Wm. Holland. The original scheme included the erection of almshouses in the neighbourhood of Watford for such members of the music-hall profession as, by election, were entitled to become inmates; but this part of the scheme was never carried into effect. The first committee elected consisted of Mr. W. Holland (chairman), Mr. Frederick Strange (vice-chairman), and Messrs. Arthur Lloyd, Chas. Morton, Edwin Villiers, J. Sweasey, Cæsar A. Long, John Nash, H. J. Leah, W. West, H. D'Alcorn, C. Sloman, P. Corri, W. Page, R. Leggett, W. St. Aubyn, J. H. Jennings, Bedford Reuter, Anson, and W. Julian, with power to add to their number. Mr. J. R. O'Hara was elected secretary and Mr. W. St. Aubyn hon. solicitor. Mr. O'Hara held the post of secretary only a short time, and was succeeded by the late Mr. G. W. Hunt, known to fame as the author of the stirring patriotic song, "We don't want to fight," sung with great success by the late G. H. Macdermott. Of the original committee there remains only Mr. Wm. West, well known in his day as a negro comedian and stump orator, who at Wednesday's meeting was temporarily granted a small weekly sum to help meet his necessities. He is now seventy-four years of age, and has been a member of the music-hall profession about half a century. Mr. Frank Heath, the hon. treasurer, has been a member of the committee some twenty-three years, and has given much time and work towards promoting the well-being of the Fund, which is by far the oldest Friendly Society connected with the variety profession.

An interesting statement was made by Mr. C. Sloman, who moved the first resolution at the meeting held in August, 1866. He said that his recollection went back to the year 1825, when the first music hall proper was opened. It was known as the Rotunda, and was situated in the Blackfriars-road.

Opportunity is offered for the obtaining of valuable stands at Ramsgate, the Corporation of which are now inviting applications from musical troupes for three "pitches" on the sands at the popular watering-place, and one at Louisa Gap, Broadstairs. Tenders, which should be addressed to the Chairman of the Sands Committee, should be delivered to the Town Clerk by Jan. 24.

Carl and Carr are now fulfilling their third season with Mr. Arthur Carlton, and the merriment of audiences at the Metropole, Devonport, is much increased by their droll antics and amusing conversations as the Captain and Mate in Mr. Carlton's production of Dick Whittington.

The Gillingham Hippodrome closes to-day, after a successful fourteen weeks' run of animated pictures. This has been brought about by the wintry weather of the past two or three weeks, which militates against the success of a building of this class, which is only a temporary one of wood and corrugated iron. It will open again in the spring.

The boom in art reproductions by mere humans continues, and artistic perfection is reached by Mme. Claesen's company of two ladies and four gentlemen, who reproduce groups of bronze statuary with wonderful accuracy. The subjects chosen include some of the finest examples of the great masters, and are selected from all the most famous galleries in Europe.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

The most important item in this week's programme at the Islington Empire is the engagement of Mr. Arthur Roberts and company in the new tabloid comedy entitled The Woman Who Was. The one-act play called The Man Who Was is a tragedy, in which Mr. Tree takes the title rôle; The Woman Who Was is a farce, in which that favourite comedian, Mr. Arthur Roberts, sustains the leading part. The idea is wildly extravagant—a man assuming the character of an assistant at a Bon Marché, and in that capacity attending to the requirements of the lady customers. But then we have Mr. Arthur Roberts in the principal part; and so we cease to be concerned with the improbabilities of the plot, and give ourselves up to the hearty enjoyment of the humours of the new production. Those who have had an opportunity of seeing Mr. Roberts in a female character are fully aware how funny he can be in this rôle, and how telling is his rendering of the short crisp dialogue. The popular comedian is quite in his element when he is persuading lady customers to purchase dress materials of all shades, or in taking the measurement of a slim waist. The business carried on in a modern Bon Marché is most amusingly burlesqued; and the new assistant causes much confusion by sticking the addresses of purchasers of goods indiscriminately upon the parcels sent out. Mr. Roberts' quick change from a buxom lady, with fair hair, to a policeman of stolid appearance, is worthy of mention; and the merry little piece is throughout played to the accompaniment of much laughter. Mr. Roberts is supported by an excellent company, whose names are not given in the programme, but who play their respective parts in vivacious style, and share in the success achieved.

Mr. Fred Holland, who is well-known in the cricket world as a member of the Surrey team, recently made his début on the variety stage; he is not only a fine batsman, but, possessing a good voice, he can sing a song in excellent style, as evidenced by his spirited rendering of "The lads of the fire brigade," a ballad in praise of the doings of London's gallant firemen, which is received with loud demonstrations of approval. Mr. Holland, who is six feet in height, has a bright, happy style, and his reception nightly is of the heartiest character possible. Mr. V. L. Granville, character impersonator, is on a return visit, and scores in his intensely dramatic embodiments of Wilfred Denver, in The Silver King, and Fagin, the Jew, in the condemned cell, a thrilling crisis being reached when the old man hears the clock strike the fatal hour, and is confronted by the hangman. Fernee's Juveniles give an attractive musical performance, the girls taking the leading part. One of these possesses a good voice, and sings a ballad in a style that would do credit to a much older artist. Another member of the troupe wins applause with a smart song and dance; and the whole entertainment is animated and pleasing. Sibb and Sibb, a lady and gentleman, are skilful and well-practised double trapeze artists, who win the favourable verdict of the audience. Mr. Lloyd Morgan, comedian, scores with a topical ditty. Mr. Charles Fanning is a comedian who depends upon patter for his success, and has a quaint method that is extremely effective. The Mozondos, in a comedy tumbling act, meet with deserved success; and Fraser and Haley, two young ladies, sing a duet in a manner that brings them plenty of applause. The Czar's Russian dancers, known as "the original Royal Troupe," give their songs and dances, which are characteristically national, and quite different from the ordinary terpsichorean contributions. The Bioscope presents a series of pictures, by means of which Londoners can gain a good idea of the pleasures and perils of fox-hunting. The front of the house is carefully looked after by Mr. George L. Wilson, the manager, and Mr. A. Petersen has the direction of a capable orchestra.

CHELSEA PALACE.

A double event is scored this week at the cosy hall so successfully governed by Mr. Henri Gros, where the programme contains two new sketches, in each of which at least one of the characters meets with a violent end. The first in the bill is Her Last Dance, a dramatic episode by Roland Oliver, which deals with the duplicity of an adventurer who poses as a French Count, and not only steals the heart of a young English dancer, but also purloins from her a pearl necklace of fabulous worth. As she is to be married to the "Count" the following day, the girl is about to give up her profession, and indulges in a final pas seul as a farewell. When she has finished her dance she discovers that her lover has left his overcoat behind him, and as she picks it up her eye falls upon a letter in a feminine handwriting, which protrudes from the pocket. She reads the note, and learns that it is from her Count's real wife urging him to steal the necklace, and return to her. The dancer turns in dismay to her jewel-case, and finds the trinket gone. Upon the return of her lover for his coat, she announces her intention of fetching the police, and when the spurious nobleman shows signs of resistance, she bombards him with art pots and other missiles, which he skilfully wards off with a chair. The girl manages to secure a dagger, and eventually stabs him to the heart, herself falling over his prostrate body. Mr. H. Naylor Grimson well maintains the character and accent of a foreigner, and acts with energy and power; and his fair companion gives a sympathetic performance of the artist, indulging also in a graceful dance.

The second playlet introduces Lady Haldon, who, some two years ago, appeared in a comedy sketch, and now woos the tragic muse. She is the heroine of a dramatic episode by Arthur Shirley, entitled Two Pictures, in one of which she is the wife of a gambler who has ruined himself by betting till he is in the depths of despair. The gambler's evil genius puts a different complexion on his trouble, declares that the husband has been unfaithful, and induces the lady, like the wife in East Lynne, to leave him. Like Lady Isabel, too, she is cast off by her betrayer, but falls a victim to drink. Her husband has, meanwhile, inherited a fortune, and longs for the return of his wife, who now gains a livelihood by selling matches in the street. In her besotted condition she enters her old home, and on meeting her husband and his false friend, she denounces the latter. She asks her husband to declare whether he has been unfaithful to her, and on his indignant denial she points to her betrayer and bids her husband kill him. He needs no second injunction, and after a terrific combat, the villain is choked to death, and the wife, who has been stabbed during the struggle, falls lifeless. The characters of the happy wife of the opening scene and the degraded woman of the close are vividly contrasted by Lady Haldon, who infuses no little dramatic intensity into her performance. She is admirably supported by the two other members of her company, who conduct their struggle with real earnestness.

The general entertainment is contributed to by Miss Alma Bignell, a petite comedienne, who sings love ballads and dances neatly enough to gain repeated recalls. Mr. Tom E. Hughes strikes a very eccentric note as a henpecked husband, and his grotesque mannerisms as "One of the Upper Ten" are equally irresistible. Mr. Albert Whelan, though an Australian entertainer, has long since become a naturalised favourite with English audiences, and his remarkable whistling powers, his lifelike imitations of popular artists, no less than his singing of an original coon song, are applauded to the echo. The illustrated songs of Martine and Son, in which the ballads "A picture no artist can paint," and "In the shade of the old apple tree," are sung by a sweet-voiced youth and accompanied by coloured pictures, are greatly enjoyed. Miss Sylvia Du Barry wins a flattering reception for her cultivated rendering of "Sing me to sleep" and "Il bacio." Kilo's exquisite reproductions of statuary by Mlle. Irma Lorraine are interspersed by Maurin's brilliantly-illuminated fountain display; the recital in song of a noble deed done by a British workman, admirably declaimed by Mr. Sid Bandon, touches a loudly responsive chord in the auditorium; and Felix De Marce's performing ponies are an attractive feature of the bill. Mr. "Teddy" Swanborough, although still invalided, is able occasionally to visit the hall, where matters are meanwhile left safely in the hands of Mr. J. Norman Berlin, the acting-manager.

THE BEDFORD.

Excellent business at the Camden Town house is reported by Mr. A. F. Lovesy, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas's experienced manager, and though the holiday season has reached its close the house still accommodates two crowded audiences nightly. The chief novelty that is being presented in the current programme is an Oriental comedy extravaganza known as Ladyland, the libretto being by Richard Elton, and the music by Denham Harrison, the musical director of Hengler's. The latter catches the ear of the audience with some attractive melodic themes, which, however, are none too well given; but the conversations of the different characters do not enable one to gather a clear idea of the plot. This, however, is a matter of but slight importance. The scene is laid near the Equator in a country where polygamy rules. A Pasha of many daughters (eight) is anxious to get them off his hands by marrying them to one unfortunate male; but Gwendolen, who has been kidnapped apparently from Whitechapel, puts other notions into the girls' heads, and each wants a hubby of her own. With the arrival of Gwendolen's former Cockney sweetheart, servant to a certain Gussie, sent out on behalf of a syndicate to prospect for a railway that is to run through the Pasha's dominions matters become more lively, and Cupid has a chance. Gussie falls in love with the Princess Catchim, the chief daughter, and that is all we need say of the plot. The dude railway prospector belongs to the category of parts coming under the title of "stage impossibilities," but the gentleman playing it is not without talent. One dark-eyed young lady who interlards her conversation by a plentiful use of the phrase "Lorlumme," endeavours, with poor success, to sing a coon song. In her comic extravagances she causes laughter, and her efforts to be amusing are better conceived than another would-be funny member of the cast. The lady who plays the Princess has a fine figure, and does not lack charm; but she would sing better if she understood the value of distinct articulation. The chorus ladies look well in their Turkish dresses.

Mr. George D'Albert and company appear in the human episode 'Tis Never too Late to Mend, a title which brings back to our memories the first night of Charles Reade's famous drama, and the excitement over the brutalities of the gaol governor. At the Bedford Mr. D'Albert, who is an expressive singer with dramatic instincts, appears as the Rev. Arthur Stirling, the prison chaplain, and reaches the hearts of all by his vivid and effective style. Mr. Alf. Davis, a descriptive singer on a lower plane than Mr. D'Albert, has a subject that appeals successfully in his number, "That's when the teardrops start." Among the comedians are Mr. Hardie Palm, who tells the tale of a can of tinned meat from Chicago, which, according to his showing, could be quite eloquent on its own account. The song has humour, but the author has overshot the mark by unhumorous exaggeration. Mr. Victor Travers appears as a member of a village fire brigade, an impersonation to which, but a few years since, the genius of Dan Leno gave effect. Mr. Travers is not a Leno, but he affords much satisfaction to the Bedfordians.

Early in the evening Miss King and Mr. Maurice Hoffman appear in a bright little comedietta, known as The Sleeping-Car. This is occupied by a young lady and gentleman, who as chance would have it, turn out to be an engaged couple bound for the same destination. The acting is good, and the trifle quite successful. The Virginians are an alert and hard-working quartet of coloured performers, who cut capers as coon dancers and singers; Tucker and Evans successfully combine ball-punching and comedy in a sketch entitled Bertie's Troubles; Wright, Esmay, and Wright have a unique speciality dancing act; and Florence Vincent agreeably asserts her right to be considered a charming comedienne. The Imperial Bioscope shows all the latest pictures, which are most interesting.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt, the proprietor and manager of the Royal Albert, has made himself immensely popular in Canning Town, and his cosy music hall is quite a favourite resort for all classes. This week he has a pretty full programme. One of the best items is that of Mr. Leo Tell, who is quite a master of mimicry. He gives a vocal representation of all manner of musical instruments, including the cornet, trombone, 'cello, and flute, and he also imitates dogs, cats, horses, and other animals. During Mr. Tell's performance a handsome electrically-decorated and worked frame is to be seen in the background of the stage, and this gives an indication of the object or animal that is vocally mimicked. Mr. Tell is to be congratulated upon a very interesting turn. Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, the "factory nightingales," delight their hearers with their rendering of various numbers, including "Come back to Erin" and "Mona"; and Mr. G. W. Foster has an amusing parody on "Sweet Marie." Mlle. Rita and Mr. Fred C. Roma can be commended for the versatility they display in a high-class vaudeville entertainment, their songs, dances, and contortionistic business being greatly appreciated by the audience. Miss Rose Waller pleases everybody with her good style of delivery, and her character-song "Men" goes extremely well. The Izons submit a laughable comedy act entitled The Captain and the Mate; and from Mr. Harry Village we get a number of original funny songs, that called "The Grandfather's Stick" being particularly humorous. Mr. George Davis and his company are seen in the absurdity Jack's Uncle. The story of how a young man attempts to get money and sympathy from his uncle on the pretence that he has a child, and the amount of hypocrisy he has to maintain to prevent the deception being revealed, is explained in capital fashion by Mr. Davis and the artists who support him. Mr. Herbert Darnley's company of comedians in the physical culture skit Muscles and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux conclude the list. The last-mentioned, it may be said, have an attractive series of cinematographic views depicting a runaway marriage by motor-car.

Miss Beatrice Worth, whose professional career has been hindered by a long illness, is now rapidly reaching the convalescent stage, and will shortly resume business.

Presentation.—At the Hippodrome, Hastings, on Saturday night last, Mr. Tom N. Mills, the Australian vocalist, and a brother Terrier, presented Mr. Walter Norman (manager) with a beautiful gold and ruby ring in token of long friendship.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. MATINEES AT GLASGOW.

Mr. E. Bostock, resident-manager of the Zoo and Hippodrome, Glasgow, sends us the following letters, which correct certain misstatements printed last week in a contemporary:—

Dear Sir,—On behalf of Mr. Darnley and all the members of The Freaks company, I have the pleasure of conveying to you their hearty and united thanks for the kind manner in which you have treated us over the extra matinées. Your generosity is sincerely appreciated by us all, and we wish you that continued prosperity which your upright and generous dealing entitles you to.—I remain, dear Sir, on behalf of Mr. Darnley and the members of The Freaks company, yours faithfully,

W. M. A. ARMOUR,
General Manager of The Freaks company.

Zoo and Hippodrome, Glasgow.
Jan. 5, 1907.

We, the undersigned artists, have pleasure in stating that we have appeared at the Zoo Hippodrome, Glasgow, during the week ending Jan. 5, 1907, that we have worked at all performances, and have received payment in full therefor.

THE BRIG O' AYR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—As we have so many excellent artists from Bonnie Scotland, will you please give me space to call their attention to the ardent appeal that is being made by Lord Rosebery and many others for help, in the shape of donations (if ever so small), to assist in preserving the "auld brig o' Ayr." I am certain it only requires to bring such an appeal before their notice to evoke a liberal response.

The perpetuation of the memory of the dear Ayrshire ploughman—the genius of Scottish song—has a just claim on every laddie and lass born in the land o' the leal, and I therefore appeal, through the columns of the leading musical and dramatic journal, for help to retain and restore "the auld brig." I have given half a guinea, and will give more if the required sum be not collected in time.

May I suggest that Mr. Sam Gething, of the Empire, Glasgow, be chosen to act as receiver of sums sent.—Yours truly,

J. W. ROWLEY.
(An admirer of Robbie Burns.)

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. HOBBS.—38, Portland-place, W.

L. PRIESTLY.—Apply to the Secretary, the Actors' Benevolent Fund, 8, Adam-street, Strand.

A. E. RICHARDS.—By referring to pages 28 and 29, and also the last pages of The Era, you will probably ascertain the whereabouts of the lady.

E. OSWALD BROOKS.—The licence of Cremorne Gardens lapsed for ever on Oct. 6, 1877.

SAM COOK.—He is generally supposed to belong to the Hebrew race, but we have no definite information on the point.

J. FLYNN.—Patrick Feeney, the Irish comedian, was born in Roscommon, Ireland, Nov. 19, 1850. When he was quite a child his parents came to England and settled in Birmingham.

BILLSON.—As the lady's name is not in our "Dramatic Cards" list we cannot say where she is playing. You might, however, search our provincial correspondence columns.

H. B.—(1) We do not know who holds the rights. (2) A letter addressed to Mr. H. Blinn, care of the Actors' Association, 10, King-street, Covent Garden, will no doubt find him, as he is a member of the Council.

SAWDUST.—Jan. 6, 1901.

E. T.—(1) The Princess of Trebizonde was produced at the Gaiety Theatre on April 16, 1870, with Miss Nellie Farren as Regina. (2) The Brigands, opera-bouffe, founded on Les Brigands, libretto by H. S. Leigh, was produced at the Globe Theatre on Sept. 13, 1875. Another English version, with libretto by W. S. Gilbert, was produced at the Avenue Theatre, London, on May 9, 1889. We are unable to supply other dates required or information as to copyright.

WALLER.—Jan. 8, at Manchester, Pauline, the beloved mother of Edgar O. Waller, manager of King's Theatre, Nottingham. R.I.P.

IN MEMORIAM.

ANDERSON.—In ever loving memory of Walter Reddick Anderson, who passed peacefully away, in his 36th year, on Jan. 7, at Greenock. Interred at Greenock New Cemetery, N.B., Jan. 9, 1907. R.I.P.

ANDERSON.—In ever loving and affectionate remembrance of my dear pal, Walter Reddick Anderson. Sadly missed by his friend, Arthur G. Smyth-Bowen, née George Beale.

Courteous and calm, in friendship true,
He passed his life 'midst golden hue
Of charities sincere.
And, as we mourn his spirit gone,
We know that aye, across the bourne,
His memory all revere.
Requiscat in pace.

HARCOURT.—In memory of my beloved husband, Fred Harcourt, who died Jan. 12, 1906.
I shall never see your like again;
As time goes on your absence brings more pain.
From his ever-loving wife, Lilian Warren.

HARCOURT.—In memory of my beloved father, Fred Harcourt, who died Jan. 12, 1906.
May I always follow the noble example you set me.
From his sorrowing son, Harold.

HARCOURT.—In loving memory of Fred Harcourt, who died Jan. 12, 1906. From his ever-sorrowing mother, brothers, and sisters.

MACCABE.—In loving memory of Joseph Maccabe (Joe Mac), died Jan. 11, 1893. Gone, but not forgotten by his wife, Alice Maydue.

READ.—In loving remembrance of my dear husband Theophilus Read, of the "World's Fair," Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, who departed this life Jan. 16, 1906. "Still ever with us in thought."

READ.—In ever-loving memory of my dear father, Theophilus Read (late lessee and partner, "World's Fair," Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington), who departed this life, Jan. 16, 1906. Deeply lamented by his only son, daughter-in-law, and two grandchildren. "Never forgotten."

FOR SYMPATHY.

Mr. and Mrs. JOHN BURTON desire most earnestly to thank the following for sympathy and assistance in their sad bereavement: R. C. Buchanan, for leave of absence; Frank Withers, for fulfilling duties; Ernest Stevens, Stanley Rogers, William Lowe, Charles Crosier, W. H. Garbois, &c., for kind letters; the "Cinderella" Co., "The White Chrysanthemum" Co., Kirkcaldy Theatre staff and band, Messrs. Macmasters and Barclay, Mr. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Stark, Mrs. Gibson, and Mr. and Mrs. Braid, for beautiful wreaths, memorials, &c. Gratitude and grief too deep for words.

THE Skating Carnival held at the Crystal Palace last week was a remarkable success, and drew an enormous audience. The monster asphalte rink was crowded with ladies, gentlemen, and children in elaborate costumes. Many distant parts of the country were well represented, and a good number of those who are frequenters of the Covent Garden balls were to be seen gracefully gliding about. After an excellent exhibition of fancy and trick skating by Mr. A. T. A. Bridge, the rink superintendent, one of the most amusing fancy dress hockey matches ever seen upon skates was played by members of Sanger's Circus and the Crystal Palace team, including the delightfully funny clown "Pimpo." Screams of laughter greeted the amusing, and what must have been at times painful, antics of the players, and if this particular item in the programme could only be repeated a few times more before Sanger's Circus leaves Sydenham it would be sure to attract crowds. About 130 entered for the various competitions, and some beautiful prizes were given away by Mr. Louis Sinclair, the wife of the managing-director of the Crystal Palace. The second gymkhana of the season will take place on Saturday next.

The treatment of superfluous hair is something which requires the greatest nicety and care.
X. BAZIN'S DEPILATORY POWDER is the result of much study of the cause and problem of destroying these growths without injury to the skin, or leaving a scar or the slightest disfigurement.
There is no necessity for any woman whose refinement and good breeding have made her sensitive about these unfortunate marks to be subjected to the pain of electrical treatment and the consequent eruptions.
X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder is absolutely safe, and destroys the hair without pain—a simple dainty way of effecting a cure.
The great skill and science employed in the compounding of X. Bazin's Depilatory Powder make it absolutely safe and reliable.
If some former remedy has been tried without success, it is because the right powder was not applied.

Solicitor for the said Executrix.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual for 1906, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, combines utility and entertainment. Its former aspect is exemplified by the record of the plays produced last year in London, the provinces, Paris, and Berlin; it also includes an obituary for the year, and lists of the United Kingdom's theatres and music halls. The attractive side of the Annual comprises numerous stories by stage celebrities, whose portraits illustrate the text. It is a delightful budget of good things. Mr. T. P. O'Connor's appreciation of the late Sir Henry Irving is brief, but tender and impressive.—Financier, Jan. 23, '06.

DEATH AND THE DRAMA.

A rather interesting discussion has been lately carried on in the Tribune about the death scene in Mr. BERNARD SHAW'S play The Doctor's Dilemma, recently produced at the Court Theatre. The argument was originated by Mr. WILLIAM ARCHER, who asked if anyone had been "moved" by Dubedat's death-scene in the piece. Mr. ARCHER—who evidently was not "moved"—complains of Mr. SHAW'S avoidance of "straight" emotion in the scene; and also of the promptitude with which the artist's wife, on ascertaining that he has expired, goes off to dress in her prettiest attire, as he had desired her to do almost with his last breath. Mr. ARCHER contended that Mr. SHAW had represented an "abnormal" death scene, and had therefore confessed his inability to deal seriously with normal human experience.

In all this we think Mr. ARCHER was unfair to Mr. SHAW. With all his faults, Mr. SHAW has seen a good deal, and, as the schoolboys say, he "knows something." The real weakness of Dubedat's death-scene we will deal with presently. But, so far from it being abnormal, it seems to us to come very near the average experience.

Civilised and literary persons, protected for the most part from the realities of existence, are apt to develop what we may call a "British-Museum-Library" view of things in general. This view, valuable and agreeable in many ways, needs to be corrected by the semi-brutal contact of low life. It is astonishing how serenely the more animal sections of society regard death. Uninfluenced by the halo of pathos that has gathered around a natural phenomenon, and as acquainted with death as with a pot-house "pal," they are on familiar terms with the old fellow with the spear and skeleton. The fact is that it is only when a death is what we may call "well mounted"—when all the inevitable prose can be shifted on to the shoulders of doctors, nurses, and servants, so that the young ladies can skim the cream of sentiment—that Death itself is "pathetic." SHAKESPEARE, who knew death as he knew life, never lingers over a dramatic demise. Antony, one of the most talkative of moribunds, says all he has to say, assisted by stimulants, in twenty lines. Hamlet, Lear, and Cæsar are not verbose in making their exits from this world. And Death in real life astonishes the novice by its brevity and simplicity. He feels inclined to say, "Is that all?" One reason for this surprise is the great length given to deaths on the old-fashioned stage. We do not find in reality the extraordinary tenacity of life combined with sustained loquacity and elaborate rhetoric which are so common in the blank-verse plays of the last generation. By the time the end comes, both the dying person and the spectators are generally too worn out to have "much to say."

This is not to infer that Death is never pathetic; it depends. What was there pathetic in the death of the Duke of WELLINGTON, for instance? The fine old fellow, after a slight attack of indigestion, was found one day asleep in his chair. What could be more satisfactory than such a conclusion? WOLFE, expiring at Quebec in the midst of his triumph; TURNER, murmuring "The sun is God!"; and BLAKE singing songs as he "went off," scarcely inspire us with sadness. Two things make death pathetic—physical pain and discontent. DANTON going to the scaffold and leaving things in a "fearful hash"; ANDRE CHENIER cut off in his prime with a brain full of unwritten poems; the criminal with a look back on a wasted life, are to be pitied; so are those who suffer agony in the body before they go. But Mr. SHAW has not used either of these motives. Mr. ARCHER says that Mr. SHAW, by avoidance of moralising, has shown his inability to say anything worth saying about Death. In this sense Mr. ARCHER is right; but Mr. SHAW is by no means wrong. There is nothing worth saying about Death. "Mr. SHAW," says Mr. ARCHER, "might have filled in the time with a great philosophic scene." It is really cruel of Mr. ARCHER to egg Mr. SHAW on in this way. Let us parody Desdemona and say: "Do not learn of him, BERNARD, though he be thy preceptor-in-chief!"

A protracted illness like consumption does actually produce in the patient's friends a kind of insensibility. It is not that they are not sorry to lose him; but when the patient, like CHARLES II., is an "unconscionably long time dying," the fount of tears gets dried up. A marvellously patient endurance of the sordid offices of the sick-bed is a more eloquent testimony of affection than floods of easy weeping.

Why, then, all this admitted, and the accuracy of Mr. SHAW'S observation endorsed, is Dubedat's death-scene tedious? Simply because Mr. SHAW has not condescended to construct his play. The death-scene does not advance the action. The motive of the piece is the hesitation of the doctor as to which he shall save—a commonplace and quite virtuous man or a scamp of real genius. The only logical development of the idea would be by a conviction arrived at by the doctor which was the righteous decision to make. But no such development takes place. It will not do to say that such was impossible of invention; Mr. SHAW should have thought of that before he commenced his play. The death of Dubedat is the result of the physician's resolve, and does not influence it; and what morally amounts to a murder is motived by the doctor's desire to "possess" the pretty widow—the world-old DAVID-and-URIAH idea, in fact. It matters not; Mr. SHAW'S public just now will take anything he likes to give them. And the matter of The Doctor's Dilemma is of his best. It is as good as the East End observation in Candida or the slum-landlord knowledge in Widowers' Houses. When are we to have a revival of the latter piece? Knipcheese we can never forget; and many of us would like to see him again.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The Subscription Committee of the Actors' Association met on Friday, the 4th inst., Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (the vice-chairman) being supported by Messrs. Cecil Barth, J. Cooke Beresford, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, and Thalberg Corbett. Questions in connection with the weekly or quarterly payments of subscriptions were considered at considerable length, and ultimately it was agreed that definite action be postponed until after the question of payment for rehearsals was settled.

The Social and Library Committee held a meeting on Monday, when Mr. Cecil Barth (chairman) was supported by Mesdames Rose Mathews, Margaret Parker, Kathleen Russell, Messrs. Clive Currie, Arthur Morris, and the hon. sec., Miss Lucy Sibley. The hon. sec. reported she had approached Mr. Cecil Raleigh, who had kindly consented to give an address, entitled "Counting the Cost," at the first social afternoon, to be held in the saloon of the Actors' Association on Friday, the 18th inst., from four o'clock to six. The address would be followed by a short debate. Light refreshments will be obtainable during the afternoon. All members were invited to attend and to bring a professional friend who was not a member of the Association, and the committee expressed the hope that members would not only take note of these facts, but also make them known to others as far as possible. The appointment of a librarian was discussed and suggestions made.

The Commissioners' Committee held a meeting on Monday last, with Mr. Brandon Thomas in the chair. There were also present Mesdames Georgina Hamilton, Rose Mathews, and Lucy Sibley, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, Clive Currie, Quinton McPherson, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). The question as to carrying on operations at the proposed Ramsgate centre was considered, and ultimately the matter was referred back to the Council for certain information. Other subjects of interest were discussed, and the secretary received instructions.

The Council held their usual meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present: Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. sol.), Mesdames Kate Phillips and Saba Raleigh, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, J. Cooke Beresford, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, Thalberg Corbett, F Cremlin, Quinton McPherson, Walter Russell, Brandon Thomas, Spencer Trevor, Fredk. Volpe, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). A question in connection with the alleged insanitation of a provincial theatre was considered, and the secretary received instructions. The hon. solicitors reported the recovery of the balance of an amount due from a manager to a member, and also that they had advised several ladies and gentlemen on points submitted.

The secretary reported that Mr. Cyril Maude had very kindly placed the Playhouse at the disposal of the Council for the purposes of holding the sixteenth annual general meeting of the members of the Association, on Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 2.30 p.m., when Sir Squire Bancroft (the president) would occupy the chair.

The following ladies and gentlemen were nominated for election:—Henley Attwater, Marian Ripley, Frank Beresford, Hilda D. Sims, Sydney Bland, and Leslie Palmer. Two former members were reinstated and two others nominated for reinstatement. The suggestion-book was considered, and entries made. Reports from the Subscription Committee, Social and Library Committee, Commissioners' Committee, and Finance and General Purposes Committee were received.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. Acton Bond (chairman), Messsr. J. Cooke Beresford, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (sec.). Questions in connection with the carrying on of operations at the Ramsgate centre were discussed, and ultimately the resolution of this committee on the subject was agreed to be submitted to the Council. It was also agreed that, in view of the increased advantages resulting from the new schemes of insurance, the provisions of Article 7 should in future be more rigidly adhered to, and the question of cancellation of the membership of those in arrear on March 31 next be placed before the Council for consideration at their first meeting in April.

MR. H. B. IRVING'S Waldorf production, Lights Out, is proving a great success in the provinces, where its originality and dramatic freshness seem to appeal to dress-circle and pit alike. Mr. Maundy Gregory is presenting the play with an exceptionally sound company.

MR. SANDON PERKINS, for some time manager for Mr. Robert Arthur at Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, and for several years with the Hutchison plays, is now managing "Our Navy" at the Polytechnic during Mr. A. J. West's absence abroad. Mr. Perkins informs us that business is booming, "House full" being the order every day.

MISS FLORENCE BENTLEY has been recently starring in The Throne of Terror, appearing in the principal theatres of Scotland. The company finished last Saturday week, and are now enjoying a short vacation, Miss Bentley taking the opportunity of visiting friends of over twenty years' standing in Birnam Dunkeld, a suburb of Perthshire.

Nelly Neil is an echo or imitation of The Belle of New York. In that enormously successful piece, the heroine, a pretty young woman who belongs to the Salvation Army, leads a rich youth from the paths of dissipation to those of respectability. In Nelly Neil, she is a Socialist, and her captive is the son of a banker. The celebrated Salvation ditty in the one piece suggests a Millenium song in the other; and the appearance of the religious reformer in showy attire at the head of her supporters in the one play is "doubled" by Miss May's entry in elaborate military uniform in the other. But, after all, it is waste of time to analyse the libretto of an up-to-date musical play; the only thing to do is to describe it.

The scene of the first act of Nelly Neil is a noted fruit shop in Regent-street. A party of peers enter in great anxiety about their sons and daughters, who, under the influence of the teachings of Nelly Neil, a Socialistic lecturer, have assumed the attire of costermongers and flower-girls. The peers come to see Nelly and to remonstrate with her; but they themselves fall victims to her beauty and charm. A young man named Billy Ricketts, the son of a wealthy banker, turns up at the fruit shop, meets Nelly Neil, and falls in love with her. We now come to the Anarchist underplot. Mr. Tizzle, foreman at the fruit shop, is implicated with a Russian revolutionist, the Princess Rasslova, in a plot to blow up Ricketts' bank. The bombs to be used are sent to the shop in peach-boxes, and are discovered by the police; who, however, arrest nobody. It is the design of the Princess to throw suspicion on Nelly Neil and her patroness, the Countess of Rokeby, who has a farm near London, where she demonstrates the beauty of the "simple life." Here, in the first scene of the second act, the Princess pursues her plans. A party of Russian Anarchists, disguised as gipsies, are encamped in a field on the farm; but they, too, "feel the gentle power" of Nelly's preachings, and are almost ready to desert their nomadic life and take to farming. The Princess, in order to rally them, sings them a spirited song. All these manœuvres are observed with an interested eye by a detective named Nordheim, who, under the alias of Donetti, has crept into the confidence of the Anarchists. In the last act, which takes place in the courtyard of the Savoy Hotel, Nelly appears at the head of her Socialistic supporters, all being attired in showy military uniforms. Nordheim, instead of arresting the Countess and the protégée, takes the Princess into custody; Nelly accepts Ricketts; and so an end.

Nelly Neil is beautifully dressed and mounted, and the expectations caused by preliminary statements were certainly not disappointed, Mr. Percy Anderson having been commissioned to design the costumes and the uniforms. This experienced artist has done his work remarkably well. Some yellow and orange costumes of dancers in the first act are very pretty, and the walking-dresses of another female contingent are superb. The gipsies are clothed in garbs of rich and varied hues; and all the female principals are marvellously adorned. The scene in the last act when the stage is filled with showy uniforms is positively dazzling, and must have been very expensive. As backgrounds to all this splendour, Mr. Walter Johnstone has supplied an elaborate reproduction of the interior of a Regent-street fruit shop, Mr. Hugo Barnuch has contributed a pretty garden set and an elaborate effect of extensive cornfields, and Mr. W. Helmsley has represented accurately and artistically the courtyard of the Savoy Hotel. Warm praise must be given to the general excellence of the production by Mr. Sydney Ellison, assisted by that able stage director, Mr. A. E. Dodson.

Miss Edna May's celebrated calm and famous refinement were again employed with happy results at the Aldwych on Thursday. As Nelly Neil, she acted with her wonted suavity and sweetness, and delivered the songs allotted to her with agreeable distinctness of enunciation. Mr. McLellan and Mr. Caryll have given Miss May some pleasing and effective numbers, notably her Socialist song looking forward to the time "When the poor and the rich won't know which is which." It has a memorable air, and is likely to be popular. Miss May has also a tuneful ditty, "Heigho, how pretty!" and an effective item is "We like to whistle as we walk out," the words of which are paraphrased by Mr. Paul West from a song by Mr. B. F. Smith. Mr. Joseph Coyne has a style and method of his own, and his reading of the rôle of Billy Ricketts was evidently to the taste of the audience, who laughed heartily at his eccentricities, and warmly applauded his smart song in the last act, "That is what the doctor calls the jiggly-jigs." Mr. Coyne also won warm approval for his share in a duet with Miss May in the second act, "All life for me and you is now," and his alertness and oddity kept things alive whenever he was on the stage. Miss Kitty Gordon won a hearty recall to the stage by her spirited and dramatic rendering of the ballad, "Let us take to the road," in the second act, and played Princess Rasslova sharply and briskly. Mr. E. Dagnall grappled bravely with the ungrateful—almost obstinate—part of Nordheim, a burden under which a less resourceful and competent comedian might have collapsed. Mr. Herbert Sparling was duly emphatic and authoritative as the Duke of Tysmoke; and Mr. Robb Harwood made the most of the little character of Captain Neil. Mr. Akerman May gave a fine, resolute, and powerful performance as Orloff, the leader of the Anarchists; and Mr. Ernest Crampton was comically self-inflated as the Inspector of Police, Miss Mary Brough working hard as Mrs. Neil. Miss Ethel Allandale and Miss Amie Payne acted and danced with quick vivacity and much expertness as Lurlina and Verbena Tizzle, a couple of parts containing germs of humour which the author might easily have cultivated still more completely. The large number of performers to whom subordinate rôles had been allotted sustained them with commendable care and conscientious earnestness, despite the fact that, in many cases, the material at the artist's disposal was meagre. For instance, Mr. J. J. Dallas had little scope for his ability as Mr. Tizzle; Miss Hope and Miss Bowman, however, were fortunate in having a charming duet to sing in the last act, and did it full justice. Miss Mollie Lowell as the Countess of Rokeby had little to do but to look handsome and aristocratic, and performed those functions admirably, besides making the most of her few opportunities. Mr. Ivan Caryll's capacity as a composer is superior to anything demanded in a piece of this kind, but now and then the well-known quality of his work could be felt, notably in the song and chorus in the second act. Nelly Neil appeared to give complete satisfaction to the audience at the Aldwych Theatre on Thursday, and is likely to entirely answer the purpose for which it was written—of pleasing the particular public to which it is addressed.

"THE SHADOW OF A LIE."

A Domestic Drama, in Four Acts, by Lascelles Hasbrouck. Produced at Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill, on Thursday, Jan. 10.

Lord Avondale	MR. G. ESDALE
Donald Cameron	MR. ROBERT CASTLETON
Hon. Ferdinand Howard	MR. CORYTON DAY
Count Knowscoffski	MR. ISAACSON
Felix Bertrand	MR. ERNEST HOWE
Helen	MISS ETHEL TEALE
Mrs. Bertrand	MRS. GODFREY
Lulu Van Slyte	MISS G. HEINRICH
Servant	MR. H. E. P. LUMSDALE
Footman	MR. HOLDSWORTH FISHER

This new play was presented at Ladbroke Hall on Thursday evening by the Thalia Dramatic Society. Whatever chances of success Mr. Lascelles Hasbrouck's domestic drama might have had, they were considerably discounted by the fact that certain members of the cast were imperfectly acquainted with their parts, and this caused several of the scenes to drag. The characters are of the conventional type, including our old friend the foreign count of doubtful antecedents, the slangy daughter of an American millionaire, and the idiotic dude with an eyeglass. The plot is not without interest, but much of the dialogue is artificial and pointless.

The play opens at Monte Carlo, where Felix Bertrand is living in rooms with his supposed wife, Helen. He is associated with a certain Count Knowscoffski in a conspiracy to cheat at cards those who accept his invitation to his apartments; and from a conversation between him and the Russian Count we learn that he has had an angry scene with Helen, but he believes that he has succeeded in compelling her to become a confederate in his carefully-laid plans to swindle his guests. There is a mirror in the room hanging just above a piano, and the pianist is enabled to see the cards held by certain of the gamblers. The lady has been instructed to play certain melodies, which shall be a signal to Bertrand and the Count as to what cards are held by their opponents. But when Donald Cameron joins in a game of poker for high stakes he wins, which is explained by the fact that Helen, instead of acting as a confederate, has purposely misled the would-be swindlers. She makes this confession in an interview with Donald Cameron, who has fallen in love with her, and is indignant at the manner in which she is being treated by Bertrand. He asks her to elope with him but she refuses, preferring to remain true to the man she believes to be her husband. Left alone with Bertrand, he bitterly denounces her for her wilful disobedience to his instructions, and, losing his temper, resorts to personal violence. This painful domestic scene is interrupted by the entrance of Count Knowscoffski and the real wife of Bertrand; she is apparently under the protection of the Russian, who resents the strong language which his gambling confederate uses towards the lady, and challenges him to fight a duel. Bertrand excuses his conduct to Helen by the plea that he believed his wife was dead. In spite of the awkward position in which she finds herself, Helen is rejoiced that she is at any rate a free woman. The scene of the next act is the lawn at Avondale Lodge. Three years have elapsed, and Helen has become the wife of Lord Avondale, who is quite ignorant of her past so far as her connection with Felix Bertrand is concerned. Donald Cameron comes on a visit to his old friend Lord Avondale, and of course recognises Helen, who implores him not to betray her secret to her husband and he promises he will be silent, though he believes the best course to adopt would be for her to make a full confession to Lord Avondale. To Helen's dismay the Russian Count and Mrs. Bertrand put in an appearance, and demand their price for keeping silence concerning her past. Bertrand was killed in the duel with the Count. There is more trouble for Helen, as a compromising conversation between her and Cameron is overheard by Avondale, who jumps to the conclusion that his friend and his wife are both false. However, matters are put right in the last act, and the evil results of "the shadow of a lie" are effectually remedied.

The Society had secured the valuable services of Mr. Robert Castleton, a professional actor of considerable experience, for the part of Donald Cameron; and he gave a sound embodiment of the character. Miss Ethel Teale's performance of the rôle of Helen had many good points. She admirably depicted the feelings of the woman who believes that her happiness is dependent upon keeping from her husband a knowledge of her past, and in the earlier scenes Miss Teale also made a favourable impression. Mr. Ernest Howe as Felix Bertrand was a handsome villain, and did justice to the part; Mr. G. Esdale was emphatic, though a little stiff, as Lord Avondale; and Mr. Coryton Day was a very inane and irritating representative of the Hon. Ferdinand Howard, whom such a smart girl as Lulu Van Slyte, the American millionaire's daughter, would surely not have been so eager to win and wed. This part was well played by Miss G. Heinrich. Mr. Isaacson was fairly satisfactory as Count Knowscoffski; Mrs. Godfrey was a gushing Mrs. Bertrand, but had to depend upon the prompter for her lines; Mr. H. E. P. Lumsdale and Mr. Holdsworth Fisher as two men-servants completed the cast. The new piece was preceded by a musical monologue, by Mr. Gerald Lindley; and an excellent programme of music was given by the St. James's Orchestra of amateurs, under the personal direction of Mr. Sydney W. Toms.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—Will you kindly correct the statement made by your Newport, Mon., correspondent in his report last week of the Lyceum pantomime of Whittington, in which he alluded to May Corelli Livesey as Mrs. Carson? This is an error, as I am Mr. Carson's wife, although at present I am not working with him. We have played each season previously a joint engagement with Mr. Sidney Cooper, but this year I am under different management. My stage name is Marian L. Ford, and my permanent address is 5, Ward-street, Burslem, Staffs.—Yours faithfully, MARIAN CARSON.

THE parts of Ganem and Abdallah were played at very short notice with great success during the week at the Coronet by Miss Jose Hammersley and Miss Mabel Seymour respectively. It is hoped that Miss Cressie Leonard, who has made a gratifying hit in the former rôle, will be back on Monday.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MR. GEORGE ADNEY PAYNE, Mr. Henry Tozer, and Mr. Henry Sutton, representing the Syndicate Halls, met in friendly conference the general secretaries of the Variety Artists' Federation, the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, and the National Association of Theatrical Employees at 1, Durham House-street, Strand. The points at issue—one of which was, of course, the barring clause—were discussed at length, and the claims put forward by the allied societies will be laid before a special meeting of the London Entertainments Protection Association in the course of the next fortnight.

THE question of payment for matinées in existing contracts, which was the one point of difference between the Macnaghten directorate and the V.A.F., was settled on Wednesday at a meeting between Mr. Fred Baugh, Mr. Macnaghten's general manager, and the joint committee of the V.A.F., the Amalgamated Musicians, and the Stage Employees Society. The discussion was quite an amicable one, and the settlement arrived at comes into operation on Monday next.

A SIMILAR meeting has been arranged between Messrs. Richards and Burney, of what are known as the L.C.C. halls (London, Collins's, and Cambridge), and representatives of the allied societies mentioned in the above paragraph.

MISS VESTA TILLEY will join the Palace programme on the 28th inst., when "London's Idol," in addition to her extensive light répertoire, will sing a song entitled "King Baby," a number in a sentimental vein, and one that is quite new to her on the variety stage.

THE Variety Artists' Federation meeting, held at The Horns, Kennington, on Sunday evening, passed a resolution to raise the entrance fee to 10s. 6d. Musical conductors are now eligible for membership provided they have been in such a position six months.

MRS. LANGTRY is now in America, where she is taking a record salary and sharing the honours of vaudeville with Mr. Dick Knowles. Through the death of Sir Henry Percival De Bathe, the fourth baronet, her husband succeeds to the title, and she becomes Lady Hugo Gerald De Bathe. They were married in July, 1899. Sir Hugo is in the Army, and is serving in Agra. The creation of the baronetcy dates from 1801.

IT has just come to the knowledge of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild that some person has obtained, and is wrongfully using, an application form for assistance issued by the society, and is endeavouring to obtain subscriptions, apparently for the benefit of the Guild, from members of the profession. This person is absolutely unauthorised to collect subscriptions for the Guild, and we are asked to say that donations and subscriptions should only be given or paid to ladies of the committee or sent to the Secretary, at 69, Primrose-mansions, Prince of Wales-road, Battersea Park, when they will be at once gratefully acknowledged.

"BURNING TO SING" will probably be withdrawn from the Empire in a fortnight or three weeks' time. This course is necessary, to make way for the new series of living pictures and statuary which is in active preparation. The former will be fifteen or sixteen in number, to commence with, and will include such popular subjects as Leighton's "Bath of Psyche," from the Tate Gallery; Alma Tadema's "Silent Greeting," from the same collection; "The Huguenot" of Millais, and Sargent's "Ellen Terry as Lady Macbeth."

OF statuary, the subjects will be fewer, and in no sense anything approaching the recent displays of enamelled models at other variety theatres. They will include Lord Leighton's bronze "Athlete with a Python," and the marble statue, "The Girdle," by W. Colton, both from the Tate Gallery, and some others not yet determined on.

HERBERT LA MARTINE, while driving his motor-cycle in company with Horace Reeves (son of the well-known agent, Fred Reeves) on Saturday afternoon met with quite a painful accident to his knee through his cycle skidding. Young Reeves's foot was also badly pinched by being caught in the spokes of the wheel. With the kind assistance of two policemen the spokes had to be cut before he could be released (also by the policemen). La Martine fared much worse through having his knee dislocated. Although suffering great pain, he pluckily did his turns at the Ealing Hippodrome and the Tivoli, being kindly favoured by the management of those halls.

AFTER his performance at the Tivoli on Saturday young La Martine was presented with a handsome bouquet of roses, decorated with the Stars and Stripes, from Captain Fred Sterling, of the Rough Riders, U.S.A. The recipient was greeted with loud applause.

MR. AUBREY FITZGERALD, a musical comedy favourite at many West End theatres under the George Edwardes, Frank Curzon, and other managements, will make his first appearance on any music hall at the Tivoli on Monday. He has two new songs, which are both smart and tuneful.

MR. HAYDEN COFFIN has been secured by Mr. Alfred Butt to appear at the Palace Theatre, where the favourite actor-vocalist sang "Melisande from the wood" with great success on the anniversary night in December. He will sing a number of selections from his well-known répertoire, and possibly may be persuaded to give one or two well-known numbers from the musical plays in which he has appeared.

MISS MILDRED DEVERE appeared in a new sketch entitled A Night in Montmartre, at the Comedy Theatre yesterday afternoon. The story of the sketch, which only lasted twelve minutes, and was written and produced by Mr. Tom Terriss, is mainly told by pantomimic action. Olga, an American dancer, loses her way at night, and eventually gets among "Apaches" in the slums of Montmartre. They recognise who she is, and, under threats, compel her to dance, which she does, to the singing of "Quand l'amour meurt" by the chief of the hooligans. Finally, after watching her opportunity, she seizes the revolvers of two of the gang and fires them, thereby calling the police, who come to her rescue.

ROLAND, the illusionist, whose performance at the Holborn Empire on Monday was such a brilliant success as to justify Mr. Walter Gibbons in immediately securing him for his London and suburban circuit, has nominated Mr. Harry Day as his sole and exclusive agent—an excellent choice. Last week Roland had the honour of mystifying King Alfonso and Queen Ena of Spain.

MR. C. F. AKED, addressing his congregation in Liverpool on Sunday last, said the young men of to-day went to the music-halls, the saddest entertainment in the whole world, civilised or uncivilised. He believed there was nothing nowadays in music-halls and pantomime performances that invited condemnation on the grounds of indecency and pruriency; condemnation was on the grounds of brainlessness, lowness of tone, and cheapness of sentiment! Oh, indeed! Mr. Aked. Yet we think more brains are required to invent and produce a good act than a bad sermon, full of views narrowed by imperfect mental vision and unleavened by experience.

THE New Parthenon, Liverpool, has changed hands, and on Monday next Mr. Fred E. Weisker, of the Westminster, will open it as a variety house, Mr. Edwin W. Smith being the manager.

THE Belfast Hippodrome Company has been registered, the head office being at Ocean Buildings, Donegall-square, East Belfast. The nominal capital is £25,000, in 25,000 shares of £1 each. The names of the first directors are Chas. W. Henderson, Jas. K. Black, Wm. Sley, Frederick Willmott, and Edward J. K. Savage.

MR. WILLIAM B. BROADHEAD, of Manchester, made an application at Liverpool on Thursday to the theatrical licensing Bench for a provisional licence for a proposed variety theatre to be erected at the corner of Lodge-lane. It was mentioned that there was no place of amusement in the neighbourhood, which had a population within a reasonable radius of 100,000 people. The edifice would cost about £25,000, and accommodation would be provided for over 2,000 people. The plans satisfied the building surveyor of the Corporation, and the application was of a similar character to that made for other places in the city. The Clerk of the Court, in answer to objections, pointed out that Benches in other parts of the country had found the consideration of plans under similar circumstances very advantageous.

BUT the Bench, by a majority, declined to grant the application. The character of the opposition may be gauged from the evidence. The solicitor against the granting stated that Mr. John Ritchie, an ex-Lord Mayor of London, chairman of some safe works in the locality, objected on behalf of his employees, who, however, as was pointed out, were able to take care of themselves; and a sidesman of a neighbouring church said the theatre would be an inducement to young people to go wrong, because such places were a form of evil, leading youths to smoke and steal from their employers. One of the magistrates went so far as to ask whether there was a guarantee that the work of erecting the building would not come from Manchester!

LIVERPOOL has again demonstrated its well-known generosity where the cause of charity is concerned. The recent matinée given at the Olympia for the benefit of the funds of the Liverpool Food and Betterment Association realised the sum of £300, which is believed to be a record for the provinces, if not for the country. After handing over to the Association the amount mentioned, the sum of £3 9s. 10d. is being carried forward to next year's account, for it is hoped to make the benefit an annual one. The income of this first attempt included a donation of twenty guineas from Moss' Empires, Ltd. (per Mr. Oswald Stoll), and ten pounds from Sir Alfred L. Jones.

THE marriage took place at Hartlepool on Monday, by special licence, of Mr. Harry Burns, manager of the Empress Theatre, to Miss Helen Lennard Charles, daughter of the late Mme. Lennard and Mr. Thomas Charles. Councillor Robt. Everton, proprietor of the Empress, acted as best man, and the bride was given away by Miss Anita Denti, of London. The bride's mother, Mme. Lennard Charles, was a well-known artist, especially at the South London Palace in the days of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Poole, and performed several times before Queen Victoria. Her daughters have also been honoured by Royal patronage. The bride, a talented pianist, vocalist, and mimic, has engagements up to 1908, when she will retire from the stage.

THE bridegroom, Mr. Burns, is well known as the manager of the Empress, Hartlepool. Four years ago he came there for a fortnight, but remained with Councillor Everton as manager, the house having become most popular under his rule. He is the proprietor of several companies, and has had much to do with pantomime productions. The newly-married couple have been the recipients of many congratulations.

BELFAST, the commercial capital of Ireland, is rapidly forging ahead as an amusement centre. Already it has the Royal and Palace, under the management of Messrs. Warden, Ltd.; the New Belfast Alhambra; also the Empire, run on a working arrangement with the Moss and Stoll Syndicate. The Belfast Alhambra Hippodrome is in course of erection, and will be opened about Easter; and now the New Alexandra Theatre (as advertised in The Era) will also be erected in the course of the year. The latter will be run on purely dramatic lines and cheap prices, and will cater for a suburb with a population of about 80,000.

IT is understood that the land upon which the Royal Court Theatre at Warrington stood before it was so unfortunately burnt down is about to become the property of Moss' Empires, Limited, who, it is stated, intend to shortly commence the erection of a new music hall on a scale similar to their other palatial houses.

DR. WALFORD BODIE, who has been spending Christmas week at the Manor House, Macduff, nearly lost his date at the Argyle, Birkenhead. He left Macduff on Friday (4th) for a journey of fifty miles, and arrived at Aberdeen on Saturday night. As luck would have it, the first North British train arrived from the South (four days late) on the same night, and the Doctor therefore was able to leave on the Sunday afternoon. After cutting through several big, heavy snow-drifts, and passing the sad scene of the Scotch Express disaster, he arrived in Liverpool only four hours late. His train was the only one that got through, as the line from Dundee to Aberdeen again got blocked up, three trains being derailed by the snow. Dr. Bodie had a record week at Birkenhead, and is rebooked to return at a big increase. He opens at Terriss's Theatre on Monday.

MR. ALFRED SELWYN, the popular lessee of the Empire, Hull, on Friday last entertained to a well-spread supper the members of his Hull staff. Supporting Mr. Selwyn were Mr. A. E. Ramsdale (solicitor) from London, Mr. Leach, Mr. Sydney Tolfree, of the Wakefield Hippodrome, Mr. Harry Slingsby, Mr. Selwyn's Hull manager, and representatives of the Press. A very enjoyable time was spent, the company dispersing at four o'clock a.m. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Selwyn for his kindness.

MISS LILIETH LEYTON, on Jan. 3 at Belfast, met with an accident which prevented her appearing on the Friday and Saturday evenings at the local Empire, where she was fulfilling an engagement in her well-known sketch, The Order of the Bath. However, at a few hours' notice Miss Dulcie Lloyd (of the Arthur Lloyd Trio) undertook to play Miss Leyton's part, and on Friday and Saturday evenings (twice nightly) that lady appeared, with considerable success in the duologue, in addition to playing her own part in Little Charlie; or, The Twin Sisters. Miss Lilieth Leyton and Mr. Spurling expressed their gratitude to Miss Lloyd for so capably stepping into the breach by making her a handsome present. Happily, Miss Leyton has recovered, and is in harness again.

A SPECIAL matinée to the inmates of Milton Asylum and Workhouse was given by permission of the directors at the Portsmouth Empire Palace on Thursday, when the following artists gave their services: Ingram and Irving, Gladys Whitton, Kitty Clover and Co., Mill, May, and Theresa, the Strads, the Katos, Atlas, Vulcana, and Sisters Atlas, Johnny Dwyer, and the Craggs. Popular pictures were also thrown on the screen by Payne's Bio-photoscope.

THE Terriers have arranged for their annual dinner and ball to take place at the Horns, Kennington, on Sunday, March 17, St. Patrick's Night.

THE postponed annual general meeting of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund will be held at 1, Durham House-street, Strand, on Friday next, at 1.30 o'clock, to receive the report of the committee and the accounts of the Fund for the year ending Aug. 31, 1906, and to elect officers.

AN interim dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum has been declared by the New Tivoli, Limited, for the half-year ended Dec. 31, 1906. Congratulations to Messrs. Payne, Tozer, and Sutton, and their manager, Mr. Joseph Wilson.

THE fifth anniversary of the Islington Empire will be celebrated on Friday evening next, when the two performances will commence at 6 and 9.10 o'clock. A number of West End artists have kindly consented to appear, in addition to the excellent company engaged under the management of Mr. George L. Wilson.

CARL HERTZ, the great conjurer, is top-liner at Hackney Empire next week. He will present his latest illusion, "The Bridal Chamber," which involves the instantaneous production from nothing of a complete bedroom, including a solid 7ft. bed, with bedding, upon which is reclining the bride. Born in San Francisco, of German parents, Mr. Hertz followed the calling of a draper for some time, travelling all over the States for four or five years.

HE then came to England, making a sensation with the "birdcage" trick, for which he obtained a huge advertisement because the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals contended that he killed a bird every time he performed it. He wrote to the Society, and offered to do the trick with a bird marked by any of its officers, assuring them that they were entirely mistaken, and pointed out that they were ruining his business. Eventually matters were arranged, and he went to the offices of the Society in Jermyn-street, and performed the trick with a bird which had been secretly marked. They were quite satisfied.

THE advantage of having one's wife in the business is that important secrets do not leak out, and no doubt Carl Hertz is happy in the knowledge that, when inventing a new illusion for our amusement, he has to impart the key of the mystery to no one but his life-partner, Mlle. d'Alton, the heroine of the bridal chamber. Not only are Carl's secrets safe, but his performance is greatly enhanced by the presence of so beautiful and gracious an assistant.

THE great dancing expert, My Fancy, is an attraction at the Hackney Empire next week. This winsome lady has danced on gold, an incident that came about in this manner. "When starring with Charles Godfrey company in Western Australia," says My Fancy, "no sand was procurable for my dance, so the people in the place said they would get me some gold dust, and accordingly they brought a quantity. Of course it was mixed with quartz, but when I put it in water I could see the gold grains shining ever so prettily. I kept some of it by me for a long time, and carried it about, but it gradually wasted away, and I do not think there is any left now."

MR. SYDNEY PAXTON has been engaged by Mr. Alfred Moul as business-manager for the Zancigs on their forthcoming tour. It is anticipated that their enormous success at the Alhambra, where business is still beating all records, will be continued in the provinces.

THE fourth "Twelfth Night" celebration made another pleasant happening at the Chelsea Palace on Monday night. No sooner had the last pleasure-seeker departed than the lifting of the curtain disclosed a charming drawing-room, with the cake, set on a centre table, as the chief attraction. Mr. Berlin, in a few felicitous phrases, called upon Mr. Lyon to cut the cake—a ceremony that he has performed every year since 1904, when the celebration was inaugurated.

AFTER congratulating the staff upon the good feeling existing between them and the directors, Mr. Lyon stated that he was sure they regretted, with him, the continual illness of their highly-respected managing-director, Mr. Henri Gros, and their jovial manager, Mr. Edward Swanborough, or, as he called him, "Dear Old Teddy," and sincerely hoped that they both would soon be in a perfect state of health. Their two former acting-managers, Mr. Harry Bawn and Mr. Leon Zeitlin, were with them again to show their respect for their old comrades by coming long distances after their night's work.

WITH much ceremony, and with a few mystic words, which two or three assembled seemed to understand, the cake was cut and distributed, with the usual additions. After the health of the directors had been drunk, and speeches had been given by Messrs. Henry Bawn, Leon Zeitlin, and Angelo Asher, a very pleasant meeting was brought to a close.

MISS BARBARA BABINGTON, a client of the evergreen, energetic Will Oliver, who recently scored at the Tivoli and Collins's, has made a great success on her first attempt as principal boy at the Theatre Royal, Hull, and doubtless we shall soon hear more of this young and talented artist.

DOUGLAS AND GORDON, Scottish comedy artists with a high provincial reputation, make their début before a Brixton audience at the Empress on Monday next.

THE pupils of Miss Mabel Lauri, niece of the late Charles Lauri, will, on the evening of the 30th inst., perform a pantomime, the subject being Cinderella, at the Drill Hall (Bloomsbury Rifles), Chenies-street, Tottenham Court-road. The "book" and the music are by Miss Lauri, assisted in the latter department by J. Airlie Dix, who will conduct the orchestra.

THE Terriers had their annual dinner and social on Sunday, at their head-quarters, the Dover Castle Hotel, Westminster Bridge-road. A most enjoyable evening was spent. About sixty sat down to a sumptuous feast. Amongst those present were Messrs. Jesse Sparrow (president), in the chair, Douglas White (hon. treasurer), G. P. R. Burgess (hon. solicitor), Charlie Pratt and Sam Salter (hon. trustees), H. Cory Woodrow (hon. auditor), Will Van Allen, George Pearson, John Moore, Joe Lawrence, Tom Burnetti, W. H. Atlas, Arthur Simmons, W. L. Murray, G. Wyman, Leon and Will Bassett, Percy Ford, F. H. Kohler, E. C. Webb, M. McDowall, J. C. Moore, H. Flamme, P. B. Searle, H. Hough, W. and H. Jeapes, H. H. Maisner, A. Willson, A. Clapp, Sam Stockton, Alf. Cawthorn, B. Woodger, Harry Gage, E. Johnson, F. Gage, Ben Whiteley, Joe Aarons, Will King, Arthur Dome, E. E. Cooke, T. C. Callaghan, G. V. O'Connolly, Harry Kato, Charlie Jerome, Spot, Charlie Stelling, A. Appleyard, Charlie Cornish, S H. Kent, and Harry Lester (secretary). After the loyal toasts and speeches, the social commenced. Among those contributing were Alf. Cawthorn, Will Van Allen, W. L. Murray, Charlie Stelling, Percy Ford, Joe Lawrence, and Charlie Pratt (the sensation of the evening). J. C. Moore presided at the piano, and Spot acted as M.C. The arrangements were most satisfactorily carried out by the secretary, Harry Lester.

MR. WILL OLIVER, with all the boyish enthusiasm of half a century of years, rejoices in the success of his numerous clients, who have been sending him the best wishes for the New Year, and, what is even more cheering to him, accounts of their success and increased demands for their services. He does not languish for decorations, the orders he appreciates most being those for new contracts. May his shadow never grow less!

IT is Miss Flora Hastings (Mrs. R. R. Mill), who through the loss of her husband is compelled to return to the stage, and is seeking engagements. In our "Gossip" paragraph last week the name given was Miss Flo Hastings, once a popular burlesque artist, whose husband, Mr. Jack Crawley, is, happily, alive, and has recently been endowed with a legacy of £500.

MR. MENDEL, the blind pianist, intends introducing on Monday next, at the Oxford, for the first time outside the concert platform, the Finale from Saint-Saëns' G minor Concerto. His répertoire of classical pieces for which he has had so much hearty applause—showing the vast advance in the musical tastes of the public—includes Concerto No. 1 (Mendelssohn), presto movement, first week; Polonaise, Op. 72 (Weber) arranged by Liszt, second week; and Rondo (from the Concerto No. 2 of Beethoven), third week.

MISS LOUISA PEACH will be at Collins's next week, with her comedy sketch Taming a Husband. Mr. Kyburn-Dellar will appear as the husband, and Mr. Conrad Clerke as the bachelor friend Colonel Adams.

THE music of Robbing Hood, at the Tivoli, is from the practised and accomplished pen of Mr. Ernest Bucalossi, who has shown his customary aptness in his melodic settings of solos and choruses.

ONE of the sensations of Mr. Clarence Sounes's pantomime at the Prince's, Poplar, is the aerial dances of Miss Maude May Murray. This is the second year Mr. Sounes has secured this speciality. Managers and agents on the look-out for something new should not fail to see a turn that has not yet toured the halls.

MISS BESSIE BUTT, whose dancing at the London Coliseum last year was one of the pleasantest recollections of that house, has scored an indisputable success as Cinderella at the Alexandra, Birmingham, and is already one of the greatest pantomime favourites ever seen at that house. At the night performance on Saturday she took no fewer than twenty-six calls

MR. WALTER GRAHAM, "the human marionette," was personally engaged by Sir William Treloar to appear at the Guildhall on Dec. 31, but owing to the time fixed for his appearance clashing with his two music hall contracts, he was unable to be there. The non-fulfilment of his engagement has been a deep disappointment to Mr. Graham.

MR. TOM LEAMORE, who has been playing this week with his usual success at the Euston, has just published the following songs with the Shapiro Von Tilzer Music Co.:—"She's my daughter," by Collins and Castling; "The sad story," by C. Collins and Nat Clifford; and "What a friend," by C. Collins. Mr. Leamore opens next week at the Palace, Stoke Newington, and the Hippodrome, Crouch End, and returns to the Paragon on Jan. 21 after six weeks' absence.

THE Portsmouth Empire Palace, Limited, present an annual report upon which the directorate may be highly congratulated. The balance of profit, after charging interest on Debentures, dividend on Preference shares, and transferring £300 to structural improvement reserve account, is £4,806 16s. 2d. The directors recommend a balance dividend of 10 per cent. (free of Income-tax), making, together with the interim dividend already paid, 20 per cent. for the year. The amount to be carried forward to next account will be 4,351 6s. 8d. Captain E. H. Warren Wright retires by rotation, and offers himself for re-election.

THE Arizona Troupe and Will Percival, who have been making a big success for fourteen weeks in the U.S.A., are now touring Cuba with the Oriental Circus for sixteen weeks. They then join the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. Circus for thirty-two weeks to tour through U.S.A. and Canada.

MR. STANLEY DOUGLAS last week was called upon to deputise for Mr. J. K. Reynolds at the Haymarket, Liverpool, at two hours' notice, and successfully appeared there with his own sketch, Her Only Crime.

THERE was a remarkable demonstration of popular sympathy at the funeral at Bristol on Monday of Miss Bessie Featherstone, whose lamented death at Newcastle-on-Tyne whilst fulfilling an engagement as principal boy at the Tyne Theatre was announced by us last week. Hundreds of persons assembled at the cemetery, and flowers came from members of the profession in all parts of the country.

MR. HUGH WIGGLESWORTH'S Manchester variety agency is now amalgamated with Messrs. Webster and Girling's agency, at 150, Strand. Judging from Mr. Wigglesworth's past successful experience as a manager (at Blackpool Victoria and North Pier Pavilions, and Morecambe Pier Pavilion) and his thorough knowledge of the variety stage, this amalgamation should prove of value to the profession in general, and proprietors and managers in particular.

CONSIDERABLE damage was done on the 6th inst. through an outbreak of fire in a railway truck containing the pictorial paraphernalia and costumes of Poole's Myriorama, while on its way to Bishop Auckland. Strenuous efforts were made by the members of the company to extinguish the flames, and one was severely burned about the hands and feet. The fire, which occurred a few miles from Darlington, was eventually extinguished by water from the tanks at one of the stations.

MR. WILLIE PHILLIPS and Miss Ada Terry have been starring this week at the Margate Hippodrome, and have made a big success with their sketch The Revolt of Man. Miss Terry is to be congratulated on her recovery from a severe attack of laryngitis.

THE latest quotations of music hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra 1⅞, Canterbury ⅜, Empire (15s. pd) 1¼, Do. (10s. pd) 1, Lon. Pav. Ord. 4⅜, Do. Pref. 5, Lon. Coliseum ¼, Metropolitan ⅜, Moss Empire 5, Do. 5 p.c. Pref. 3⅝, Oxford 6⅜, Palace 11s., Tivoli 6⅜, Var. Cons. Theas. 13s.

THE 496th meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music-Hall Artists' Railway Association was held on Wednesday, when the following were present:—Messrs. Fred Millis (V.P.), Douglas White (hon. treasurer), Harry Blake, Charles Coborn (V.P.), W. H. Clemart (president), and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. Fred Millis was voted to the chair. The minutes having been confirmed, questions regarding the funds were dealt with. Two matters of the change of agencies were adjourned, and Mr. Burton H. Harland was appointed as agent at Sandgate. The hon. treasurer's statements were passed as read, and it was announced that forty new members had joined during the week.

MEMBERS of the profession will be pleased to hear that Mr. Fred Karno has succeeded in his action in the American Courts restraining persons from playing his sketch, Mumming Birds. His new production, The Football Match, at the Palace, Manchester, has scored a big success, and on the conclusion of the run there will immediately start on the Moss and Stoll Tour.

THE new wing which has just been added to Mr. Karno's premises in Vaughan-road makes them the most complete and best equipped for theatrical purposes in London. With his pantomime, The House that Jack Built, at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, Mr. Karno is now breaking records, it being now in the sixth week of its run. It is anticipated that it will run another six.

MR. WAL CROFT, who made us laugh at the Marlborough by his admirable impersonation of a pawky Scot in the London production of A Trip to the Highlands, is exerting his humorous power with the most hilarious effect in the production of Mother Goose at the Princess Theatre, Glasgow, where he is playing nightly the part of The MacGander. He has a very laughable parody of "Annie Laurie," which evokes shouts of laughter. MacGander does not belong to the Kailyard school, but he is immensely funny "for a' that."

IT will be remembered that the definition of chauffeur as given in Mr. Gus Elen's lexicon is "Hot 'un." That is why the eminent coster comedian drives his own car. He visited The Era buildings the other day with his charming wife on his way to the "great Fun City" at Olympia. Gus thinks it would be a good idea if the stars only performed, like the great operatic artists, on alternate nights.

MR. GEORGE LEYTON, the military and naval actor-vocalist, is proud of a charitable record, which does credit not only to his heart but to his patriotic instincts. With the close of 1906 he has handed to different poor and needy Crimean veterans the sum of £2,094 3s. This sum does not include the £30 he gave the week before last to the Liverpool Hot-Pot Fund.

THE claims of St. Cecilia are being recognised more and more every year by our leading music-hall turns, and this week at the Empire, Camberwell, the novel turn of the Markies is a proof of this statement. They present their instrumental act, entitled From Pavement to Stage, in an excellent stage, and in the second set—a drawing-room—an elaborate electrical fit-up makes a brilliant picture. Their success has been immediate and well deserved.

MR. HAROLD P. HOWELL, acting-manager of the Hippodrome, Southampton, contradicts an erroneous statement made in a contemporary last week that the management of that house, which belongs to the De Frece Circuit, gave three matinées and stopped payment for Christmas Day. It paid all salaries in full, and gave the customary two matinées.

"MAM'SELLE POM POM" (a bright little musical comedietta), played by Mr. H. C. Lovell and company, is this week at the top of the bill (in place of Clark and Hamilton) at the Hippodrome, Crouch End. It is accorded a most flattering reception, screams of laughter punctuating the dialogue from the rise to the fall of the curtain.

"THE PUNCH AND JUDY GIRL" is again making a success at the New Cross Empire this week, the singing and dancing of these young performers being much admired, and the show, if possible, going with greater vim than on the previous visit.

IT is gratifying to lovers of pantomime to know that at Drury-lane, with all its comprehensive installation of every known modern device in place of former cumbersome contrivances, the old "star trap" still obtains. When Arthur Conquest—once only, alas! in the course of the "opening"—springs up through the "star" as the Old Man of the Sea, and with malignant face of intensest hate, approaches his enemy with the well-known Conquest crouching, limping gait, what memories arise of the time when great George as Spitz the spider crab, as Roly Poly, or as Rokoko, the rock fiend, courted death nightly, and thrilled children and elders alike at the Grecian, and elsewhere—notably at the Alhambra, when in the "spectacular macedoine" of "Venice" he played Trappistino il Diavolo, Chief of the Venetian Police!

MR. AND MRS. JOHN E. NASH (Miss Lil Hawthorne) sailed on the White Star liner Celtic, Jan. 2, for New York.

AT the Ealing Hippodrome this week, Lazern, the Mystic, is delighting large audiences with his sleight-of-hand problems and cleverly-executed illusions.

MR. GEORGE NEWBURN, the popular mimic, concludes to-night a highly-successful provincial tour, and opens in town on Monday at the Palace, Hammersmith, the London, and Collins's.

MR. HORACE LANE, the latest recruit from the regular stage, who has just made a successful trial trip at the Tivoli, has come to stay. He belongs to that new and welcome type of light comedian that modern audiences have taken to. Smartly and elegantly dressed, Mr. Lane dispenses smart comedy, and bright, humorous, and, above all, melodious songs. He has been fitted with some excellent numbers by Messrs. A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott which will be duly published by the Star Music Co.

MLLE. TROUHANOVA, a dancer who has been performing at Monte Carlo, has had a narrow escape. Accompanied by her mother and some friends, she was driving in a motor-car along the Beaulieu road, when something went wrong with the steering wheel. The car rushed into the rocks by the roadside and was smashed. The dancer's mother received several cuts and bruises, but the artist and the other occupants fortunately escaped unhurt.

AT the invitation of Sir Alfred Dobbin on Wednesday last Mr. Fred Neiman gave his ventriloquial entertainment at the gymnasium in the barracks at Cork, and was congratulated on all sides on his remarkable gifts.

LITTLE SAMSON, whose real name was Larkins, who belonged to Herbert Darnley's Muscles company, whose accidental death from asphyxiation by gas was reported in our columns last week, was buried at Finchley Cemetery on Wednesday. A number of wreaths sent by members of the profession covered the casket.

THE Two Bostons write: "Will you allow us to state that the announcement in The Era that we are at Hammersmith this week is incorrect. We are on the Moss and Stoll tour."

ALL the members of the South African football team, "The Springboks," accepted the invitation of Mr. Alfred Butt to witness the programme of the Palace Theatre on Thursday night.

LITTLE ZOLA, who is out of pantomime this year, reports that his receptions in the Eastern counties, at the Norwich and Ipswich Hippodromes, belonging to Mr. E. H. Bostock, have surpassed his most sanguine anticipations. He has also been gratified at receiving from Mr. J. L. Graydon contracts up to 1909, and several dates from Mr. Oswald Stoll.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

R. P. Weston and F. J. Barnes are responsible for a really humorous ditty, "He started in a very small way." In these days when good comic songs are as scarce as black pearls this is welcome news. The Star Music Co. have secured this number, which will be issued shortly in their sixpenny editions.

Advices from pantomime producers in all parts of the country fully justify the publishers' high opinion of that catchy song, "Sailing in my balloon." At the Broadway, S.E., audiences are so persistent with encores that Miss Lily Sprightly has to sing the last verse and chorus three times before she is allowed to retire. The Star Music Co. are the lucky publishers.

Miss Hetty King is featuring with success at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, three of the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.'s, publications, viz.: "When I get back to Piccadilly," "In a hammock built for two," and "I want a Gibson Girl," for which the publishers have had large demands.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have just secured for publication from Mr. Chas. Collins a new song, entitled "What a friend," which is being featured by Messrs. Tom Leamore and George Collins. The publishers will shortly issue this song in their popular sixpenny edition.

Mr. Harry Champion has just accepted from the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., a new song, written and composed by T. F. Robson and J. Chas. Moore, entitled "Let's have a ditty from Brown," which he intends to produce very shortly.

Miss Lily Morris has made a huge hit at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle, with Charles Wilmott and Herman E. Darewski, jun.'s charming Japanese song, "Home again, my cherry blossom," which bids fair to become one of the foremost songs of the year. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day

Mr. John F. Lambe has published a new number with Messrs. Francis and Day, entitled "Won't you come back again to Ehren on the Rhine?"

Mr. Harry Randall, now happily recovered from his indisposition, is causing one of the biggest roars of laughter in Sindbad at Drury Lane by relating how Mrs. Swizzle (of the Fulham-road) soaked two dog biscuits in fourpenny ale and served them up to her lodgers as a tipsy cake! The "gag" is from the pen of Edgar Bateman.

Miss Kate Carney received a letter this week the address of which must have considerably amused—if it is not against the rules—the officials of the G.P.O. It ran thus:—

It's not for the Belle of New York,
For Fifi or Mr. Bronson;
Try B H (221)
And ask for "'Liza Johnson."

Mr. Dennis Drew opens at Shepherds Bush on Monday with his scena, Back to Barracks. Kenneth Lyle's spirited song, "The beat of the drum," which is sung in the sketch, will be issued immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day as a "Sixpenny Pop."

Miss Marie Lloyd's new Spanish song, "Tiddley-om-Pom," is by Fred W. Leigh and Orlando Powell. It is in the press, Messrs. Francis and Day being the publishers.

A very melodious song, and one which has been redemanded at Hengler's at every performance of Red Riding Hood, has been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day. It is by Arthur Comber, with music by Denham Harrison, and is called "As the river flows to the sea." It is artistically rendered by Prince Charming (Miss Maggie Robertson).

Also being issued from Messrs. Francis and Day's establishment are two numbers, named respectively "A sad good-bye" and "Two loving eyes," by C. Hector and Miss Vi Carlyle, sung by that popular lady; "My poor heart went pitter-patter" (Harry Champion), by R. P. Weston; "The sunbeam and the rose," by Jack Thompson; "Golden Eyes: an Indian romance," by Fred Godfrey; "My sweet Italian maid," by T. F. Robson; and "Read between the lines" (Miss Sable Fern), by Frank Leo.

The unqualified success of the charming song, "Queen of Old Samara," in this country has been endorsed by our American cousins to such an extent that Messrs. Francis and Day have acquired the American rights for immediate publication by their New York house. Mr. Fred Elton is receiving unlimited applause for his artistic rendering of the song on the Stoll tour.

"THE COLLAR STUD" AT TONYPANDY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

Sir,—My attention has been called to a paragraph in The Era of last week. I refer to the item in the "Variety Gossip," referring to the recent visit of The Collar Stud to Tonypandy, and the subsequent death of Augustus N. Hall and serious illness of Brown Elliott, two members of the company

As I am closely connected with the successful sketch referred to, the somewhat unhappy phrasing of this paragraph has caused me considerable annoyance. The following may give your numerous readers a more correct view of the case than the afore-mentioned paragraph conveyed:—

(1) Both Hall and Elliott were considerably in advance of their salaries before they opened in Tonypandy.

(2) Although the salary from the management was duly handed over to Hall, as manager for the company, I have not, up to the present, received one penny piece.

(3) One member of the company (Mrs. Wilson Summers), through some misunderstanding with my representative, did not take her salary, and I, as a consequence, had to pay twice, so to speak.

(4) How a portion of the money found upon Hall was disbursed, the following excerpt from a letter in my possession will explain:—"Nurse, £3 3s.; landlady, £5 6s.; undertaker, £4."

As a matter of fact, I am some £25 out of pocket through this unfortunate affair, over which (and I quote from a letter of Mr. Baldry's received on Tuesday) "you (meaning myself) are no more to blame than I am."

I may add, in conclusion, that from all that has come to my knowledge since his death, Hall was too ill to personally render me any account of what had been done with the money handed to him.

The tale with regard to that still remains to be completed—in the law courts.

Trusting you will give the same publicity to this letter that you have already given to the obnoxious paragraph referred to,—I am, yours faithfully,

HUBERT BARTLETT.

Tivoli, Manchester, Jan. 10, 1907.

P.S.—I have omitted to mention that Hall had been in my employ only five weeks, and Elliott two days when they opened at Tonypandy; further, that I was personally in Scotland at the time.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"AN ACTOR'S ART."

A Comedy Sketch, in One Act, by Mr. J. L. Shine, Produced, for the First Time, at the Empire, Camberwell, on Tuesday Evening, Jan. 8.

J. L. Shine, an Actor
A Lancashire Farmer
Gerald Guiness .....
Old Irish Applewoman
George Grant .....
A Scotch Elder .....
A Coster ....Mr. J. L. Shine

Gerald Guiness .....Mr. Fred Shine
George Grant .....Mr. Alec Crichton
Arthur Bifkins .....Mr. R. Gilder
Mary Russell .....Miss Blanche Colmer

Owing to the sudden indisposition of Mr. J. L. Shine on Monday, the production of this brilliant little comedy sketch had to be postponed till Tuesday evening, when at both houses Mr. Shine, his comedy, and his carefully-selected company were accorded a most enthusiastic reception. The story unfolded in this cleverly conceived and admirably constructed little playlet concerns the private enquiry firm of Messrs. Guiness and Grant, who have just received a scathing letter from a lady client, asking for the return of her money, as the firm had failed to give her the information asked for. The partners are discussing this communication, when their mutual friend, J. L. Shine, the actor, and his sweetheart, Mary Russell, call. He is soon put into possession of the facts, and tells the canny Scots that he is not surprised at their failure, as their methods are wrong, and, instead of employing flat-footed ex-police officers, whom anyone can detect, they should employ actors for their work, who are masters in "the art of make-believe." Guiness and Grant both pooh-pooh the idea, and Shine is told that "actors are a conceited lot." He is somewhat nettled at this, and at once offers to debit £500 to the firm's account if he fails to come in and out of their office without their identifying him within two hours. Guiness and Grant eagerly accept the challenge, as it is a £500 to nothing chance for them. Shine and his sweetheart have hardly got off the premises when there enters a Lancashire farmer who has lost his daughter, and puts the tracing of her into the firm's hands. Guiness goes out with the farmer to wire to the Yard, and Grant is surprised to find his partner returning so quickly; but it is Shine so admirably disguised that even his partner has no idea of the deception. The actor makes an excuse to get away, and when Guiness returns and says he has been detained at the telephone Grant thinks his partner has been drinking. Whilst in the midst of an angry altercation they are interrupted by the entrance of a garrulous old Irish applewoman, whom eventually they have to eject. Grant says he will settle with his partner when he comes back from the bank. Shine then comes in disguised as Grant, and poor Guiness is delighted to find him in a better temper than when he left. Shine makes an excuse to slip away, and confusion worse confounded ensues when Grant returns, bent on having it out with Guiness. They are just coming to blows, when a Scotchman intrudes. It is needless to say that this is also Shine, and his departure paves the way for the entry of a typical London coster, who informs the partners that he has overheard Shine telling his sweetheart that he is coming disguised as his valet. It, however, begins to dawn on the mystified partners that all their visitors have been Shine in disguise, including the clever impersonations of themselves, and that their chance of claiming the £500 is nil. They, however, cling to a last hope, and when Mary Russell and Shine's secretary come to enquire after Shine they seize the valet and claim the wager. The appearance of Shine in their midst dispels their last hope. Shine, however, generously promises to put the £500 into their business, as he is sure the lesson he has taught them, that "the actor's art" is not to be despised, will be for their ultimate good. Unreserved praise is due to Mr. J. L. Shine for his finished impersonations. His whole performance only went to prove to the hilt the truism, "that the new school of actors have a vast deal to learn from the old." His efforts were most loyally supported by Miss Blanche Colmer as Mary Russell, Mr. Fred Shine as Gerald Guiness, Mr. Alec Crichton as George Grant, and Mr. R. Gilder as Shine's valet.

"IN THE DAYS OF KING CHARLES."

This new Musical Scena was produced for the first time at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday last.

In a pretty scene, by Frederick A. Munns, representing a picture-gallery in an historical castle, a party of children are, with song and dance, enjoying themselves in the ruddy glow of the fire. Pretty little Elsie Videau is asked by her companions if she has ever heard the legend of her ancestress, cruel Lady Ann. She says she has, and that the ghost of Lady Ann always appears on the eve of Christmas, and she should so much like to see her. A panel in the gallery slides open, and Lady Ann appears, and is questioned by the child as to why she killed her lord. The Ghost comes forth, and while all the children gather around with terror-stricken faces, she recites to them "The Oath of Lady Ann," which tells how, "in the days of King Charles," her lord, a Royalist, went forth to fight against the Cromwellian troops, and, after engaging in a continuous combat for two days, he finds himself near his home. He determines to rest awhile, but before doing so makes his wife, Lady Ann, take an oath that should the Cromwell soldiers make their appearance she will seize a dagger and kill him, to save him falling into their hands. Distracted by fear, she at last takes the oath, and her lord at once falls into a heavy sleep. Some time after Lady Ann is startled by the appearance of the soldiers on the crest of the hill, and as they come nearer she recognises Cromwell's men. Remembering her oath, she seizes the dagger, and in her agony of mind and fears for her husband's safety, plunges it into the heart of her sleeping lord. The officer of the troop presents a document to Lady Ann which is a free pardon for her husband from Cromwell.

After the recital of this gruesome story, the ghost of Lady Ann retires whence she came, telling the child Elsie that now she has told her story to one of her descendants her spirit will rest in peace.

As my Lady Ann, Miss Edith Blande holds the attention of her audience by her high dramatic and elocutionary powers; the little girl sings and dances charmingly, while the rest of the children do all that is asked of them thoroughly and well.

Others in the programme here this week are Flo Penley and Geo. English in their musical duo In Ould Kildare; Jock Walker, the Scotch comedian; the Markies, in a musical scena, From Pavement to Stage; Cardow Cadets, in a humorous vocal mélange, Last Night Ashore; Max Duffax, musical contortionist; Tots Davis, the winsome and dainty danseuse; Charles Ashdowne, a clever legmania artist; Violet Nunn, a charming comedienne; and the Empire pictures.

On New Year's morning there passed away in Edinburgh, at the advanced age of ninety-five, Mrs. John Samwelt, the oldest equestrienne in the circus business. She was connected with most of the leading circus proprietors of the present and last century. Up to within a week of her death she was in full possession of all her faculties and able to go about as usual. She, unfortunately, sustained a chill, which culminated fatally.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PAVILION.

Mr. Frank Glenister has been very fortunate in his choice of attractions of late, and may be credited with a boom in art studies, represented by perfectly-figured ladies in the nude. Mr. W. T. Stead, a leading writer of the Western hemisphere, and a stickler for purity, pronounced the exhibition of La Milo—a beautiful Australian girl—a perfect and pure entertainment, and all London rushed to the Piccadilly-circus house to see the undraped posings of that lady in well-known works of sculpture, chosen from the art galleries of Europe. The exhibition of the Seldoms, who, we believe, come from Germany, has not received the imprimatur of Mr. Stead, but the crowds do not keep away from the London Pavilion on that account, and every evening sees a house packed in all parts eager to view a series of marble groups which we think have not been equalled in the history of the halls. Our memory carries us back to the time when Mark Johnson in his statuary act was a prominent attraction; but public taste has much advanced since then, as those who remember the crude effects of the old act will admit when they view the artistic perfection of the Seldoms. A particularly fine study is "The Sabine Woman," from the Bologna Gallery, and a group full of virility is "The Wrestlers," after Lambeau, the Belgian sculptor; but nothing in the whole series approaches the admirable posing of "Reaching the Winning Post," after Boucher, of Paris. The turn keeps the house intently watching, but the applause that breaks out on its conclusion proves beyond a doubt that the Seldoms have scored a triumph.

Mr. Emlyn Jones and his Emerald Ladies' Quartette return time after time to this popular house, and evoke the liveliest interest and heartiest appreciation by their fine singing. Such familiar numbers as "Killarney" and "The Lost Chord" are beautifully harmonised and delicately rendered. The harmony of the plantation is effectively illustrated by the Kentucky Four, who include a very lively dancer known as Topsy, "the whirlwind."

An attractive feature of the programme is the number of humorous turns. Those happily-associated partners, Mr. Athas and Miss Lizzie Collins evoke considerable laughter by their latest success The Lady and the Scarecrow. The drollery of Howard and Collinson are none the less enjoyable because the lady ("the parcel") is capable of a clever imitation of a doll. Mr. Phil Ray, who is fixed up at this house for some time, "goes" better than ever in his abbreviated patter—an original idea of his own; Mr. Chris Richards, a wonderful dancer and a comic hat-manipulator, though he gives us nothing fresh, is most eccentric in his general behaviour; Mr. Harry Ford, another Pavilion favourite, must get better songs if he wishes to sustain his reputation as a comedian; but Mr. Whit Cunliffe needs nothing better at present than his "Hello, hello, hello!" which is being sung in every pantomime in the British Isles. Mr. Carter Livesey and Miss Lilian Rosebery, assisted by Mr. Albert Mason, present The Would-Be Actors, and evoke roars of laughter; Mr. Ambrose Thorne and the Pavilion Girls repeat their success in The Practical Tactical Nautical Man, a well-dressed and taking scena; Mr. Albert Whelan deserves his success for his clever whistling and still more clever imitations of Chirgwin, Harry Lauder, and Gus Elen; Mr. Kit Keen, by his bone-playing, revives slumbering recollections of the past glories of minstrel entertainments; and other turns in a full and excellent bill are contributed by the Cape Girls, the Pavilion Girls, Mr. Hal Forde, Miss Mignon Tremayne, and the Brothers Horne.

THE EUSTON.

Messrs. George Adney Payne and Fred McAvoy enter into a contract with each of their patrons, from god to stallite, to give them a good entertainment for current coin of the realm tendered at the box-office, and they announce this fact in an ingenious advertisement, issued as a cheque, backed by a printed list of the company. The chief star of the present bill is Tom Leamore, who has lately lapsed into the sentimental mood in a new character, which at least proclaimed his versatility. At the Euston, however, he reverts to his familiar eccentric business, by which he leaped into fame directly after he discovered that he was something a great deal more than a clog-dancer. It is difficult to get songs that strike an original vein of humour, and Mr. Leamore depends in the main on droll exaggeration and a wealth of incongruous detail. Both are to be found in his first song, "I'm the prodigal son," and in his second he indulges in a deal of patter concerning the duties of a London County Council custodian of our public parks. As a backer of horses, he naturally wishes for a racing track, and his patter concerning it, and his views of the economic conditions of the municipal service, are in quite the Munchausen vein.

Two vocalists make their mark at the Euston, and are deservedly encored for their excellent singing. Mr. Ian Colquhoun has a suitable vehicle for the display of his deep basso in the rollicking song, "To-morrow will be Friday," which he renders very finely indeed. Miss Daisy Davidson, the New Zealand soprano, gives the somewhat sugary and commonplace musical phrases of Carl Zeller's song, "The Nightingale," with all the necessary culture and style, but is heard to much greater advantage in a bravura song, in which her top notes ring out clear and true—much to the delight of her many admirers, who show their appreciation of her numbers by hand and voice.

Rough-and-tumble humour is to be discovered in the laughable boxing act of the Harvey Boys. Though without the services of the lamented Eddie Harvey, the business has lost nothing on the score of mirth-making, the youngest of the pair showing no little ability as a comedian. The boxing set-to is refereed by a speechless policeman, a part that is capably handled, and the sketch goes exceedingly well. Acrobats have, it seems, to be comedians, nowadays, in order to retain the rank of star attractions, and the funny man of Price and Revost fulfils this condition in a way that keeps the audience shaking with laughter. His assumed "clumsiness" is the cleverest exhibition of clowning that we have seen on the variety stage for years.

Mr. J. P. Ling is what may be termed a drawing-room humorist, and his experiences at a country entertainment obtain apt and whimsical treatment. The audience laugh consumedly at the tenor who invariably comes in a half-tone below the proper pitch in the country choral society's rendering of the hackneyed "Hail, smiling morn," and the lady afflicted with shortness of breath, singing "Come back to me," is also decidedly funny. Lotto, Lilo, and Otto play many fantastic and other tricks with bicycles, and also "play up" in an interesting game of bicycling polo, in which there is no lack of humour. Mr. Frank Leon takes his step-dancing quite seriously, and the audience become prodigal of applause when he indulges in "triple pats." The final item of the bill is The Duchess of Tooting, a musical comedy in miniature, of which the lyrics and music are by George Sheldon. The predicament of Charles Cash, whose father thinks he has married the Duchess of Tooting, instead of which he has taken to wife a lady of the halls, known to fame by her celebrated impersonation of the Duchess of Tootsie Wootsie, is the theme of a sufficiently amusing imbroglio, illustrated by song and dance and well-turned verses. The company includes Mr. Harry Latimer, Mr. Harry Buss, Mr. Frank Hertje, Miss Rhoda Paul, Miss Dora Heritage, and Miss Josie Farrington, and all do well. Misses Frazer and Haley also contribute to the programme, which is musically directed by Mr. Victor Opferman, except when Mr. George Sheldon, the composer of the musical comedy, undertakes to conduct his own work.

THE MIDDLESEX.

The popular hall in Drury-lane bore its customary aspect of fulness on the occasion of a recent visit, when a crowded audience sat and stood from early to late in the full enjoyment of a programme that once more reflected Mr. J. L. Graydon's capacity for selection. Every excuse for remaining to the end was furnished in the engagement of Mr. John Lawson and company in the sketch by Richard Pole, entitled The Devil's Sunday, which was recently renamed Vanity, but has now had its original title restored. The sketch makes a powerful impression, Mr. John Lawson's vivid portrayal of the convict out on bail being a vivid exposition of acute anguish. The mental torture which the betrayed husband feels is depicted in every lineament of his face, and the sudden access of passion which leads to the murder of the faithless wife is assumed with startling fidelity. The house cheers vehemently during the progress of the sketch, and at the end the clever artist is accorded an ovation.

A good beginning to the evening's entertainment is made by Miss Rene Ring, an attractive singer and dancer, who wins general favour. The Twin Brothers Dean look spick-and-span in white flannels, and after whistling a duet, indulge in a dance in which the variety and regularity of their steps are agreeably apparent. One of the performers also does a dance while seated on a chair—a feat difficult of accomplishment, and liberally rewarded. Mr. William Giffin selects a pathetic ballad to display his talents as a vocalist, afterwards giving a moving recitation of "The face on the floor," in which to show his ability as an actor, and in both departments he excels sufficiently to gain the attention and approbation of the house.

Fun is awakened by the appearance of Goodman, Holles, and Co. in their sketch of The Little Charwoman, in which the impersonator of the title-rôle shows marked versatility by playing the part of a flower-girl, a Dutch maiden, and a coon songstress. Comedy also asserts itself agreeably in Getting Even, the popular sketch presented by Sinclair and Whiteford. Mr. Fred Sinclair is the cause of unlimited merriment as the namby-pamby, but cynical, husband, his voice and appearance being exactly in accord with the part, while his female impersonation is also a remarkable one. Adequate assistance in the merriment is rendered by Miss Gracie Whiteford as the impulsive wife, whose assumption of male attire is attended with such dire results. Stidder and Dunbar supply an entertainment in which the piano and 'cello figure usefully, the young lady doing a doll song and dance admirably. She also assists in the playing by her partner on the 'cello of "Eileen Alanah," by appearing as a "living picture" in illustration of the song.

A severe test of the appreciation of Middlesex patrons is furnished in a Shakespearean excerpt, called Clarence's Dream, but Mr. Albert Wyndham and his company, who long since succeeded in putting the beauties of the bard forcibly before a variety audience, emerge victorious from the ordeal. The episode is taken from the first act of Richard III., and introduces the dream scene of Clarence, his appeal to his intending murderers and his brutal slaughter by one of the ruffians. Mr. Wyndham invests his performance of the title-rôle with picturesque solemnity, and his delivery of long speeches in blank verse elicited loud and frequent cheers. Clifton and Gibson are expert knockabout comedians, and prove vastly popular with their burlesque of a second-sight performance and a well-arranged medley. Miss Gracie Bard commands the voice as well as the ear of the audience in the refrain, "Remember me to mother dear"; and Miss Mollie Doon, who makes a smart cantinière in her first song, also sings "I wish I were you" and dances neatly. Loud applause is accorded the Sisters Selwyn for a couple of charming duets; the new Bioscope displays new and interesting pictures; and others in the long programme are the Bensons, in a musical comedy act, Alec Kennedy, and Athas and Collins.

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

Patrons of the Palace at Camberwell are largely reinforced by the added means of transit furnished by the tramway extension, by which residents in the rapidly-growing suburb of Dulwich may be set down at the door of the elegant hall. Of this advantage they avail themselves to the full, and the result is found in houses packed twice nightly. A potent attraction of the current bill is supplied by that mammoth producer, Mr. Fred Karno's latest effort, entitled Moses and Son, from the pen of Mr. Karno himself, in conjunction with Fred Kitchen and Harold Gatty, with music by Dudley Powell. The sketch enjoys the distinction of being presented by a company composed entirely of Hebrew artists, with one notable exception, in the case of Mr. Albert Bruno, who makes a very eccentric personage of the caretaker at the banker's, who has the presumption to make love to the daughter of the house. Mr. Bruno is a finished comedian, but does not fear to strike a pathetic note at the end, when the resourceful Perkins, who has been posing as a millionaire at a ball in Park-lane, is denounced by his employer and degraded before all the company. Miss Leah Morris is entitled to commendation for her share of the performance; and Miss Janet Reeve, Miss Madge Rockingham, Mr. Herbert Landeck, and Mr. Anthony Gordon assist in the completeness of the production, the novelty and interest of which keep the audience engrossed to the very end.

The warmest welcome of the evening is extended to Miss Lily Burnand, the announcement of whose number is received with a round of applause. She is in her best form, and invests her song, "Now she's got her picture on the post-card," with vivacity and charm. The sentiment of "Stowaway" is as touching as its tunefulness is agreeable to the ear, and Miss Burnand, dressed in a becoming principal boy's costume, does justice to both, with the result that her success is emphasised in many recalls. A popular demonstration is also accorded to Percival, who prefaces his séance at the pianoforte with many droll diversions, while his burlesque of various executants at an evening party is interesting as well as humorous. His imitations on the piano of a musical box and a drum and fife band are greatly relished, and the swelling tones of a church organ are realistically reproduced on the same instrument, and listened to with delight.

The vagaries of a "musical tramp" are amusingly presented by Mr. Will Van Allen, who obtains many a laugh for his absurdities, but manages to secure loudly-expressed approbation for his playing of the viola, and for the finale of the overture to William Tell on the banjo, a feat of no small magnitude, efficiently performed. Mr. Woolmer Young puts a large amount of expression into the singing of a descriptive song, with the refrain, "Shuffle and deal," which meets with hearty cheers. Derenda and Green, "creative comedy jugglers," keep the audience in a condition of mirth and astonishment, pleasingly mingled, their combination club juggling being not the least expert of their numerous feats. Vernon's Bioscope supplies an exciting film in "The Drunken Mattress," the adventures of which keep the house in a roar of laughter. Manifestations of mirth are also abundant during the sketch, Saucy Maud, presented by the Brontes; the comicalities of Athas and Collins are similarly effective; and the Dixon Sisters, bâton swingers, dancers, and singers are among the attractions of the bill. Mr. P. A. Lennon rejoices with reason at the flourishing state of affairs that exists at the hall, to which he has contributed greatly by his tactful and energetic management.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

High-class music forms an important part in the programme submitted this week at the Hackney Empire. Mr. Auguste Van Biene is here in a playlet, in one act, entitled The Master Musician, which was produced for the first time on Monday. In a poorly-furnished attic in New York lives Heinrich Klein, a veteran musician, who has been reduced to a state of dire poverty. However, he finds a staunch little friend in Jennie, a lodging house slavey, and an orphan, whose feeling towards the grey-haired old man is that of a daughter for a father. He is starving, so she brings him her own poor breakfast. The weather is cold, and his supply of fuel has given out, so Jennie, risking the wrath of her mistress, surreptitiously fetches coal and wood from the cellar. The musician, in the midst of his poverty, continues to cherish a fond memory of the girl he loved when he was a young man, and hoped to win fame and fortune as a musical genius. He has her portrait still, and shows it to his sympathetic little friend; and then, taking his beloved 'cello, he plays several selections, concluding with "Home, Sweet Home." There is a knock at the door, and it is an agreeable surprise to find that, instead of the landlady, demanding the rent, a well-dressed lady enters. She is a pupil of the professor's, and Jennie does not hesitate to inform her of the poverty-stricken condition of the old man, who, however, refuses to receive any money until he has earned it. The visitor sees the portrait, and recognises an aunt of hers. She promises the Professor that he shall see his old sweetheart again. They take their departure together, leaving poor little Jennie in tears; but the Professor returns in a few minutes, and to her great joy, promises that she shall also quit the dingy lodging-house and share in the good-fortune that awaits him. Mr. Van Biene presents a pathetic portrayal of the master musician who has reached the lowest depths of poverty, and in his handling of the 'cello displays all his wonted skill and sureness of touch. Each selection is received with loud applause, but, generally speaking, the more familiar the melody, the greater is the applause. Miss Lena Burnleigh wins general favour by her admirable performance of the part of Jennie; and Miss Rose Summers does well as the Professor's pupil, Miss Carlisle. Mr. Percival Goffin is the musical-director for Mr. Van Biene.

Mr. Edward Arthur and company are also appearing here in two scenes from the popular opera, entitled The Lily of Killarney. Mr. Edward Arthur ably doubles the parts of Myles Na Coppleen and Hardress Cregan, and sings the music with excellent effect. Mr. Arthur Gribbon is a robust Mr. Corrigan; and Mr. David Fuller is good as Danny Mann; Miss Fanny Edwards completing the cast as Mrs. Cregan. The performance concludes with the duet, "My heart's delight," between Hardress Cregan and Danny Mann, well sung by Mr. Edward Arthur and Mr. Fuller.

Newhouse and Ward score all through in their cycle act, both showing remarkable skill in the management of the machines. One of the two indulges in a good deal of genuinely comic business, and they also vary the performance by introducing a speciality, entitled The Amateur Marksmen, which also excites considerable merriment. Miss Peggy Pryde is the recipient of a hearty welcome, and this favourite comedienne, in quite her best form, sings "He had never been there before," followed by "Bother the men," given in the character of an elderly dame with a formidable-looking umbrella, who is evidently a Suffragette, for she boasts of the fact that she has just "come out of Holloway." Lastly, Miss Pryde, in a dress typical of Australia, gives in telling style "The song of the thrush," the catchy refrain being well taken up by the audience. Mr. Andrew Roy, who has had considerable experience in grand opera, scores with "Sing me to sleep," and the American march song, "Good-bye, sweet Marie." Both these popular selections are illustrated by coloured pictures thrown on the screen. Ike Scott and his son do an amusing turn, finishing with a song and dance; Miss Gladys Mavius, the Canadian girl, meets with deserved success; the Karno Four, in the comic pantomime, The Dinner Hour, cause abundance of laughter; and the artist known as Orpheus, in his musical scena, entitled The Solitary Rehearsal, plays on various instruments, including the musette, the saxophone, the oboe, and the post-horn, a phonograph accompaniment being a feature of the performance. The American Bioscope displays a series of pictures illustrative of an episode, entitled "Waiting at the Church." Mr. John Christie, the acting-manager here, is always found at the post of duty; and the overture this week is of a classic character, Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," played by the excellent orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Walter Johnson.

NEW SKETCHES AT THE QUEEN'S.

"MONTE CARLO" AND "LADY AUDLEY'S SECRET."

Under the supervision of Mr. Jack Woolf, the energetic manager of the Queen's, Poplar, two new sketches were submitted for the first time on Monday night to a large and approving audience. The first of these, entitled Monte Carlo, possessed the strong flavour of the suitable requitement of villainy at the hands of justice, which at one time was supposed to be so dear to transpontine audiences, and which seems now to be equally popular in regions where the Mosaic dispensation is in the ascendant. A young naval officer—Lieut. Harry Marston—is seized with the gambler's mania, and, under the influence of an expert swindler, Capt. de Tare, succeeds in getting rid of his patrimony, being even, by the machinations of the latter, made to appear as the utterer of forged notes at the gaming tables. Suicide seems to be his only refuge. Unknown to him, and under the influence of a warning dream, his mother has come to Monte Carlo, and, by a system of hedging, has won back all the money he has lost. But the villain, disguising himself as a friendly priest, succeeds in getting her winnings. Lieut. Marston discovers the rascality of de Tare, and is shot in a dastardly fashion by the latter while engaged in duel. Mrs. Marston eventually unmasks the whole treachery, and deals out justice to De Tare to the satisfaction of everyone. Mrs. George Daventry gives a stately representation of the devoted mother, whose efforts to save her son, it is to be regretted, proved futile. Mr. Keith Fraser is certainly a handsome naval officer, though it is rather surprising to find an officer of the King's Navee gallivanting about a casino in full uniform. Mr. G. L. Doughty is a very capable villain, whose only fault seems to be a somewhat too great geniality of disposition. The piece is very prettily staged, the background being a capital view of the famous shores of Monte Carlo.

The other piece is a production of Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Albert Ward of a version of that ever-fascinating tale, Lady Audley's Secret. As Lady Audley, Mrs. Bennett maintains her high reputation as a character actress, imparting to the changing subtleties of the adventuress's arts an actuality which might have even conquered the doubts of Sir Michael's sceptic nephew Robert. The latter character is really too well acted by Mr. Albert Ward, who gives to it an amount of backbone and energy which the original in the novel certainly did not possess. Mr. C. L. Perry is alike dignified and doting as Sir Michael Audley. Mr. G. L. Doughty as George Talboys and Mr. Keith Fraser and Miss Frances Alleyne as the gamekeeper and his wife fill their respective parts in good style. The scenery, especially the old-world garden, is very picturesque, and, as in the previous piece, is very creditable alike to the producers and the management of the Queen's.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE forthcoming meetings of the Showmen's Guild must engage the serious attention of all fair ground traders and open-air amusement caterers, and, in fact, all who desire to preserve to the busy workers of the Empire full opportunity of reasonable and necessary recreation and rest from toil.

THAT the Showmen's Guild, in defending the trade interests of itinerant entertainers, is also preserving the people's local and national holidays is not sufficiently recognised; yet this truly national work for years has had no effective or organised champion but the Showmen's Guild, and it is carried on entirely by the ability, and at the entire cost, of that body.

WE have again and again pointed out how intimately bound up with the maintenance of local holidays, governed by the time of the fair or wakes, are other vast industries and commercial enterprises.

TAKE, for example, that "perpetual fair" by the sea, Blackpool. Why, its very life and prosperity depends upon the maintenance and the ordered sequence of the fairs and feasts of the workers. Yet the great shows a the seaside never contribute a penny to the fighting funds of the one society that defends these fairs and holidays of the people. With Blackpool we may link Douglas, New Brighton, Morecambe, Llandudno, Rhyl, Cleethorpes, Scarborough, Bridlington, Whitby, and a dozen smaller seaside resorts on the same coast, or within railway access of the great industrial belt of England, stretching from Leicester to Newcastle.

REPEATEDLY has the Showmen's Guild defeated schemes for the suppression of fairs and local holidays, and it is no exaggeration to say that, behind this bulwark of defence, the great seaside pleasure cities have grown and prospered.

AGAIN and again have employers in huge districts determined to abolish all local holidays in their area of employment, the supposed advantage of all employers of one district closing their mills, shutting down their work for ten days or a fortnight, being obviously a great gain to the employer, but not so to the people.

IMAGINE if you can the problem of dealing with two millions of people in a week. That would have been the problem if the Leeds and district employers had succeeded some few years ago in consolidating the holidays for the workers under their control. Think, if you can, of Lancashire only having one fortnight, and all its towns rushing to the sea in that one and only time of exodus from labour.

EMPLOYERS cannot see—they say it is not their business to see—the tremendous social and economic upheaval this plan of theirs would bring in being; yet it was left entirely to the organised showmen to meet this threatened danger, and it is to their honour and credit hat they have won in every instance—in every fight.

To maintain the old order and succession of the British fairs, and thus provide a governing and eminently practical sequence of the summer exodus to the sea, has been the work of the Guild. The great seaside resorts know when to expect the Leeds, Bradford, Huddersfield, Halifax, and Dewsbury workers; so, too, in Lancashire, Blackburn, Burnley, Darwen, Oldham, Ashton, Stockport, and Hyde—all these follow in their fixed time, and so the showmen by the sea have a succession of busy weeks, and not one or two terrible and impossible invasions. Who would, or could, cater for a mere month's or six weeks' season at the sea? The whole thing is, on the face of it, ruinous and impossible. Yet only the showmen have battled for the present order of things.

IN trying to understand the attitude of the employers of labour at Burslem, in the recent movement in the Town Council to abolish the wakes, we found that the real motive was that Burslem might take the lead in abolishing all fairs in the Potteries in order that employers might fix one holiday, and one only, for the whole district. "The fight for Burslem Wakes" we found was the defence of the local holidays for the whole of the district, and the attack on Burslem the retrogade movement to curtail the all too few holiday times of the people.

WE have referred to the closely identified interests of the seaside caterers with showmen who maintain our fairs; but the matter does not end there, as we demonstrated in several articles last summer, dealing with the railway pleasure traffic and its growth, owing to the sequence of fairs. We venture further to assert that the immense development of the variety stage and permanent palaces of pleasure and amusement are closely linked with the security of the people's fixed times of local holiday and cessation from toil. It is a truism to assert that the fair is both the parent and the nursery of the theatre and the music hall; yet all these allied interests leave the defence of our local and national holidays to the travelling showman.

WE give in another column a full list of the subscriptions to the Showmen's Guild, the only existing organisation that defends the local and national holidays. That list tells its own tale. Not a creditable one for the allied interests, or for the greater world of shows. Not even creditable to the trades and industries supplying showmen with goods and material for their daily work. We cannot grumble over much at showmen when we find people quite as much interested as they are utterly indifferent as to who does the work or who pays, so long as they are secure and safe in their business.

To their credit, it must be admitted that some few of the manufacturers and traders have sent subscriptions; but compare the subscriptions with the interests involved, and then you will see how necessary and how urgent it is for all classes concerned in providing entertainment for the people to combine and to support adequately all defence work that preserves the workers' holidays and opportunities of amusement.

As the trade paper of all shows, all entertainers, travelling the country or fixed in towns or cities, we have, in season and out of season, recognised this solidarity of interest, even when some of our friends thought the travelling showman and the itinerant entertainer not quite "classy" enough for The Era. We confess that in this impartial view of the unity of interest in all sorts and conditions of showmen we have had at times but poor appreciation of our work; but we have always had the real heart of showland with us, and that has been our more than sufficient reward.

WHAT is the end of the whole? It is for a wider recognition of the community of interest that binds all entertainers of the people in one conscious and helping brotherhood; and, above all, we plead that the fighting guard of the people's holidays—the old Showmen's Guild—shall have enough funds and to spare for its supremely urgent and necessary work

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

DEAR SIR,—The enclosed cutting from a newspaper printed fifty years ago speaks for itself. The Sheffield pleasure fairs at Whitsuntide and Christmas are bigger than were ever dreamt of even thirty years ago, when the "superior person" still spoke hopefully of their ultimate extinction, and we have also frequent visits from Collins's and other "carnival" combinations.—Yours truly,

A LOVER OF SHOWS, BUT NOT IN THE BUSINESS.

FIFTY YEARS AGO.

TAKEN FROM THE "SHEFFIELD DAILY TELEGRAPH," NOV. 29, 1856.

PREACHING AT THE FAIR.—The following paragraph appeared in all the London journals about Sheffield Fair:—"Preaching at Sheffield Fair."—On Tuesday an instance of religious zeal was manifested at Sheffield under somewhat unusual circumstances. It being the winter cheese and pleasure fair, there was an unusual throng of people in the town, and the Revs. James Moorhouse and W. Wilkinson, two of the most popular clergymen in the town, along with several other clergymen, ministers of other denominations, and town missionaries, took advantage of the occasion to deliver religious addresses to the people who had assembled to witness the entertainments of the fair. They chose a situation in the Haymarket (which adjoins the principal route to the fair ground), so as not to interfere with the movements of the crowd, and to be beyond the reach of the music and noise of the fair ground; and they used a waggon for a platform. The ministers succeeded in attracting around them a large assemblage of persons, who listened very attentively, and conducted themselves in a quiet and orderly manner. The addresses, with short intervals for singing, were continued for about two hours, and no attempt was made to interrupt or disturb the proceedings. Tracts were distributed to the listeners, and to other persons on or about the fair ground, a grant of 20,000 having been made by the Religious Tract Society for the purpose. The ministers were so well received that it is expected they will renew their addresses."—Since Tuesday the weather has been too cold to admit of out-door preaching. If the opponents of fairs can manage to get the ground-rent raised a little higher, we shall soon get rid of all the booths and other exhibitions at our fairs, which will be going a long way towards finally sweeping them away. Already the ground-rents are so high that those poor creatures be decked as kings and queens and heroes and heroines scarcely earn salt after paying the tolls.

FIFTY years ago, and now, despite the conspiracy of Corporations in those days, following the bad lead of the City of London in abolishing Bartholomew Fair by exorbitant rents, fairs exist and prosper in all our great centres of life, Sheffield itself having two great fairs, one at Whitsuntide and the other at Christmas—two of the best fairs in Yorkshire, and still under Corporation control, and run for the benefit of the people, and for the easement of the city rates.

NEVER has so much sensation been caused in Glasgow as the Dahomey Amazon Warriors created at Burnette's Novelty Palace, Argyle-street, during this festive season. Hundreds were turned away, and special police precautions were taken to deal with the congested state of the traffic in the immediate vicinity. Hogmanay was an occasion of extraordinary excitement at the Palace, as presentations were the order of the evening. Chieftain Angazza Lobogolo (Tom Brown) was the gratified recipient of a solid gold medal from Mr. Fred R. Burnette. Mrs. Burnette presented Princess Gooma with a handsome necklace and earrings. Some gentlemen friends of Mr. and Mrs. Burnette also gave the Princess six valuable native armlets. Each member of the troupe received an appropriate gift in sterling metal. On behalf of the Dahomey Warriors Mr. Bert Miles, the English representative, responded in suitable words, and was delightfully surprised when Mr. Tom Brown handed him a silver cigarette case, subscribed for by the Warriors and staff of the Palace. The proceedings wound up with "Auld lang syne," a real Scotch Hogmanay being ended in truly happy style.

THE first showmen's banquet and ball will take place at Olympia on Monday evening, Jan. 21, by kind permission of the directors both of Olympia and of the International Fun City Co. The event is the first of its kind ever held at Earl's Court, and promises to be one of the most brilliant affairs ever organised amongst showmen. Lord George Sanger will take the chair part of the evening, and will be assisted by Mr. F. H. Payne, managing-director of the New Olympia Co. The committee is composed of all the principal showmen at present appearing at Olympia with their various entertainments, and the vice-presidents include the most prominent and influential gentlemen in London. Mr. Arthur Dashwood, chairman of the executive committee, and Mr. A. Carden, hon. secretary and treasurer, are working strenuously to achieve a success, no stone being left unturned to make the occasion a memorable one.

AT the Royal Hotel Yard, Redditch, this week, are Clarke's electric motor cars, park swings, shooting saloons, cokernut sheets, &c., Wilson's shooting saloons, and other attractions by Messrs. Chipperfield and Taylor.

REDDITCH annual pleasure fair is held during the August holidays, but it is thought it would be a good plan, if possible, to make it a little earlier, or else about the middle of August, when more attractions would be available. During the August holidays people leave the town, and there is no river or pleasure gardens to attract visitors from other towns. The Urban District Council has the letting of the ground for amusements, and the more patronage obtained, the better it is for the ratepayers.

THE pleasure fair at Stourbridge is due on March 30. Easter fairs will be held at Malvern Link, and Abberley Valley and Halesowen.

FROM the Western Mail of a recent date we take the following paragraph of interest to show people:—

"Considerable interest was taken in the wedding of two dwarfs at St. Catherine's Church, Pontypridd, the contracting parties being Carlisle Percy Harley, a native of Worthing, Kent, and Emily Maud Phillips, of Hereford, both of whom travel with Messrs. Wadbrooks, the cinématograph entertainers.

"Attired in the orthodox style, all that was to be seen of the bridgroom, who was surrounded and hidden from view by the schoolboys of the locality, was his glistening "bell topper" as he walked to the church, to which the bride drove in a cab. The bridegroom dispensed with the assistance of a "best" man, but the bride, who looked like a little school-girl, and who was tastefully dressed in a grey material, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of spiræa, was accompanied by two bridesmaids—one a little girl of six, who exceeded the bride in stature, and the other a tall young lady, who was a decided contrast to the diminutive bride.

"In the church, where the Rev. J. Thomas, B.A., officiated, only the favoured few in the front seats were able to get a glimpse of the happy pair as the ceremony was performed, and whilst the bride was shy and tremulous—judging by her voice—the bridgroom plighted his troth in almost stentorian tones. Bride and bridegroom afterwards drove off in a cab to the station, amidst the cheering of the assembled crowd, the destination being Brighton, where the honeymoon will be spent. The total height of the pair is 7ft. 4in."

WE are quite sure that all their friends in showland will unite with us in every good wish for the happy couple.

RUSHDEN kept its New Year fair with the following shows and entertainments in attendance:—Bostock's menagerie, Thurston's cinématograph theatre, gondolas, and motors, Harvey's school of boxers, and the usual crowd of stalls, throwing games, &c.

THE attendance of the young people of the World's Fair at the Guild service, held in the large schoolroom at the Royal Agricultural Hall, on Sunday morning last, was extremely gratifying. The service, meant for the young people only, was conducted throughout by the Guild Chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne, who addressed the children on the Epiphany gifts brought by the wise men to the Infant Saviour. The children, in their answers to the questions of the Chaplain, showed marked intelligence. Mr. T. E. Read, the lessee of the fair, not only gave Mr. Horne carte blanche to use the Hall, but also interested himself in bringing the little show-folk to the service. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Taylor, of the cinématograph, lent their harmonium, and one of their working staff played the hymn tunes. These services will be continued (D.V.) during the season of the fair.

STATE BIOSCOPE FILMS.—Animated records depicting Parisian State ceremonies, great gatherings of public and national interest, festivals, manœuvres, and the like, are to be handed down for the use of future generations of students of French national life and customs. The municipality of Paris has decided to establish a bureau for the sole purpose of acquiring and preserving such films, thus recognising the value of the bioscope as an educational factor. On this side of the Channel we are slowly awakening to the importance of this modern invention. The general public always wants "to see the wheels go round," and such subjects as the making of a railway, of a great newspaper, of whisky, of champagne; the methods employed in the herring, whaling, oyster, salmon, and logging industries; the exploitation for emigration purposes of our various colonies and dependencies; the working of cotton, tea, coffee, sugar, and tobacco plantations, meet with enthusiastic acceptance wherever exhibited. Mr. Charles Urban has for years made a study of this class of photographic reproduction, and the present perfection of industrial and manufacturing subjects—with "interior" results equal to the best daylight exposure—is entirely owing to the enterprise of this pioneer of cinematography. These present-day business methods and the State functions of our generation will prove of inestimable value in the future, but no official movement has hitherto been made to secure the subjects. For electioneering purposes, too, animated pictures are proving not only of present use, but they will serve as permanent records of the methods of our time, and thus be more serviceable than any still-life pictures or verbal and statistical descriptions.

ANOTHER INTERESTING WEDDING IN THE SHOWMEN'S WORLD.

No one for a moment can say that the showman's life is devoid of interest even at the worst of times, or that it does not possess a certain charm, a Bohemian attraction, which, like a magnet, draws attention from all classes of the community alike. Even the inhabitants of Barry Dock (that much-governed seaport) were aroused from their usual routine of "being allowed to breathe" sort of life, and gave vent to their feelings in a very whole-hearted manner on Monday last by assembling in a goodly number in the vicinity of Messrs. Dooner's Theatre de Bioscope to catch a glimpse of the bride elect, Miss Sophia Dooner, on her departure to St. Paul's Church, where she was to be "tied for life," as one woman in the crowd remarked, and "God bless her I hope she'll be happy," replied another, which, generally expressed the feelings of all present, particularly as the name of Dooner is well known and respected by most of the inhabitants in Barry Dock and district.

Punctually to time the bashful bride, after two attempts to face the waiting bombardment of confetti and other matrimonial munitions of war, of which the expectant spectators had quite a large supply, with timid face wreathed in most bewitching smiles, made her way in difficulty amidst a furious cannonade of the aforesaid stuff, to the carriage in waiting, followed by her bridesmaids, Misses Lily Dooner (sister) and Rose Pillenger (Bristol); Mr. Jas Dooner (father), who gave the bride away; Mr. Richard Dooner (brother), who acted as best man; Mrs. R. Dooner, Mr. Harry Scard, of Wadbrook fame; Mr. and Mrs. John Johnson, Victoria Theatre, Barry Dock; and others.

The bridegroom, Mr. Alexander Ross Miller, musician, of Perth, Scotland, walked to church, though not unnoticed—unfettered then, but soon to be harnessed with those golden fetters given away on all such occasions, and may they always prove so to be, real 18 carat golden ones.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the vicar, the Rev. Mr. Weatherall, and the service was a full choral one, in which the splendid choir of St. Paul's played a leading part, and as the organ swelled forth the "Wedding March" at the conclusion of the service, not one amongst the large congregation assembled but wished health, wealth, and happiness to the newly-wedded pair.

After the usual formalities—signing registers, &c.—were gone through, the company were photographed within the precincts of the church, and then as blithe—er—as all are on such occasions, the merry party drove to Culley's Hotel, Barry Dock, where a numerous company of guests sat down to luncheon, and over "bumpers of the best," toasts were drunk and good wishes expressed, till at 3.30 the happy pair had to bid good-bye to their friends, from whom they had a grand set-off to London, where they will spend the pleasures of their honeymoon.

Amongst the numerous guests, besides those already mentioned, were Miss Harriet Dooner, Mrs. Bunter, and the Misses Pillinger (Bristol), Miss Wright, &c. The bride and bridegroom were recipients of many costly and useful presents from numerous friends and wellwishers.

THE popular annual Showmen's Supper and Ball, which has been so appreciated and patronised during past years, will take place at the World's Fair, Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Wednesday, Jan. 23, on which night it will celebrate its 14th anniversary. We cordially wish the event the success it so justly deserves, and that Mr. T. E. Read, the lessee and manager, will have a pleasant time amongst his numerous friends and well-wishers.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD SERVICE AT OLYMPIA.

At the request of the resident showmen, and with the hearty consent and co-operation of the Board of Directors of "International Fairs," Ltd., the Guild Chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne, conducted Divine Service at the great "Fun City" on Sunday last at 5.30 in the afternoon. The improvised church was a segment of the vast auditorium of the circus-ring, and was in every way adapted for its purpose. The whole of the arrangements, the provision of the piano, pianist, and soloist, and much detailed work of organisation, was under the immediate direction of Mr. Cochran, managing-director, and Mr. Wallace Jones, chief of the staff. Mention must also be made of the great help rendered by Mr. Dashwood, acting-manager of Sedgwick's Menagerie. With such churchwardens as these the hon. Chaplain was able to devote himself entirely to the work of his office.

The prominent showpeople at the service were Messrs. R. Sedgwick, J. Craddock, J. Dashwood, Sedgwick Brothers and families, Biddall Brothers and families, J. Pedley, Mr. and Mrs. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. White, Mr. and Mrs. Hussey, Mr. and Mrs. Mayne, Mr. and Mrs. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Holdsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Manning, several members of the working staff of the exhibition and machines, and, in fact, a good congregation of attentive and devout worshippers. The service was the order of the Guild taken from the Book of Common Prayer. With the Chaplain was Mrs. Horne and the Rev. Dr. Shields, vicar of St. Matthew's, West Kensington, the parish in which Olympia is situated. The vicar of Olympia, at the end of the Guild service, commended the work of the showpeople, and expressed his thanks for, and approval of, Mr. Horne's special work amongst showpeople.

The Rev. T. Horne, in treating of the subject of his discourse—"Christ and the pleasures of the people"—drew a word-picture of the beginning of Christ's ministry when He "manifested forth His glory" by "miracle" at the Marriage Feast in Cana of Galilee. Here we saw, he said, that strange being, the poor carpenter of Nazareth, the austere and ascetic Son of Man—the prophet already acclaimed and already gathering disciples—at a marriage—the most common, the most ordinary of all occasions of neighbourly rejoicing and local festivity; Christ at the marriage table; Christ amongst His friends and neighbours. Yet behind all this common and ordinary interest of human life lies the first of God's great sacraments, the sacrament of holy matrimony, the mystery of all human relations, and the binding force of all organised society. The Christ of God blesses by His presence all family joys, all common, ordinary, and extraordinary times of social intercourse, of festivity, of amusement, and of merriment.

A deeply human touch is given to the scene by another fact, "the Mother of Jesus was there." She who knew so much of the hidden life and character of that Mysterious Being whose human nature was of her—her child—yet the very Son of God, "born of the Virgin Mary," yet "conceived by the Holy Ghost." She knew the profundity of His powers; yet, knowing this, she prompts Him to exercise His inherent power to do what?—why, to provide more wine!—to see to it that His friends, that her friends might have sufficient store of wine for the feast, that the entertainment might not fail nor the refreshment of the guests be stinted. That "wine that maketh merry the heart of man," in this grand instance "the good wine" might flow on—that merriment and the fulness of joy might prevail. So did the blessed mother of God desire, and so she moved her blessed Son to provide.

We are sometimes told, he proceeded, that the mysteries of holy religion are too difficult for the man of simple ideas to follow. Well, here in words of the Holy Mother, we have all the Christian duty in one short phrase—full, complete, and telling—"Whatsoever He saith unto you do it." Grasp the sayings of the Christ of God—assimilate the powers of His command, "Love thy neighbour as thyself and thou art in the way of salvation." Search His Holy Word for His words of love—"Whatsoever He saith unto you do it"; "He that doeth the will of My Father shall know of the doctrine."

To his show friends, the preacher said, never forget that Jesus blessed, and Himself provided for the merriment of the people; that He constantly identified Himself with the common joys of life—contented even to "pipe in the market-place" that children might dance—so great His interests in all the concerns of humanity.

You have a work to do, he concluded, that Jesus Christ will bless and prosper if you take unto it something of His spirit and labour for the necessary relaxation, festivity, and merriment of His toil children. To provide the amusements and pleasures of the people is an important work in the national life. Try and uplift that great endeavour. Do it in the spirit of the Christ of God. Do not be ashamed. Have a "good conceit" of yourself; and, above all, let it be honest work—the best of your talent for the service of humanity and for the glory and praise of God.

These services are open to all showmen and their friends, and will be continued on the Sunday afternoons at 5.30 during the continuance of the Fun City at Olympia. Next Sunday the subject will be "Christ's Compassion for the People"; preacher, the Rev. T. Horne.

A DISCLAIMER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your issue of the 5th inst. you state that I am about to play a condensed version of The Broken Melody in the music halls. Whilst thanking you for your courtesy in noticing my appearance on the variety stage, I wish to point out that the sketch alluded to, The Master Musician, is in no way a condensed version of The Broken Melody, nor has it the faintest connection with the same, except that I and my 'cello appear in it. Moreover, my principal reason for entering into a contract with Messrs. Moss and Stoll for a twenty-three weeks' tour in 1907 and 1908 is to give me a rest from The Broken Melody, in which I have continuously appeared now close on 5,000 nights; and as my tour of the same will be resumed on Aug. 5, this correction is very necessary, in view of the interest of the authors and theatre proprietors with whom I hold many years' contract, and who will naturally infer from your paragraph that I should be breaking same by appearing in variety theatres with a condensed version of a play that has proved itself superior to all words and conditions of business for just on fifteen years.

Thanking you for your appreciation of my work, and regretting to trouble you with this disclaimer, which I am bound to do, owing to the many interests concerned,—Yours always,

AUGUSTE VAN BIENE.

Gower Hotel, N.W., Jan. 10.

PRESENTATION.—At the Empire Theatre, Southend-on-Sea, on Wednesday night Mr. George Conquest, the popular managing-director, was presented with a large framed testimonial from the staff and a smaller one from a few personal friends, with a gold sovereign case and matchbox, suitably inscribed, to commemorate his fiftieth birthday. Both testimonials, which are beautifully executed, are the work of Mr. Fred Whisstock, a local artist.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In last week's notice for Devonport you allude to Carr and Carr. It should have been, yours truly, CARL and CARR, Metropole Theatre, Devonport.

WAL CROFT,
THE QUAINT SCOTCH COMEDIAN, EVERY EVENING AS
THE MacGANDER, "Mother Goose,"
PRINCESS'S T., GLASGOW.
A SUCCESS. A SUCCESS.

WAL CROFT.
AS
THE MacGANDER, "Mother Goose,"
PRINCESS'S T., GLASGOW.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

GLASGOW HERALD, Dec. 14, 1906.
Mr. Wal Croft is a Scotch comedian of some skill, whose dialect is unimpeachable. In a parody on "Annie Laurie" he finds some scope for his singing.

DAILY RECORD AND MAIL.
Mr. Wal Croft has made a big reputation in Glasgow, and he adds to it in a Scotch part, which allows him opportunity for displaying his pawky form of humour. He has also catchy songs.

EVENING TIMES.
Then there is the Scots comic, without whom no South-Side pantomime would be genuine. This year the Scot is named the MacGander, goose merchant, a character hitherto unknown in the whole range of kailyaird literature. The fowl-seller is capitally played by Mr. Wal Croft, whose accent is unimpeachable.

GLASGOW EVENING NEWS.
The MacGander is pawkily interpreted by Mr. Wal Croft. Although suffering from a severe cold, he was indefatigable in his efforts to please.

THE ERA, Dec. 22, 1906.
Mr. Wal Croft, from his long association with The Trip to the Highlands company, is particularly well-known here as a Scotch comedian, and as MacGander, the goose merchant, he is provided with a part that affords him unlimited opportunity for the display of his quaint methods and mannerisms. He gives with much humour a lively ditty, entitled "If it hadna been a Sunday nicht" and a burlesque version of "Annie Laurie."

(INCLUDING THE LONDON COLISEUM, LTD.).

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows:—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously

TRADE MARK MARK

TRADE MARK

CRIME ON THE RAILWAY.
Code Word, CIPAYE.

One of the most dramatic films ever shown. A guard is egged on to drink by two rogues. In this state he boards his train. The rogues sneak into his carriage while the train is in motion, attack him, steal the mail bags, and escape. The guard is reproved and dismissed the Company. In revenge he kills a signalman, gives a favourable signal to the on-coming express. An awful disaster ensues. Very exciting and dramatic.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

POLICEMEN'S RUN.
Code Word, CABANE.

This is quite a novelty in pictures. A powerful bull dog steals a leg of mutton. Pursued by one policeman, the number is increased to several in a very short time. Through streets, over roofs they go. Finally the tables are turned and the dog pursues the police to their station. Intensely funny.

379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.

THE FAN INDUSTRY IN JAPAN.
Code Word, CABANON.

One of the finest films that has come from the East. The whole process and art of fan making. Showing, cutting the wood, crimping the paper, binding, and hand painting. Very interesting.

396ft. The Subject £6 12s.

MOTHER'S BIRTHDAY.
Code Word, BRUNATEE.

This is a very sad picture, but of perfect quality. A little girl goes out gathering flowers in the woods for a birthday present for her mother. Her head is mistaken for a bird. She is shot by a sportsman, who with deep sympathy, takes the poor little dying child back to her mother. A sad birthday present indeed.

148ft. The Subject £2 9s. 4d.
Colouring extra, 3s. 6d.

CUSTOMS AND SMUGGLERS.
Code Word, CARLIN.

The attempted landing of contraband. The fight on the rocks. The cut rope. The tragedy at the bottom of the cliff. These are just a few of the scenes in this dramatic film.

230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

BOBBY AND HIS BALLOON.
Code Word, CABARET.

A very amusing picture. Bobby is left at home to read. Soon tires, makes a balloon out of a pillow case, basket and fishing net. Sails away, finally landing on a church steeple, pursued by his agonised mother on a motor car.

412ft. The Subject £6 17s. 4d.
Colouring, 10s. extra.

CUNNING BURGLAR.
Code Word, BRUNISSOIR.

A burglar breaking into a house, is pursued and followed by numerous people. Various adventures ensue. Sliding down a roof. Swimming a river, and finally, by his cunning, getting away altogether.

264ft. The Subject £4 8s.
Colouring extra, 5s. 6d.

THE LITTLE BLIND GIRL.
Code Word, BUGGY.

Story of a little blind girl. She gets lost, and is found by a wicked old woman who treats her very badly. In desperation she runs away, but unfortunately she falls into a well. A search party is sent out. She is finally rescued by a policeman. Very pathetic.

445ft. The Subject £7 8s. 4d. Tinting extra, 5s. 6d.

IN CAUSE OF FAITH.
Code Word, ABIME.

Fine dramatic quality, and shows in stirring scenes the theft of papers and valuables from a Government official. The thief dying, confessing his sin to a priest, who goes to a hidden place to regain the spoil and return it to the official. There the priest is watched and attacked by two other thieves, who finally squabble and kill each other, and one gives up the booty to the noble priest, who, wounded, takes it back to the rightful owner. The latter is just about to be arrested for not having the valuables in his possession. Grand finale, in which the good priest is blessed and thanked gratefully for his courageous action. Perfect quality.

643ft. The Subject £10 14s. 4d.

EXCURSION TO NIAGARA.
Code Word, BUTER.

Magnificent views of a steamer on the Ontario Lake. The Rapids shown. The river before the fall and after the fall, and Goat Island. The most perfect film of Niagara Falls ever produced.

610ft. The Subject £10 3s. 4d. Tinting extra, £1 1s.

THE BIRTH OF CHRIST.
Code Word, BUTOIR.

This is a beautiful film, and shows with exquisite tinting effects the atmosphere of the East, the birth of Christ, his adoration by the Wise Men, culminating in a grand tableau remarkable for its clear portraiture.

528ft. The Subject £8 16s. Colouring extra, £2 16s.

ALADDIN AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP.
Code Word, BROUER.

The old fairy story retold, with beautiful scenery and Eastern effects, and coloured very effectively in parts. Grand quality.

824ft. The Subject £13 14s. 6d.
Colouring extra, £1 17s.

THE MAGIC RING.

Inside a large castle a young maiden is kept prisoner by the owner, a fierce knight. The girl sits at a window despondently awaiting her fate. The knight, in full armour, is outside commanding a trembling prelate to make ready for an immediate wedding ceremony. During the altercation a daring youth, climbing up to the captive's window, breaks away the bars and enters. The knight glancing up catches sight of the bold man as he disappears inside the room. The young man enters, and falling at the feet of the fair damsel, offers her his heart and hand. The pair are rudely awakened from their dream by the sudden appearance of the knight, who deals his rival a heavy blow, which renders him unconscious. Dragging the girl from the room, he decides to force her to an immediate marriage. Upon the youth regaining his senses he determines to make use of a magic ring in his possession. In answer to his summons an old witch gradually appears, and as he speaks to her she changes her form into a fairy. She hears his tale, and, transforming herself once again into the witch, instructs him to follow her. At the church door, where the cruel knight has dragged her, the girl struggles bravely in spite of the crowd which supports the villain's efforts. Suddenly, in front of the door, appears the old witch who, as the populace rush at her, changes in form to a tombstone, which holds them spell-bound. The knight urges his menials to get rid of her, and when once again she assumes the form of the witch, they seize hold of her and carry her off to a well. All attempts to do away with the old lady are futile. They throw her down the well, but as they are still looking down, she laughs and jeers above them where she is calmly seated. Making a noose in a rope they endeavour to hang her, but this proves useless, as the old witch walks upon air and trots to the ground safely, leaving the rope above dangling. Tying the rope once again round her neck they tug for dear life and are sent sprawling, but view with pleasure her head roll off. Their delight, however, is short-lived, as the headless trunk stoops down and replaces the head. This last incident sends them hurrying away in all directions, except the knight, who again endeavours to drag the girl off. As he is just about to go, the would-be rescuer rushes up and drags the girl from his grasp. The abductor draws his sword and runs the rash youth through. Not content with this, the ruthless wretch cuts him to pieces in front of the poor girl's eyes. Taking the nearly fainting girl the man leaves the spot satisfied that he is now freed from interruption. The old witch, who has been quietly watching every incident from the background, now comes forward with a sword in her hand. The legs and arms fly to the point of the weapon, at her command, and replacing these, the youth is able to rise once more. Handing him the sword his good friend urges him at once in pursuit of his adversary. At the church door the enemies meet, and fight; the brave youth soon overcomes and kills his enemy. The two young people at once enter the church, with the blessings of their good fairy.

FORTIETH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

1907—THE ERA ANNUAL—1907

will be the most complete Dramatic Dictionary of Dates and Theatrical Treasury of Knowledge Ever Brought Before the Public.

It will also be found to be the most interesting Annual of the year, containing as it does many Stories told by Members of the Dramatic and Musical Professions. Illustrated by Photographs and Autographs. Price 1s. post free.

5, TAVISTOCK-STREET, STRAND, W.C.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.

"The Era" Annual, 1906, is welcome as containing carefully compiled lists of the pieces produced during the past year in London, the suburbs, and the provinces, in Paris, and in Berlin. The rest of it is curious and entertaining reading. There is the almanack with its "memorabilia of theatrical events occurrences, &c." There are besides a score of stories and other articles contributed by theatricals a very good one being Miss Louie Freear's set of verses, "Boy Bob' at Sea," which has humour, feeling, and swing. The book contains many theatrical portraits. As a book of reference the Annual is of great use and value, and while some of its contents doubtless appeal more keenly to the professional than to the outsider, any thoughtful person may derive from its study much amusement and no little insight into the conditions, the magnitude, and the complexity of the English theatre of to-day.—Morning Post, Jan. 22.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. L. Andrews.—Mr. W. Maclaren's company is paying a welcome return visit this week in Proof. Mr. Gerald Kennedy make a fine, manly Pierre Lorance; Mr. W. J. Butler plays with exceptional power as Lazare; Mr. Welford Bailey is a thorough success as Chamboran; Mr. G. Ridgway Thorne makes the most of his part of Victor; and the same may be said of Mr. Carl Beechy as the Duke d'Aubeterre. Miss May Grimshaw appears to advantage as Valentine; Miss Beatrice Shirley is excellent as Adrienne; Miss Phena Powell is a capable Mme. Dupret; and Miss Avory as the Duchess d'Aubeterre is worthy of special mention. The minor characters are in good hands, and the scenery and mounting leave nothing to be desired.

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The play this week is What the Butler Saw, a piece which is thoroughly appreciated. Mr. Lionel Rignold is exceptionally amusing as the Butler; Miss Ada Blanche gives a delightful impersonation of Mrs. Barrington; Mr. Charles Fawcett makes an enjoyable Jack Barrington; and Messrs. Alec Alves, George Ascott, Harry Rignold, and Roy Byford all play effectively in the parts of Sir Charles Foden, General Dunlop, Abraham Wehnstein, and Professor Shale. The other characters are most capably represented.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Messrs. Doody and Wright, the Australian comedians, are warmly applauded; a sprightly sketch, The Banana Queen, is cleverly played by Miss Amy Anderson and company; and Mr. Ernest Montefiore and his company appear with success in a dramatic and musical sketch, The Little Colonel. Attilla Brothers give a striking display of their feats of strength; and among other artists whose turns are appreciated are Rogers and Weston; Mr. Harry Cotton, a clever comedian; Miss Mabel Hyson, a graceful dancer; Mr. Fred Villars, an accomplished vocalist; and the Musical Keiths, who are instrumentalists of exceptional skill.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Carlton and Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. W. Ventom.—Miss Elaine Verner's company occupies the theatre this week in Saints and Sinners. Mr. Harding Thomas, a gifted actor, proves an excellent Jacob Fletcher, playing with both power and pathos; Mr. Edgar Kent also makes a conspicuous success as Capt. Fanshaw; a fine performance is that of Mr. John J. Hooker as Samuel Hoggard, who, with Mr. Guy Dene as Prabble, provides the humorous element; Mr. Edward Kent as George Kingsmill deserves credit; Miss Ada Clarke makes a good Lydia; and a very touching and natural exposition of Letty Fletcher is given by Miss Elaine Verner, who deserves the highest credit for her fine performance. The Middleman was to be presented on Thursday.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—On Monday Mr. Andrew Melvill's company opened here in Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt did well as Anthony Ralbrook; Mr. Leonard Aardale deserves special praise for his reading of Willie; Mr. John Brook gave a painstaking performance of Dick Saunders; Mr. Fred Sandy must be complimented on his portrayal of Geoffrey Waring; Mr. Fred C. Imbert was responsible for much fun as John Anderson; Mr. C. Lingham was good as David Wilson; and Miss Beatrice Western proved herself an artist in the dual rôles of Laura and Walter; Miss Enid Wilde being bright and chic as Margaret Bailey; Barbara Ashdown was carefully rendered by Miss Lizzie Ingles.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—The top of the bill here is the Dreadnoughts, in a wonderful exhibition of rifle-shooting; Barney Armstrong provides an amusing turn; Helen Martin sings successfully some excellent numbers; the Three Pirmans are clever and funny; Drum and Major are duly appreciated; the Carlyles gave an interesting performance; Lena Brunton is very good; and the Bio. pictures are very amusing.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The popularity of the drama Man to Man seems to increase with age. The piece is capably acted and effectively staged, and the acquisition to the cast of so skilful an actor as Mr. Frank E. Petley in the leading rôle of George Gordon greatly adds to the success. Miss Gertrude Price touches the sympathies of the audience with her clever conception of the persecuted Ethel; Mr. Raymond Thomas plays the villain with coolness and resource; and Mr. Geo. E. Clive is successful as the mad parson. Mr. Frank Hill is capital as Convict Bill, his prison-life vernacular and make-up causing much fun. Miss E. Stalman and Mr. C. Gaskell do well as Lavinia Dove and Plumtree respectively; and Misses Ada Travers, L. Hartell, and Emmie Litchfield, and Messrs. A. Moore, D. Osborne, and C. Linney also help materially.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—We are having a week of comedy in place of pantomime, a revisit being paid by Are You a Mason? of which Mr. Charles Macdona's company gives a finished interpretation. Mr. E. H. Paterson is a humorous Amos Bloodgood, whose son-in-law is undertaken with ability by Mr. Howard L. Tracey; Mr. Ernest Cossart is amusing as George Fisher; and Messrs. Buchanan Wake, George R. J. Austin, Victor Kerr, and C. W. Hamond are also very effective. Miss Adelaide Grace sustains the part of Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood with a good deal of piquancy; Miss Margaret Fareleigh as Eva acts with refinement and delicacy; and Miss Babs Stuart and Miss Madge Merrique are agreeable as Annie and Lulu. The play is preceded by A Bad Penny.

THE EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The leading item in this week's programme is another "star turn" by the Brothers Luck. Their pantomime sketch this time is called The Hotel Grande, by Chris. Davis. Among the individual turns, Victor Courtney sings the "Boot's Lament"; a refined vocal comedian is Harry Tomlinson; and a diverting Scottish comedienne is found in Miss Jessie Star; Wright, Ismay, and Wright, who give a taste of their quality in a dancing act; Mr. "E" as a patterer is excellent; Max Duffek, a musical contortionist, performs on seven different instruments; the Evalos as jugglers are clever and humorous; Ragius as a lawn-tennis ball manipulator is smart; and pictures of Santa Claus conclude.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Cris W. Wordsworth.—Picture entertainment is again the attraction here, the services of Mr. Baker E Belphor, the well-known concert vocalist, being retained.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—A strong programme here is headed by the Five Abadaroffs, in a clever comedy acrobatic performance. Other interesting items are:—Miss Maudie Ford, speciality sand-dancer; Raynor and Reece, vocalists and dancers; Mr. W. Permane with his highly-trained bears; Mr. Clayton's up-to-date pictures; Nelson and Thomas, in laughable absurdities; Mr. Arthur Goodman, "tramp juggler," with original methods; and Mr. Charles Sloman, comedian.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. Geo. Testo Sante is paying a return visit here with The Life of a Showman. The play centres round Mr. Sante, whose clever impersonation of Brian Leader, a circus acrobat, evokes much applause. He is ably supported.

PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Hoey.—Mr. Jasper Redfern's company here this week includes the Royal Tokio Troupe in a clever speciality act. Prince Fee Lung is an entertaining illusionist; Violet Leslie a pleasing soprano vocalist; and Maud Strathmore a successful comedienne. The Two Jollions are good society entertainers, and animated pictures are also an attraction.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Mr. Edward Marris's company, in The Girl from Kay's, gave two performances here this week. In the title-rôle, Miss Harriet Fawn appeared to great advantage; Miss Marie Greenhouse, as Nora Chalmers, was sympathetic in the part; Miss Lillian Rignold gave a clever version of Nora's maid; Miss Lena Laton undertook the arduous rôle of Mrs. Chalmers with good effect; Mr. James Salter did well as Hoggenheimer; Percy Fitzgerald was admirably delineated by Mr. Walter Nugent; very clever, too, was Mr. Louis Edmonde's portrayal of the Hall Porter, being admirably backed up by Mr. J. R. Tyrell as Pepper, the ubiquitous waiter. Messrs. Stanley Ravenscroft, Edward Christopher, Edwin Forde, and Bertie Strathmore capably sustained their respective parts. An especially interesting turn was that of the Pierrot Trio.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Charles Chard's pantomime Goody Two Shoes is here. The heroine is Miss Annie Casey, who acts easily and naturally; and the hero, Roland, is played vivaciously by Miss Adeline Yohle, who also sings quite artistically. The Simple Simon of Mr. James Topping, the Phil and Tom of Messrs. Sword and Borb, the Dame Freckles of Mr. Sydney Dean all reach an amusing level of comedy; and the bad Baron is broadly drawn by Mr. W. Cyrus. The Sammy Sopps of Mr. James Kurry reaches a high level of humorous, original caricature.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in My Sweetheart is here. Miss Minnie Palmer as the heroine is of course the great attraction; Mr. Robert H. Howard is a pleasing Tony; and Mr. Russell as Mr. Hatzall and Mr. Alfred Ibberson as Dudley Harcourt prove pleasing comedians. Miss Millie Silvestre is a clever Mrs. Fleeter; and Mr. Fred W. Leonard as Joe Shotwell causes much fun. Miss Elsie Forster's Peek-a-boo is admirable, Mr. Leslie Tyler a good Harold Bartlett, and Mr. Alfred May gives a neat character-study of Farmer Hatzell.

TIVOLI THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—The Colonial Comedy Four give a very entertaining scena, The Tramp's Intrusion; and the Pasquali Brothers prove exceedingly clever hand balancers and equilibrists. Natalia and Diana prove pleasing aerial gymnasts; Astin and Cowan are smart vocal entertainers; Walter Emerson is a good comedian; and Marie Gibson a pleasing vocalist.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Sinbad concludes its month's run to-night. Congratulations are due to Mr. Peter Davey, the producer, for having given the Bath public so refined and high-class a pantomime. Three gentlemen who deserve recognition for their efforts are Mr. Harry Turner, jun., stage-manager; Mr. W. F. C. Schottler, musical-director; and Mr. George Mallett, the general-manager. For the last week a special attraction has been the comedy juggler Kado, who, coming direct from a Continental engagement, scores a gratifying success.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schubert.—Mr. Macnaghten, who was himself present on Monday, as usual is giving his patrons full value for its (admission) money this week. Galetti's monkey comedians are a novel animal act that causes much amusement; the nom-de-plume of Brilliant and Brilliant aptly describes the xylophone playing of these clever musical ladies; the singing of the Gondolier Quartette secures applause; Mignonette Kokin wins a big success in her Dutch girl impersonation; Fred Herbert, the topical vocalist, makes a hit; and return visits are being paid by Walker and May, and Beattie Renee in her dialect interlude with dance. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are as interesting as ever.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—A laughable farcical absurdity, entitled Lucky Liza, is causing great hilarity here. Mr. Dickie Clare impersonates three characters with great success; Mr. Syd Hind in a dude part is smart and capable; Messrs. T. W. Benson and A. W. Thomas as two irascible old gentlemen are thoroughly acceptable; and Mr. Bert Collins is decidedly funny. Miss Madge Brownie is a smart comedienne; Miss Vesta Brownie does well in a smaller part; and Miss Bella Russell plays the sour, old Mrs. Pettitoe very well. The Sisters Mascott introduce some graceful dances, and the Scotch dances by Miss Queenie Bell are cleverly executed.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Miss Frances Delaval and company opened here on Monday with the new drama, Her Lost Self. Miss Frances Delaval furnished a clever impersonation of Philipine Marcel; Mr. G. Osmond Tearle must be commended for his capital assumption of the villain, Norman Esmond; and Mr. Cecil Grey was quite equal to the requirements of the rôle of Wilfred Daventry, his acting being all that could possibly be desired. Mr. Matty Practice furnished a humorous impersonation of Tom Flyaway, and was ably assisted by Miss Molly Monagan as Bridget Mahone, who succeeded in creating much merriment. Miss Min Johnson was a charming Dorothy Daventry, and Miss Clare Sullivan impersonated Lucille and Dorothy (mother and daughter) capably. Other rôles were impersonated by Mrs. Edmund Lyons and Messrs. Leslie York, Fred Lillywhite, L. W. Halfpenny, Fred Taylor, W. Seven, etc. During Acts II. and III. specialities were introduced by Tiny Carrie Johnson, which were quite a feature.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Warden, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Notwithstanding the success of the Christmas pantomime, Mother Goose, Mr. Fred W. Warden is reluctantly compelled to announce its withdrawal to-night. Benefits are the order of the day. Miss May Moore Duprez (Gretchen) appealed on Wednesday night to her numerous admirers, and richly deserved the bumper benefit accorded her; on Thursday night Mr. Martin Adeson was the recipient of a splendid benefit; on Friday night Miss Carlotte Levy (Colin) drew an enormous house on the occasion of her benefit, when extra attractions were provided.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. Fred Karno's company again tops the bill, and provides plenty of amusement with the humorous comedy extravaganza, Saturday to Monday. The Macarte Sisters appear to much advantage in their unique act; and a hit has been made by Leons, Conway, and Leland, aptly described as the Merry Monopedes. Mr. D. W. Watson plays the cornet skilfully, and also appearing are Mr. Sam Shipley, a droll comedian, and Miss Kathleen Radford, vocalist and dancer.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company is appearing here this week in the drama The Guiding Star with undoubted success. Miss Nina Blake-Adams gains the utmost admiration for her skilful impersonation of the dual rôles of Madge Goodwin and Gladys Goodwin; and much praise is due to that clever actor Mr. Horace Denton for his assumption of Jack Hilton. It would indeed be difficult to excel Mr. Percy M. Stevenson's impersonation of Harold Hager; and Miss Nora Tremayne furnishes a fine piece of character acting in her impersonation of Mother Hager. Mr. Cyril Grier appears to the utmost advantage as Martin Hardcliffe; and Mr. Elmore Frith scores as Farmer Dean. Mr. Tom H. Solly, who is also responsible for the admirable stage-management, creates much amusement by his impersonation of Bob Bowser; and Miss Mattie Crawford impersonates Dolly Dean with no little ability. Miss Belle St. Clements is undoubtedly excellent as Pattie; and Mr. Ed. Smythe furnishes a delightful impersonation of Hon. Algy Allenbury. Miss Alice Clarke is capital as Mrs. Slater; and other rôles are admirably sustained by Messrs. F. Moselle and T. Oakley. The Alhambra Bioscope exhibits a fine film, "Mr. and Mrs. Smith at the Seaside."

BILSTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—Go-Won-Go-Mohawk again presents Wep-Ton-No-Mah with her accustomed vigour here, and is well supported.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—A return visit from Mr. William Greet's The Earl and the Girl company is proving highly popular. As Jim Cheese Mr. Alfred Donohoe is an important factor in the success, the impersonation being a most humorous and able one. Mr. Thomas Kennard acquits himself with both histrionic and vocal ability as Dick Wargrave, and Miss Gertrude Simpson is a winsome and tuneful Elphin Haye. The Hon Crewe Boodle is well embodied by Mr. Leslie Owen; Mr. Ernest A. Plumpton is a capital Downham; Miss Lina Hicks is amusing as 'Liza Shoddam; Miss Kathleen Gerrard is well suited as Mrs. Shimmering Black; Miss May Frederika gives an excellent rendering of Flora; and Mr. Greville Hayes as A. Bunker Bliss, Mr. Sam Lysons as Mr. Jack, and Mr. Tom Stephens as Mr. Hazell accord good assistance. Miss Winnie Plumpton as Miss Virginia Bliss, and Miss Ida Stratham as Daisy Fallowfield, are most efficient, and the augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. W. Stephenson.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Miss Claire Romaine, an accomplished comedienne, heads an excellent combination, which also includes Mr. Horace Wheatley, a capital raconteur and comedian, always a favourite here. Other prominent turns are those of Harry Edson and his marvellously-trained dogs; Sydney James and his Strolling Players; Marriott Edgar, comedian; Roma and Romaine, musical artists; Ted Waite, comedian; Frank Leon, dancer; Lambeth and Robertson, Scotch sketch artists; Miss Lizzie Kirk, serio and dancer; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The present crowded state of the Theatre Royal, and the enormous advance bookings thereat, is a striking testimony to the wisdom of Mr. Tom B. Davis and his policy, and that Mr. Davis has again scored in securing Mr. Robert Arthur's pantomime, The Queen of Hearts, there is no possible doubt whatever. The production is sumptuous, and the cast excellent, making the pantomime one of extreme beauty and a matter for congratulation all round. Mr. Geo. Robey works assiduously as the Queen, being in capital form; Miss Millie Lindon is effective in her own particular placid and artistic style as the Prince; Mr. Edward Lewis as the Knave of Hearts proves himself a very king among comedians; Mr. T. A. Shale is popular as the King; Mr. Tom Hearn scores as the Grand Slam, and makes a great hit with his speciality to boot; Miss Valli-Valli is a dainty Estrella; Miss Ethel Haydon is graceful and mellifluous as Fortuna; and Miss Helen Cecile gives a clever enactment of the malignant Armida.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Crusoe's Adventures, in which Mr. J. F. Graham's acute artistic feeling makes itself obvious throughout, has settled down into a steady and very popular success. The artists are happy in their places. Mr. J. F. McArdle's Will Atkins is well calculated to please the children as well as adults, his efforts being always legitimate and successful; Miss Georgina Delmar makes a handsome and dashing hero, and is a favourite with everybody; Miss Lulu Valli is a sprightly and attractive Polly Perkins, and her vocal contributions are rapturously applauded; Miss Nell Emerald invests the rôle of Princess Apollinaris with a frolicsome spirit and humour which are heartily relished by all; the Haytors continue to hold their own as Friday, Saturday, and Sunday; Mr. Geo. Miller's endeavours as Mrs. Crusoe, somewhile termed lady Suffragette, are invariably productive of mirth; Mr. Fred Wright, jun., scores many good points as Billy Crusoe; Mr. Colin Coop as that amiable despot, Koko, acts and sings with goodly unction; Miss Louie Collier gains an ovation for her singing in the rôle of Roma; and Miss Clara Stanton as the Captain and Mr. Fredk. Hobbs as Davy Jones are conspicuous. The songs are numerous and successful.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—The farewell visit of Mr. J. W. Turner and his world-renowned English opera company is announced here, and pleasure in the visit and regret in the parting are everywhere visible. On Monday Satanella was performed, with the veteran and favourite tenor as Count Rupert. Mr. Turner sang in his best style, and received an ovation. Miss Kitty Brownlees displayed agreeable powers of vocalisation in the title-rôle, and Miss Jessie Dennis as Stella, Miss Maude Esdale as Bertha, Miss Christine Gomez as Lelia, Mr. Geo. Ridding as Brocacio, Mr. Sidney Clifford as Arimanes, and Mr. Richard Cummings as Hortensio supported with their well-known ability. On Tuesday The Bohemian Girl was rendered, Mr. F. J. Hargrave appearing as Thaddeus, Miss Christine Gomez accounting for the rôle of Arline in a highly satisfactory manner. The Puritan's Daughter on Wednesday afforded the public another opportunity of hearing Mr. Turner, his singing as the Earl being much cheered. The Daughter of the Regiment, The Lily of Killarney, Faust, and Maritana have also been included in the week's programme.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Mr. Collingwood's protégé, Cinderella, has grown into a big success since Boxing Night, and will probably establish a record here. The house is invariably full, and delight in the scenery and dresses, and enthusiasm in the artists, is rife always. Miss Bessie Butt's pretty looks and manners and mobile expression, as Cinderella, have made her everybody's favourite, insomuch that the town is full of her praises. Miss Butt's talent and energy are wonderful. The Bros. Obo have also made their reputation here as the Ugly Sisters, their impersonations being consistently and truly funny, and always devoid of offence; Miss Minnie D'Aubyn acts as the Prince with easy, good-humored self-possession, and displays an excellent singing voice and a fine figure; the Sisters Lunelle as Dandini and Rosini are pert and pretty, and excel in several vocal and terpsichorean essays; Mr. Harry Talbot invests the Baron's rôle with much hearty humour; Mr. J. G. Aitken delivers himself as Buttons in a robust style which is well appreciated; Messrs. D'Arcy, Kelway, and Syd Sylvester display much humorous ability as the broker's men; Miss Marie Le Frane, who has understudied the rôle of Cinderella with much success, dances nimbly and sings well as the Duchess; Mr. Fred Barnes is featured in his highly-successful song, "Never without a girl"; and the Misses Gladys Clare and Vera Guedes shine as the Fairy and Demon respectively. Florence and Lilian adorn the Palace scene with their musical speciality; and Jackson's Eight Lancashire Lads appear.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—This week Mr. Walter Melville presents, for the first time here, the new and absorbing play, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, which on Monday took the crowded audience quickly by storm. Miss Frances Ruttledge acted in the titular rôle with much feeling and abandon; Miss Rose Webster realised all the lovable qualities of Lucy, both in manner and appearance; Miss Nannie Meade displayed the baser qualities of Vesta Le Clere with much zest and ability; Mr. Walter Thornton's acting as James Harcourt was incisive and always effective; Mr. John Nolan gave a creditable study of the man with a past, Bill Slater; Mr. Frank Robertson was sympathetic and manly as Jack Fenton; Mr. Kenneth Black acted with fine dignity as the elder Fenton; Mr. Roy Redgrave won a hearty reception with his frank and breezy style as the sailor, Willie Mason; Mr. Willie Reade proved a clever actor of humorous rôles as Johnny Walker; and Miss Marie Kildare acted with amusing vivacity as Poppy Slater.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. Andrew Melville and company appear here to full and friendly houses nightly in the drama, In a Woman's Grip. Mr. Percy Dawsone's manly rendition of the hero's rôle, Frank Haydon, is received with great favour; Mr. Austen Milroy acts the villain's part, Maurice Stanton, with perfect sang-froid and much ability; Mr. P. C. Henry gives a striking impersonation of the old sailor, Sharkey; Mr. Edward Finlay plays with fine skill as Lambert; and Messrs. James Meadows, Arnold Winters, Francis Everard, and C. Ashley are competent in their rôles. Mr. Fred A. Marston is successful as Dick Langley; and Mr. Andrew Emm, with his comicalities, as Dick Butters, keeps the audience in a delighted state of mind. Miss Jessie Zatman gains much sympathy as Lilian Fairley; Miss Rose Ralph's fine, handsome presence and marked ability is seen in the triple rôles, viz., Mrs. Langley, Convict 43, and Princess Zuroff; and Little Polly Hughes is perfect in the part of Little Mary.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred D'Arcy's company is giving Astonians their first taste of pantomime this season with Robinson Crusoe, which is well relished. Miss Marion May takes everybody's fancy as the hero, all her essays, vocal and otherwise, being submitted in a manner most attractive; Miss Nelly Moore makes a fascinating heroine as Polly Perkins; Miss Cissie Conyers scores with her dashing style as the Captain; Miss Bertha St. Ruth as the Princess, and Miss Beattie Moore as the Fairy Queen, lend capital support; Mr. George Rapley leads in the humorous element as Will Atkins; Mr. Fred Lloyd's appearance as Mrs. Crusoe is marked with much laughter; Mr. Will Hicks adds to the mirth as Richard Hopkins; Mr. Sydney T. Russell gives effective aid as Friday; Messrs. Sandy and Carl, as the sportive twins, lend much diversion; and Mr. Tom Shenton, Mr. George Jones, Mr. A. Selwood, Mr. Chas. Denman, Mr. Jack May, and the Silros shine in the cast. The Three Zaracs, in a clever comic sketch, and the Ladderites, in their smart speciality, also appear in the pantomime, in which the Sydney Quartette are other conspicuous figures, being much applauded for their ability in dancing.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Alexandra Dagmar, who holds premier position this week, is as vivacious and charming as ever. She introduces several new songs and some excellent stories, which are well received. Carl and Mary Ohm prsent a clever animal act, the steeplechase by monkeys and dogs being very amusing; the Sarnthaller Troupe charm the audience with their clever singing and dancing; Damerael Rutland and company are the cause of much merriment in their sketch, House Full; Speedwell, described as a lightning painter, executes pictures at a rate little short of marvellous; Sam Elton, comedian; Fred Holland, the "Surrey cricketing vocalist"; Burns and Burns, comedians; and Hettie Chattell, burlesque actress, contribute enjoyable turns.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Heading the bill this week are Charles Parker's Six Æolians. This is a classic turn, the singing and dancing alike being admirably executed. The Lost Coon is a smart musical comedy, presented by Dinah Morris and company. The songs and dances harmonise with the coon business in an effective manner. The Four Cattaneos are expert comedy acrobats; and James Willard and company score well in a dramatic episode, Did He Deserve It? Arthur Alldridge has a really fine tenor voice, his songs being received with great enthusiasm; Cliff and Kean, in their dancing act, are also accorded a hearty welcome; Tiny Arnold, said to be the smallest artist in the world; Collins and Croft, in illustrated songs; and Menetti and Mora, comedy bar performers, complete the programme.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Warsaw Brothers, who top the bill this week, give a capital comedy act, in which they combine music with fun in a really delightful manner; Mme. Roma's Six Smire Juggling Girls present a novel act, entitled American Swells at Practice; the New York Comedy Four are as humorously harmonious as ever; while Ingram and Irving are a couple of comedians who introduce a comedy boxing bout in their performance. The Carpos Brothers present many novelties in a hand-balancing turn; Richardson Taylor is a ventriloquist of more than average ability; Billy Elliott, comedian; Myra Love, comedienne; and Fred Horsall, are responsible for a fair share of the applause.

BORDESLEY PALACE. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The dramatic element this week is provided by Mrs. John Lawson and company, in the sketch, The Devil's Sunday, which holds the attention of the audience throughout. As Fay Faber, Mrs. John Lawson displays great histrionic power. She is ably supported by a strong company. Alice Maydue has some really funny dialect songs, which are loudly applauded; the St. Julian Sisters are a pair of pleasing singers and dancers; Los Granadas, with their bar act, are responsible for much merriment; and Tom Lytton scores as a comedian. May Orchard, juvenile comedienne, is well received.

CURZON HALL. — Signor Volpi's Royal Italian Circus is still attracting good audiences. Frequent changes are made in the programme. The Cee Mee Troupe are still providing as much laughter as astonishment with their aerial gymnastics; and Nimble Nip and Wee Wullie, the clowns, continue to be great favourites with the children.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Crowded audiences are being attracted here by Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, entitled Dick Whittington. Miss Adele Roze as principal boy is bright and vivacious, and her several songs are warmly applauded; Miss Laurie is admirably placed as Alice Fitzwarren; Fairy Belle is prettily played by Miss Gladys Kildare; whilst Miss Florence Hilton as Sir Algeron de Mash is quite a favourite. Much amusement is created by Messrs Bass and Guinness as Silly Peter and Lazy Larry; Mr. Fred Spencer as Amelia Florence gives a good delineation of the old maid of doubtful age; and Mr. J. H. Wakefield is an amusing Alderman Fitzwarren. Mr. Bert Hindson as Thomas, the Cat, and Mr. Archie J. Milne as Rodento are also excellent. Some clever dancing is provided by the Saxon Trio.

BLACKBURN. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Large audiences are being drawn to this place of amusement by Mr. Milton Bode's company in The Chinese Honeymoon, which has lost none of its popularity with Blackburn audiences. Moreover, Mr. Bode's company is qnite as good, if not better, than any that has visited the town in this musical comedy, and in every respect the production is an excellent one, not the least noticeable feature being the artistic scenery and dressing of the piece. The various artists, too, are clever, Mr. George Rydon in the part of Mr. Pineapple getting the extreme of humour out of his opportunities. Miss Gwennie Harcourt is a pretty Fi-fi, her singing being capital, and she has gained a lot of applause for her "Sousa" song in particular. Miss Gladys Wood (Olive Pineapple) and Miss Nancy Rossiter (Soo-Soo) both act charmingly and sing well; while Miss Maud Adams as the stern mother-in-law, Mr. Harry Jennings as Tom Hatherton, and Mr. Rudolph Kloss as the Emperor are effective. The chorus is strong.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Miss Edith Van Praagh and Mr. G. E. Whitty's company is appearing here in An Unwedded Wife.

PALACE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Mr. John Tiller's pantomime Dick Whittington is being run on the two-houses-a-night system at the Palace this week, and the capable company gets plenty of fun, much clever dancing, several catchy songs and choruses, and some pretty stage pictures into their two hours' entertainment. Miss Jessie Templeton is Dick, and in addition to a fine stage presence is a good vocalist. Miss Dorothy Gould as Alice supports her well; while Miss Hilda Vining is a stately Emperor of Morocco. Mr. Will Lytton as Jack Idle proves an extremely funny fellow, and along with Mr. George Elliston (Eliza, the cook) Mr. Teddy Gibbs, Mr. Barney Dixon, and Mr. Sidney Vincent the audience are provided with plenty of comedy. Gaston Morel does some clever acrobatic work as the Cat, while the Tiller Quartette of dancers introduce some pretty movements.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's pantomime company is here this week with The Babes in the Wood. Specialities are introduced by the Sweet Sixteen Ballet Troupe and the Emerald Quartette of acrobatic dancers.

GRAND THEATRE. — Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson. Mr. Edmund Tearle and company are paying another visit here this week with the usual round of plays. Othello was the attraction on Monday, when Mr. Tearle once again essayed the rôle of the dusky Moor with his well-known ability; and Mr. Bernhardt Turner scored a success as Iago. Cassio was well played by Mr. Clifford Tearle; Mr. Malcolm Tearle made a stately Duke of Venice; and Desdemona found a charming exponent in Miss Esther Tearle. Hamlet, Julius Cæsar, Ingomar, Jeanie Deans, and The Three Musketeers also have a place in the week's bill.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The premier turn here this week is Belloni with his performing cockatoos. The great Penstone, illusionist is also a favourite; and Mlle. Renee, musical entertainer, receives a cordial reception nightly. Other contributions are rendered by Harry Walker, comedian; Selby and Myers, vocalists and dancers; Smiler Lee, comedian; Genaro and Theol, equilibrists; Fred Casburn, comedian; and Rene and Smith in a comedy pot-pourri act.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. C. Moody.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company has fulfilled a successful week's engagement here with the popular military drama, entitled The Indian Mutiny. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton as Lieut. Manley gave a capital rendition, and met with a hearty reception; as Captain Manley, Mr. Cyril Harrison was much in evidence; and the Major Ingleby of Mr. John Davidson was a satisfactory performance. The Terry O'Brien of Mr. Cecil Morand created much amusement; and the Ensign Blake of Mr. G. Birch met with recognition. To Mr. Villiers Stanley every praise is due for a vigorous interpretation of Nebu Singh; and to Mr. J. S. Sheddan hearty applause was accorded for a powerful performance of Abul Khan. Mr. Ernest Keand gave a good rendering of Ra Goonga; Miss F. Melrose Millett as Ghwynah was sympathetic, and was received with much favour.

ALEXANDRA HALL.—Lessee, Mr. A. C. Moody.—The Edison Animated Picture Company, under the direction of Mr. Walter Johnson, accompanied by the Brompton Boys' Orphanage Band, is meeting with liberal patronage.

TUDOR'S HIPPODROME.—The Apex Animated Picture Company and the Chronophone continue to draw good audiences.

THE GAIETY.—Proprietor, Councillor John Grantham; General-Manager, Mr. Arthur James.—The spectacular pantomime, Starlight's Dream, continues to have a successful run, novel items being introduced which have proved most enjoyable. Several new musical numbers have been added by Miss Rosie Graham, the popular musical directress.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL (LIMITED).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—Mr. Elliston's pantomime, Mother Goose, which has entered on its third week, is doing excellent business.

GRAND THEATRE (LIMITED).—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Mr. Tom Davis's Trio, "Whirling the Whirl; or, Motoring in Mid-air," has had an enthusiastic reception during the week; Clown Barker and Miss Rozsika have a refined comedy act with highly-trained dogs, ponies, and monkeys; J. G. Grahame, jun., and Zerlina Harrington appear in a dramatic episode, entitled A Daughter of Pleasure; Madge Osmond is a dainty male impersonator; and Fred Dunstone (patter comedian), the Two Cymros (Welsh vocalists), Fioretti and Elly (in a clever spade-jumping act), the Sisters Caselli (expert dancers), Gus Arundel (comedian), Maros (clever triple-bar comedian), Miss Minnie Fenton (Scotch comedienne), and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope are the other attractions.

BOSCOMBE. — HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Miss Marie Loftus is paying another visit to Boscombe, and her répertoire includes the scena "Singers Past and Present." Herbert Clifton gives imitations of various well-known artists. Miss Lily Flexmore (contortionist), the Musical Schaffers, Cosgrove and Burns, The Greys (talented singers), and Charles Somers (comedian) also contribute. The Hippodrome Pictures conclude a capital programme.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Peter's Mother, which had been eagerly looked forward to, was presented by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's clever company on Monday, and was received with genuine manifestations of approval. Mr. Charles Harley gives a remarkably good sketch of Sir Timothy Crewys, a small but effective part; Mr. Percy Hutchison as Peter is very successful in the character, which suits him admirably; the John Crewys, Q.C., of Mr. Eille Norwood is a strong piece of acting; Miss Ruth Mackay as Lady Mary plays brilliantly; and Miss Hilda Houess as Sarah is well cast. Miss Mary Griffiths and Miss Florence Harwood as the Baronet's sisters are very good, which remark also applies to Mr. F. G. Thurstons as Canon Birch and Mr. Townsend Whitling as Dr. Blundell.

BRADFORD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson. — Robinson Crusoe is now in the full tide of success, and Mr. Hart's delightful fare is being enjoyed by crowded audiences nightly.

THE EMPIRE. — Moss' Empires, Ltd. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig. — The equestrian spectacle Dick Turpin's Ride to York, being presented here this week by Fred Ginnet and company, who introduce novel cinematograph and scenic effects, is a popular item of the programme. The acting is effective, and Mr. Ginnett's highly-trained mare Bess is put through a wonderful performance during the progress of the piece. Pat Rafferty sings his Irish songs in genial style; Rosie Archer is a clever mimic of music-hall celebrities; in the vaudeville entertainment Monks at Play The Lindons sing well; the vocalism of Godfrey James, "the pit boy," is of good quality; Ruth Dorris is an attractive comedienne; as a sifleur Charles Mildare is distinctly clever; and the pictures shown by the American Bioscope are highly diverting.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. H. Foster.—There is an attractive bill of fare here, to which Lillie Soutter, comedienne, contribues cleverly. Cavalli is a smart ventriloquist; Cairns and Lynch are expert "buck" dancers; as the amiable idiot and the dainty soubrette the Lorrisons are diverting; Letine is clever as a female impersonator; Wyndham and Waters are a quaint pair of comedians as Professor and Pupil; Gus Hindell is a good comedian; The Enchanted Glen is a brilliant and picturesque setting, in which the clever Seven Zerbinis provide excellent music; and there are some fine films shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON. — GRAND PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. Bert Albert Rutley is here this week with his pantomime Robinson Crusoe, written by himself. Miss Gertrude Rowan as Crusoe is an admirable exponent of the part, both her acting and singing being excellent; Miss Poppie Howard as Captain Kettle finds plenty of scope for her versatile talent; Miss Gertie Wasley is smart as Polly Perkins; Miss Conquest as Dolly, Miss Ana Ashburn as Jack, and Miss Edwards as Flossie are equally good. Mr. Billy Moore makes a capital Will Atkins, the pirate; Mr. Will Raynor as the Bo'sun and Mr. Rutley as Dick Gargeye are very funny; and the Mrs. Crusoe of Mr. Billy Fiffe affords plenty of scope for this capital artist's special talent as a first-rate comedian. Mr. Fred Alberto gives a robust rendering of the Cannibal King; Miss Ida Irving as the King's daughter is very good; and the same may be said of Miss Madge Maynard as the General of the Army. Mr. Fred Buckley is a remarkably nimble Man Friday; and Miss Nellie Riches as the Fairy Liberty shines in her part. The pantomime is beautifully dressed, and the various songs and choruses are well rendered. The variety turns include the clever Revell Troupe, in their amusing absurdity Mischief, which is highly applauded; Mr. Billy Moore, in a lightning gun drill; the La Roi quartette of dancers; Mr. Billy Fiffe, Scottish comedian and dancer; The Reynolds, duettists and dancers; La Mascotte, in a transformation dance; and the Two Dianas, eccentric comedians and acrobats.

PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Delmar.—There are some excellent variety artists at the Palace this week, including Miss Lily Gaston, a smart male impersonator and top-boot dancer, in the latter of which she scores a great triumph; Miss Vinnie Loftus, comedienne; Miss Minnie Percival, mandolinist; and Miss Ella Wynne, soprano vocalist. Mr. Carl St. Clare is a clever mimic, and possesses a good male soprano voice, which he uses to advantage in his lady impersonations. The Royal English Animated Picture Co. show a good series of pictures.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is still here with The Blue Moon, and continues to attract large and delighted audiences.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—The pantomime Cinderella is running splendidly here, and seems destined to enjoy a long and prosperous career. Miss Gracie Moore as the Prince, Jack and Evelyn O'Connor as the Page and Cinderella respectively, Miss Kitty Clinton as Dandini, Mr. F. Hulme Sharp as the Baron, and Messrs. Walker and Lake as the Ugly Sisters have fully established themselves as great favourites.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is an excellent company here this week. Harry Tate achieves great success in his absurdity entitled Motoring; Maxwell and Frances (Thomas and Virginia) display capital singing, dancing, and humour in their vocal comedy scena; the New York Nippers sing and dance themselves into favour in their vocal scena, Bedtime; Stidder and Dunbar (the boy with the 'cello and the electric girl) submit a smart turn; J. C. Crawley is highly successful in a noved act, The Regimental Smoking Concert; the Five Bon-Bons are amusing in their pantomime trap scene, Hot Time for One; Kenneth and Kane win hearty applause in their comedy duo, Just a Few Words; May Geraldine is a pleasing comedienne; Bert Marsden is an entertaining comedian; Miss Rose Cass sings and dances admirably; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A capital programme is sustained here this week. J. P. Ling wins enthusiastic applause for his clever mimetic duologue; Leoni Clark submits a fine turn with his trained cats, monkeys, rats, mice, and canaries; Mona Mona is a dainty comedienne and dancer; La Foy poses gracefully in a wealth of colour tones; the Frasettis are deservedly applauded in their musical act; the Waltons are clever speciality gymnasts; Oakdene, comedy ventriloquist, is very effective in the nautical scena, The Stowaways; George Leyton repeats his great success in the dramatic episode, The Wreck of the Birkenhead; Laurie Stuart is cordially received; and the Barrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Little Hans Andersen is still attracting large and delighted audiences here. New songs and amusing pieces of business have been introduced. Miss Mabel Lavelle (the Princess), Miss Evelyn Hughes (Karen), and Mr. Foster Knox (Lord Chamberlain) merit special praise for their thoroughly artistic impersonations.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Full houses testify to the popularity of Humpty Dumpty at this theatre. The pantomime is in every way attractive, the scenery is exceptionally effective, the costumes are rich and tasteful, and the entire company of competent artists works hard and well together. Good and taking songs are allotted to the principals, full justice being done to them; and the ballets and speciality dances are all up to the high standard expected here. Mr. David Fisher, jun., appeared as the King on Monday evening in consequence of the indisposition of Mr. Bert Gilbert. He played the part in excellent style, and obtained much applause. All the principals are popular in their respective parts, and the pantomime goes right merrily from start to finish.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Cinderella attracts full houses at each performance, the audience evidently being highly pleased with the latest "Royal" pantomime. The comedians have added new jokes and business which appear to hit the popular taste, and new songs have been introduced by several of the principals. The scenery is exceptionally good, the dresses are tasteful, and the pantomime runs smothly. The Cinderella coach, illumniated with electric light, is well in keeping with the surroundings, and the pair of ponies are sufficiently small and pretty to be attractive.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Leonard Barry is here with his new edition of the successful song-scena, The Moucher's Walk, introducing the up-to-date Lady Candidate and other amusing persons. The beautiful Lilian presents an exceptionally clever and graceful exposition of trick and fancy cycling; Bernardo scores as a funny juggler; Miss Fatmah Diard has a well-trained voice which she uses in artistic and pleasing style, obtaining much applause; Charles Collette and Joan Derry amuse with their duologue, Tea for Two; Martine and son, singing picture artistes, obtain appreciation for a pleasing turn; Mersano is an expert at coin and card manipulation; and Ford and Barris, trio of legmania dancers, vocalists, and bone soloists, are popular with all parts of the house. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures depicted by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Dan Thomas's pantomime sketch, Aladdin, tops the bill; there are several effective scenes, and the company is a competent one. Joe Reichen's dogs are trained to a high state of perfection, the exhibition being both novel and interesting; Jane Temple, American comedienne, renders her coon songs in pleasing style; Haverley and Homer are successful as patter comedians and dancers; the Brothers Adderley obtain applause for their comedietta, An Officer's Servant; Cardow Cadets (five in number) please with their musical entertainment; and Duval, stump orator, amuses with a burlesque lecture on temperance. Animated pictures, projected by the Empire Bioscope, conclude the entertainment.

COLSTON HALL.—Poole's Myriorama continues to attract good houses. There is a strong variety company, including the Leo Tardy Trio, who perform difficult trapeze feats in mid-air, one of the artists doing a sensational dive from the roof.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is on another visit with A Fatal Wedding. In the third act Miss Marie Wilson, Miss Ivy Westaby, Miss Dolly McCalla, and Master Walter Aubrey, distinguish themselves. Mr. Ernest Outtrim is a successful exponent of Howard Wilson; Mr. Guy Hastings as Robert Curtis is clever; little Miss Marie Wilson is a charming Jessie; Miss Leah Marlborough makes an excellent Cora Williams; the unfortunate wife is cleverly portrayed by Miss Katherine Clarke; Miss Julia Temple as Bridget, Mr. C. H. Hughes as Toto, Mr. Cyril Melton as Peter Schwartz, and Mr. Jack Waring as O'Reilly, lose no opportunity of keeping the audience in excellent humour.

BURNLEY. — VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is presenting Robinson Crusoe. Miss Margaret Ruby makes a handsome Crusoe; Miss Venie Clements is bright and prepossessing as Polly; the Sisters Cora as Jack and Sally are clever little ladies; and the fun is kept merrily going by Mr. Arnold Richardson as Billy Crusoe, whose Lancashire dialect is very funny. Mr. Tom Fancourt as Mrs. Crusoe, Mr. Stockton Foster as Captain Cusslotte, Mr. Harry Ray as Will Atkins, and Elton and Elma, a smart pair of knockabouts. Mr. Ernest Laws as the Cannibal King is heartily encored for his songs; Miss Lily Calden is very good as Starry Eyes; and Miss Jenny Ruby does well as Aphrodite. The Monte Carlo troupe of dancers add to the general excellence, and Mr. George Ess directs the orchestra.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Robertys Family head the bill here this week in a turn of balancing and juggling; Fred Lester sings "The Village Blacksmith," which is beautifully illustrated; Ellis and Watts are smart patter comedians; the Richards Trio in Giddy Golfers are tricky and funny; and Mr. Herbert Bates' rendering of "The Death of Nelson," evokes an encore; Effie Stewart is a clever dancer; Claude Feldman's Beau Ideal troupe of juveniles submit a pleasing turn; and the New Empire Theatroscope shows a funny picture.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Walter.—Variety reigns here again this week, and some clever turns are given by Marie Tilley, comedienne and dancer; Jules Kiaro, hand-jumper and pyramidist; Dave Wallace, comedian; the Alskarno Trio, comedy risley acrobats; Williams and Warden, Irish cross-talk comedians; and Edgar Forrest and Co. in the amusing sketch, My Friend the Enemy. Raymond's Bio Tableaux are also in evidence.

BURY (LANCS.). — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company is here playing The Private Secretary. Mr. Donald Price finds ample scope for his abilities in the title-rôle; Mr. W. Hargreaves appears successfully as Mr. Cattermole; Mr. W. T. Elworthy ably sustains the part of Mr. Marsland; Miss Dora Gray as Edith Marsland, and Miss Beth Elliott as Eva Webster, are both capital. Others characters well played are by Mr. James E. Hussey as Harry Marsland, Mr. R. Reade as Douglas Cattermole, Miss Cecil Wade as Mrs. Stead, and Mrs. Alfred Davies as Miss Ashford.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—A large portion of the programme is filled by a burlesque entitled The Smoking Concert, played by a capable company of comedians, by arrangement with Fred Karno. Other turns include the Three Oscars, tumblers and dancers; the Edgertons, trapeze artists; Clown Charlton, musical artist; Will Walton, comedian; Chas. Lestree, juggler; the singing mill lad, Standing; and the Five Casino Girls, instrumentalists.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—Local playgoers are afforded a rich treat this week by the visit of Mr. H. Theodore's company in The Shulamite, richly staged and finely acted.

Charles Fancourt; and Mr. Herbert Belmore is a manly Jan Vanderberg. Miss Ruth Shepherd in the title-rôle acts with intense feeling, coupled with fine dramatic power; Miss Emily Levettey as Simon's sister, Anna, plays with much ability; and Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff is a realistic Kaffir girl.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—The pantomime Dick Whittington, by the Moore-Kennedy company, is a capital all-round show, the variety turns by Pauletti (the cycle expert), Victor's Marvellous Dogs, and Little Hatch (the 3ft. 10in. marvel) being excellent. An exceptionally strong cast includes Mlle. Lucretia, whose principal boy was a smart performance. Mr. Will Sandes deserves special commendation, not only for his humorous study as Idle Jack, but also for his clever knockabout business. Mr. Clarence Turner played well as Captain Bunting, and Mr. Fred Fulton's Betsy Mary Ann was a diverting performance. As the Fairy Queen Miss Molly Revell, with her fine voice, was admirably suited to the part, and Miss Helena Barton made a charming Alice Fitzwarren. Others deserving of special mention were Mr. Tom Lewis, the Demon Rat; Mons. Pauletti, as Tibby, the cat; Mr. Percy Victor, as Alderman Fitzwarren; Miss Josephine Townsend, Miss May Vincent, and the Palace Royal Quartette of Lady Dancers.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Lights Out made a first appearance here on Monday night, and was finely rendered by Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory's company. Mr. Lionel D'Arragon scored as old Sergeant Volkhardt, his acting in the last scene being most impressive; Miss Frances Davie, as Klara, was a pathetic figure and thoroughly consistent; Mr. Charles Esdale was excellent as Lieutenant von Lauffen; as were also Mr Kenneth Brampton (Lietenant von Howen), Mr. Francis J. Bithell (Corporal Queiss), Mr. Richard Fielding, Mr. Frederick Clifton, Mr. Alfred B. Allen, Mr. J. Clive Ross, Mr. Lambert Plummer, and Mr. W. Victor. The drama was preceded by the one-act play, entitled Man, in which Miss Eileen Barry enacted the title-rôle.

CARDIFF.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James.—Pantomime is the attraction here, Mr. Newman Maurice presenting The Babes in the Wood to full houses. The principal girl and boy are Miss Daisy Lane and Miss Flo Varley, two capable artists, possessing good voices and a dashing style. As the Babes, Miss Lily Farrer and Miss Beatie Benson prove a charming couple. The comedians are most successful and amusing, Mr. Allan Dale as the Baron, Mr. Harry Carman as the Baroness, and Messrs. Blarney and Kennard as Rob and Plunder proving an excellent group of mirth-makers.

NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Red Riding Hood is still the rage here, and "House full" is a frequent sign outside the New Theatre. New songs, jokes, and comic business are introduced most successfully.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The drama presented here this week is Her Forbidden Marriage. Much interest centres in the piece here owing to the appearance of Miss Nellie Fletcher as the Mother Superior. Miss Fletcher, who is accorded a great ovation for her clever rendition, is the daughter of a former lessee of the theatre. The character of Charles Devereaux is skilfully impersonated by Mr. Louis Hector; George Madison has a particularly manly exponent in Mr. Henry Lonsdale; as Lucy, Miss Gertrude Bonser is particularly charming; Miss Fitzgerald, as Lady Lucretia is certainly an actress of ability; and comedy is well represented by Mr. Fred de Vere and Miss Teresa Gilmore.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—At the head of this week's bill we have a return visit of the Six Brothers Luck in their original pantomime spetch, entitled The Hotel Grande, and in which they create much fun with their amusing business. For the first time in Cardiff, Otto Menotti produces his original sensational novelty, the 20th Century Bicycle Track, his balancing performance being undoubtedly wonderful; the Four Royal Welshmen are melodious and pleasing singers; Dot Hardy (character comedian) receives a great ovation; Michael Nolan, in his humorous Irish song and recitation, is really good; while the Robertys (whirlwind dancers) prove exceptionally clever; a splendid musical turn is given by the famous Bandurria Troupe of delightful mandolinists; and the Two Bostons, in tit-bits of burlesque, are certainly funny; Agnes Hazel, a pleasing comedienne, and the American Bioscope complete a fine programme.

CARLISLE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Robert Macdonald this week presents the emotional drama Human Hearts, by Hal Reid. Mr. W. D. Fazan, in the part of Tom Logan, shows histrionic ability; Mr. Ernest Gray capably depicts the villain, Fredrick Armsdale; Mr. E. H. Dobell is responsible for good character-acting as Jem Mason; Mr. Fred Lester is a great favourite as the half-witted Jimmy Logan; Deputy-Warder Weston is humorously played by Mr. Henry Walton; Miss Maud Lindon is a powerful Jeannette Logan; Miss Dora Watson a good Ruth Larkins; and Miss Reana Roberts an ingenuous Gracie.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls. Boswell's stage circus, which is topping the bill here this week, is meeting with undoubted success. The Celtic Comedy Trio submit some harmonious singing and funny business; a bright and taking turn is contributed by the Goldinis, carpet spinners and bâton swingers; the Jansons, gymnasts, meet with approval; Fred Keeton is funny in a couple of songs; Miss Hall, lady baritone, does well; and Lidden and Hayward are seen to advantage in a sketch, The Midnight Express. The Pepiscope is still a popular item.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—On Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday of this week Mr. Will Stone's Twentieth Century Animated Pictures and Royal Marionettes have drawn good houses. The pictures shown were of a most amusing and original character, and the antics of the marionettes, who were ably manipulated by Mr. Will Stone, caused roars of laughter. Mme. Stoll, who possesses an excellent voice, rendered very effectively a number of songs, which were appropriately illustrated on the screen.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—This week Mr. Augustine Knight is presenting Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson's drama, The Assassin. As Prince Demetri Mr. Knight does the character full justice; Mr. Edward E. Ashby's exposition of Ipanoff is an admirable piece of work. Miss Ella Vane is responsible for some good work as Countess Wanda; Miss Hettie Senior plays in a straightforward manner as Connie Johnson; Miss Frances Waring is excellent as Nita; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond causes much laughter as Baron Alphonso; Mr. Theo Balfour makes a dignified Duke Karl; Mr. Chauncey Morris gives an able representation of General Nicol; as Katrina Miss Marie E. Robertson is bright and vivacious; as Captain O'Neil Mr. Edward Jenner succeeds admirably; Mr. Tom Taylor, with many disguises, proves diverting as Peter; and Mr. Jack H. Smith plays well as Evangie.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—This week we have the first pantomime of the season, Dick Whittington; the version is Mr. F. Leslie Moreton's, and the company is toured by Mr. Mouillot, under the management of Mr. Guyton Heath. In the title-rôle Miss Millie Englor makes quite a hit, her songs, "A different girl again" and "By the side of the Zuyder Zee," being well rendered, and her lively interpretation of the character has much to do with the success. Alice finds a neat representative in Miss Florrie Saunders, who scores with "Bamboo bungalow" and several acceptable dances; Miss Joan Deering as the Fairy Campanolia gives some enjoyable songs, in which she accompanies herself upon the violin; Miss Ivy Proudfoot makes a pleasing Princess Almida; Mr. Charles Leoville, a sprightly cat, greatly amuses the juveniles; Selina, the cook, and Jack, the idle apprentice, have admirable representatives in Messrs. J. W. Hooper and Percy Cahill respectively, their topical duet, "So says the man in the street," creating heaps of fun. The Bowery Boys as Captain Bluster and Lieut. Blinker are quite favourites; while Mr. Robert Rivers gives able assistance as Fitzwarren. The costumes and scenery are excellent.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The Deer Family top the bill here with their sensational act, Indians of the Past, which is most favourably received; F. V. St. Clair remains from last week, and in addition to several smart topical songs gives a recitation describing the recent gallant action of the Chatham bluejacket Obeney in saving several lives at a fire in the Kingsland-road. The Norman and Leonard Trio, on a return visit, are giving their clever musical act, The Itinerant; roars of laughter are created by Fred Lawerance and company in My Landlord; and other attractions in the bill are Walter Ennis, comedian; Wilton, Heriot, and company in An Anglo-American Alliance; and pictures by the Erascope.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—Here we have Gracie Bard, comedienne; Charles Ashdowne, a nimble legmania dancer; Ida Ross, with a jödelling song; Leslie Race, a descriptive vocalist, who renders in breezy style "The days of long ago"; Starr and Jerome, in their latest scena Mazeppa; Alice Blandford, styled the New Zealand nightingale; Spencer and Marks, in The Stage-Struck Waifs; amusing pictures projected by means of the Edisonograph; and last, but by no means least, Miss Harriett Vernon, who on the opening night scored an immediate triumph, her songs, "Back, back to Pimlico," "When you are saying good-bye," and "Sunshine Row" all being thoroughly enjoyed. Her "Sunshine and shadow," with special scenery and effects, fairly brings down the house.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—On Monday evening another of Mr. Geo. Dance's well-selected companies presented The Beauty of Bath. Miss Gladys Guy is a vivacious and charming exponent of the title-part; Mr. Leslie Holland is well placed as the ardent Lieut. Alington, scoring a triple encore in his topical song, "Humpty Dumpty"; Miss Edith Cruikshanks plays with genuine emotional effect as Mrs. Alington, and makes the most of her dramatic opportunities; Mr. Sheriff Clunes is natural and unaffected as Beverley, and sings with artistic effect; Miss Maggie White as the Hon. Dorothy Quorn is successful with her comic songs; Master Sydney Grata plays with buoyancy the part of Lemon Goodge, the programme boy; Miss Ida Laurie is amusing as Mrs. Goodge; Mr. Reggie Gray neatly plays the stage dude, Lord Quorn, and has a chic companion in Miss Jessie Fraser as Miss Truly St. Cyr, her lively solo, "Lord Gollywog," being favourably received; Mr. Fred Pedgrift does well as the Honourable Mr. Gorst, using his fine baritone voice with considerable effect in the taking solo, "The Beauty of Bath"; Mr. Jack Crichton, as Sir Timothy Bun, has an unexhaustible fund of grotesque business; Mr. Fredk. C. Lester is good as Viscount Bellingham; and the augmented orchestra is conducted by Mr. Gordon Stamford.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Although in its fourth and last week here, Mr. Geo. Brydon-Phillips's Little Red Riding Hood pantomime shows no sign of diminishing in popular favour. Miss Amy Maple, a vivacious Jill, obtains a rousing reception at each appearance, and is easily first favourite. No praise is too high for Mr. Henry De Solla's performance as Lawyer Slyfox, Mr. Maitland Marler is an ideal Dame as Granny. Mr. Billee Taylor's Simple Simon is conceived and played on broad lines, which are successful throughout. A word of praise is due to the popular resident-manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine, for the manner in which he looks after the comfort of his ever-increasing patrons.

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Armstrong.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's pantomime Cinderella is this week's bill of fare. Miss Flo Melville is a charming Cinderella; Miss Louie Harman an ideal Prince Brilliant; Miss Madge Bryde a pleasing Dandini; Miss Ada Ward a capable Dorothy; and Miss Florrie Burnetto a captivating Queen Bountiful; Messrs. Stan Aubrey, Charles Preston, Alf Brookes, and Fred Pearce are a quartette of comedians who cause endless amusement. Specialities are introduced by Pearce and Ward, burlesque boxers; Onda and Leon, triple-bar performers; Mr. Stan Aubrey, legmania artist; Harding and Preston, expert dancers; and McCann's performing dogs.

CORPORATION THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Mr. Charles Constant's pantomime Blue Beard is the attraction here. The part of Selini is ably taken by Miss Isa Bowman, who is well supported by Miss Florrie Hersee, the Arabian Troupe of Lady Dancers, Mr. Johnny Clegg, Mr. Louis Du Cane, Mr. Alec Godfrey, and Gus Danby.

CHORLEY (Lancs). — GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Mr. Frank Denman-Wood's really excellent pantomime, Dick Whittington, opened here on Monday to a fine house. The scenery and dresses are admirable. Dick Whittington is entrusted to Miss Daisy Morell, whose work is full of vivacity and energy; Alice is charmingly undertaken by Miss Millie Doris, who is a distinct success; Mr. Jack Simpson is a clever Cat; Idle Jack is presented by Mr. Will Dennis, an old favourite here; Larboard and Starboard are humorously given by Mr. Juan and Mr. Billy McQue; and Mr. Fred Acton as Fitzwarren, and Mr. Frank Dalleud as Martha Muggins, are distinctly good. Correze and Keith, in a capital equilibrist act, The Estos, The Charnleys, Juan and McQue, and the Schallers are all capital in their various turns.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Ernest Stevens' pantomime company opened on Monday with Jack the Giant Killer. Miss Eily Helene is a great attraction as Jack; Miss Esme Cozens gives a good performance of Margery Daw; Miss Winfred Murray portrays fascinatingly the part of Daisy; and Miss Pattie Fairley makes a successful appearance as Queen Caressa. Mr. Gilbert Payne shows capability as Simple Simon; Mr. Johnny McElroy impersonates Dame Gabble in good style; and King Fad is cleverly undertaken by Mr. Harry Farrow. The piece is produced under the direction of Mr. Stanley Rogers.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Charles Macdona's special company in Mr. Popple opened here on Monday. The title-rôle was in the hands of Mr. Arthur Longley, whose easy style of acting proved a source of unbounded merriment; Miss Millie Hylton, as La Bolera, sang and acted in her well-known style, giving unbounded satisfaction, and she was called on the conclusion of each act; Mr. L. Bullock-Webster played Norman Popple in a polished manner, and looked extremely well as a man about town; Mr. Tom May gave a natural delineation of the character of Platt; Miss Cora Lingard was an exceedingly naïve Violet; and another character most favourably commented upon was that of Louise, as portrayed by Miss Florence Plunkett. Mr. Sydney Courtney, as Geo. Hennay; Mr. James Stevenson, as Henry Doring; and Miss Stella St. Andrie and Miss Alice Rene, as their respective wives, made a very effective quartette.

HIPPODROME. — Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's pantomime, Aladdin, is drawing capital houses here nightly. Tastefully mounted and with plenty of local and topical hits, it reflects the greatest credit on the manager, Mr. A. J. Nicholls, and the conductor, Mr. James Hargreaves. Miss Minnie Love is really a very smart Aladdin; Miss Lala Melrose makes quite a captivating Princess, and the pair contribute largely to the success; Miss Zoe Gilfillan sings with power and sweetness as the Fairy; Mr. Mat Melrose is a really quaint Widow Twankey; Mr. W. P. Owen a capital Abanazar; and Mr. Cecil Fowler a typical Grand Vizier; whilst Mr. A. J. Nicholls, with his happy style, makes an ideal Emperor; Welda and Wynne demonstrate the cleverness of a pair of Chinese policemen in excellent juggling; and the dancing of the Berlin Belles, a quartette of charmingly-attired young ladies, is greeted with thunderous applause.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company is paying a welcome return visit here this week with The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell is as good as ever as Iagon, and as Paul Blanchard Mr. Wallace Curswek is a success. Lorentz de Ribas is in the capable hands of Mr. G. Polson Turner; Mr. T. R. Lockwood as Alphonse de Conon and Mr. John Brittain as Dodot are clever as the rival detectives; as the Smiler, Mr. George Denham is highly amusing; Miss Rosabel Dodd distinguishes herself as Cora Simmonet; and as Sophie Blanchard, Miss Muriel Inglis is most effective. Miss Maggie Stuart also does well as Marie Guerin.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's Shakespearean and Old English Comedy Company opened a week's engagement here in David Garrick. Mr. Maclaren as David Garrick acted in fine style; Miss Edith Coleman as Mabel was most successful; and Mr. B. Iden Payne as the Alderman acquitted himself well. The Merchant of Venice, Othello, Romeo and Juliet, and Hamlet are also in the répertoire.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—A most artistic interlude is being presented here by Mr. Rex King, who is a fine character-actor as well as an accomplished ventriloquist. His protean act is a decided novelty, and he scores most unmistakably. The Three Sisters Onetti, in a gymnastic performance, are marvellous; Harry Desmond, comedian, contributes two good songs; the Sisters Lytton, vocalists, sing some pretty numbers; Sterling and Cashen, duettists and dancers, also please in their turn; and Frank Whiteley (character comedian), the Brothers St. Clair (trick cyclists), and the Ringlings also entertain.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A large house greatly appreciated a return visit of The Walls of Jericho, presented by a capital company under the direction of Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux. Mr. A. E. Anson scores a success as Jack Frobisher; Mr. George A. Brandram is good as Hankey Bannister; Mr. Cyril Baleine scores as the insignificant little Marquis. Mr. Gladys Mason is a charming actress, and, as Lady Alethea Frobisher, she excels; Miss Nona Wynee is seen to advantage as Lady Lucy Derenham; Miss Marguerite Cellier is successful as Lady Westerby. Other characters deserving of mention are Mr. A. W. Tyrer (Harry Dallas), Miss Edith Cuthbert (Miss Mornington), and Miss Leonora Thomas (the Duchess of Skye).

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. A. Rand.—One of the chief features of a capital bill this week is a dramatic sketch, entitled A Bolt from the Blue, by Harry Trevanion and company, which is well staged and full of interest. The Delvines give a comedy mélange, which provides plenty of amusement; Mr. David Poole is a clever and rather original ventriloquist; the Two Anartos are seen in a pleasing comedy sketch; the Grovini Sisters are clever acrobats; Clarice Netta is a good soprano; and Mr. George Westland (comedian) and Miss Carry Joy (comedienne) also appear. The biograph pictures conclude.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—A well-varied and attractive programme is this week provided here. The chief turn is the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese acrobats and jugglers in some neatly executed feats; Spessardy's bears prove very intelligent and funny; Messrs. C. Wordley Hulse and company give a clever dramatic scena, entitled The Fight in the Forge; Corman's Juveniles are responsible for some clever singing and dancing; Sinclair and Parr, as operatic duettists, are well received; The Ottawas, in a smart turn, produce good music from out-of-the-way articles; Walter King and Phil Herman are both capital comedians; and a capital set of Bioscope pictures concludes.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John H. Morton.—Crowded houses are witnessing Mr. Ronald Grahame's pantomime, Aladdin. Miss Celestine Brandon in the hero's part is winning much favour; Miss Edna Hana makes a capital Pekoe; Miss Lucie Fitzroy a winsome Princess; Miss Jessie McIndoe plays the Slave of the Lamp with taste and feeling; Miss Myra Stewart is quite at home as Sparklet, the Slave of the Ring; Mr. Gilbert Hart as Widow Twankey makes a great hit; and Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon is a capital Abanazar.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Goody Two Shoes finishes a successful two weeks here to-night.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mr. Bulmer's company in Sentenced for Life is attracting appreciative audiences here this week. Mr. R. Brancepeth Nevill as Sir Wallace Stillwell is good; Mr. Ernest Vaughan depicts the villain, Captain Paul Derrick, in a telling manner; Mr. Edward E. Louis as Lieut. Roy Stillwell acts with power; Mr. Maurice Maude earns distinction as the Rev. Martin Orris; Mr. James E. Frith as Percy M. Gentle proves himself an excellent comedian; Mr. Arthur Reand does well as Bill Sharkey; and Mr. Reg. Oldroyd as Tob, the Tadpole, creates much merriment. Miss Madge Douglas ably sustains the rôle of Adele Gray; Miss May Neilson as Kate Rennel deserves praise; and Miss Mary Dalby gives a fine impersonation of Lady Stillwell.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—An enjoyable bill of fare is here this week. Very creditable is the performance of Mr. George d'Albert and company in the graphic sketch It's Never Too Late to Mend; Evelyn Taylor, comedienne, sings her songs with effect; the Raymond Trio of instrumentalists and dancers give a pleasing turn; Frank Elliston and company are highly amusing in the sketch Aunt Matilda; the Three Amaranths bring down the house with their marvellous acrobatic dancing; Carl Lynn is an inimitable animal mimic; the Czar's Russian Dancers are unflagging in their efforts to please; Alec Kennedy is an excellent actor-vocalist; and due recognition is given to Mr. Ernest Leicester, Miss Violet Fulton and company in the richly-mounted sketch The Mystery of the Cliff.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—There was a full house to witness Mr. Edward Marris's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, prettily played, well staged, and beautifully costumed. Miss Marie Gerard and Mr. Geo. Brentwood (owing to the indisposition of Reed and Russell) played the parts of Crusoe and Will Atkins admirably. Mr. Joe Waldron is responsible for droll comedy; Miss Elfie Vincent makes a sweet Polly; Mr. James Graydon as the Dame is excellent; Mr. Alec Kathma as Captain Mainbrace is good; Mr. Jack Kashma is clever as Crusoe's dog; Mr. Ernie Hampson is a capital Man Friday; the Waldrons submit a clever song and dance sketch; and Misses Chandler and Payne are responsible for a spirited rendering of the "Zuyder Zee." The Thalian Glee Singers contribute some excellent glees.

DARWEN. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson. — Miss Florence Baines and company are here this week in Miss Lancashire, Limited. Miss Baines is excellent as Mary Ellen Thompson, the Lancashire lass, and is well supported by Miss Kitty Jones, as Eva Lancashire; as Bertha, Miss Muriel Johnston displays considerable ability; Miss Pattie-Groves is admirably placed as Bridget Thompson; and Mr. Walter Hicks, as Grant, the butler; Mr. Payne Fletcher, as William Henry Thompson; and Mr. R. C. Hicks, as Fox, the solicitor, are all that can be desired. Isadore Moses, John Higgins, and Harry are in the capable hands of Messrs. Sam Leslie, David Donaldson, and Burt Burton respectively.

DEAL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. C. White.—Messrs. Henry Chattrel and G. W. Bowes' Sign of the Cross company paid a one-night visit on Tuesday. That this fine play has lost none of its charm was proved by the full house and the enthusiastic applause of the audience. Mr. Wallace G. Court as Marcus, Mr. Burton W. Yaldwin as Nero, Mr. Lionel Yaldwin as Tigellinus, Miss Nancy York as Mercia, and the rest of the large and competent company played admirably.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company occupies the boards this week with East Lynne. Mr. Alfred Beaumont is eminently successful as Archibald Carlyle; Miss Julie Kennard as Lady Isabel submits presentments at once graceful and refined, and merits unstinted praise; Levison is capably accounted for by Mr. Eric Mayne; Mr. Cecil Hayward is amusing as Lawyer Dill; Mr. H. Rutland is a manly Richard Hare; and Mr. C. C. Gratton is capital as Justice Hare. Barbara Hare is charmingly played by Miss Ethel Saville, and Miss Hardacre is entirely adequate as Cornelia Carlyle. The diverting rôle of Police-Constable Bullock is well sustained by Mr. Alfred Tate; Miss Jessie Boyes, a clever child actress, gives an intelligent study of Little Willie, whilst little Isabel is nicely played by Miss Ethel Rae.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—An excellent programme here this week is headed by Tom Lloyd, comedian, whose songs cause much hearty laughter; the four Kurios are responsible for some absurdities which are both clever and amusing; Larola is a success as a comic juggler; Martin Henderson, a blind genius, provides a musical entertainment which is highly appreciated; Eno is a capable mimic of music-hall stars; Bessie Travis is a clever lady ventriloquist; and Rose Cabani is a very acceptable comedienne. The Palace Bioscope concludes with some first-rate films.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo S. King.—Dick Whittington appears to have reached the acme of success, a matter to be by no means wondered at, bearing in mind the fact that the company is an exceedingly accomplished one, and the members, individutlly and collectively, work their hardest to ensure the success of the production. The vocal items receive innumerable encores, and are entrusted to the following capable artists:—Miss Hettie Gale ("Firefly" and "Widow Doolan"), Miss Emily Constance ("Ballooning" and "Zuyder Zee"), Miss Rae Rosenthal ("Wearing my heart away"), Miss Cissie Cleveland ("It's a different girl again" and "Meet me at the Posada"), Mr. F. D. Fraser ("Nelson from his monument"), Mr. W. P. Sheen ("The Cat"), and Miss Lillian Ramsdale ("Man from Manitoba"). Miss Eny Durell made her début on Monday as the Fairy Queen, and scored a great success.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Northern Theatre Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The Prince of Pilsen is being played here this week by Mr. Baron H. Harriss's company. Miss Sophie Harriss plays the important part of Mrs. Maddison Crocker, and her characterisation lacks nothing in point or distinction. Mr. Harry Kilburn is a host in himself as the eccentric Hans Wagner; Miss Connie Leon is delightful as the French maid Sidonie; Miss Alice Nixon very prettily characterises Nellie Wagner. Her vocal work is of such merit as to receive rightful recognition. Mr. Frank Crimp possesses a baritone voice of agreeable strength, range, and tone, and his assumption of Carl Otto is notable for its dignity and manliness. Mr. Roy Sidney plays Lieut. Tom Wagner in appropriate fashion, his nautical gait and mannerisms suiting the character; and Mr. Bernard Russell as the Earl of Shrimpton is an acceptable exponent. The Vasser Girl, Edith Adams, is played with good effect by Miss Ada Watson; Mr. Ernest Gifford creates plenty of amusement in the character of François. The chorus of daintily-gowned ladies render a good account of themselves; and much might be said in eulogy of the artistic dancing of Miss A. Vincent as Dollie Dixie. The full chorus and augmented orchestra are ably handled by the musical director, Mr. Albert Vernon. Mr. Herbert Higgins is the general-manager of this really excellent company.

DONCASTER. — NEW THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Mr. J. Car Kiddie's pantomime, entitled Little Bo-Peep, attracted a crowded house on Monday evening. The singing and dancing are delightful, the dresses and costumes quaint and handsome, and the pantomime has the advantage of having a number of specialities, including grand tableaux of living statuary, a charming ballet of white china, the Solon Trio, the Lohrenz Quartette, with a coon song and dance, and the Hammersley ballet troupe of lady dancers.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—Sinbad the Sailor continues to attract large audiences nightly. Miss Mary Beatty as the principal boy is as engaging as ever, and Mr. Edward Lauri as Tinbad and Mr. Gus Walker as Mrs. Sinbad are both irresistibly funny; Mr. Tom Finglass is particularly good as Pompey, his coon songs and dances being deservedly applauded, and Messrs. G. H. Snazelle and Fred Arthur are entertaining as the Captain and the Sultan. Other artists who deserve mention include Miss Blanche Astley as Zorilda, Miss Agnes Gunn as the Spirit of Adventure, and Mr. Cecil Kingsley as the Grand Vizier.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company entered on their last week here on Monday, when The Huguenots was presented. Mme. de Vere, who has a voice of excellent power, played Valentine brilliantly; Mr. Joseph O'Mara's interpretation of Raoul was delightful, vocally and histrionically; Miss Kate Anderson sang beautifully as Marguerite of Valois; and Mr. Charles Manners, in a remarkably good representation of Marcel, sang his music with excellent taste and ability. Mr. Charles Magrath's San Bris was perfectly satisfactory, and the rôle of De Nevers was played with credit by Mr. William Devers. Herr Richard Eckhold conducted. Lucia di Lammermoor, The Lily of Killarney, Carmen, Faust, Marriage of Figaro, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl are in the week's bill.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. M. Dawson.—Under the Czar has met with acceptance here this week, Mr. Fred Jarman's all-round able company presenting it. Mr. Wilson Howard did justice to the character of Nicholas Yeroslaff and Miss Lilian Herries exercised much judgment as Sonia Gregorovitch; Captain Johnson had an able expenent in Mr. Gerald Smythe; Miss Beatrice Annesley was an excellent Siomka; Mr. George H. Doyle a capital Zakhar Kovesky; and the rôle of Zara Bhura was well enacted by Miss Madge Clare. As Michael Granoviski Mr. Victor Gordon was admirable, and Mr. Louis Weston was good as Paul Ignod.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allan; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Geo. H. Marsh.—Mr. Fred Karno and company are again topping the bill with Early Birds, which arouses great laughter; Baker and Balfe, xylophonists and dancers, are warmly appreciated; Katie Cohen sings several songs very sweetly; ample fun is provided by the Bros. Hayes in their sketch, The Porter and the Professional; Jess Thorne is an acceptable comedy artist; Albert Christian, baritone, scores a distinct success; and Raie Walters, comedienne, and the De Wynne Bros., head and hand balancers, are accorded a good reception. The Empire Pictures are entertaining.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Foremost here this week is Herbert Lloyd, who is mirth-provoking in his new comedy act; Grant and Grant, the American Octoroons, make a big success, and Rosie Lloyd, with catchy songs, is well received. As a versatile comedian J. H. Carney provokes much amusement, and Mabel Marius supplies an interesting turn; Secardo Bros., comedy acrobats, give an exceedingly smart show; and other admirable turns are provided by Mlle. Ameda, novelty entertainer; Dick Kendall, a brisk comedian and dancer; and Ida Evalo, lady gymnast, and the Bioscope concludes a well-varied entertainment.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Frank R. Thorne's company, in the romantic drama Napoleon the Great, opened to a very appreciative house on Monday. Mr. Hugh Montgomery's Napoleon is a powerful and well-studied piece of acting that received to the full the applause it merited; Mr. Phil Harper makes a noble and true Colonel Jules Meuron; and Mr. Henry Earlesmere is well placed as Colonel Lavarennes. Mr. Frank M. Thorne, in the amusing character of Pierre Pompennet, soon proves a strong favourite; Miss Leslie Warner's rendering of Marie Walewska is admirable; Miss Maud Russell as Mademoiselle Leonie Marbœuf, proves herself a clever actress; Miss Marie Harcourt as Marcelle Choupin and Miss Florence Thorne as Mère Dumont are also well received.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—At the top of the bill here this week we have Tom Davis and company in an absurdity entitled Furgusoni's Dog; and Howe and Ardie, comedy acrobats and gymnasts, occupy the bottom of the bill with an exceptionally smart turn. Ethel Loftus, a clever comedienne, is here again; Sylvia Martin, the lady horse trainer, gives an interesting performance; Carson Hicks, comedian, has some good songs and dances; the Sisters Ford, vocalists and dancers, are another popular turn; and Fred Harrington, vocalist, is well received.

DUMFRIES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Manager, Mr. Payne Seddon.—For the first three nights of this week we were favoured with a visit of Mr. Edward Morris' company in The Orchid. Miss Dorothy Vernon was popular in the part of Lady Violet Anstruther; Miss Florence Allen made an amusing Caroline Vokins; Miss Cissie Brand, a smart Zelie Rumbert; and Miss Trilby Collier an effective Josephine Zaccary. Mr. Harry Walsh, as Meakin (the gardener) kept the house laughing the whole evening; Mr. Sinclair Holden, as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, gained favour; Mr. Geoffrey Berwick, as Dr. Ronald Faussett, was very successful; and Mr. Len. Neville, as Zaccary, was all that could be desired.

DUNDALK.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Proprietors, Urban Council.—This week Mr. Payne Seddon presents Mr. Charles Macdona's company in A Chinese Honeymoon. Miss Kitty Clayton does some admirable work as Fi Fi, keeping the house in hilarious humour. As Mr. Pineapple Mr. Ernest Sefton is well suited; Miss May Davis is well adapted to the part of Mrs. Pineapple; as Soo Soo Miss May Stevenson is a great success; Hang Chow is safe in the hands of Mr. Harold Cotter; and Mr. Louis Ashmeade is a good Chippie Chop. Mr. J. Maxwell Edwards as Tom Haterton is all that can be desired.

DUNDEE.—PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—A capital bill of fare is presented here this week, the top-liner being Tom Woottwell, who at once made a big impression. Harry Taft and Frank Coyle, comedians, both make decided hits, the former winning rounds of applause for his whistling of two of Sousa's marches; Agnese Lynch, a singer with a pleasing soprano voice, is heard to great advantage, the pictures by which her songs are accompanied being beautiful exhibitions of colour; the Mezzettis give a marvellous exhibition on the triple bars, the antics of the little man causing roars of laughter; Cambo, the musical man monkey, is a decided novelty, and proves a very entertaining turn; Prof. Milne contributes a well-worked ventriloquial turn; and Billie Barlow and Emily Lyndale, comediennes, provide enjoyable fare. The Bioscope completes a varied and attractive bill. A special word of praise should be accorded to Mr. Geo. Mundell's capable orchestra, whose brilliantly-played selections are now quite a feature of the programme here.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—The pantomime Mother Goose entered on its last week on Monday evening. It has proved a great success, and has broken all records at this house. On Thursday Miss Gertie Douglas, the popular principal boy, took a well-earned benefit.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The King's Secret, a drama with much to commend it, is being played here by Mr. James Stillwell's company. As Captain Fairburn Mr. Paul E. Teulon gives a splendid representation of a British naval officer; Boatswain Jack is admirably played by Mr. Harry Liddle; as Lawyer Swiverton Mr. John Burgess gives a fine character-study of the part; the pushful American, Jonathan Newark, is capitally played by Mr. Duncan Bell; while Mr. James Stillwell gives a powerful delineation of the villain, Hassat Alfar. Miss Katherine Barnet as Star Newark, an American girl, acts with delightful vivacity; and Miss Fann St. George, an actress of great ability, gives a very fine rendering of an Egyptian adventuress.

KINNAIRD HALL.—Wm. Hamilton's Excursions are proving very successful here. The scenic pictures are of rare beauty and interest, while a delightful variety entertainment and amusing animated pictures further add to the enjoyment of the entertainment.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E Potts.—The Russell-Rosse répertoire company is fulfilling a week's engagement here, and opened on Monday night before a good house with the famous comedy A Pair of Spectacles. Mr. A. J. Harding is a very capable Mr. Benjamin Goldfinch; Mr. Norman Clark is exceptionally good as Uncle Gregory; Mr. J. B. Pearson is a clever exponent of Percy; Mr. Frank Liston sustains with credit the part of Dick; Mr. F. J. Hampton successfully undertakes that of Lorimer; and Mr. W. E. Chance does ample justice to the rôle of Bartholomew. Miss Rachel de Travis makes a good Joyce; Miss Ida Phillips is a delightful Mrs. Goldfinch; and Miss E. N. O'Connor a sweet Lucy. Caste and Our Boys are included in the week's programme.

EASTBOURNE. — PIER PAVILION. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—The Little Stranger, acted by Mr. Charles Steuart and company, is paying a second local visit. Master Edward Garratt possesses unique qualifications to play the part of the baby, and Tom Pennyman, and this phenomenally tiny comedian causes loud laughter at every sentence he speaks. Mr. Charles Steuart is always an interesting and natural Dick Allenby; Mr. George Bellamy has an impressive solemnity which is admirably used in the rôle of Paul Vronsky; Mr. Athol Forde is a spirited representative of General Allenby; Mr. Hubert Druce is exceedingly good as the nervous Sir George Peacock; Mr. H. Lawrence Layton is a distinguished Hon. Alec Howard; and Mr. J. Carl Lyle works hard and well as Eames; Miss Mary Allestree is responsible for admirable work as Mrs. Dick Allenby; Miss Daisy Atherton is a charming and attractive Effie; Miss Mary Stuart and Miss Alice C. Greene share the honours which certainly fall to them as Mrs. Allenby and Lady Peacock; and Miss Dora Hole does excellently as the nurse. The Second Mrs. Grundy is the curtain-raiser, and it is notably well played by Miss Daisy Atherton and Mr. Hubert Druce.

ECCLES.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Manager, Mr. Albert Orton; Secretary, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. Peter Thompsons pantomime company is here this week with The Babes in the Wood, which has caught on in the most satisfactory manner. As Robin Hood, Miss Maude Beaumont is a great success; Miss Lou Langley is a sweet and dainty Maid Marion; a capital Baron is found in Mr. Wilton Marsh; the Danbys as Tim Tired and Willie Wearied keep the audience well amused; Mr. F. G. Vane scores as Evelean; a clever rendering of the Babes is given by Miss Renée Grahame and Miss Babs Lloyd; Miss Minnie Moran makes a fine Will Scarlet; and the acrobatic exhibition given by N. T. Kioto is exceedingly clever .

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—Mr. George Edwardes's company entered upon the closing week of the present engagement in The Merveilleuses last Monday, in presence of a large audience.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard. —The Cinderella pantomime continues its brilliant run, and is still drawing full houses. Miss Gwennie Hasto's clever dancing is greatly admired; Miss Violet Englefield and Miss Dorothy Chard have become special favourites; and the drolleries of Mr. Dan Rolyat and Mr. John Humphries provoke irresistible merriment. Mr. Stephen Adeson and Mr. Bay Russel also contribute largely to the fun.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—There is, as usual, much variety in the programme here this week. It is refreshing to see a performance so artistic as that of Mr. Henry J. Corner's The Dandies. Their singing is admirable, their dancing is graceful and clever, and the whole turn is marked by a pleasing air of refinement. The Kellinos arouse enthusiasm by their exhilarating, daring, and humorous acrobatic display; the Allisons are talented actors, excellent singers, and smart dancers; the Three Chester Sisters give an enjoyable performance of drum and banjo playing, and skilful dancing; Mr. Cliff Ryland, humorist, has a droll manner, and his speeches are evidently appreciated by his audiences; Miss Ethel Dorina is extremely good in her exposition of dances of different nationalities; Master Clifford makes an extremely successful appearance as a dancer, and equally good is Mr. Russell Brandon's effective acrobatic dancing turn. Mr. Herbert Darnley's company of comedians is also in the bill with a heterogeneous musical farce entitled The Freaks, and the Bioscope shows some novel films.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—The management keep up the attractions of this perennially popular place of holiday entertainment by the timely addition of novelties to the bill of fare, and prominent in this week's programme come interesting exhibitions of horsemanship by Miss Rose Montero and Nicolini. This last-named artist, in the guise of a Mexican rough-rider, performs some very daring feats. Mlle. Yetta shows originality in her introduction of a cake-walk on the slack wire, and a great deal of genuine fun is got out a burlesque bull-fight. Novel and Toney appear in a clever staircase act; a nautical scene act by Mr. Leicester Alfred Cooke, entitled Homeward Bound, is presented with great effect; and the big water carnival, Ally Sloper, still provides unlimited amusement.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Aladdin continues to attract crowded houses at every performance. Miss Rose Helene, who is making such a success in the title-rôle, has a new song, "Ballooning," which goes with a capital swing. Miss Lulu Louden is a captivating Princess, and sings "The Scarecrow" with success. Mr. E. W. Avery and Mr. Fred Fowler respectively as the Dame and the Magician, continue to provide most of the fun, and prove themselves clever comedians. Mr. J. H. Booth as the Emperor and Mr. Harry Emeric (Wishee Washee) ably support the leading comedians. Mlle. Ebba Darcier as a maid of honour sings very sweetly, as also does Miss Blanche Browne as Pekoe. The new specialities introduced this week are Ivy Valescoe's Australian stage circus and Charlie Hampson's performing dogs and pigeons. Both specialities are decidedly good.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Fred Karno's No. 1 Company has occupied the stage here this week with His Majesty's Guests. The farcical comedy was presented with a verve and go that secured pronounced success. The important rôle of Sergeant Lightning (Mr. Dick Kitchen) was the life and soul of the piece. Mr. Frank Morton proved an able exponent of the part of Lord Easem, and was ably supported by Miss Leonora Castelle, as Lady Maud Easem, his companion in crime; Mr. Charles Usher made a dignified Mr Miffin; and Mr. Alex. Munro (Harry), Mr. Harry Howe (Bunker), Mr. Sid. Kearns (Mr. Minks), Mr. Mike Johnson (Fritz), Mr. Tom Manardo (Selina), and Mr. S. Bolton (Josiah Giles) also filled their respective parts with ability. Miss Edith Ager was an engaging and charming Dolly, and Miss Kitty Brunton successfully hit off the foibles of the new woman in the part of Miss Manley.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—We are favoured this week by a visit from Mr. Douglas Bruce's company in The Girl Who Lost Her Character. The title-rôle is played by Miss Ethel Bracewell, who gives an admirable all-round representation. Miss Lydia Mannington as Marian Franklyn proves herself a capable actress, and Miss Oda M. Ryder as Rose Seymour is to be congratulated on her rendering of a by no means easy part. The character of Isabella Jones is well played by Miss Daisy Meynard. Mr. J. B. Shinton is suitably placed as the Rev. Robert Everton, and Mr. George Steel as Jack England gives a manly and convincing performance. Capt. Geoffrey Caversham is a very real character in the capable hands of Mr. Frank Adair, who makes the most of every opportunity. Mr. G. Mitchell and Mr. Harold Macartney as James Sutton and Weatherby give a good account of themselves. Mr. G. H. Asquin is responsible for the humorous element as Dick Punch, and his efforts meet with success. The play is adequately mounted.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Messrs. E. Lockwood, R. Crossman, and P. M. Foster's company opened here, on Monday, with Sergeant Brue. Mr. E. Russell appeared as Sergeant Brue with his customary success; Mr. T. Shelford, as Michael Brue, sang and danced well, his efforts being repeatedly applauded; Miss Ella Daincourt was a winsome Aurora Brue; Miss Constance Berkeley played with humour the part of Daisy; Miss Aileen Macdonald was vivacious as Mabel Widgett; Mr. Arthur Stroud sang and acted in a bright and effective manner as Gerald Treherne; Mr. Henry Chichester was well suited as Mr. Crank; Mr. Charles McLagan was exceedingly droll as Crookie Scrubbs; and Miss Edith Houseley, as Lady Bickenhall, sustained her part in a capable manner.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. M. S. Hammond; Licensee, Mr. Ed. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Sinbad the Sailor terminates his stay here this week. Miss Fifi Gordon as Sinbad has won many encomiums, and her "Zuyder Zee" song and dance has made a phenomenal "hit." Miss Beatie Kent has also many admirers. The comedian-in-chief, Mr. Tom Collins, has afforded infinite amusement; and another factor in the success is the work of Mr. Herbert Fuller. Mr. Tod Squires, Messrs. Bishop and Vale, Misses Tennis and Lawn, and Solida and Vone have lent invaluable aid.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. F. Marriott-Watson's company is here in the drama, A False Wife. To Miss Florence E. Florence go the chief honours, her Estelle de Lussan being deserving of the highest praise; Mr. Fred H. Constable submits a polished rendering of George Mansfield; Mr. Watson himself takes care of Jean Beraud, and does the part full justice; and the comedy element is contributed with success by Mr. Elton Morgan as Ben Rattler, and Mr. Allan Charles as Archibald Tee. Miss Annie Hylton is effective as Agnes Weyland; Miss Ivy Chandos makes a lively Bessie Blazer; and Miss Flo Morgan is seen to advantage as Sarah Bernstein. In addition to the drama, animated pictures of the Nelson and Gans fight have been shown.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company are appearing here in A Wife's Triumph. Mr. Abbott does full justice to the rôle of Frank Wilton; Miss Ada Abbott gives a clever rendering of Bessie Dewhurst; and the humorous work of Mr. Edwin Keene, in the part of Ben Bradford, is much enjoyed.

GLASGOW.—ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The Catch of the Season entered on its fourth and last week on Monday and a crowded house evinced the heartiest interest in the comedy as interpreted by Mr. George Dance's company. Mr. Frank Lincoln is specially well placed as the Duke of St. Jermyns, and in song, dance, and humour of dialogue he is equally happy. Miss Morya Mannering as the pretty Angela is also a strong favourite, and when masquerading as the Irish heiress she acts with infinite variety and versatility. Master Grata as the love-sick pageboy, Misses Isobel Dickens and Florence Lee as the two elder sisters, and Miss Belle Napier as the Fairy Godmother also add to the success, and the large and attractive chorus make the concerted music a specially delightful feature.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane. —See-See completes its month's run here this week and has proved an excellent entertainment for the holiday season. The humour provided by Mr. Frank Danby and Mr. W. H. Rawlins, the spirited singing of Mr. Leonard Mackay and Miss Amy Augarde, the dancing of Miss Topsy Sinden, and the charming embodiment of the title-rôle by Miss Lily Elsie have made the comedy a veritable feast of good things. Miss Daisy Wallace, Miss Octavia Barry, Miss Sybil Grey, and the other principals ably add their quota to the list of attractions, and the first visit of this musical comedy has been a notable success.

METROPOLITAN, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—The Babes in the Wood still continues to attract large audiences nightly, provided as it is, by an array of capable artists who combine to make the performance an undoubted success. As Prince Radiant Miss Rose Hamilton has established herself a great favourite, and is most successful in her songs. Miss Lucy Lynch makes a charming Princess Dainty, and Miss Pattie Bella is a popular Sir Bertie. A very creditable performance is that of Miss Ada Martine as Dolly Daydream. Messrs. James Albert and Edmund Edmunds as Horatio Hardface and Sammy Softun are very amusing. Other favourites are Bernard and Weston, Mark Tapley, Ernie Sparks, Miss Cecilia Maude, and Mr. Reginald Hamilton.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—At the popular Govan house pantomime has given place to melodrama, the attraction for the present week being Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in Honour thy Father. Mr. Walter M. Cameron appears as Gabriel Garth, the ruined farmer, and gives a touching picture of the kindly old man; a smart, breezy representative of the young sailor, Capt. Halyard, is found in Mr. Bertram H. Ross; the thankless part of Duncan Bly is played with telling effect by Mr. W. R Winning; Mr. Claude Merton cleverly doubles the parts of Job Merry and an inventive lunatic named Bloggs; an agreeable touch of humour is imparted to the scenes by Mr. Fred Rolls as Copplestone and Mr. W. H. Melrose as Pennycomquick; Miss Mabel Coleman gives a pleasing interpretation of the sympathetic rôle of Lilian Garth; as the heiress, Mercy Merry, Miss Muriel Dean acts and dresses with becoming taste; Miss Kate Newton portrays the character of Mrs. Garth with much feeling; Poppy Cornleigh, the farm servant, is represented in sprightly fashion by Miss Ada Salmon, and a graceful Violet Wilfred is found in Miss Maud Gray.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Chas. Mussett. — Mme. Alice Esty, a prime Glasgow favourite, is a brilliant success in Betta, the Gipsy, a fine operatic scena, in which she is supported by a capable company. Victor Travers is a host in himself, and makes everyone merry. Harry Drew sings "Honour and Arms" in fine style, and Ida Kathrena, in a turn of the La Poupee order, meets with great success. The Bioscope is a fine interlude this week, and is much enjoyed. Torbay is a shadowgraphist of the first water. Prince Kokin varies with an agile and neat display of Japanese jugglery; Crystal Gazing, in which Mr. W. H. Day and Miss Laura Dyson are seen is a delightful fantasy. The Two Butterflies, juvenile gymnasts, provide as pretty a turn in gymnastics as Glasgow has seen for a long time, and the programme is strengthened by the funny and bustling acrobatism of Spissell Bros. and Mack, who keep the house roaring.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—At the top of the bill this week is Raku, the Japanese exponent of Ju-Jitsu. In consequence of a slight injury Raku did not appear in the early part of the week, but his place was taken by a friend, who gave an excellent display of the Japanese method of self-defence. Ethel Ra Leslie is a pleasant singer, who appears in male costume of the David Garrick period. The Aurora troupe of trick cyclists do some astonishing feats of cycling. Ferris and Farnley are capital comedians and agile dancers. Edward Cranston and Co. present the exciting Irish racing scene called Terry, or True to His Trust. The Five Bogannys give a novel Risley performance. The Sisters Petram's marionette entertainment is exceedingly pleasing. Virto, the musical instrumentalist, shows that fine music and comic effects can be produced from the same instrument. The Toreadors enact a queer bull-fight in which the "toro" part is taken by a lively donkey, which is supplied with long horns. Animated pictures complete an entertaining programme.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Victoria Monks makes an early and most welcome return visit here, and the crowds attracted nightly are proof of the hold she has on the Glasgow public. Barton and Ashley are also prime favourites, and their funny duologue is enthusiastically received. A striking series of tableaux in statuesque poses is given by the Countess Romanow, interspersed with comic pictures on the Bioscope. The Grosvenors give several musical selections with excellent effect; and in more elaborate operatic scores the Sisters Llewellyn have made a decided hit. Maud Marlow's catchy scenes are well received, as also are the amusing ditties of J. H. Crey. The Five Vernons contribute some taking selections on the xylophone. Allan and Hart, duettists, complete a first-rate programme.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—An attractive programme is arranged here this week. Leo Stormont and company (now in their third week) are still drawing appreciative audiences with their condensed version of Rob Roy. The variety attractions on the programme include De Dio, skirt dancer, who, with the aid of limelight effects, gives a really wonderful exhibition; William Gourlay, comedy artist; Paulinetti and Piquo, gymnasts; Lopez, dental athlete; Johnson and Bert, comedy acrobats; Tucker and Evans, boxing and ball specialists; Brenton Sisters, comediennes and dancers; and the Bioscope with a novel series of pictures.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldron; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Joe Peterman and company are back once more in The Belle of the Orient, and have had a hearty reception. The Jumels score as musical experts; Woodward and Walton sing and dance well; Ada Parker, in a series of coon songs and dances, makes quite a hit; Walter Stanley has had a great reception, and scores with quaint songs and sayings; Miss Hulo Hodgson and Mr. Harry Lowther appear in a breezy episode entitled Barmaids; Miss Rosie Revat is a good comedy artist. The Bioscope pictures are also on view when time permits.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Howard; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Bowerman.—The bill here is headed by Duse Mohamed, in The Jew's Revenge, which has had a very good reception. The Carney Bros. appear in a clever vocal act; the efforts of Geo. H. Rae, Scotch comedian, are highly appreciated; and the horizontal bar performance of Ariel and Astarte is daring and smart. Other acceptable turns comprise the Dunvilles, in musical comedy act; Sabino, the man of many instruments; Darnton Sisters, duettists; Macaskell, comic conjurer; and the Gaiety Bioscope.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—This week Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mackey's company is here with The Wearin' o' the Green. Mr. Arthur Rose gives a good delineation of Shamus McDermott, with songs; Mr. H. Sainsbury is well placed as Sir George Courtney; Mr. St. John Stuart is exceedingly good as Gerald Courtney; Mr. David McFarlane as Connor Martin and Mr. Arthur Prescott as Michael Kenny score as the evildoers of the piece; Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as Norah McGrath acts in a capable manner; Miss Adele Liddon gives a pathetic reading of Mrs. McDermott; and Mr. Charles Mackey (Barney O'Hea) and Miss Nana Flensberg (Biddy McGinn) provide plenty of fun.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Miss Marie Collins heads the bill, and is excellently received. Little Canty, a most comical little man, is also starred. The Seabornes are a trio of clever equilibrists and acrobats, who merit the applause bestowed on them. The Three Whirligigs (two ladies and one gentleman) present a pleasing performance of singing and dancing; and Simosa San is a neat lady juggler. Morimura, a Japanese illusionist, introduces some smart conjuring; and Charles Banks and his dog, Woof, earn appreciation. Lilian Travelli, burlesque artist, sings a good song; and Sam Dalton, comedian, contributes some capital songs. The Bioscope is still a feature in the programme.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—A welcome change has been provided at this theatre by Miss Rose Moncrieff's company in Little Red Riding Hood. The pantomime, which is full of fun and frolic, is meeting with great success. Miss Blanche St. Marie is an excellent principal boy, and is loudly encored for her popular songs; Miss Ethel Maries plays the title-rôle in a sprightly manner, and sings and dances with much spirit; as Jack Miss Flo Templar is all that can be desired; Miss Dot Irving makes a good impression with her coon songs and clever dancing; as the Dame, Mr. Jack Heath is the principal laughter-maker; Messrs. Burns and Bentley give an excellent account of themselves as the Lawyer's Clerks; Mr. James Harold as Baron Badlot contributes largely to the success, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Fred McGorman as Lawyer Fox; Miss Jennie Lattour is a charming Fairy, with a good voice. Specialities are introduced in the Palace scene by Messrs. Burns and Bentley and Mr. James Harold.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Walter Melville's original drama, The Female Swindler, is attracting large houses this week. In the title-rôle Miss Grace E. Leslie acts with force and fervour; as John Coulson Mr. Joseph Millane is successful in a Sherlock Holmes part; Mr. J. Belton gives a clever character study of Abraham Mikestein; Mr. Clarence Ibbotson appears successfully in four different characters; Geoffrey Ward is capitally represented by Mr. Stanley Radcliff; and Miss Florence Relsey is excellent as May Andrews.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Miss Eva Moss and company, under the direction of Mr. Richard F. Symons, opened here on Monday with Camille. In the title-rôle Miss Moss distinguishes herself by the excellence of her emotional acting; much praise is due to Mr. Cecil Du Gue for his finished impersonation of Armand Duval, and the Count de Varville is ably represented by Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce. Mr. George Picket makes a capital Gaston Rieux, and Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood as M. Duval and Mr. Harold Vane as Gustave deserve mention. Miss Phyllis Manners as Madame Prudence is good; Miss Violet Campbell as Olimpe, Miss Edith Conner as Nichette, and Miss Wynne Hanley as Nanine are all that could be wished. Frou-Frou and East Lynne are also billed.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skiwington.—Toch and Tard head the bill here with an exceptionally smart acrobatic performance; the Loma Trio neatly execute some gymnastic feats; and Chester and Lee's marionette show is good. An excellent turn is that presented by the Dancing Gilberts; Marie Raymond, comedienne, is accorded a warm welcome; Fred Mason, comedian, scores with his singing and whistling, and the Empire pictures are excellent.

PAVILION THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—"The mysterious Lilith," as presented by Mme. Harcourt, is mystifying crowded houses here. Lilian Warren is successful in illustrated songs; Cole and Rags, American jugglers, have been accorded a capital reception; Charles J. Johnstone is a coloured comedian of the first water; Winnie Scott, a charming comedian and dancer; Wal Robbins, musical speciality; Lilian Boanas, Australian vocalist, and the Paviscope pictures conclude the entertainment.

GUILDFORD. — BOROUGH HALL. — Managers, The County Halls Co., Ltd.—Our first pantomime reached here on Monday, when Mr. John A. Thomson—always popular in Surrey's county town—presented Jack and the Beanstalk, under local direction of Mr. G. W. Bowes. It proved a rollicking, good, old-fashioned entertainment, with pleasing songs, bright dances, and beautiful scenery. The Three Dandies especially proved attractive in their dances; while Percy Galino got applause for his capital bone and banjo solos; and Mr. R. Lomas is exceptionally agile as the Man Monkey. Mr. Harry Harcourt as Mother Hubbard wins shouts of laughter; Miss Edith Wallis is a popular Jack; and Miss Maggie Allwood a dainty Jill. As Britannia, Miss Ella Wallis well sings some pretty songs.

HALIFAX. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A great attraction is provided here this week by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company, in The Dairymaids. First mention must be made of Mr. Lionel Victor for his whimsical conception of Joe Mivens; he is ably seconded by Mr. E. Statham Staples, who, as Sam Brudenell, assists in keeping the ball of fun rolling. A typical Captain Fred is found in Mr. Alec Fraser; Mr. Forbes Dawson gives an excellent study of Dr. O'Byrne; Miss Violet Lloyd as Peggy gives a delightful interpretatoin of the Dairymaid; and Miss Cissie Sephton (a great favourite here) cannot be too highly commended as Eliza. Miss Edith Blanche as Lady Brudenell and Miss Rhoda Gordon as Winifred have congenial rôles.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Three Demons made their initial appearance here on Monday in a devil's table suspending cycling act, an astounding performance; the ever-popular Stanley Cooke made a decided hit with The Lady Doctor, a sketch that is distinguished by bright comedy; J. W. Magers had a big ovation for his American story-telling and fine basso singing; a seasonable item, The Holly and Mistletoe, was interestingly interpreted by Elsie Earle; Arthur Woodville worked hard in a refined entertainment; La Belle Nello, contortionist, was well received; Pueblo and Crop, the Petter Brothers in The Page's Recreation, and Chas. Stevens, light comedian, also contributed.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—Yukio Tani, the scientific exponent of wrestling, holds the premier position here in a strong bill; Harry Vardon, the up-to-date ventriloquist, is as popular as ever; a flattering reception is accorded Dora Lyric for her rendition of "All that glitters is not gold"; Dick Cruikshank and company are irresistibly funny in their representation of Bridget's Idea; Fred Land is an eccentric comedian; the Wilfords (herculean tumblers), together with Carl Rosine (handcuff manipulator), are assured of success.

HANLEY. — ROYAL, LTD — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Elliston's pantomime, Sleeping Beauty, has entered upon the last week of its season here. Mr. Dave O'Toole has scored triumphantly as the Queen; Mr. J. W. Churchill makes a most amusing Count; Mr. Alf. Bishop is a great favourite as the King; Mr. Lonnen Meadows, as the Yellow Dwraf, is all that can be desired; Miss Esme Gordon is a principal boy of first-class quality; Miss Lily Vane is a dainty Beauty Allfair; Miss Tilley acts and sings cleverly; Miss Agnes Molteno is most successful in her well-rendered vocal items; and the Howards, in their musical act, Miss Lottie Stone's dancers, the Morton Trio, and Ganty's Electric Bower contribute largely towards the success.

GRAND, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—The premier position is held this week by Strassburger's LiHiputians, these midgets being capital. The Leslie Brothers contribute a much-appreciated musical turn; the Mackways, in their act, "whirling on the wire," are a huge success; the Brothers Bright, in a strong act, provide a good turn; Leslie and Anson, in their comedy duologue, are capital; Kate Lynd is good; Charlie Dixon does well; Harry Freeman scores his usual success; and the pictures are excellent.

HARROGATE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Fielding Smith.—Pantomime reigns here again this week. It is the ever-popular story of Cinderella, played by Messrs. Kitts and Bellamy's company. Miss Madge Haines is a fine, dashing Dandini, and is possessed of a good voice, which she uses to great advantage; Miss Rhoda Windrum is a pretty Cinderella, and appears with great advantage, especially in her scenes with Billy Boy the Page (Mr. Charles Kitts), who throughout works hard; Miss Jennie Lynwood is a handsome Prince Brilliant; and Messrs. Ford and Ford appear as the broker's men. Mr. J. Oliver Russell and Mr. Bert McNallie represent Rosalind and Patricia respectively, and Miss Enida Riley is a handsome Fairy Goodheart.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Everton and Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier. — The array of talent chosen for this week is one that is meeting with every mark of approval from well-filled houses. The entertainment by Picitt and Lizette, The Crazy Cook, is unique, and their illusions are performed with a dexterity that is astounding; Bert Woodward, the comedy cycling coon, is always popular here; the quick-changes by little Lizzie Leaver are wonderfully well done; the astounding equilibristic exhibition by Bugler Carr evokes applause; the Levans, song illustrators, are certainly up to date in what they do (the idea of combining bioscope and song is a novelty here); an attractive number is contributed by Ben Harris and his nippers; Leonard and Larry indulge in some really smart patter. A. J. Gamble, Scotch comedian, and the Bioscope are also on the list.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Peter Davey's company on Monday opened here in The Babes in the Wood, excellently stage-managed by Mr. Buckstone Clair. Miss Margery Chard, a handsome Titania, sang well; Miss Cissie Clark, an alert and active Puck, gave pleasure with her dancing; the Babes were in the capable hands of Miss Alice Bowes (Chrissie) and Miss Queenie Harvey (Reggie), and the former sang very sweetly; Miss Ethel Rainforth as Felicita and Miss Millie Henderson as Jasper gained much applause for their graceful danse à deux, and their songs were well received; Mr. William Benson as Martha was amusing as the Nurse, with good comic business; Mr. Charles McCann's Baron was a comic creation; and Mr. Alfred Sandoe (Bill) and Mr. Charlie Clark (Dick) as the villains were duly entertaining.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. A. B. Tapping and an excellent troupe of artists are appearing in the farcical play, entitled The New Boy. Mr. Tapping has never given us anything livelier than his sketch of Archibald Rennick—he wins the laughter and the favour of all, and the title-rôle could hardly be in more competent hands; Mr. E. Maud Cole gives a most effective sketch of Dr. Candy, of Birchgrove School; Mr. Algernon Syms, as Felix Roach, is excellent from an artistic point of view; Mr. Langford Reed is a typical French master; Miss Kate Wingfield submits a capital portrait of Mrs. Rennick; as Nancy Roach Miss Maud Stoner acts throughout with bright animation and merry humour; Mr. J. Forsyth successfully depicts Stubber; and Bullock, the pupil, finds a faithful interpreter in Mr. Robert Taylor.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Some quite new and original turns this week are receiving hearty applause. Miss Lily Brammer is a pleasing vocalist, who accompanies herself on the piano; Lincoln and Warren are clever trick cyclists; Mr. Bernard Katz effectively renders some good bass songs; the Hippodrome pictures are still an attractive feature; a very comic coster sketch is HORWICH. — PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Lewis.—Mr. Henry Bedford and company, in Gipsy Jack, form the attraction this week. The piece is admirably staged. Mr. Bedford, in the title-rôle, gives a telling rendering; Mr. David Curtis plays the rascally Lawyer to perfection, being ably assisted by Mr. Robert Gilbert as Gerald Skinner; Mr. Cecil Churton as Rev. Francis Harvey is creditable; and Mr. Sid Bedford as Joe Banks, and Mr. Archie Brown as Charley Bates, are humorous. Miss Bessie Bedford's May Harvey is a fine performance; Miss Frances Foley's impersonation of Hagar is excellent; and Miss Jenny Huggins had a capable exponent in Miss Jenny Risley.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.— Lessee and Manager, Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Geo. R. Baker.—On Monday Mr. Herbert Hollister's company presented The Lights o' London. As Harold Armytage Mr. Horace E. Herbert shows to advantage; Mr. Herbert Humber is an excellent Clifford Armytage; Mr. Chris. Mason as Jarvis and Misses Nellie Fern and Renee Douglas as Mrs. and Shakespeare Jarvis respectively are very good; Mr. Herbert Hollister makes an excellent Seth Preene; and the humorous element is well supplied by Mr. George Wallace as Philosopher Jack, assisted by Messrs. F. H. Waters, E. H. Dolby, T. Raymond, and Miss W. Eves. Miss Constance Davey as Hettey Preene is very capable, and an excellent Joey is found in little Rita Wallace. Miss Jennie Burgoyne in the rôle of Jess displays great ability.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Sherlock Holmes is here on a return visit, with the title-part well played by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart. Mr. James Skea is fine as Moriarty; Mr. S. T. Ewart displays much cleverness as Jim Larrabee; and Mr. Ed. Mervyn is smart as Prince. Miss Gladys Harvey makes the most of her opportunities as Alice Faulkner; Miss Rosalie Notrelle is trim as the ward Therese; and Miss Georgina Wynter a convincing Madge Larrabee. Mr. Stanley Logan showed discreet reserve as Dr. Watson; and Master Cedric Sutherland was smartly quaint as Billy.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Back to varieties, the bill this week includes the Davis-Gledhill Trio, in their novel and entertaining cycle contests; Chas. F. Best a humorous and original acrobatic comedian; E. W. Selman, comedian and dancer; Miss Ivy Gallard, comedienne; Eldra and his clever dog, in a well-planned entertainment; Burg, Haud, and Wise, comedians; Miss Lillian Rigby, in a bright musical medley; Marlo, an expert young juggler; Marstro and Mlle. Oretta, in a novel and daring acrobatic act; and Gaumont's invention, the Chronophone, a combination of bioscope and phonograph.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The pretty pantomime, Cinderella, has now practically entered upon its last lap, with the result that, to meet the demands made by the juveniles, whose presence at the matinées has been such a special feature of this show, an extra matinée has been arranged. The Morton management state that their box-office returns, the true test of success, have exceeded any previous production.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Jno. Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Brothers Renad should feel highly gratified that their efforts in Puss in Boots have been attended with so much satisfaction to the playgoing public, and met the taste of the patrons of the popular parts of the house. The comedians have played their parts well, and Miss Rita Everard, of whom we spoke in special praise at the initial performance, has justified everything that has been said concerning her. A more refined principal boy it would be difficult to discover. This lady has now introduced fresh songs, which largely add to her success.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Mortons, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton. — That well-known drama, Women and Wine, is a great attraction at this house, and the reception accorded it has been of the most cordial nature. Its plot is strong, and the situations are of a striking character. As John Seymour, an old Hull favourite, Mr. John S. Haydon, renews very pleasant memories of fine work; Miss Joan Periera furnishes a clever study as La Colombe.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Sydney Bacon's sketch, The Maniac, tops the bill. The remaining company includes the Mayvilles, Craig, Roze, and Craig, Billy Richardson, Ray and Nulles, Carl Howard, and Lily Foy.

THE PALACE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. S. Barnett.—Jno. S. Warren introduces a mystery, The Magic Carpet, and also performs some very clever conjuring tricks; Walter Bellonini exhibits considerable ability as a juggler; Lee and Kingston give an acceptable comedy tit-bit; Esta Stella is very sprightly and a dainty dancer. Other good turns include Les Uniques, the Stein-Ercetto Troupe, Marie Duma, Harry Clifford, and Professor Vox.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Stanley and Vandyke top the bill, and cause much laughter in their sketch, A Broken Promise; Harry Wright's vocal hits score a success; Peggy Fame is a popular artist; Russell Hatton appears in a rendering of Dickens's "Christmas Carol"; Nellie Gannon gains much applause; and Ted Hershall complete.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. K. Feather.—Crowded houses have nightly testified their hearty appreciation of Mr. James Kiddie's production, Little Cinderella, here this week. Mlle. De Rose makes a dashing Prince Perfect; Miss Edith Hames, a dainty Cinderella, sings tunefully; and Miss Zena Pana infuses plenty of dash into her impersonation of Dandini. Heading the comedians is Mr. Tom Payne, who, as Pimples, keeps the audience in one roar of laughter. The two ugly sisters find vivacious and humorous exponents in Messrs. Sydney Benson and G. W. Wesley; and the Baron, as impersonated by Mr. Dick Thomas, is a very mirth-provoking personage. Miss Rose Pareezer, a bewitching Fairy Sunbeam, sings several numbers in a delightful manner; and the evil genius, Hilario, is well impersonated by Mr. William Verto.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Heading the bill here this week are the Arthur Saxon Trio, whose marvellous feats of strength are nightly enthusiastically applauded; Mons. Russall Zasma is a clever gymnast and acrobat; and the tumbling and other acts of the Brothers Zargo France are neatly performed. Messrs. Yelding and Claude Ohmy, in their equestrian feats, continue to gain great applause; and Miss Ada Ohmy's graceful movements on horseback are much appreciated. Another smart performance is the globe act by Claude Ohmy; August and September are as funny as ever; and fun is also provided by the Brothers France and Funny Austin. The other items include Miss Lilly, with her two performing ponies, a war sketch by members of the company, and a series of living pictures.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. Arthur Gibbons presents his pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, this week. Mr. Ted Mac, as Dame Marjory, evokes considerable merriment; and the same remark applies to the Johnny Stout of Mr. J. T. Banks; Miss Nina Terri as Maid Marion is a dancer of more than average merit; Red Riding Hood is nicely enacted by Miss Nellie Banks; and the Prince Bountiful of Miss Janet Lawton is commendable. Miss Helena Parsons is a pleasing Dolly Mayflower; Miss Eva Santan is successful as the Fairy Queen; and Mr. Geo. Westland as Baron Badenough and Miss Florrie Turner as Jack Horner deserve mention.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—The Harmonics please with their duets; Heath and Heather, in The Blind Flower Girl, are successful; Yettmah, magician, again appears; Eric Vance is applauded for his bass songs; Irene Santley is a soprano of merit; Herbert Potts, comedian; Ethel Gale, serio; and Harry Carter, comedian, are all worthy of mention.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Burgess.—Miss Grace Warner and company are this week playing The Scarlet Clue and the Artful Valet. On Monday The Scarlet Clue was given. Miss Warner sustains rôles calculated to test her versatility, and it will suffice to say that all demands imposed upon the accomplished actress were met with evident ease and grace; Mr. George Gordon as Michael Stanton was seen at his very best; Mr. J. Leighton Leigh, as Billy the Rotter, kept the house in continuous laughter; Mr. F. Heywood as Croker and Mr. Arthur St. Clair as Jack Esmond are well placed.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager. Mr. Leonard Grey.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday, opening with Carmen. Mlle. Zelia de Lussac played the title-rôle with much charm and effect; Miss Alice Boaden was excellent as Michaela, the peasant girl; Mr. Charles Carter was successful in the part of Don José; while Mr. Marshall Vincent was well suited in the character of the bull-fighter, Escamillo. Messrs. R. Brookes and S. Lansdale, as the Smuggler and Il Dancairo respectively, and Messrs. Van Lechterop and G. Gorst rendered able assistance to the cast as Morales and Zuniga. A word of praise is also due to the Misses L. Thoms and M. Wood as the cigarette girls. The orchestra, which was augmented for the occasion, was well conducted by Mr. Harrison Frewin, and the opera was staged in the most satisfactory manner. Faust and Tannhäuser have also been produced with strong casts, and exceptionally large audiences have been the rule.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The chief item of a varied and attractive programme here was a laughable sketch, by Royston Keith and company, entitled All Change Here, the lady of the company being an excellent singer. Other turns included Tom Stuart, a character-actor and mimic, who pleased the audience greatly by his impersonations; Miss Gena Mason and Miss Lilly Tabiar, two pleasing vocalists; the Brothers Huxter, clever tumblers; Terry and Bentley, an amusing lady and gentleman; and the American Comedy Four, entertaining and clever vocalists.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr Jerold E. Reed.—This week Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson's company is paying a return visit with The Traitor. Mr. Bensley Evans gives a manly rendering of Prince Rudolph; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan is powerful in the title-rôle; Mr. A. McCullock is well placed as General Hertz, and Mr. T. W. Hurst is excellent as Captain Ross, R.N. Miss Katherine Vere makes an ideal Elsie Dupres; Miss Gwynne Warren does justice to the part of Countess Zicka; Miss Effie Bartlett is an effective Zulu, and Mr. F. Haming a droll Jack Boult, being ably assisted by Miss O. Lanty as Cen-Cen; Miss Isabel Hunt as Lieut. Nicholas is excellent.
